The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—Native Victor, half brother of Northern Dancer — 1964 Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Queen's Plate winner owned by E. P Taylor's Windfields farms—took the featured Variety Club Purse at Fort Erie Race Track Monday.

Jockey Nick Shuk brought Native Victor off the pace to win the 1 1-16th race in 1:43 4-5, just 1 2-5 seconds off the track record for the distance.

Native Victor, trained by Horatio Luro, was a 7-to-5 favorite in the Queen's Plate earlier this year, but finished a distant fourth.

Moving around the outside, Native Victor took the lead from his stablemate, Top Victory, who hung on to nose out Caledon Colonel for second.

Native Victor paid $3.60, $3.60 and $2.40

Successful Show Must Have Leading Man in Jeopardy

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"When you are dealing with an hour dramatic show, you must have a leading man who is in jeopardy, either because of his problems or his job," said a man whose track record seems to have proved his rule.

"If you violate this life-or-death concept, the show will go down."

Quinn Martin, who currently is the producer of The Fugitive (in jeopardy because of his problems) and 12 O'clock High, (whose hero is in jeopardy because of his job) is about to launch a third action series, The FBI, also on ABC, with a hero whose job puts him in danger on a weekly basis.

Martin's dramatic skeleton on which he is fleshing the shows sounds extremely pedestrian. His hero is the conveniently widowed lawman with the pretty young daughter in love with the young lawman. These men are FBI agents, but we've seen them as the mature sheriff and his deputy; the older police captain and the young detective and in a number of other situations. Obviously the formula works.

Obviously, too, Martin is going to tell stories about cases which the FBI solved and in which justice prevailed. He had access to the bureau's file of closed—concluded — cases, but has changed names, places and other circumstances so that it will be hard to recognize the original case.

HAS NO SECRETS

He is not worried about revealing the secrets of the bureau's operations.

"There is nothing to reveal," he said blandly. "The bureau works the way any good police department works. The only real difference between the FBI and the New York police department, for instance, is in size and scope."

Why does Martin think that, after all these seasons, the FBI gave its blessing this year to a series which must inevitably glorify the agent?

"I am going on the assumption that so many people tried making unauthorized series about pseudo - FBI men that the bureau decided there was no other way to correct things," the producer said.

Gypsy Rose Lee Busting Out in Movies, Television

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Gypsy Rose Lee, busting all out in movies and television, recently had some new glamour pin-ups made of her famous figure.

The first shipment went to her son serving in Europe with the U.S Army. She got this letter back:

"Dear mom:

"I pasted your new photos in my locker but my commanding officer made me take them all down. I guess there is a new army these days.

"I kept telling him: 'But, sir these are pictures of my mother.' It did no good.

"I keep the pictures in my trunk. Love Eric."

Gypsy says:

"I could kiss that officer. I've never had such a compliment. And I'm old enough now to really appreciate it."

The famed former queen of burlesue now is making the movie Mother Superior.

First question asked by a shocked reporter. Is she playing a nun?

"Heavens, no," says Gypsy. "Do you want to ruin my image?"

She plays a dance instructress in the movie that stars Rosalind Russell in the title role.

Gypsy, besides collecting royalties on her books and the stage and movie versions of her life, also is a television personality.

HAS TV SHOW

She started a daytime television chatter show in San Francisco and it now is being syndicated across the U.S.

"It's known as the bleepers sleeper," says Gypsy. "My burlesque reputation somehow gives a double meaning to everything that's said on the show. I'm always getting bleeped out."

But Gypsy thinks that the television censors go too far.

"I had an ordinary housewife on the show one day and she was telling me of the Japanese custom of wrapping your hairdo in toilet tissue and then sleeping on a board. It's quite a common practice even in this country among women who don't want to spoil a new hairdo.

"I merely asked the housewife what her husband thought about the practice. She answered: 'He said he didn't know whether to kiss me or flush me.' Bleep. Bleep."

Gypsy is a natural for television chatter. She's glib with an amazing command of the English language. She has written many books and articles and is considered quite "in" by the intellectual crowd.

"And I only went to school five days in my whole life," says Gypsy. "My sister June (Havoc) didn't go at all.

"And she keeps throwing it at me all the time. If we have trouble spelling a word, she always asks me: "Come on brain, you went to school.'"

AT THE PARK — Comedy Star — Dwayne Hickman, known to TV audiences as Dobie Gillis, joins Frankie Avalon in American International's new musical comedy "Ski Party" to launch a new comedy team for teenage movie fans. Color and Panavision production opens Wednesday at the Park Theatre for its first showing. Complete shows are at 7.00 and 9.15 p.m.

"VON RYAN'S EXPRESS"

World War II Action — Adventure

The film version of "Von Ryan's Express," David Westheimer's novel about a mass POW escape via railroad, stars Frank Sinatra and Trevor Howard and opens Wednesday at the Belle Theatre. Filmed in Cinemascope and DeLuxe Color under the direction of Mark Robson, the production was filmed on location in Italy with a cast that includes Raffaella Carra, Brad Dexter, Sergio Fantoni, John Leyton and Edward Mulhare.

The story centres around Colonel Joseph Ryan, an Air Force officer played by Frank Sinatra, who is captured after being shot down over Italy, and sent to a POW camp in Central Italy. Shortly after his arrival all prisoners are put aboard a train bound for Austria, but with the aid of British Major Fincham (Trevor Howard), Ryan and the prisoners subdue their German captors, and then try to fight and bluff their way through 400 miles of Nazi-controlled Italy to the safety of Switzerland.

Frank Sinatra, who played a sailor in his recent "None But the Brave," is promoted to a Colonel in the Air Force in "Von Ryan's Express."

Trevor Howard, who has also been seen on the screen numerous times as a military man, plays the role of Major Eric Fincham, the tough-as-nails British infantry officer who first despises Ryan, and then helps him lead the escape.

"Von Ryan's Express" introduces Raffaella Carra, the young Italian actress, in her American motion picture debut.

Insures Self Against Hole-In-One

CIRCENCESTER, Eng. (AP)—Thomas Breen, who has had three holes-in-one this season, has taken out insurance against it happening again.

"I was going to take out insurance after the first hole-in-one," he said, "then I figured it would never happen again."

Breen, a 49-year-old policeman, said the insurance will cover the cost of drinks that golfers who score holes-in-one have to buy for friends.

The insurance cost him two shillings six pence (about 37 cents).

"If I hole-in-one again this year," he said, "the insurers will pay me about £10 ($30). That should take care of the drinks."

War Has Gone Electronic, RCAF Run by Computers

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—War, at least as practised by the RCAF, is electronic and the weapons are computers.

Even as late as 1953, the last year of the Korean War, the RCAF was engaged in plane-against-plane, pilot-against-pilot warfare in which the dogfights were controlled by squadron or flight leaders themselves in the midst of the battle.

But now all phases of North American air defence warfare are controlled from the ground by senior officers aided by staffs of experts and banks of gadgetry.

During a typical air defence exercise today, the pilot is guided to his target not by his eye and the seat of his pants but by ground-based teams using radar and other information supplied by high-speed computers.

The fighter-interceptor is itself a computer. A small radar set in the CF-101 Voodoo jet projects a moving electronic beam which sweeps the sky ahead, reflecting from any aircraft within range and sending back electronic impulses which appear as "images" on the pilot's radar scope.

Once a target shows on the scope, the pilot "locks" his sweep beam onto it. That's about all he has to do apart from following the electronic orders he gets.

HARDER TO FIND

The locked-on beam feeds information into a small computer aboard the plane showing distance and direction to the target.

The computer automatically calculates the time to fire the Genie nuclear rocket. The pilot holds down the trigger during a certain length of time and the computer, at the proper instant, launches the missiles.

Some airmen claim this system is harder on the pilot than the old dogfight. One of them describes it this way:

"Imagine hunting with a telescopic sight as compared with the standard, open V sight. The telescopic sight lets you zero in on the target, but the target is harder to find and stay onto because your field of vision is limited."

Many fliers say "computer aircraft" such as the Voodoo and the CF-104 nuclear jet bomber have taken all the fun out of flying.

"But somebody has to do the job," one said.

So computerized has the system become that the RCAF has a squadron called the "electronic warfare unit."

It takes the part of the enemy and tries to confuse radar operators with various kinds of jamming. This in turn teaches the operators how to pick the real target out of a confusing mass of false trails.

The unit flies old CF-100 jets and spends most of its time training radar operators for the three Voodoo squadrons and the ground radar warning and interception system.

Three basic counter-measures are used by the electronic warfare unit.

The first is mechanical jamming—the release of thousands of aluminum strips called chaff (the old wartime code name was window.) The chaff shows up on ground radars as a huge cloud of confetti which hides the attacking plane.

The second is electronic jamming—tuning into the radar frequency of the interceptor or ground installation and sending out noise interference.

And then there is deception jamming—an electronic projection of a false radar image to draw interceptors away from the real target.

The electronic warfare unit is at St. Hubert, Que., and has a detachment at Comox, B.C.

'Suicide Strip' Of Highway Is Erased

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—The "suicide strip" of Highway 401 was erased in an unofficial ceremony about 30 miles southeast of here Monday.

Claimer of 20 lives, the two-lane pavement weaving through parts of Essex, Kent and Elgin counties was widened at its last point for four-lane traffic.

Officials of the highways department and provincial police were on hand to see the final blockade pushed away from the 13-mile south lane stretch which was given its grim designation more than two years ago when, within nine months, it had claimed 13 lives.

Its latest toll was 10 days ago when a 70-year-old motorist was killed.

The Dominion Automobile Association gave this reason for the number of accidents: Drivers, who became accustomed to unimpeded driving on four-lane roadways, misjudged their abilities to pass other motorists.

HERE THEY COME! — Thundering down the track Calgary Stampede chuckwagons last night pulled out all stops on excitement at Belleville Fair. The wagons staged their opening night show before a packed grandstand. Final races, in a show that mixes fun and free-flying thrills, will be run tonight.

Calgary Wagons Thrill Fair-goers Tuesday Evening

The Belleville Fair hit its third straight day of scorching weather today and prepared to play host to another throng of pleasure-seeking patrons.

Taking centre stage on the program is the stampeding Calgary chuckwagon show which plays to grandstand audiences today and tonight.

Tuesday, crowds of more than 1,700 roared approval for the rip-snorting wagon riders bucking each other around the track at breakneck pace. In all, 8,000 saw the fair yesterday.

The show drew a packed grandstand for the night production and Fair organizers uncrossed their fingers after a gloomy start.

Rain clouds drifted across the Quinte district just as the after-supper rush started to the Fairgrounds. The second night of the 1964 grandstand show was a complete washout and there were fears the record would stage a repeat performance last night.

Not so, though.

After a brace of brief, but heavy, showers the rainclouds drifted east and the big Western show went on as scheduled.

By the end of the night there were 7,966 paid admissions to the Fairgrounds — a healthy increase over last year's 6,100.

The chuckwagons proved the ideal encore for keeping going the excitement generated opening night by the Ontario motorcycle championships.

For many in the stands it was their first glimpse of the all-Canadian sport.

PLENTY OF ENTHUSIASM

Enthusiasm for the show never let up from the time the first wagons lumbered onto the track for their opening duel.

The succession of heats were spaced by the virtuoso performances of performing Liberty horses, acrobatic dogs, chariot and pony-wagon races.

But these only helped whet enthusiasm for the re-appearance of the chuckwagons.

WAGONS FAST

Speed is of the essence with these big babies of the stampede dirt-track and most of the times set around the track brought whistles of surprise from the spectators.

Times for the half-mile stretch—not counting the take-off—averaged around 54 and 55 seconds.

All the applause, however, didn't go to the veteran wagoneers. Some of the applause was reserved for a youngster riding in the pony classes—a smaller version of the classic chuckwagon. He was 12-year-old Bobby Garrow from One Hundred Mile House, B.C., the youngest rider with the show.

Adding a touch of sentiment amid the swirling dust clouds was the appearance of another youthful rider—Bob Sleeth, 18-year-old Kingston youth.

A san Easterner, he became enthralled with the churckwagons last year and followed them to Belleville, where their appearance last September was sponsored by the Fair Board.

When the show headed out from Belleville, Bob went with them.

Muslims Attack Police

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The restive calm of south Los Angeles was broken in pre-dawn darkness today in a gunfire exchange at a Black Muslim mosque.

Eight members of the militant Negro organization were reported wounded. Twenty-five were arrested.

Police said they were fired on as they checked reports that weapons were being carried into the mosque at 56th Street and Broadway in the Watts district. Officers returned fire and stormed the mosque.

Inside they found 20 Negro men. A search of the building failed to turn up any weapons. A Molotov cocktail was discovered on the roof.

Patrolmen said the mosque was "a mess" with blood on the floor of the front room.

Sniper fire also broke out a block away as officers led prisoners to a bus. Police riddled a second building with bullets but the sniper escaped.

The two incidents—plus the wounding of a Negro man as he ran from police—broke a calm that prevailed the first

Pirate Gold Legend Lures Four To Death

By HARRY CALNEK

OAK ISLAND, N.S. (CP)—A 170-year-old legend of pirate gold lured four men to their deaths Tuesday on this little island off Nova Scotia's south coast.

They died in a shallow, gas-filled pit they believed would lead them to $30,000,000 in treasure that they were convinced was buried here more than 200 years ago by pirates.

Robert Restall, 59, of Hamilton, Ont., had been here since 1959 and believed he was on the verge of becoming a millionaire. He collapsed and died in the pit. His son Bob, 24, went to his rescue and also died.

Karl Graeser, about 40, a Massapeque, Long Island, N.Y. mineralogist who was convinced Restall was on the right track, and Cyril Hiltz, 22, of Marin's Point, N.S., a member of Restall's crew, both died in an attempt to save the father and son.

A fifth man, Andy Demont, was pulled from the muddy hole unconscious. Gordon Hiltz, a brother of Cyril, and Leonard Keizer managed to climb from the hole when they felt the effects of the gas. Demont and Keizer are from Gold River, N.S.

LEGEND LIVES ON

The irresistable attraction of the legend that Capt. Kidd buried his treasure here is still alive today. A group of teen-age United States students and their two teachers who rescued Demont are exploring the island in their own quest for the fortune.

And Floyd Matthews of Moncton, one of many who backed Restall, said: "I don't see why this tragic accident should stop us."

As fog drifted in to cover the one-half-square-mile island Tuesday evening, Ricky, 14, curly - headed son of Restall, wandered aimlessly around the

Heavy Damage In Fire

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Calm winds and cooler temperatures forecast for today could give firefighters the break they need to control a stubborn forest fire cutting a wide swath through 2,600 acres of prime birch stands.

The fire, sparked last Saturday by a lightning bolt striking dry wood chips at a logging site, has already caused $400,000 damage to machinery of the Abitibi Power and Paper Company.

Frank Dodds, a provincial lands and forest supervisor, said Tuesday if the predicted weather holds "we can get this thing under control."

He has 250 firefighters, most of them experienced Ojibway Indians flown in from the Sioux Lookout reserve, and seven water-dropping planes, to help in the battle. The fire is burning in a remote area 1½ miles wide and four miles long, 60 miles north of here.

The only land access into the area is by narrow woods roads.

Back fires have been set to cut the advance of the flames, which ate through 600 more acres Tuesday. The planes take

English City Hit By Polio

By PETER BUCKLEY

LONDON (CP)—A polio epidemic in the Lancashire town of Blackburn has raised a spectre in Britain that medical authorities had hoped would never appear again.

"Let our misfortune be a warning to everyone," Dr. John Ardley, medical officer at Blackburn, said Tuesday in a telephone interview.

Latest count showed 19 confirmed cases of polio in Blackburn, with a population of 105,000, and 13 cases suspected. One death has been recorded. The outbreak has been officially classed as an epidemic.

"We hadn't had any polio for a few years and people had become complacent," Dr. Ardley said. "It's the same old story. We are always warning people that they should be immunized, but they do not respond until they see the danger in their midst."

The national health ministry said less than one-half the British population of 55,000,000 has been immunized, despite concerted programs of free vacine. Immunization in the cotton-manufacturing town of Blackburn was even below the national average before the epidemic began two weeks ago. Only about one-third of the people had been vaccinated.

Dr. Ardley brought in emergency supplies of oral vaccine and began a crash program of immunization and an estimated total of 95,000 have now been treated.

The blackburn outbreak has more than doubled the polio toll in Britain within two weeks. The disease had been on the wane in the country since large-scale immunization began in 1956.

Before that, polio took an enormous toll. In both 1947 and 1950, more than 7,000 Britons were hit by the disease and about one victim in 10 died from it. Other post-war years saw smaller outbreaks. Nearly 4,000 died of polio in the years before 1957.

Since then, the total has steadily declined until last year, when only 49 cases and five deaths were reported.

Marines' Landing Results In Fierce Fight With Reds

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. marines attacked a reinforced regiment of the Viet Cong south of Chu Lai today and Maj.-Gen. Lewis W. Walt, the marine commander, said Red casualties will run into the hundreds.

"We're not through counting yet," Walt told reporters at the Da Nang air base, 60 miles north of the battlefield.

Marines said the battle was the biggest yet fought by Americans in the Viet Nam war.

The marines stormed into action from landing craft and helicopters about 10 miles south of their Chu Lai beachhead, itself 330 miles northeast of Saigon.

The contact was officially described as heavy.

A marine briefing officer in Saigon said American casualties were light, but unofficial sources said the marines also took serious losses.

"I predict we'll have some tough fighting tomorrow," Walt said. "They (the Viet Cong) are well dug in."

One unconfirmed report from Da Nang said the marines had surrounded a Viet Cong regiment, which usually numbers between 1,000 and 1,500 men.

Two units that landed from helicopters were reported under heavy fire from small arms and mortars in the landing zones. The Viet Cong were reported firing from well dug-in positions.

Heavy Viet Cong fire also was said to have been received from nearby hill positions.

Strikes by armed helicopters and fighter - bombers were called in, and the marines began charging up a hill in the face of the fire. As they reached the top of the hill, the Viet Cong apparently had it zeroed in and began plastering the area with 60mm mortars and 30-calibre machine - gun fire, informants said.

Nearby marine elements were reported pinned down by automatic weapons, small arms, grenades and mortars.

The sources said the Viet Cong barrage lasted for 10 to 15 minutes until marines below the hill got their 81mm mortars and 50-calibre machine-guns in action.

Manry Gets Noisy Welcome At End of Atlantic Crossing

FALMOUTH (AP) — "I do wish England would stop moving around so much," said Robert Manry Tuesday night after 78 days crossing the Atlantic in his 13½-foot Tinkerbelle.

The 47 - year - old American journalist was getting his land legs back a few hours after completing his 3,200-mile solo voyage in the smallest sailboat known to have made the eastward Atlantic crossing non-stop.

After a hero's welcome from the townspeople of Falmouth and his family, Manry was relaxing in his hotel room when he got a telephone call from his boss, Thomas Vail, publisher and editor of the Cleveland, Ohio, Plain Dealer.

Manry hung on to the bannister as he came down to the phone.

"I've always wanted to be in England," he told Vail, "and I came here the hard way, but I wish it would stop moving around."

Vail congratulated Manry and the sailor replied: "Well, thank you very much. I do not think anything I did was all that important."

Said Vail: "Right now you're probably better known in Ohio than President Johnson."

Manry arrived Tuesday night in the setting sun, greeted by an armada of small boats and an uproar of cheers, church bells and ship sirens. He had left Falmouth, Mass., June 1.

He first embraced his wife, Virginia, 46, his son, Douglas, 11, and his 14-year-old daughter, Robin. Then he knelt and kissed the soil of England.

Manry was sun-tanned and fit; the Tinkerbelle's white paint and red deck gleamed and she flew the Stars and Stripes proudly.

After the welcome, Manry went to his hotel and climbed into the tub—"the best place I've ever seen," he said. Later he had dinner for the first time in 2½ months with his family, who had flown here to welcome him.

Harbor officials meanwhile picked up the Tinkerbelle and tucked her away in a RAF marine base so souvenir hunters would not pick her apart.

A resolution has been introduced in the U.S. Congress to place the tiny boat in the Smithsonian Institution alongside Charles A. Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis.

Manry told reporters of spine-chilling adventures during his long solitary voyage and weird hallucinations from medicine he took to fight off fatigue.

"For a time I thought my boy Douglas was on the boat with me," he said. "Then there was another man with us—a monster — and when Douglas went into the cabin, this monster would throw him overboard. I got so I was scared to go into the cabin for fear of this monster.

"Eventually I plucked up the courage to jump in there. There was no one there and that broke the hallucination."

Manry feared he might fall asleep at night and be run down by Atlantic shipping.

"My routine was to sail 12 or 13 hours overnight, then I would take off the sail, lash the helm and lie to the sea anchor"—a canvas cone that trails astern and holds the bow into the wind, riding the waves with the least danger.

Six times he was washed overboard. A lifeline saved him five times and the other time he caught the rigging as the boat sailed past him.

Manry bought the Tinkerbelle six years ago and rebuilt her.

He sailed her on Lake Erie and learned to navigate through short, sharp waves with breaking tops. "Lake Erie was a good school," he said.

All Systems Of Gemini 5 Ready for Trip

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) A space agency official said today that all problems had been resolved and that "all systems are in a ready condition" for Thursday's scheduled blast-off of the Gemini 5 spacecraft.

Astronauts L. Gordon Cooper and Charles Conrad are to be sent aloft on man's longest attempted manned space flight, an eight-day weightless whirl.

Dr. George E. Mueller, associate administrator for manned space flight, said a spacecraft power supply problem had been resolved and "all systems are in a ready condition and the crew is ready to go."

Beatle Fans by Thousands Welcome Singers to Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Britain's singing MBEs came back to town Tuesday and proved again that a Beatlemaniac can take anything. In the doing, they picked up a hefty piece of change for an hour's work.

It was all of a piece with 1964. The heat was stifling. The police, perhaps a bit more wan than last year, were as efficiently brusque. The audiences came through nobly—they performed hysterically.

That's what the 36,000 teenagers who turned out at what was billed as two performances in Maple Leaf Gardens were supposed to do. They keeled over in the proper numbers and at the proper times and everybody, even the Beatles, enjoyed it.

The singers from Liverpool kept their fans waiting for two hours in 100-degree heat in the Gardens. But the loyal teenagers showed amazing patience. They knew all the time that the plane bringing them from New York had been held up by bad weather and it wasn't their fault.

The quartet was to leave today for Atlanta, Ga., on the next stop of their North American tour.

Beatle fans turned out in their thousands to welcome John, Paul, George and Ringo back to the scene of their 1964 triumph when they wowed the town. It was a repeat performance. Even the music seemed the same though press-box critics, a few hundred feet from the stage, couldn't be sure.

Toronto's finest also did well. At least 700 constables of the 2,500-man force were detailed to the task of guarding the Beatles and they did so well that hardly a glimpse of the famous four could be obtained except when they were on stage.

So many police were called out that normal law business got clogged.

Many court cases were adjourned for lack of police witnesses, and a few disgruntled lawyers suggested the Beatles should be charged with obstructing justice.

Police had trouble getting enough men to conduct a manhunt for a gunman who held up a trust office, but eventually a suspect was run down. For another holdup, at a bank, a detail of officers was taken from the Beatle squad.

But it worked out fine for Police Chief James Mackey. His route home from supervising night action at the Beatles' hotel landed him in front of a sporting goods store where officers with tear gas were smoking out an intruder holding them off with a shotgun, and he took over.

Casualties among the youngsters were about the same as on the Beatles' first visit [illegible]0-odd girls treated for shock and hysteria with several requiring hospital treatment.

The customary press conference between shows also was little changed from Sept. 7, 1964. Three hundred men and women reporters crowded into a room intended to hold about 250 and asked the usual questions.

No, Paul McCartney said, he wasn't going to get married for a while. Yes, said Ringo Starr, he just loved Toronto. John Lennon and George Harrison agreed that they might have looked a little bored with it all but they weren't really. They were just tired after a gruelling road trip.

There was an ominous note in a Gardens press release announcing the time of the press conference. It welcomed reporters to the "second annual" press conference.

The gross take for both performances Tuesday was estimated tentatively at about $160,000. The Beatles' share was said to be between $90,000 and $100,000.

Halt Kutch Peace Talks Due To Kashmir Fighting

NEW DELHI (AP) —India called off peace talks with Pakistani Foreign Minister Z. A. Bhutto today because of the fighting in Kashmir.

Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri told parliament Bhutto had been asked not to come to New Delhi Thursday because of the "serious deterioration" in India-Pakistan relations.

Bhutto was coming to discuss the cease-fire agreement for the Rann of Kutch, a barren border area 800 miles southwest of Kashmir where Indian and Pakistani forces fought in April and May.

Shastri said India stands by the Kutch agreement, despite demands within the country that the government repudiate it.

The agreement calls for the two countries to submit their dispute over the Kutch to a tribunal of foreign jurists, a formula which Shastri's opposition says means surrender of Indian territory.

The agreement requires discussions between the Indian and Pakistani foreign ministers at this time. India's cancellation of the talks appeared to put the whole Kutch settlement in jeopardy.

Indian political extremists demanded Tuesday that Shastri break off peace talks with Pakistan and retaliate strongly against guerrilla forays into Kashmir.

Anti - Pakistan emotion and war talk rose in New Delhi. Indian officials blame the heavy Kashmir fighting on Pakistani infiltration into the Indian-held part of Kashmir.

In southwest Kashmir, the Indian Army reported it fought 200 to 300 guerrillas. They used mortars and machine - guns, spokesmen said.

Artillery went into action in other sectors.

Ask Rain-making Machines Banned Until Investigation

TIMMINS (CP) — The Timmins - Porcupine Chamber of Commerce will ask Premier Roberts to issue an order to all companies dealing in rain-making machines to stop operations until an investigation is made.

C. J. Crocco, president of the chamber, said Tuesday that no one has the moral right to "interfere with an act of God for their own benefit, particularly when it is detrimental to others."

He said the chamber will seek to enact legislation to prevent tampering with the elements.

Farmer Agnas Lafleur, a Mountjoy Township councillor, has drawn the ire of his fellow farmers because he refuses to get rid of a rain-making machine on his farm.

Many area farmers blame his machine for a prolonged rainy spell during the last few weeks which ruined hay crops.

Municipal Affairs Minister Spooner said the machines do not cause rainfall in their own immediate areas. He said the seeding of a particular type of cloud in a certain location is supposed to create rainfall from 50 to 200 miles away.

Mr. Crocco said that, notwithstanding this, a detailed investigation is needed of the devices.

"No opinions were sought from local people before the devices were installed," he said.

Mrs. J. R. Mutchmor Dies Due to Cancer

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. J. R. Mutchmor, 75, wife of Rev. Dr. J. R. Mutchmor, Moderator of the United Church of Canada from 1962 to 1964, died of cancer in hospital here early today.

Mrs. Mutchmor was born in Ypsilanti, Mich., and took a bachelor of science at Teacher's College, Columbia University, New York City.

She was a schoolteacher before her marriage to Dr. Mutchmor in 1920.

Conservation, Fire Protection On Display

Conservation of the nation's natural resources and the importance of fire protection for the nation's forests, is the double barrelled message by two adjoining booths in the granstand area at Belleville Fair.

The adjoining booths are operated by the Moira River Conservation Authority and the other by the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests.

The Moira Conservation Area booth is one made up of colored slides of various projects undertaken by the Authority, while the Department booth is a static one emphasizing the importance of forest fire protection and stressing the functional value of trees and their beauty when properly used as windbreaks.

Also in the grandstand area is a display by the Belleville Fire Department which at the same time gets in an appeal for the support of the fight against muscular dystrophy.

Justice Justice C. Henry Returns to Kiwanis Here

Justice was heard at Kiwanis yesterday.

That's because Justice was the speaker—Justice Cass Henry that is, a justice of the United States Supreme Court for Monroe County, near Rochester.

Justice Henry, making his 12th annual speaking jaunt to the Belleville Kiwanis Club, is very active in the rehabilitation of paroled convicts, and he chose that subject for his address.

"I started in this work when I was assistant District Attorney for Monroe County," he said. "I was assigned to prosecute a very notorious criminal, Blackie Nast, on a charge of assault.

"Blackie was indicted on the charge, but afterwards his brother, who had never been in trouble with the law, confessed that it was really he who had committed the assault. The Grand Jury wouldn't believe the story, and Blackie was convicted and sent to prison for five years, crying that he'd been framed and that he'd get even.

"One afternoon after I had become District Attorney," Justice Henry continued, "I was seated alone in my office when in walked Blackie Nast. He had a fiercesome, awe-inspiring appearance, with a dark, sallow complexion, a barrel chest, and long sinewy arms.

GOT A SURPRISE

"Needless to say, I was very frightened by his sudden appearance in my office, but I was in for the surprise of my life.

"He walked over to my desk, leaned forward, and said 'Mr. Henry, I want you to do something for me.'

"He told me he'd been on parole for seven months and he didn't want to get in trouble again, but he needed a job and the only thing he could do was drive a truck. He said he could get a job in a laundry, but he couldn't get his chauffeur's licence because of a New York law that takes the driver's licence away from a person convicted of an offence.

"That law by the way, is one of the most foolish and unfair laws I know of. I've fought against it for years.

"Anyway, after a long battle, I got Blackie his licence and from that day until now, he has never so much as had a minor brush with the law."

"Before he had come to me, he'd gone to everyone else he thought could help him, and they weren't interested. I was the last resort."

"But here was an "incorrigible" criminal, looking for a chance and finding it in the place where he least expected it. I don't know how much I really helped him on his way to straighten out, but I know he helped me realize that a leopard can change its spots."

"After I helped Blackie, the word went out through the grapevine that I was willing to help, and I've been doing it ever since."

"This incident made me realize that there is a great personal reward in helping in a small way to make a bad life a little better."

"Too often in business," he said, "people will turn down a job application from a person on parole. They don't want to take the risk. This leaves the jobless man hovering on the outside and probably headed back to his old ways."

"Business men should be willing to take a chance on these people. All they want want is a chance."

"If more people would take the trouble and make the effort to give a helping hand, they would discover a very lasting and very rich reward in the satisfaction it affords."

Gunman Held After Battle With Police

TORONTO (CP) — A man armed with a shotgun held off police for 45 minutes in a gun battle in a downtown Toronto sporting goods store Tuesday night before being subdued by tear gas.

A passerby first spotted the man in the basement store below an Ontario Liquor Control Board store about 9:30 p.m. and called police.

Police Chief James Mackey was called to the scene while on his way home from a Beatle demonstration in front of the King Edward Hotel. He said the man had broken through a window into the store and was loading a 12 - gauge shotgun when a police car arrived.

Chief Mackey ordered police reinforcements not to fire unless the man did. He called on the man to surrender and was answered with a shotgun blast.

Police traded about a dozen shots with the man and then fired at least two hand canisters and three rifle canisters of tear gas into the store.

James John Horodenchuk, 26, an unemployed teletype operator formerly of St. Catharines, was later charged with breaking and entering and discharging a firearm with intent to resist arrest.

During the battle, customers at the liquor store above milled about in confusion before escaping through a side entrance. One woman fainted in the excitement, but she was the only casualty.

Cabinet Will Meet P.M. to Talk Election

OTTAWA (CP) — Many federal cabinet ministers are heading back to the capital for a final meeting with Prime Minister Pearson today before he sets out on a two - province western trip that could determine whether an election is called this year.

About 15 of the 24 cabinet ministers are expected to attend. A majority of the cabinet is understood to favor a fall election. Most of the prime minister's closest political advisers are expected at the meeting.

Wednesday night Mr. Pearson leaves for Toronto where he opens the Canadian National Exhibition Friday before heading for British Columbia and Alberta.

He opens the Pacific National External Affairs Minister day, spends three days privately on Vancouver Island, and then speaks at Vancouver Wednesday, Aug. 25, at Prince George and Banff Aug. 27 and at Edmonton Aug. 28.

External Affairs Ministe Martin, who has said he does not want an election now, and Finance Minister Gordon, who has said he favors one, are both returning to Ottawa for the cabinet meeting.

MAY BE ABSENT

The nine probable absentees include Labor Minister MacEachen, looked on as one of the more influential members of the cabinet.

Farthest away is Health Minister Judy LaMarsh—in Hawaii. Before departing the country, she said in Vancouver at the weekend that she and most of her close friends in the cabinet would like an election this year.

Traditionally, dissolution of Parliament and the calling of an election are prerogatives of the prime minister although cabinet ministers may offer advice.

Should Mr. Pearson decide against an election now, there is the possibility none would be held until at least late 1966 or 1967. Officials in all parties want a minimum of six months following the official publication of new ridings to reorganize their associations for the new boundaries.

The centennial celebrations in the first half of 1967 are cited by some Liberals as an argument against an election early that year.

Allege Visitors Being Kept Out of Plant

BRAMPTON (CP) — Officials of American Motors (Canada) Ltd., said Tuesday that picketing strikers are preventing some office workers and visitors from entering the company's plant.

"Some visitors are being allowed in, while others are being kept out," the spokesman said. He added: "It will be sometime Wednesday before the company decides whether any court action is going to be taken."

About 1,250 employees of American Motors, represented by Local 1285, United Auto Workers (CLC), have been on strike since Friday night to back demands for additional wages and fringe benefits.

Hourly wage rates range from $2.16 an hour for laborers to $2.76 for the highest-paid skilled workers. The company claims the union is demanding increases amounting to 27 cents an hour, but the union says the increases would amount to 12½ cents an hour.

TWO GET DEATH

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — A court Tuesday sentenced two men to death and two to life imprisonment for the strangling of India's solicitor-general, H. N. Sanyal, last September. The court judge said the motive was robbery. The two sentenced to death were Sri Chand and Manzoor Ahmed.

Playground Activities

AVONDALE

On Friday, August 13, was held a Doll and Buggy Show at Avondale Playground. The girls brought their dolls and buggies and the boys brought their favorite toys.

The judges for the event were: Debbie Corbett, Gabrielle Cornellies and Lynn Wood.

The winners were as follows:

Best doll and buggy, Sherry Frost; prettiest baby doll, Tina Cornellies; prettiest teenage doll, Mark Woods; doll with most freckles, Karen Lumley; most original toy, Brian Weinberger; prettiest bride doll, Margaret Matthews; biggest toy, Robert Guthrick; smallest toy, Paul Calbury; best stuffed doll, Karen Matthews; biggest doll, Marilyn Rawn; smallest doll, Mary Ann Ashley; funniest doll, Margaret Wood; doll with curliest hair, Karen Day; doll with straightest hair, Kathy Wright.

Mrs. John Frost made lemonade and after the judging, each child was given a glass and it was very refreshing.

Thank you, Mrs. Frost.

Canoeists Race Down Lake in Pouring Rain

ORILLIA (CP) — Eight six-man canoes retracing an old voyageur route through Ontario raced down Lake Couchiching in a pouring rain Tuesday.

The two - mile sprint to the Champlain monument on the town's water - front was the first of four to be held during the 600-mile voyage, staged as a preparation for a 3,500-mile canoe race from Edmonton to Montreal during Canada's centennial in 1967.

The finish line was almost directly under the bronze gaze of Samuel de Champlain, the man whose 1615 trail the canoes have been following since they left North Bay Aug. 9.

While the Alberta teams have been leading for much of the marathon, Ontario's two teams took first and second places in the race Tuesday. One of the two Alberta canoes came third.

The canoeists camped for the night a few hundred yards from the monument and were to leave early today to continue their trip through the Trent Canal System to Gananoque. They hope to reach Gananoque in time for the North American canoe championships Aug. 29.

After a gruelling trip across Georgian Bay the crews said they were glad to be near shore again.

The Yukon team reported Tuesday that during the weekend trip down the coast of Georgian Bay their canoe overturned. The only thing lost was a transistor radio and with the help of the other crews the craft was righted and they continued their way.

IN MEMORIAM

WICKETT — In loving memory of my dear husband George Almon Wickett, who passed away Aug. 18th, 1964.

Beside your grave I often stand,
With heart both crushed and sore,
Silent till the sweet words come,
"Not lost, but gone before."
God knows how much I miss you,
He counts the tears I shed,
And whispers "He only sleeps,
Your loved one is not dead."
So I'll be brave, dear Almon,
And pray to God each day,
And when He calls me home to you,
Your smile will guide the way.

—Always remembered by his loving wife Clara and children Evelyn, Barbara, George Randall and William and grandchildren Allan, David and Terry.

Six Belleville Students Ontario Scholars

Six Belleville high school students have won Ontario Scholarships of $400 each as result of achieving 80 per cent and over in their grade XIII examinations. Here are pictures of five of them. The sixth, Irene Bakker, student of Belleville Collegiate, now living in Hamilton, achieved an average of 85.75 per cent.

James Black, Nicholson Catholic College, 88.9 per cent, the highest mark here, will study either teaching or science at St. Michael's College, Toronto.

John English, Moira Secondary School, 82.6 per cent, will study engineering at Waterloo University.

James Bonn, Nicholson Catholic College, 81.5 per cent, will study medicine at Queen's.

Robert Probert, Moira Secondary School, 82.9 per cent, will take honors mathematics at Waterloo University.

Ann Thompson, Moira Secondary School, 80.3 per cent, will take honors course at Toronto University.

Royal Bank Branch Opens

The bright new Royal Bank at 246 North Front Street, on the corner of Valleyview Crescent, officially opened for business Tuesday.

Bank manager, D. L. Bedore, who was transferred here from Cooksville, said, "this bank was opened here to serve this rapidly expanding area of Belleville."

At 10.09 yesterday morning, Jim Amodeo, from Amodeo's Super Save next to the bank, opened a Savings Account and became the first customer.

Besides Mr. Bedore, the bank is staffed by J. A. Williams, accountant, transferred from Guelph, and Mrs. E. I. Jones, teller, transferred from the main branch on Front St.

Motion Is Accepted by Town Council

TRENTON — The town's public works' committee, headed by Councillor Joseph Gould has recommended to council that the Lakeland Gas Company not be permitted to dig on Fourth Ave. in order to install lead pipes for their product. Council has accepted this recommendation.

Wm. Sidor of the Westmount Park sub - division has been advised that plans and specifications for outstanding services in his development are available to him at the town office. It is necessary, under Mr. Sidor's agreement with the town, that these installations be completed before the corporation takes over the sub - division.

Acting on the committee's recommendation, council has authorized the purchase of a half ton truck for the use of the sewer foreman; the engineer has been authorized to buy a new electric power sewer rodder at an estimated cost of $725. An allowance of $75 on an old, smaller rodder will be applied to the purchase price.

Council will pass a by - law making it mandatory that all new house sewer connections include a cleanout at the property line.

And town solicitor Roderick Campbell has been asked to report on appropriate action required to re - open a water course, blocked in the vicinity of Canal and Wall Streets to relieve flooding conditions.

Accused Sent Up for Trial

TRENTON — Following a preliminary hearing before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in Trenton court yesterday, Everett Parks of Belleville was bound over for trial before judge and jury on a charge of attempted breaking and entering. The charge arose out of an incident on the evening of July 10 when a three-foot square window in a door to the Forbes Service Station on Front Street was broken. Police evidence revealed Parks had suffered cuts to his right arm on that date. Parks was represented by Belleville lawyer, Thomas Lally.

A charge of committing wilful damage, in connection with the same incident, against Hector Joseph Caissie, also of Belleville, was dropped by the Crown.

Ronald Yeatman of Trenton, pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the Subway Lunch on Sidney Street on August 14, and also to three charges of theft. He was remanded until Friday, August 20.

Capital Budget Program Asked By Committee

TRENTON — Town council's finance committee, headed by Councillor Duncan McDonald, has made a number of recommendations to council.

The committee asks that the five-year capital budget program which must be approved by the Ontario Municipal Board be submitted to the board not later than August 25. A special meeting of council to complete the budget estimates is indicated.

The committee asks also that the Ontario Department of Highways be requested to give the town revised estimates of the proposed new bridge and all costs involved as well as the estimated grants for which these expenditures would be eligible. Work on the bridge structure is expected to start this fall.

The Public Utilities Commission will be asked to submit an estimate of costs to the town for the proposed new dam and water storage pond in Murray township in order that these may be included in the capital budget estimates.

The committee recommends that $45,000 be spent over a three-year period on Trenton's Centennial Project, the completion of Phase One of the waterfront park, south of the Community Gardens. Th would be taken out of curre funds.

The committee also recom mends that the installation trunk sewers as recommende by consultants Gore and Sto ric be scheduled, as requeste by the Ontario Water Resourc Commission, and when nece sary, the funds be rais through the sewer rates a the sewer service rates.

Eskimos Not Consulted

A northern health service doctor says that housands of dollars are wasted annually by isits of government officials from the south into he Arctic.

Dr. Sylvester Drabbit, of Frobisher Bay, told he advisory commission on the development of overnment in the Northwest Territories that uch money would be better used buying food or Eskimos who still starve to death despite the resence of the white man.

The medical officer, now in his fourth year n the north, said government officials conferred with heads of departments, but never with the skimos themselves. Everything was being done ithout the Eskimo being consulted.

Dr. Drabbit had some harsh words for Health Minister Judy LaMarsh. He said that all she lid while presiding over the opening of a 30-bed ospital last November was "grumble that the urses would want bathtubs next," and said hey were having "the time of their lives in the rctic and were better off than in Ottawa."

Miss LaMarsh's reaction to this criticism was ot stated, but it would be only fair to suggest hat she would have picked up some valuable nowledge of conditions in the Arctic and ideas bout how living conditions there might be improved for European and Eskimo alike.

Likewise the visits of other government officials to the north are essential from time to ime. In this way they can obtain first-hand nowledge of the problems that exist.

The current visit by the advisory commission is, perhaps, the most ambitious to date. The fact that it is headed by A. W. R. Carrothers, Dean of Law at the University of Western Ontario, and is, therefore, free of political ties may well lead to significant new progress in he development of government in the north

TV or Travel?

If it is true that Canadians are not watching elevision as much as they have been, it may be ll to the good.

Television is little more than an invitation to mental and physical decline. It is the enemy of initiative and personal creativeness. It is the lazy man's way of spending leisure time. It may be educational . . . but not that educational.

Yet watching the little screen, the CBC reports, remains second only to sleeping as the nation's most popular activity

Some people have their eyes on more distant horizons than are afforded by television. There is Jane Smith, 24-year-old American who stopped in Belleville last week en route to California—on horseback. With one horse as mount and another as pack animal Miss Smith is doing what perhaps no one else has done since A. F. Tschiffely rode on horseback from Buenos Aires to Washington, D.C., between 1925 and 1928.

Meanwhile Leon Gillis, 44, of Richmond, Va., his wife, three daughters aged 13 to 18, and son George, 10, are on their way across Canada by covered wagon. The Gillis family has made similar trips across the United States and Europe, including the iron curtain countries.

Their first trip—across the U.S.—was in 1961 after Mr. Gillis sold his restaurant. The children bring school text books with them to keep up their formal studies and the family tries to stop at shopping plazas where there are laundromats and crowds. Colored postcards of the wagon, horses and family are sold to defray expenses.

And an 18-year-old Trenton high school student, Alan Russell, is showing what a young fellow can do by saving his money. Alan set out on July 2 on a three-month trip that has taken him as far as Australia. He saved for the journey by working at his father's car dealership. En route to Australia he visited Tahiti and New Caledonia. Previous trips have taken the Trenton youth to England and Europe.

The contemporary equivalent of having pigs in the kitchen is to have a TV set in the drawing room. It is a sign of low breeding. Properly the television set is confined to a compound below stairs where it may amuse the younger children, grand parents and, in moments of weakness, Father.—Eric Nicol in The Hamilton Spectator.

Recent figures tell us that every day approximately 1,000 Americans cross the line that divides the social drinker and the alcoholics.—Ann Landers.

Stomach Very Complicated, Indigestion Causes Vary

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: An advertisement for a product to relieve indigestion or upset stomach says it works just like milk. Is milk a good remedy for stomach acidity? I am troubled with indigestion, mostly due to nerves, and I always thought that ginger ale, tea or magnesia tablets were helpful. What is best for relief? — Mrs. D. V.

The stomach is very complicated. After years of observing and helping people who have "stomach trouble" I am astonished at how well the average organ acts.

But asking "what is best for relief" is like asking what is "best" for — well, let's say a foot problem. What kind? Fallen arches, corns, blisters, heel spurs, athlete's foot, ingrown toenails, plantar warts, or you stubbed your toe on a rock ?

In fact, I'm not so sure that the stomach isn't, in practice, less complicated than our feet.

Let's agree, for the moment, that the stomach may have ulcers, cancer, gastritis, violent spasms or other serious troubles, but we won't discuss these. We'll just talk about "stomach distress," or a "nervous stomach," or the common or garden-variety of pains and burps.

We call many things "indigestion," but that term doesn't really mean anything. We do digest what we eat; what we really complain about is pain, or gas. It doesn't even mean anything — without tests — to talk about an "acid stomach," because the organ is supposed to contain digestive acids, and if we didn't have them, we'd be in trouble.

Milk itself is effective in reducing excessive acidity — if it exists. Hence commercial stomach tablets often contain powdered milk.

But many a person with so-called 'indigestion' doesn't have excess acidity. He may have a "nervous stomach," or stomach spasms, not from acid but because he is a nervous type. For him, warm milk may help, not by combatting acidity, but by relaxing the spasm. Warm tea might do as much good.

Ginger ale (or almost any other carbonated drink), if taken cold, will help release "gas," although this annoying symptom usually is just air that has been swallowed.

For many a patient who says he has "indigestion" or "acid stomach" or some other such term, the real answer is to eat smaller meals. He's tense — and his stomach will handle a moderate amount of food, but it has some muscular spasms if he overloads it at any one time.

For the occasional "upset stomach", eating lightly, drinking some warm milk, and relaxing the nerves are recommended. If there's too much "gas," sipping a carbonated drink, and relaxing, are excellent. (But gulping the drink and staying tense won't do much if anything for us.) Magnesia will absorb a bit of acid and is a mild laxative.

In fact, my advice is to use whatever mild, simple remedy that seems to suit you. Just one word of caution. If you have chronic, constant trouble, consult your doctor. You may have gall bladder trouble, hiatal hernia, ulcers, etc.

For some people reducing the amount of fat can be helpful.

Dear Doctor: What causes quivering in the voice when talking? — Mrs. J. L.

In the young, usually nervousness, or in technical language, faulty control of the muscles used in phonation. In older persons, it is generalized muscular weakness.

• •

To Mrs. C. McN.: I see no reason — other things being equal — why a glass or two of beer should harm a patient with emphysema. I would, however, keep the amount moderate.

Strictly Personal

English Largely Loan Language

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

During a fierce family game of Scrabble the other night, my nearest and dearest turned against me when I formed the word "brio." They all cried "Foul!" — this was a "foreign" word, and foreign words are not allowed in the game, according to the rules on the box.

But what exactly is a "foreign" word? Dictionaries themselves disagree on this. "Brio" is a musical term and comes from the Italian; but so are "crescendo" and "piano," and no one would accuse them of being aliens. They are just used more often than "brio."

English is largely a loan-language, and the line between "native" and "foreign" words is thin and continually shifting, as more and more words become naturalized with usage.

Even 200 years ago, when Dr. Johnson's dictionary came out, an analysis of the leading 20,000 words in English showed that fewer than 2,000 were originally Anglo-Saxon. Latin gave us more than 6,000, French nearly 5,000 and Greek more than 1,000. Dutch, Italian and German also gave us many hundreds.

Does anyone today think of "rouge" or "garage" as French words; yet we even pronounce them in the French way (unlike the British, who pronounce garage to rhyme with "marriage.") And the word "cigaret" is only 100 years old, of French origin; who would insist that "cigaret" is not an English word?

Our "neighbor" is the dutch word meaning the farmer who lives nigh to us. A "fiasco" is the Italian word meaning "a little flask" that is ruined in glass-blowing. A "tariff" is a Moorish word, derived from a fortress on the Tarifa promontory. Even our nursery-magic phrase, "hocus pocus," comes from the Latin formula, "Hoc est corpus meum," used by the priest on the elevation of the host in the rite of transubstantiation.

How long does it take a foreign word to become naturalized? There is no rule for this. It is only 20 years or so since the Nazis introduced the word "blitzkreig" into the general vocabulary; in another generation it may be accepted to be as much a part of the English language as "kindergarten" is now considered to be —although that, too, was exclusively a German word in our grandparents' time.

A new, or useful, or highly descriptive word is international currency: one country may claim its birth, but it rapidly becomes a citizen of the world. The American "Okay" is widely used everywhere on the globe just as our "R.S.V.P." on invitations has long ceased to be French property.

If all the loan-words were suddenly stripped from our vocabulary, we should hardly be able to make ourselves understood to one another in what remained of "English." We couldn't even play Scrabble very well.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

August 18, 1965 . . .

At the battle of Gravelotte, 95 years ago today—in 1870—the fate of the Second French Empire was sealed. Within the first month of war, the Prussian armies had occupied Alsace and bottled up one of the two French armies in Metz. Assuming the French were in retreat, the Prussian crown prince's armies advanced on Metz and tumbled in disorder on the centre of the French battle line. Though the centre held firm, one flank was turned and Marshal Bazaine did not press the attack. This left the way clear for the annihilation of the other French army and the capture of the emperor at Sedan, two weeks later.

1587—Virginia Dare, the first European child born in North America, was born at Roanoke, N.C.

1838—Charles Wilkes' circumnavigation of the Antarctic began.

Civil Rights in Canada

The Printed Word

There is more loose talk and less sound thinking in Canada today about civil rights than about almost any other subject. The government of Ontario has appointed a one-man royal commission to examine the working of present laws in order to ascertain whether or not they adequately protect the people's rights in all respects. The esteem in which Commissioner McRuer is held encourages the hope that his findings will prove to be a valuable contribution to the cause of justice and the rights of the citizens.

But the government itself is not waiting for the findings of the commission; it is going ahead extending the scope and authority of some of the laws already on the books which are more oppressive than protective in their operation. The most charitable view that can be taken of the conduct of the government in this matter is that it, especially the legislative branch of it, has no clearly defined philosophy to guide its thinking; and is blissfully enacting laws, the implications of which it has not taken the trouble to study.

Surely it is the right of every human being to sell his labor to whoever will hire him, to bargain with his employer over wages and hours and working conditions without being compelled to join or pay dues to a union to which he does not wish to belong.

Surely it is the right of a minor whose labor is not worth the minimum wage set by the government to sell his labor for whatever price he can get for it and thus preserve his self-respect by contributing something toward his own support. To deny him this right is to deprive him of the opportunity to develop the talents God gave him. But the law denies him this right.

Surely the right of a worker not to participate in a strike is as sacred as his right to participate; and strikers and non-strikers should have equal rights to the protection of the law. But they don't always get it.

Surely it is the right of every farmer to produce the crops he deems best suited to his land, his circumstances and his market and to dispose of such crops to whoever will buy them and at whatever prices he can get.

But farm marketing legislation deprives farmers of such rights and compels them to produce only the crops the numerous farm marketing boards allow them to produce, to deliver such crops to those boards for disposal in any way the boards think best, even to destroy them in order to create a scarcity and raise the prices.

Surely it is the right of all Canadian consumers to buy the food and other farm products they need in the open market at open market prices; and surely it is the duty of government to see that the markets are kept free and that no selfish interests are allowed to establish monopolies that would exact more than open market prices for such products.

But marketing legislation is deliberately designed to prevent such free markets.

Surely it is the right of every merchant to have his store open or closed at his own discretion subject to the Lord's Day Act.

But for many years the province has given municipal councils the right to curtail this right at the behest of merchants who don't want to serve the public very well themselves and want to prevent others from doing so.

Where does the provincial legislature get the power to deprive the people of these basic rights ?

Sub-section 13 of Section 92 of the BNA Act reads as follows: "In each Province the Legislature may exclusively make laws in matters of property and civil rights in the Province."

The courts have decided that those words give the provincial legislatures unlimited power over the property and civil rights of the citizens. This is far too much power to be given to any legislature or any government. The mere existence of such power is a standing invitation to power-hungry politicians to barter away the rights of the people in exchange for the votes of selfish classes or groups in search of privileges that would enable them to profit at the expense of the public.

Sixty years ago, Goldwyn Smith did his best to arouse the Canadian people to the danger to their fundamental rights inherent in this clause; but his warning fell on deaf ears. The people were not interested because they considered the danger too remote to worry about. They thought they would be able to cross that bridge when they came to it. Today they have come to it and they seem no more prepared to cross it than they were then.

All the talk today about amending the constitution centres around the division of power between the federal and the provincial governments. Little is being said about restoring to the people some of the fundamental rights of which they have been deprived. But until such basic rights are restored and guaranteed, nobody's property or freedom can be safe.

City Wiring Is Eyesore

Vancouver Sun

Montreal intends to have half of its overhead street wiring underground by 1969, replacing 500,000 power poles with 500,000 trees. Toronto is second only to Montreal in ridding its streets of the excrescences of pioneer electrification. What's the progress report from Canada's third largest city?

What a question! We've even stopped talking about wire burial since B.C. Hydro told us two years ago that it would cost $138 million—of our money, not theirs—to give us anything approaching a pole-less town. At that, the quote was dirt-cheap compared to the $600 million the B.C. Electric used to frighten the city with when ever the subject came up.

New residential developments, of course, are something else again.

The use of plastics and shallow trenches has reduced the difference in installation cost between underground and overhead wiring to $300-$400 a lot (engigneers still stick with the traditional lead and concrete wrappings downtown.)

The returns in aesthics, safety and easy maintenance thus are encouraging the more responsible subdividers to go underground on their own. In Vancouver the choice will be out of their hands when powers acquired in the recent charter amendment are put into bylaw form.

This is progress. But it in no way redresses the indignity of poles and overhead wires in established city areas—unsightly, dangerous, ready to pack up in a good wind and paralyze the city in a Typhoon Frieda.

Hydro—and it shouldn't be forgotten that it netted 13 million ,a profit increase of 48.7 per cent, in the last fiscal year —has no intention of tearing down the ugly wooden crosses on its own.

It says it went underground in downtown Victoria only because there are no lanes there to take its poles. It is not prepared, either, to be paid for underground wiring through increased power rates, a relatively painless financing system now being tried out in new residential areas by Manitoba Hydro.

But B.C. Hydro is far too prosperous these days to be permitted to get off this easily.

And a poleless city would be a far more impressive monument than an office building posing as an eternal flame.

Somewhere there must be a financing formula by which this work can be done, and our poles, too, replaced by trees. We may not be Toronto and we may not be Montreal but, unless we are content to remain forever Toonerville, the city and its utilities should renew the search for it in earnest.

Tighter Rein

Toronto Star

One of the salutary effects of the publicity which accompanied recent cases of negligence by doctors and hospitals is the concern of the medical profession with better self-policing.

This goes beyond tighter rules and stiffer disciplinary measures. The current issue of the Journal of the Canadian Medical Association, for example, calls on all doctors to have patients' deaths in all instances fully investigated and publicized.

Town Police

Guelph Mercury

Several months ago, commenting on the impossible pressures to which small-town policemen could be subjected, The Mercury suggested that the answer was to have the OPP take over patrol of townships, villages and of towns below certain population levels.

This all comes back, and is emphasized, by the Ontario Police Commission inquiry exonerating two policemen dismissed by Port Elgin council last year. It criticizes certain council members, and of the officers it comments that they were capable, efficient and conscientious.

It is a pity that the commission did not proceed to identify the offending councillors and specify in what areas they sought to interfere with the work of the police. Publicity is the most severe punishment which could be doled out to them.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials made small advances in light and sporadic morning stock exchange trading today.

In the penny list Obaska rose 6½ to 42½ cents on 307,150 shares.

Moore Corp. gained ¾ to 72½ among industrials and Oshawa Wholesale A and Texaco each advanced ½ to 44½ and 55. Algoma Steel and Bank of Nova Scotia added ⅝ to 64½ and 73¾.

Falconbridge fell ¼ to 100 but Denison gained ⅜ to 31.

On index, industrials rose .19 to 167.90, the Toronto Stock Exchange index .16 to 156.82 and western oils .41 to 98.04. Golds fell .57 to 164.40 and base metals .26 to 79.28. Volume at 11 a.m. was 1,138,000 shares compared with 1,036,000 shares traded at the same time Tuesday.

Prices were lower Tuesday as the main list showed gains for the seventh consecutive day.

Speculatives, active for the last two weeks, were quieter than usual. Prices were generally lower and only a few issues traded more than 100,000 shares.

United Buffadison dropped 20 cents to $2.01 and churned up 445,050 shares while Obaska dropped 1½ to 36 cents on volume of 225,800 shares. Radiore, however, gained 5 cents to $1.15 on 133,305 shares.

White Star fell 13 to 50 cents on 85,200 shares.

Most industrial groups participated in the main list's rise.

Senior base metals were higher. Cominco added ¾ at 44⅞ and Hudson Bay ⅜ at 69. Denison rose ¼ to 30⅛ and Inco ¾ at 96. Falconbridge fell ¾ to 100¼.

Golds were dull. Dome rose ⅜ to 41⅞.

On index, industrials rose .56 to 166.81, the Toronto Stock Exchange index .51 to 156.66 and base metals .77 to 79.54. Golds fell .28 to 164.97 and western oils .45 to 97.63. Volume was 3,768,000 shares compared with 5,403,000 shares traded Monday.

U.S. Steel Plans Big Expansion

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States Steel Corp. has announced a doubling of capital spending plans—to $1,800,000,000 over the next three years.

The company, the largest steel producer in the U.S., also announced Tuesday a major capital reorganization.

The reorganization plan calls for moving the company's charter from New Jersey to Delaware and involves the conversion of preferred stock into debentures, which are a debt of the company and represent no ownership or equity.

Financial circles said the moves, among other things, are expected to substantially reduce the company's federal income taxes.

Masked Bandits Obtain $10,000 From Bank

ST. EUGENE, Ont. (CP)—Four armed, masked bandits robbed the Bank of Montreal branch here of an estimated $8,000 to $10,000 Tuesday and fled after firing two shots.

Provincial police district headquarters said at least 60 police officers blockaded roads in searching for the bandits.

Exact amount taken was not known but a police source said the bank normally keeps between $8,000 and $10,000 on hand.

Just 15 to 20 minutes before the bandits struck the bank at St. Eugene, 50 miles west of Montreal, police stopped a car at Alfred, Ont., 25 miles west of St. Eugene. Two men fled into the bush. Police found a quantity of guns and ammunition in the vehicle.

"This may have been a decoy for the St. Eugene job," one provincial policeman said in an interview.

J. M. R. Rousseau, manager of the branch, said three men entered the bank just before noon, forced himself, two other employees and a customer against a wall and started scooping money from cash drawers.

WAITS IN CAR

A fourth armed and masked man was reported to have waited in a parked car outside and acted as driver when the three came out with the loot.

Armand Brisbois, who was in a restaurant across the street from the bank, said he heard as many as five or six shots, then spotted one of the masked men carrying a machine-gun.

"One of the masked men pointed this machine-gun at me as he ran to the car," he said, but the man did not fire.

Black Knights Hold Annual Orange Parade

NAPANEE — The Black Knights 66 the Orange Lodge, held a parade Saturday in Napanee.

In spite of the heat many members of the Lodge braved the uncomfortable weather conditions for their parade which left the Community Arena and proceeded on Thomas St., to Centre to Bridge down Bridge to Dundas and from Dundas back to the Arena. This was an extremely long route for such a warm day.

Many chapters were present of both women and men from many communities including Havelock, Trenton Bailieboro, Frankford, Marmora, Merrivale, Napanee Winchester Peterborough, Forest Mills and others.

The Army, Navy, Air Force pipe band of Belleville led the parade followed by other bands and drum and fife corps. One of the outstanding features was the Merrivale Accordion Band which has all of it's members playing accordions.

The Orange Lodge members after the parade held their meeting at the Lennox and Addington Fair grounds.

Court Sets Trial Date For Rivard

LAREDO, Tex. (CP)—The United States district court has set Sept. 13 for the trial of Lucien Rivard, charged in an international narcotics smuggling operation, it was disclosed Tuesday. Earlier it had been announced the trial would be held during sessions starting Sept. 7.

Claims Married Women Have Stilted "Outlook"

By IRA DRYSDALE

FLIN FLON, Man. (CP) — When Doris Person stayed up till 4 a.m. pulling porcupine quills from a dog's mouth it wasn't really anything to make a fuss about.

Not for a woman who once crawled a quarter of a mile to get a shot at some geese when she was seven months pregnant.

Not for a woman with six children, a pony, two dogs, 60 tropical fish and a professional photographic career that takes her far afield in sparsely-settled northern Manitoba.

She says she's not the kind of woman who sits and drinks coffee with neighborhood wives—"Don't have time for that sort of thing."

But she does moan about how busy she is while admitting "I'd be bored silly being a plain ordinary housewife."

Mrs. Person is a native of Clarissa, Minn., who studied photography at Minneapolis where she met and married Steve Person. They set up a studio at Sioux Falls, S.D., then moved here nine years ago.

Her husband now manages a hunting-fishing lodge at Nueltin Lake 400 miles north of Flin Flon, and she loves both hunting and fishing. She once shot a moose and another time brought down an antelope as her husband was getting ready to fire at it.

DOES PORTRAITS

Mrs. Person likes to sing and play the guitar. She also likes to swim but finds summers in this northern mining town too short for that. There should be an indoor pool, she says, adding that "some day I'll have to start getting on a soap box and promoting this."

Her photographic job takes her by air to Lynn Lake, 180 miles north of here and to The Pas, 96 miles to the south. She does mostly portraits, weddings and free-lance newspaper work.

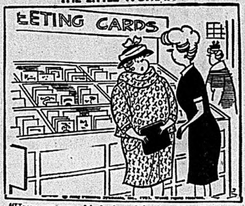
"I'd like to be a press photographer but it's too late," she says, although she's only in her 30s.

Trim and smartly dressed, Mrs. Person says too many married women have a "stilted outlook on life."

"They got their fish (husband) and let their figures and hair go. I don't feel that way about it."

She has never had time so far to paint but would like to try it some time, figuring it will never be too late for that in view of Grandma Moses' late start.

THE LITTLE WOMAN



"Have you some kind of card for breaking the news to a husband in a cute way that I've smashed up his car?"

TOMATO VEGETABLE PLATE

An innocent little dish called Tomatoes Bristol caused quite a commotion at our dinner table last night. Twenty-one-month-old Douglas, who had his supper, loved them so much he ate most of his mother's. Jennifer got about half of mine. Margaret thought they were so good she wants to make them during the height of the tomato season for guest dinners.

They are colorful and flavorful and surprisingly good from every aspect. They are a perfect focus-point for a vegetable plate for our vegetarian readers.

TOMATOES BRISTOL

8 medium or medium-large tomatoes (preferably quite firm),
1 cup bread or cracker crumbs,
1 cup canned (or cooked dry) lima beans, drained,
¼ or ⅓ cup chopped onion,
1 cup shredded process or old Cheddar cheese,
2 eggs, beaten,
6 tablespoons milk,
¼ cup melted or soft butter,
½ teaspoon salt,
shake of pepper.

Wash tomatoes and cut a thin slice from top of each. Using a teaspoon, carefully scoop out pulp. (Use this scooped-out pulp for some other purpose. I added ours to my jar of soup in the refrigerator.) Sprinkle inside of scooped-out tomatoes sparingly with salt. Invert on absorbent paper to drain. Make the filling by combining half of the breadcrumbs with the drained limas, chopped onion and shredded cheese; add melted butter, salt and pepper to beaten eggs and milk and when mixed, pour over the limas and breadcrumb-mixture and stir in lightly. Spoon into prepared tomato shells. Sprinkle tops with remaining ½ cup crumbs. Butter a shallow medium-large baking dish, stand tomatoes in it and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 25 to 30 minutes.

About 20 minutes before tomatoes were baked I put 1 lb. sausages on a large pyrex pie plate in a single layer and baked them to serve with our Tomatoes Bristol.

You could add any green vegetable in season to give even more color to this cheap and bright meal.

Higher Meat Prices Keep Food Costs Up

By WILLIAM NEVILLE

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian housewife appears to be paying about three cents more than a year ago for every dollar's worth of food.

It's mostly because of higher meat prices and, with no break in immediate sight, food costs likely will remain up for a while yet, government officials say.

Even at $1.03 for food worth $1 a year ago, the Canadian shopper is better off than her American counterpart.

A recent U.S. agriculture department survey estimated that American food costs are up 10 per cent from 1964 levels.

"In comparison with the United States, our supplies certainly are more ample," said an agriculture department spokesman.

"In fact, except for the meat market and one or two other items, our prices have been relatively stable."

RELATES TO U.S.

The problem in the meat market, the spokesman said, is directly related to the United States.

With a shortage of U.S. meat supplies, particularly beef, Canadian producers have been exporting larger quantities south of the border, thus decreasing volumes available for Canadian consumption.

The result: Higher meat prices in this country, as reflected by the fact sirloin steak averaged $1.14 a pound last month compared with $1.02 in July, 1964, while bacon cost 58 cents a half-pound versus 49 cents a year earlier.

Poultry prices were unchanged in July from the previous year, with chicken at a national average of 45 cents a pound.

Outside of meat, the main price increase has been for potatoes, listed at $1.12 for 10 pounds in July compared with 93 cents a year earlier.

IS AFFECTED

"This market has been partially affected by the U.S. situation, too, with a short American crop last year hampering our domestic supplies," said the agriculture official.

"Judging by this year's acreage, though, prices should start to go down again in September."

On the brighter side of the picture, a heavy world sugar surplus has cut Canadian prices to a July level of 10 cents a pound, down three cents from a year earlier. This, in turn has helped reduce prices for such sugar-heavy items as jam and candy.

Several of the staple foods are showing a high degree of price stability.

Bread at 18 cents a pound, milk at 25 cents a quart, and flour at 11 cents a pound all were unchanged in July from 1964 levels. Eggs were up to 49 cents a dozen compared with 46 the previous year.

MR. AND MRS. NORMAN J. ROBERTSON

Robertson -. Kennedy

St. Joseph's Church, Belleville, was the scene of a summer wedding at 10.00 a.m. on August 14, 1965, when Monsignor Carley united in marmiage Maureen Lois Kennedy of Belleville and Norman James Robertson of Kingston.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kennedy and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Robertson.

The organ was played by Garry FitzGibbon and the soloist was William Mann.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a slim graceful white floor length imported cotton lace gown with self scallop of lace at the neck, sleeves and hemline and featuring a fan type walking pleat in the skirt. Her three tier finger tip tulle veil fell from a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of orchids, stephanotis and ivy.

The maid of honor, Miss Louise Murphy of Kingston, and bridesmaid, Miss Carol Keeler of Kingtson, cousin of the bride, were gowned alike in floor length two-piece pink crepe gowns bordered with pink lace. They wore matching pink crepe coronet hats and carried baskets of white Shasta 'mums, carnations and ivy.

The flower girl, Miss Karen Robertson of Kingston, niece of the bridegroom, was dressed in a white eyelet over pink gown with matching hair bow and carried the same flowers as the senior attendants.

Mr. Michael Robertson, of Kingston, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and Mr. Herb Robertson of Kingston, brother of the bridegroom and Mr. Allen Vance of Belleville, cousin of the bride, were ushers.

At the reception held at the Sun Valley Motor Inn, the bride's mother wore a turquoise sheath crepe dress with lace bodice, white accessories and a white orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a beige lace sheath dress with matching jacket, beige accessories and a corsage of orchids.

For her wedding trip to western Ontario the bride chose a French crepe sheath dress in jade green with an over jacket of the same material, brown accessories and a corsage of white orchids.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Robertson will live in Willowdale.

The Experts Say

No Child Should Be Afraid To Face First Day at School

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — No child should fear going to school for the first time if his parents have properly prepared him for the experience, says psychologists and medical doctors in the federal health department.

In fact, most children look forward to the first day at school. Usually they have friends or older brothers and sisters who have told them what it will be like, and they have probably been longing to go to school for quite some time.

The health department's mental health division has issued a pamphlet — available at local and provincial health departments—for the guidance of parents whose children will be going to school for the first time this fall.

It says the child's health is one important factor parents should consider.

"Have your family physician or the local public health clinic give him a complete physical examination. An eye examination is very important. His teeth should be checked, too, by a dentist."

If these examinations show there are ailments or defects, they should be corrected if possible before the child goes to school.

IMMUNIZE NOW

The health department says that if your child has not yet been immunized against such childhood diseases as diphtheria, whooping cough and smallpox, this should be done immediately.

"If all immunizations have been done previously make sure your child gets the necessary booster Jose."

Parents should make sure their school - bound child gets regular and sufficient sleep. "He needs from 10 to 12 hours of sleep in a quiet, darkened room with an open window, to build up his energy and offset tiredness."

The child's ability to speak so that he can be understood is obviously a basic necessity.

"He learns speech habits in his home so let him hear good English; encourage him to say what he means in sentences, not merely in single words and phrases which are understood in the family."

It is best to set an example of soft, pleasant voices, avoiding harsh loud tones. You should teach him correct terms and names of things. He should be able to say clearly his whole name, address and telephone number.

AVOID BABY TALK

"Baby talk sounos cute at home, perhaps, but he'll be embarrassed, maybe laughed at, if he carries this habit to school with him."

The pamphlet says parents should not be too inquisitive about their child's first experiences at school.

"He wants to be on his own, like his fellow pupils. The exciting time he has in feeling self-important and independent may, for a time, make him guard his new experiences as quite secret; something very private and precious to him."

He may resent parents' questions and curiosity and try to keep his new life apart from them. "This is a phase that soon passes in a happy blending of school and home influences."

Parents are advised to be careful not to criticize their children's school work too much.

"Meet his pride with yours—praise his efforts with the same enthusiasm he shows for them and go easy on criticisms. He'll move further and faster with praise than with criticism."

SOME MIGHT REMEMBER

The first oil pipeline in Canada was built in 1895 from Petrolia to Sarnia, Ont.

A REMINDER

Wedding forms for write-ups are available at The Intelligencer and should be completed and returned BEFORE the ceremony so a report can be published immediately after the wedding.

Pictures may be submitted by your photographer up to three days after the wedding. We cannot publish wedding write-ups submitted later than six days after the date of the ceremony.

Accounts of showers and entertainments in honor of the bride do not belong with the wedding write-up, but should be sent in immediately after they are held, for publication separately.

Putting Out the Wash Puts Off the Neighbors

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — The people next door have a washing pole right in front of us (on their own property of course) and, having six children, the wash line is continually filled with children's clothes plus diapers, at times almost excluding the beautiful view.

As this was the reason we took the place (for the view, I mean) we decided that we would write a nice letter asking if something could be arranged so that at least we could have our Sundays unobstructed. This we did, and our neighbor now only puts things out on weekdays. I might add that their own view is not obstructed at all, for the placing of the wash pole was done with that purpose in mind, so you can understand how frustrated we were.

Now our landlord tells us the neighbor talked to his son, who passed the information on to him, saying we asked them not to put any washing out at all. This is not the truth and it has upset us very much. Please tell us if you think we did the right thing.

Our landlord was rather rude to us about it and tells us we should not have done it. Incidentally he has just upped the rent an extra $25 a month, and we feel he is holding a gun to our heads; in other words he is saying: "Pay up, or get out!" — WORRIED AND CONFUSED TENANTS.

DEAR TENANTS — When the report travelled from neighbor to landlord's son to landlord, then to you, it suffered from alterations. Just like the whispering game we used to play around the table!

Your tactful note made progress in banishing the Sunday wash; now a more personal approach is indicated. Is there any possible location for that line which would obstruct neither your view nor your neighbor's?

Take a plunge and ask them in for cake and coffee some fine evening. Let them know you appreciate what they have already done. Discuss alternatives. Sometimes even the most obtuse individuals melt when they meet up with folk who show they believe in their willingness to be good neighbors.

BAIL SET

VANCOUVER (CP)—Bail of $50,000 each was set in police court Tuesday for two men charged in a theft of $1,200,000 in mutilated money. Former city policeman Joseph Percival 37, and real estate man James McDougall, 32, were remanded to Aug. 25 without plea on charges of armed robbery and possession of money allegedly stolen in the holdup.

Some Children Grow Up With Eye Defect

TORONTO (CP)—An optometrist says about five per cent of Canadian children are growing up with an eye defect which could be corrected if treated at age two or three.

Arthur W. Hurst of Newmarket, Ont., says the condition becomes increasingly difficult to treat as the child gets older, and a full cure is impossible after age eight.

The defect resulted from the failure of a child's eyes to coordinate after birth. Without correction, he says, one eye takes on the work of both and the sight of the other eye diminishes gradually.

Mr. Hurst was representing the Ontario Association for Children With Learning Disabilities at a meeting of the Ontario legislature's select committee on youth.

He urged that the provincial government require local school boards to provide classrooms for perceptually handicapped children who suffer from neurological impairment and whose IQs range between those of retarded and normal children.

Mr. Hurst is also a former chairman of the children's vision committee of the Canadian Association of Optometrists and president of the York County Educational Research Council.

Women's Work Features Exhibition Hall Display

Non-competitive and commercial displays of interest to women are housed in Exhibition Hall (Curling Club) beyond the grandstand and under the grandstand itself at the Belleville Fair. Household appliances, a display of Victorian antiques and a 4-H Homemaking Club demonstration and handicraft activities made at the Belleville playgrounds are among the attractions featured.

Hastings County Museum's booth depicts a corner of a typical 19th century home. Using rose-shrewn wallpaper, oriental rug, a black and gilt credenza and a family portrait in oils, the museum staff has recreated the atmosphere of the 1880's. All antiques in the display are from the Salaman Collection in the city-owned Cauldrey Gallery at the local museum.

4-H CLUB ENTRIES

The 4-H Homemaking Clubs have 21 entries in their exhibit of "The Supper Club" and "What Shall I Wear" projects undertaken in the past year by district girls. The display, arranged under the direction of home economists Mrs. Margaret Woof and Miss Janet Munroe, illustrates the training 4-H girls get in the arts of cooking sewing and homemaking. The principles of wardrobe planning, color co-ordination and good style are explained by the use of posters, fabric swatches and items of clothing, made in most cases by the girls themselves. Samples of supper casserole dishes and written menus illustrate good nutrition and meal planning.

Rural girls participate more in the work of keeping house and have a greater interest in homemaking than do their urban counterparts, says Mrs. Woof, home economist with the Department of Agriculture and director of girls' work. Interest in the traditional crafts of baking, embroidery, quilting and fancy work is waning among modern girls. Instead, they prefer to concentrate on the principles of design, style, color and nutrition. Their grasp of the subjects and imaginative treatment of the project material is well illustrated in the Homemaking exhibit.

INTERESTING BOOTHS

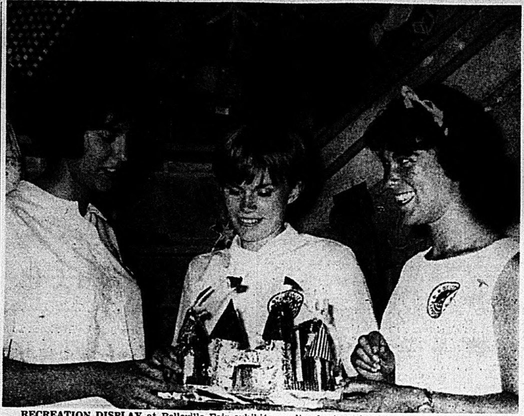
Other interesting booths in the same building are those of the Theatre Guild, the Legion of Mary Catholic Information Centre, the CN, the Ontario Hydro, the Ontario Provincial Police and Belleville City Police. Equipment used by the local traffic safety officer in the driver improvement course and school demonstrations can be inspected by the public.

A cooling note during the present heat wave is provided by the gurgle of water in the umbrella shaped fountain centering a water softener dealer's display. Local business firms are displaying farm and household appliances, sewing machines, food freezers and motor scooters. A demonstration of automatic sewing-machine embroidery and fancy stitching is presented afternoon and evening by a Picton dealer.

Entries in the hay exhibits and seed and grain class are also on display in Exhibition Hall.

PLAYGROUND HANDICRAFT

Crafts made by children at the 20 city playgrounds operated by the Recreation Commission can be seen under the grandstand. Large models of local playgrounds, Indian villages, the Kinsmen Pool, and a frontier fort made of 1240 popsicle sticks were particularly eye catching. The children also exhibited model trains of paper, doll houses made of cardboard boxes, a tall totem pole of corrugated paper and numerous paper craft projects of smaller size. For mothers faced with rainy day pleas of "What shall I do now?" from their bored offspring the playground exhibit is a must.



RECREATION DISPLAY at Belleville Fair exhibits results of arts and crafts taught in city playgrounds this year by young girl supervisors like Jennifer Bussey, 19, (left), Linda House, 17 and Margaret Kellar, 17.

W.I. Hosts 4-H Girls

RIVER VALLEY—The August meeting of River Valley Women's Institute was held at the school house on August 5th, with 14 members, one visitor and the 4-H Club girls in attendance.

The president, Mrs. Glenn Bush, opened the meeting in the usual manner. Mrs. Gerald Brooks, leader of the 4-H Girls' Club, arranged a display of the girls' work and record books at the rear of the school room. Charts, swathes of fabric, patterns and helpful information for teen-agers on the subject "What Shall I Wear" were displayed on the platform.

Mrs. Brooks said the objectives of the Homemaking Club were to help girls plan their wardrobes in order to get satisfaction from their clothes. She gave tips for good clothes value and advised that extreme fashions should be avoided and simple styles chosen instead. The cost of dry cleaning versus laundry is another point to consider in purchasing clothes.

The charts on display showed the styles best suited to different figure types and fashions suited to every social occasion. Everyone should be aware that hat and gloves are not called for after five p.m.

Two piano selections were contributed by Jane Bush and Trudy Bush.

At the recent achievement day held in Belleville the River Valley 4-H Club Girls staged a short playette entitled "A Well Planned Shopping Trip." The girls who gave this skit at the meeting were Judy Bush, Shirley Ann McDonnell, Joyce Carr, Jane Bush, Connie Tucker and Trudy Bush. The girls distributed sewing leaflets to the institute members.

The business meeting followed with Mrs. Ernest Carr giving a full account of recent meetings. She also distributed the summer Home and Country magazine and booklet from the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Several members attended the Pine Grove W.I. Tweedsmuir tea and Mrs. Roy Bush displayed old school books in their antique gallery.

Mrs. Roy Tucker, Mrs. Norman Rosebush and Mrs. Ross Bush spoke on the subject of British Columbia. Displays included a map of that province and a picture of the only Golden Evergreen Spruce in the world which grows in B.C.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen read a release concerning the Lady Aberdeen Scholarship. This project has provided training for local leaders in many countries. The pilot project in Bengal trained 116 leaders in six villages in one year. In Rhodesia the African Homecraft Clubs have been very successful. A new departure is a year's professional training for an African girl. In Natal, a special scholar is taking a course in social work at the University College of Zululand. Students have been sent to Northern Ireland and Denmark to be taught.

Mrs. Roy Tucker read a letter from the Letter Friend Secretary and the pennies for friendship were gathered.

The program for the September meeting will be based on Canadian industries. Members are asked to meet at Ray Mallory's apiary, Frankford Road, at 1.15 p.m. for a special tour. The regular meeting will follow at the home of Mrs. Clarence Chard.

The short course, "Choosing Fabrics" will be held in the school kitchen on March 8, 1966 with Miss Mary Ellen Foote as instructor.

The fall 4-H Club entitled "The Club Girl Entertains" will be in charge of the leaders, Mrs. Gerald Brooks and Mrs. Roy Irwin.

Mrs. Roy Bush spoke briefly regarding the Tweedsmuir History Book.

The agriculture group served refreshments under the direction of Mrs. Allan McDonell. They were thanked by Mrs. Roy Bush.

Susanna's Family Fare

Dear Susanna: Would so appreciate receiving your leaflet on the elementary basics of Flower Arranging, with list of materials and props required. I would also be glad to have information covering arrangements made from dried weeds and wild flowers — particularly how, and what dyes to use to do this. Thank you for such a friendly helpful column. — Mrs. M. L. Braund

I know you will enjoy this colorful little booklet. A touch here, a twist there, and suddenly creative flower arranging seems superbly simple. As you know, these booklets, instruction sheets or pamphlets are always available free of charge – but there is a slight catch. In exchange, I would dearly love one of your very own special ideas or suggestions for the column — you see the readers and I need you too — really!

Dried bouquets, however, are a course of a different color. You haven't a moment to lose in the picking, as these lovely wild weeds and blooms should be gathered while they are still green and in semi bud form. They will open into full bloom as they dry.

Cut leaves for drying when they are turning to yellow and red, and try to keep the stems immersed in water until you get them home. Grasses and ferns should be gathered in the morning while they are still fresh.

A dark, warm attic room is ideal for drying, as any dampness is taboo and light will fade the rich colors.

Our outline on drying flowers for winter use is also on its way to you. In it you will find a section on the drying and coloring of grains, grasses and cones. You'll just love it. Best wishes,

PLASTIC CONTAINERS

Dear Susanna: Those wide-mouth clear plastic containers with nice tight-fitting lids — the kind in which potato salad, etc., are sold — are ideal summertime sugar bowls. Regular lidless or loose lidded ones are just a sticky invitation to sweet-loving ants.

These clear containers are not unsightly on the table for everyday use (without the lid) and one more advantage when the top is snapped back on for storing between meals, is that they keep the sugar dry and lumpless.

Similar plastic containers in a slightly larger size lend themselves perfectly for keeping brown sugar fresh and handy for the breakfast table. — B.L.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER (MOTHER OF 5)

Imitating and clowning! Two great traits of the toddler. And who can resist cavorting with a toddler . . . dreaming up antics for him to imitate . . . laughing at antics he dreams up himself. But it isn't so funny when your image imitates you and keeps it up . . . repeats a cute trick because it provoked a laugh the first time. Sensible rules on this subject: try not to entertain your baby with antics that won't wear well. Try to discourage (sweetly) too many mischievous pranks.

•

What makes your baby grow? Why, the helping hand of old Mother Nature plus the help of protein foods. Gerber Strained and Junior Meats are excellent sources of protein. Made from selected, government-inspected cuts, they're specially processed to remove most of the fat and fiber. This unique process also insures the wonderful, moist texture that makes Gerber Meats so savoury and palate-pleasing.

•

Attention-getter. Playful toddlers often try the dawdling or "no" routine at mealtime to attract attention. But it's best to ignore these tactics. Thing to do is remove the food, without comment, after a reasonable length of time. He'll soon learn that playing with food will net him naught.

•

Mealtime dawdling is usually minimized when you serve foods prepared to a toddler's taste. Gerber Junior Foods are made to make your tyke like to eat. They're colour-right and flavour-bright, with a texture that's perfect for tots with a few teeth. And, like all Gerber Baby Foods, they're "custom-cooked" according to their individual requirements to preserve nutritive values. From fruits to vegetables, meats to dinners, Gerber Junior Foods provide plenty of pleasure and nourishment. By the bye, Gerber Junior Spaghetti, Tomato Sauce and Beef, among other delightful dinners, is great for perking an appetite. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Quebec Nadeau Commission Studies Plight of Women

Quebec's Nadeau commission studying the province's civil code recently made one revision that gives women equal rights with men on some matters. More changes are expected soon. In this story Linda Crawford, Canadian Press staff writer, examines the background of a situation unique in Canada.

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP) — Napoleon has been dead for nearly 150 years but his influence lingers on. So do his laws—laws assigning Quebec's married women to the inferior position from which they now are only beginning to emerge.

When his famous civil code of 1804 was being drafted, Napoleon asked for the inclusion of an article demanding a wife's obedience to her husband. Some lawyers questioned the practicability of such an article but Napoleon is said to have insisted:

"Please write it down. It might not impress them all but it might impress some."

Down it went, and when Quebec legislators drew up their largely French - inspired civil code in 1866, the article damning women to inequality was included. Surprisingly enough, it remained unchanged in the Quebec Civil Code until July 1, 1964.

But Napoleon isn't entirely to blame for the opinion that, as he phrased it, "When women leave the guardianship of their families they become wards of their husbands."

Despite his arbitrary attitude, he was simply summing up the French belief that, to ensure the stability of the family and of society, all authority must be vested in the father as head of the family — a concept taken over from the early Romans and modified by the Christian tradition.

MARRIAGE A LA CODE

"Nature made women our slaves," said Napoleon. And this attitude towards the fair sex permeates the Napoleonic and Quebec civil codes. Both refused married women the status of a full citizen, classing them as incapables, along with minors and demented persons. They had no rights, legal or otherwise. They could not set up a business, have an operation, commit children to hospital or buy or sell land or buildings without their husband's authorizationn.

Most instrumental in binding the wife to the wishes of her lord and master was the community of property system, the legal regime under the codes.

Community of property involved a lumping together of movable property — stocks, bonds etc.—of both partners at the time of marriage. Such a "community" also included property acquired after marriage, but it was administered solely by the husband—regardless of his wife's approval or disapproval of what he might choose to do with it.

Although the wife legally owned half of the community, she received it only when and if she became a widow, or when she obtained what is called separation as to bed and board. Divorce is outlawed by the code. The wife might have private property such as land or buildings inherited during the marriage or belonging to her before the marriage, or movable property legally specified by the donor to remain outside the community, but this was also administered by the husband.

STUDIES CIVIL CODE — Mr. Justice Andre Nadeau of Montreal is chairman of a commission studying Quebec's civil code and its restrictions on the rights of women. The code is based on one drafted by Emperor Napoleon in 1804, which refused married women the status of a full citizen and gave them no rights. A bill arising from the commission's first report in 1963 theoretically recognizes a married woman's right to take legal action on an equal footing with other citizens. More revisions are expected shortly. (CP Photo)

LED FIGHT FOR VOTES — Therese Casgrain of Montreal was leader of the League for Women's Rights movement which fought to obtain voting rights for women in Quebec provincial elections. This right was denied to women in Quebec until 1940 under Quebec's civil code, which gave women few rights. The code, now under study by a commission headed by Mr. Justice Andre Nadeau, was amended slightly in 1951 and 1953 after continued pressure by Mme. Casgrain's group. (CP Photo)

SPONSORED RIGHTS BILL —Mme. Claire Kirkland-Casgrain, Quebec minister of transportation and communications, sponsored a bill in the Quebec legislative assembly which arose from the first report of the Nadeau commission studying Quebec's civil code. Bill 16, theoretically recognizing a married woman's right to take legal action on an equal footing with other full citizens, became law in July, 1964. It was the first step taken to obtain equality for married women in Quebec. (CP Photo)

This system is peculiar to Quebec. In the other Canadian provinces English common law prevails and separation of the wife's property from that of the husband is automatic.

Quebec couples who preferred to keep their property separate could obtain a marriage contract providing for separation of property before marriage, but this did not become common until recent years. Couples did obtain marriage contracts to modify what went into the community — called conventional community—from the time they arrived from France. But it was only with the rise of modern urban living that the switch to separation of property contracts took place.

With a separation of property contract a wife gained some power to administer her property, but she remained bound by the general lack of rights outlined in other sections of the code dealing with married women.

HUSBAND'S SIGNATURE

A married woman living here, but whose husband's domicile at the time of marriage was a place where separation of property was the legal regime—Britain, most of the United States and the other nine provinces—had the same rights over her property as a woman with a separation of property contract. Both needed the husband's signature before selling land or buildings or before executing many other acts involved in day to day community living.

Obviously the spirit behind the Quebec Civil Code became outmoded with the emancipation of women at the turn of the century—if not before—but the progressive women in the province who agitated for reform found moving Quebec traditionalists to action a long and frustrating battle.

The code remained basically unchanged until 1931 when the government amended it to give wives control over property acquired with earnings from their "personal work." Before this amendment a husband could claim his wife's pay cheque.

Voting rights for women in Quebec provincial elections didn't come until 1940, thanks largely to the League for Women's Rights movement led by Therese Casgrain of Montreal. Continued pressure from this group led to slight amendments to the code in 1951 and 1954.

COMMISSION REPORTS

In 1961 Montreal lawyer Andre Nadeau took over chairmanship of a Commission for Revision of the Civil Code, established back in 1947 but never perceptively active.

Under Mr. Nadeau, and spurred on by the critical examination the Napoleonic Code was then undergoing in France, the commission tabled its first report on July 9, 1963.

The bill arising out of the report, Bill 16, was sponsored by Claire Kirkland-Casgrain, Quebec's minister for transportation and communication. When the bill became law July 1, 1964, the first step towards equality for married women here had been taken.

Bill 16 theoretically recognizes a married woman's right to engage in legal action on an equal footing with other full citizens. But in practise only wives with separate - property agreements have full legal freedom in the administration of their property.

The bill is considered a temporary measure. It leaves the common - property system still as the basis of the civil code section dealing with marriage. But a second report from the Nadeau commission, further revising the system or doing away with it altogether, is expected shortly.

pit where his father and brother died.

"We were close. We were getting very close," he said.

He has been on the island since 1960 when his mother, Mildred, joined her husband and oldest son. He has been carrying on his education through correspondence courses.

Mrs. Restall believed in her husband's theories for solving the mystery and made a home on the island, living in a trailer - like house beside the roar of his generators and pumps. She planted sweet peas that struggled to grow beside the house.

Their home was built on a mound of earth thrown up from a previous search, the man who had done the digging long forgotten. More than 200 such mounds dot the island.

WIFE UNDER SEDATION

Rev. M. J. Finlay, Anglican minister at nearby Western Shore, said Mrs. Restall was under heavy sedation "but I think that even before that she realized what had happened."

"The first thing I knew was when mother ran up, all excited, and told me to get the campers," said Ricky. "They went to the pit and got one fellow out, then they chased me away."

Rich Barber of Exetern, N.H. a teacher with the U.S. student group, said Demont was gasping, his head just above the muddy surface when they reached the pit.

The students lowered Edward White, a Clarence, N.Y., fireman vacationing in Nova Scotia and visiting the island Tuesday, into the pit. He fastened a rope around Demont and the two were hauled to safety.

"White was pretty woozy when we got him up and we could smell the gas so we were afraid to send anyone else down," said Barber.

While Barber went for help to the mainland the other teacher, Peter Beamish of Andover, Mass., and the students revived Demont with artificial respiration and massage.

BRING UP BODIES

Firemen from Chester, the nearest mainland town, pumped the pit out and James Keizer, a brother of Leonard, went down to bring up the bodies.

The exact cause of death was not immediately determined. Beamish and Barber believed it was "swamp gas." Another theory was that a gasoline engine installed over the mouth of the pit to operate a pump had filled the hole with carbon monoxide.

"I talked to him (Restall) last night," said Beamish. "He was really excited. He was sure he had it this time."

stall's scheme was to sink

Restall's scheme was to sink a shaft more than 100 feet deep, then drive a horizontal tunnel to the spot he believed contained the treasure.

In the past, millions of dollars have been spent by various syndicates and individuals, including former U.S. president Franklin D. Roosevelt, to find the treasure pit. Sometimes they ran out of funds. But more often water rushed into their shafts just when they believed they were about to make the great discovery.

night the curfew was lifted in the riot zone.

Before the shooting outburst, the 46-square-mile Negro trouble district experienced its first night this week of "the closest thing possible to normal life." There was even a football game.

The riot death toll, however, rose to 34 with the death Tuesday night of a 47-year-old Negro woman. She was shot by a national guard machine-gun Saturday as she crashed a roadblock in her car.

The death figure was one short of the toll in the 1943 Detroit race riot — worst in the U.S. in recent times.

Thirty-eight lives were lost in a 1919 Chicago riot.

Still - wary Watts residents worked to put their daily living in order. The national guard withdrew some of its troops and the outside help flowed in.

Torches fired 536 buildings in Watts, destroyed 201, and caused damage conservatively estimated at $175,000,000. Looting accounted for untold additional millions.

Governor Edmund G. Brown ordered a state assessment of public damage and said he would ask federal aid in rebuilding. Federal funds would be available under a law covering damage to publicly-owned buildings and utilities and streets and highways.

A group of Negro labor leaders proposed a five-point community action program including a 50,000-worker community peace and rebuilding corps, job placement, slum clearance, hospital construction and federal assistance.

turns water-bombing and ferrying supplies to the fighters from Port Arthur.

The men have been eating from small grub packs.

Bob Brown, a reporter for CKPR-TV Port Arthur, who flew over the scene, said the smoke and heat from the burning forest is "hot as hell, and about unbearable."

"We flew at 4,000 feet, and it was even reaching us from that distance," he said.

Brown said the water planes, which dump 700 gallons a sweep, concentrate on dousing the fingerlings—small fires set outside of the fire perimeter by flying sparks, or flankers.

"They don't go into the hot spots because the water they let go would only evaporate into steam before it hits the trees," Brown said. "They only try to contain the fire. Nobody hopes they can put it out."

One Canso was put out of action for several hours Tuesday when it hit a tree top, tearing a hole in the aircraft's shell. The pilot landed safely.

The accident occurred when the plane was attempting to replenish its water tanks from Mawn Lake, one mile from the fire scene. To refill, the planes skim the lake surface at full throttle, scooping up water in their tanks attached to the undercarriage.

MAY MEAN FREEDOM

MADRID (Reuters)—Spain's new law to abolish press censorship was regarded Tuesday in some quarters a the posible forerunner of moves toward greater political freedom. A draft of the new law, three years in preparation, was approved last Friday by the Spanish government meeting under head-of-state Gen. Francisco Franco. It was expected to become law without drastic change before the year's end.

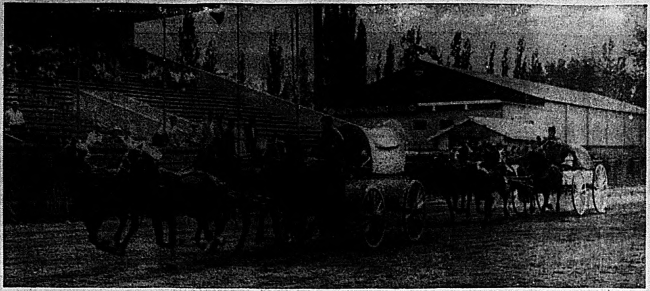
DUNDAS ST. W. (HWY No. 2) Formerly known as the TRENT ROAD BELLEVILLE ACRES OF FREE LIGHTED PARKING

The Ontario Intelligencer
BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 18, 1965



JUNIOR EDITION of the big chuckwagons racing at Belleville Fair are these pony wagons. Although smaller, the thrills they give grandstand audiences are just as big as they challenge speed records.

FOUR CHILDREN in car on right escaped injury in this head-on crash at Dundas and Church streets last night. Driver of the car, Mrs. Zelma Wodzak, 20 Gordon Street, and a passenger, Mrs. Helen Ryan, 15 Gordon Street, were treated for cuts and bruises. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

PROVINCIAL POLICE have one of the most colorful exhibits at Belleville Fair this year on show in the curling club hall. Among those viewing it yesterday was Clarke Rollins, MLA Hastings East (centre) with traffic sergeant A. J. Perry and district superintendent A. McDougall.

Farm Machinery And Cars Shown At Fair Infield

Automobiles, trucks, buses, and farm machinery, are always popular fall fairs exhibits and the current edition of Belleville Fair is no exception.

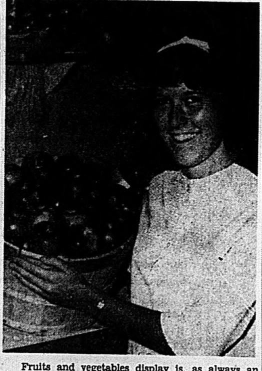
In the infield exhibitors of farm machinery include Douglas Morton of Stirling with barn cleaning equipment; Foxboro Co-Operative with a big line of tractors, fertilizer spreader, milk coolers and orchard sprayers, and Alton Hadley with his line of New Idea and Massey-Ferguson equipment, including corn binders and harvesters, tractors of all sizes and commercial tractor equipment including front-end loaders.

Displaying automobiles are Elliott Motors Ltd. with their Buick-Pontiac and other General Motors lines; Scotty Reid Motors with their Meteor and Comet lines, and Stevenson's Ford Sales with regular Ford lines as well as the popular Mustang sports car models.

M. H, Hancock Named to Grand Council

TORONTO (CP)—Walter E. Montgomery of Montreal was elected supreme grand master of the Knights Templar at their 82nd annual assembly of the Sovereign Great Priory of Canada for 1965-66.

Members elected to the grand council include Pieter Bregman of Coppercliff; R. N. Bissonnett of Stratford; M. H Hancock of Belleville.



Fruits and vegetables display is, as always, an attractive feature of Belleville Fair. Here Bette Bools, Belleville, poses with prize basket of McIntosh apples.

Fair-goers See Selves on TV

On-the-spot closed circuit television, enabling fair-goers to see themselves on TV, and color TV reception are two of the features offered customers of the Belleville Fair as they visit the merchants' building.

Seeing themselves on TV as they pass the Booth Radio and TV booth is but one of the many features of the merchants' building in which local merchants are displaying their merchandise.

Booths in the merchants' building include CJBQ Radio from where daily broadcasts are given; Treasure House Sale Appliance Centre; Belleville Furniture and Auction Barn; Canadian Mental Health Association; Paul Mercier Wholesale Trophies, Moira Schuster Fuels and Quinte Rent - Alls; Kleen Style Homes and Kleen Heet, offering furnaces and household appliances, Ted's Tuckshop of Stirling; Air Shade Aluminum Doors; the Ontario Department of Highways and Cyclo Niagara Massage.

Products of Local Industry On Exhibition at the Fair

Belleville industry is on display this week at Belleville Fair.

In the industrial exhibit of the fair taking up almost the entire floor area of the first building inside the main gate, the products of local industry are on display in company sponsored booths. It is the second annual industrial exhibit sponsored by the fair board.

Industrial booths at the building include Mead Johnson of Canada Ltd., local manufacturers of baby foods where the weight conscious fair - goer can get a sample of metrecal.

The H. Corby Distilleries also have a booth (no samples) while other booths include Wilson Concrete, Northern Electric Company; Stewart Warner Corporation, International Hardware, Deloro Stellite; Aluminum Star Products; Deacon Brothers Ltd. and Foley Supply.

The Belleville Sheltered Workshop, manned by physically handicapped workers, also has a booth in the building.

Also in the building is a display by the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and booths sponsored by the Jaycees and Industrial Commission.

Penny-watchers Get Bad News From Mint

LONDON (CP)—The Royal Mint has sad news today for British penny-watchers, North American numismatists and needle - weary wives in the British Isles.

The mint's 95th annual report deflates a belief widely held for three decades that a 1933 penny could turn up in somebody's loose change and fetch the finder about $36,000 from the nearest coin dealer.

Only six pennies were minted in 1933, the report says. Two are in the mint's museum, one in the British Museum and the other three are embedded in cornerstones of London University and churches in Leeds and Middleton, Yorkshire.

Coin collectors in North America are being duped, the report suggests, by a craze for "fatuous hoarding of pennies in bulk" in speculation that they might become valuable some day.

One Yorkshire dealer has shipped 200,000 pennies to U.S. dealers during the last three years at $30 per thousand, more than twice their face value.

CITES EXAMPLE

The mint report cites an example of one U.S. coin dealer advertising 1964 English pennies as having "good investment potential." More than 144,000,000 pennies were minted in 1964.

The bad news for British wives comes with the estimate that even more of the cumbersome, heavy pennies will be minted this year to wreak havoc with trouser pockets, requiring more mending and patching.

John Hastings James, comptroller and deputy master of the mint, admits that these "unhandy pieces"—about the size of a Canadian 50-cent-coin—have driven his tailor to provide especially reinforces pockets in his trousers.

However, John Hastings holds out no hope of tackling the British pocket problem at its source by reducing the size and weight of the coinage.

The English penny has been part of the currency, in roughly its present size, for 1,200 years. Unless or until Britain adopts decimal coinage, as proposed by the government, the penny menace is likely to remain.

A final note for frustrated collectors having trouble getting pennies for the years 1923, 1924, 1925, 1941, 1942, 1943, 1952 and 1954 to 1960 inclusive:

No pennies were minted in those years.

May Have Disease

REGINA (CP) — Four children and three teen-agers are in hospital here with "suspected cases" of sleeping sicknes, Dr. John Chiao said Tuesday. Dr. Chiao, city medical health officer, released no names and would not reveal the condition of the young people. He said it usually takes about three weeks to diagnose the disease, known as equine encephalitis.

Vessel Laden With Explosives In Collision

HALIFAX (CP) — A coastal freighter loaded with explosives was reported to have collided with a larger ship in fog off Halifax Harbor early today. The Newfoundland freighter Frederick L. Blair made port safely despite a large hole punched in her bow above the waterline.

The freighter's skipper, Capt. W. Banfield, said: "It was a grazing blow. If we had been hit dead on that would have been it."

Virginia Wagoneers Enjoy Four Years Roaming World

HAMILTON (CP)—The Gillis family of Richmond, Va., four years ago gave up friends, a home and two thriving businesses to roam the world like gypsies. They've loved every minute of it.

Since 1961, the family, now numbering six, has been on the move almost constantly, averaging 15 to 20 miles a day in a horse-drawn covered wagon named The Last Wagon West.

"We talked about it for years but didn't do anything until 1961," Leon Gillis said Tuesday during an interview at the family's campsite at Ball's Falls, 20 miles east of Hamilton. "Finally the kids told us to either do something or stop talking about wagons and travelling."

So plans for the long journey to all parts of the world began, said Mr. Gillis, 44. He sold his sporting goods store and restaurant and started building the covered wagon.

Originally there were seven members in the nomadic family but one daughter, Lee Ann, married a U.S. serviceman in Germany.

Other members of the family are: Mrs. Iyone Gillis, George, 10, Carol, 18, Barbara, 17, Janet, 13.

In addition to the family, Larry Shotwell, 20, of Richmond has accompanied the group by car during their Canadian tour.

"He's Carol's boy friend," said Mr. Gillis.

The family sells postcards and souvenirs to obtain money for food and necessities and hay for their two horses, George and Gracie.

After a short stay in Hamilton, the group intends to go to the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto scheduled for Aug. 20 to Sept. 6.

"We never hurry," said Mr. Gillis. "That's why we started this—to slow down from the fast pace of modern life and see the country as our forefathers saw it."

A 50-day tour through Russia was one of the most exciting experiences, the family agreed.

"We sailed for Europe from New York, travelled through nine European countries and arrived at the Russian border in September, 1964," said Mr. Gillis.

One of the horses died 93 miles west of Moscow, he said, and the other horse had become so weakened with colic the family had to leave it behind.

However, Russians from a nearby community loaned the U.S. family two small horses which pulled the 6,000 - pound wagon on to the Russian capital.

The wagon is equipped with bunks for everyone and a cook stove.

A rooster crowed from inside the covered wagon and Mr. Gillis explained:

"When we broke with conventional living we threw away our alarm clocks and calendars. The rooster is our alarm clock now.

"And when we want to know what day it is we just ask someone along the road," piped up one of the girls.

St. John Tent At Fair Proves Busy Spot

One of the busiest spots at the Belleville fairgrounds this week must be the St. John Ambulance tent with its small army of volunteer workers

In addition to running a baby - sitting service, the St. John Ambulance tent is also used as a lost children's haven, while the St. John people themselves have been kept busy looking after fair casualties.

As an indication on Monday, the first day of the fair, there were no less than 34 casualties, ranging all the way from blistered heels and a king-size bee sting to a broken ankle and broken thumb.

And in addition the St. John people looked after ten children until their lost parents were found.

Hoods Give Up

CATANIA, Sicily (AP) — A bandit trio made a barricade of lava rocks on the winding road on volcanic Mount Etna, but soon gave up in disgust without making their fortune. The first car belonged to a priest, who fled before the thieves' guns. The second driver shelled out 7,000 lire ($11.20). The third and last was a telegraph messenger carrying 50 lire (eight cents) and a telegram, which was thrown back at him as he ran for police.

IT'S NO USE SHOUTING! — This pony apparently won't budge until someone says "please" after an unexpected tumble at Belleville Fair sulky displays. However, only its dignity was hurt.

Half-loaf Achievement For Canada in Proposals

By WILLIAM NEVILLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

For Canada, the new Western proposals to stop the spread of nuclear weapons represent a sort of half - loaf diplomatic achievement

The draft non - proliferation treaty presented to the Geneva disarmament conference Tuesday by the United States contains most of the basic points Canada has been pushing for.

But, on at least two of the key ones, it doesn't go far enough to satisfy External Affairs Minister Martin and his top officials.

On that basis, Mr. Martin gave the U.S. draft Canada's "general support" and urged other nations to give it their most careful consideration.

This does not mean, however, that Canada, having contributed its views to the Western consensus which led to the U.S. draft, now is prepared to go along with the Washington version down to the last comma.

CANADIAN POSITION

"We have our own views on some of these points and they are not being forgotten," said an external affairs spokesman.

In some respects, the U.S. draft follows closely the lines of an eight-point program the Canadian government has been circulating for some months on a working-paper basis.

It embodies, first, the "Irish resolution" basic concept of a twin commitment—from the nuclear powers not to transfer independent control of these weapons to any other nation or organization and from the non-nuclear countries not to acquire or manufacture nuclear arms.

It also proposes, like the Canadian draft, to apply safeguards of the International Atomic Energy Agency to ensure that nuclear power being used for peaceful purposes is not transferred to military use.

KEY OMISSIONS

Missing from the American draft, however, is any real reference to the guarantee-sanction provision which featured the Canadian proposals. This would have assured non-nuclear nations—as long as they remained in that category—the assistance of the nuclear powers in event of a nuclear attack.

In Ottawa eyes, this was to be a key selling point in convincing non-nuclear states to join in a non - proliferation treaty. It was argued that, given the protection of nuclear powers in both East and West, a non-nuclear nation should be far more relaxed in agreeing not to acquire the world's most awesome weapons.

The other essentially - Canadian element missing from the Western draft is a specific time limit on the life of the treaty.

It was thought in Ottawa that by setting a definite period of about 10 years a non-dissemination treaty would not bind the non-nuclear nations indefinitely, while, at the same time, exerting pressure on the nuclear powers to achieve some meaningful agreement on disarmament within that period.

In place of either guarantees or a time limit, the U.S. draft offers a compromise section that goes beyond the provisions of the partial nuclear test ban treaty.

This article provides that the treaty be in force indefinitely, but stipulates that it should be reviewed by its signatories after a period of time, possibly five years.

It also provides that, while any signatory nation can withdraw from the treaty, it must give the United Nations Security Council three months' notice of "the extraordinary events it regards as having jeopardized its supreme interest." This supposedly would give the council a chance to try to cope with such events and thus erase the reasons for the non - nuclear change of heart.

Kingston Youth Joined Wagon Train Here Year Ago, Is Now Back to Ride

Go west young man—and become a chuckwagon rider!

This is Bob Sleeth's version of the old saw about youth and ambition.

The 18-year-old Kingston youth is now an apprentice rider with the Calgary chuckwagon show highlighting the 1965 Belleville Fair.

His appearance here is something of a sentimental return engagement. For it was at Belleville that he realized his ambition to join the chuckwagons.

Working on the midway at the Kingston Fair he had no chance of seeing the show when it played there last fall. However, his father, who keeps standard horses, was so enthused he insisted Bob should see the wagon show.

Coincidentally, the Belleville Fair Board snappd at the chance of a special one-night-stand presentation of the show while it was in Eastern Ontario. So, Bob came to Belleville—and had his imagination captured.

"I had a job at home and I was deliberating whether to give it up and come here to join the show," he recalled.

The Belleville performance made up his mind. Afterwards he went over to the barns, talked with the riders—and was taken on.

Last night, riding the pony wagons he drew a special round of applause when the master of ceremonies revealed his background.

Bobby is taciturn about his reasons for being with the show.

"It's exciting, I guess," he shrugged.

However, he makes no bones about his ambition.

And what's that?

To ride a chuckwagon in the Calgary Stampede, of course.

Indian Furniture Factory Not Sound Business Ventur

TORONTO (CP)—A furniture factory operated by 16 Ojibway Indians on the Cape Croker reserve is not a sound business venture, says a report prepared by the Ontario Development Agency.

The report was requested by Stanley Randall, Ontario economics and development minister, after Donald C. MacDonald leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, called on the provincial government to lend the Indians $50,000 and conduct a feasibility study on the plant.

The plant manufactures picnic tables and rustic furniture.

The factory on the reserve on Georgian Bay, about 30 miles northwest of Owen Sound, faces a shutdown Sept. 16 when federal vocational training grants expire.

DOESN'T MA[illegible] SENSE

In its report [illegible] ODA, which falls under [illegible] Randall's department, sa[illegible] project "is neither sufficiently well-plann nor organized to make se from a business point of view It said "no business can op ate successfully without the b sic elements of 'organizati and management" and th both these requirements a lacking.

The report added the proje at present is not much furth advanced than a training p gram. It said no firm orde had been received for pic tables other than through t Indian affairs branch of t federal government. For rust furniture, no firm orders at a had been received, it said.

The ODA suggested that t federal government support t project for a few more mont so the project could be orga ized on a sounder basis. It o fered to provide advisory a technical services to the I dians but said financial respo sibility must fall on the feder government which initiated t project and has brought it " an intermediate stage."

Drag Strip Race Attracts 9,000 People

DESERONTO — Deseronto drag strip attracted well over 9,000 people at the championship Canadian National held on Sunday.

Activities began with 150 cars previously registered for racing and 100 entered as they arrived. This race is the largada for drag racing with cash ada far drag racing with cash prizes totalling $3,550, merchandise awards $800, and trophies valued at $1,000 with $100 to the driver of the fastest Chrysler product.

The racers included such classes as stock and sport cars, dragsters and rail dragsters entering in classes set by modifications to them. Rail cars are worth approximately $12,000 and some of them operate on nitro methyl. The drivers of these cars wear aluminum suits and gas masks to protect them from the exhaust fumes which could render them unconscious. These cars are equipped with parachutes that are released for braking in case of brake failure, some drivers use both.

ACCIDENT FREE

The track to date has been accident free, it has been known for a car to blow up or throw a fly wheel but no injuries have occurred. If anyone wishes to find out what an expert thinks of safety belts, this is the place to come, no one can enter a car without safety harness being approved by the pit inspectors.

John Wiskin, public relations manger, explained the harness used in these cars is the shoulder type, designed to hold the driver down and back in the protected area of the cockpit. At one time Mr. Wisken rolled his car at a speed of 138 mph, flipped six times and walked away with only a fracture of a small bone in his hand.

The races are open to men and women, although women drivers are limited to classes of competition they may enter. Nancy Forsythe of Willowdale has yet to be beaten in official competition, she drives a D stock automatic '59 Plymouth named Northern Light.

Mr. Wisken explained the attendance is growing each year. In 1964 the average attendance was 500 with an increase this year to 1,000 and major competitions drawing up to the 10,000 mark.

FORMER RUNWAY

This drag strip is on the runway of what was formerly Camp Mohawk which was used during the war years to train pilots. The runways afford an excellent raceway as the extra length allows the cars to stop safely. The runways are leased each year from the Tyendinaga Reserve council.

The Peaceful Pacers Incorporated of Kingston, affiliated with the National Hot Rod Association operate these races on alternating Sundays. The drivers and spectators are covered by insurance.

FAVORABLE PROGRESS

The drag strip began operation in 1957 and has progressed favorably each year, the first meet this season attracted well over 11,000 which no one was prepared for, resulting in a few incidents among the spectators which were frowned upon. The Argosy Security Guards are now employed and absolutely no trouble has been had since nor is any anticipated.

Horse Sleeping Sickness Seen In North Alta.

EDMONTON (CP) — Horse sleeping sickness, dangerous to humans, was reported in northeastern Alberta Monday with three suspected cases in the Edmonton area.

Provincial laboratories were testing blood samples to determine whether the animals have the disease, spread among horses and from horses to humans by mosquitoes.

The outbreak spread from the Camrose area where two horses have died since Aug. 6 The St. Paul area, 100 miles northeast of Edmonton, has recorded 22 cases among horses so far this season.

No humans have been affected. In humans, the first symptom usually is a skin rash. The victim later has a stiff neck, a headache and suffers listlessness. In more serious cases the victim goes into a coma, loses muscle co-ordination and has convulsions.

A galaxy of Black Diamond Cheese Stakes Trophy harness racing stars embellished with equine gems of lesser ray serene form the top attraction at the Belleville Fair tomorrow night.

Thirty-five proud standard bred horses go to the post in a harness racing show that should prove a fitting climax to one of the best fairs in the history of the city.

Eleven of the younger horses will quest the valuable Black Diamond Cheese Stakes Trophy and a split of the $1,575 purse money.

Three of the field will be eliminated in the two qualifying heats. Eight will face the barrier for the gold and the glory.

The first elimination heat will be the third race with Deputy Chief Orr, Nida Dillard, Lucky Linda Gall, Melody Tripp and Devon Way starting. Keep your eye on the Dillard horse in this one.

The fourth race is the second elimination event. Entered are Astrosam, Red Tornado, Early Lake's John, Ben Dewey, Riverdale Bill and Miss Gananoque.

The strong favorite here—and for the Stakes Trophy—is Early Lake's John, owned and driven by Earl Lake of Elgin. The four-year-old son of Johnson has won 16 of 21 starts this season and recently set a lifetime record of 2.06.1 at Kingston.

Giving him strong competition in the second elimination will be Riverdale Bill and possibly Ben Dewey. However, pre-race consensus is that the battle for the trophy in the final heat will be between Early Lake's John and Nida Dillard.

Races five and nine in the all-out card should feature some of the best racing of the evening. In fact these heats could steal the show.

Rita Herrington's Lu Attorney which has been racing all season on the big raceways is making his 1965 debut here. Opposing Lu will be Ben Etawa, Luella Scott, Jacken and Chuck's Delivery, all winners in the Quinte Driving Club's Saturday night meets; Doranne Gratton and two newcomers, Royal Prince Dillard and Eyler Hanover. There could be an upset here.

New horses freckle the card of the first and sixth events. In fact to this observer it looks like Betty Chief and Georgina are the only familiar names. Newcomers include Rays Abbe Dee, Belmont Donnna, Meadow Dominion, Black Betty C and Victorious Direct.

Atomic Selka and Mighty Lass C which have raced not a few duels here this season are entered in the second and seventh events but they won't walk away from the company they're in.

Matching strides will be Flash Togo, Grattan Portage, Double Star, Irish Lane Lassie, Butch and Miss Cheer Gratton. These heats could produce some of the best racing of the night.

Race chairman Gerald Vance, who has been doing some head-scratching during the week over conditions of the track for the meet, said today he hoped it will be in first class condition.

"We'll have the boys out bright and early Thursday morning readying the track and repairing any damage which may have been caused by motorcycles and the chuck wagons," he said.

The Black Diamond Cheese Stakes final will be the eighth race of the card. Presentation of the handsome trophy and the cooler donated by the Fair Board will be made directly following the announcement of the winner.

The racing card, due to its length, will get under way sharp at eight o'clock. Patrons are requested to be in their seats well before start time. Buffs of the pari-mutuels should be on hand at least 30 minutes before the opening event. There will be full betting privileges under RCMP supervision.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—Machavoine, one of the first sons of Victoria Park, won his first race Tuesday in eight starts this season in a dead heat with Ermine Sox in the sixth race at Fort Erie Race Track.

Machavoine, owned by Doug Hatch and ridden by Jim Fitzsimmons, pulled even after seemingly losing a stretch duel with Ermine Sox for the lead.

The bay gelding had been claimed last August for $5,000 after a disappointing season.

WILL BURY WRECK

SOREL, Que. (CP) — A spokesman for Marine Industries Ltd. said Tuesday the wreck of the British freighter Tritonica, lying 65 feet below the St. Lawrence River, will not be refloated but will be buried there. The ship collided with the Irish freighter Roonagh Head in fog, in 1963, and sank with the loss of 33 lives. The Tritonica has been a hindrance to navigation.

Tigers Tumble Twins; Take Over 2nd

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Even though Minnesota Twins appear to have the American League pennant race all locked up, there still is plenty of action to keep baseball fans happy.

For example, there is a four-way scramble for second place, with Detroit Tigers currently in front after Tuesday night's 7-4 victory over the Twins.

Or there is a lively scrap for the batting title between Carl Yastrzemski of Boston Reds. And Brooks Robinson of Baltimore Orioles with defending champion Tony Oliva of Minnesota swinging up.

Or there are the duels for home-run and runs-batted-in honors between Detroit's youthful Willie Horton and Cleveland Indians' veteran Rocky Colavito.

Horton powered the Tigers over the Twins with a pair of homers and four RBI, helping Detroit take sole possession of second, seven games behind Minnesota.

Chicago White Sox climbed into a three-way tie for third—another game back—by beating Washington Senators twice, 7-2 and 5-1. They're deadlocked with Baltimore, 3-1 winner over Boston, and Cleveland, 3-2 loser to Kansas City Athletics.

In the league's other game New York Yankees climbed above .500 for the first time in four months with a 6-1 victory over Los Angeles Angels behind Al Downing's pitching.

Horton now has 25 homers and 81 RBI, to 23 and 80 for Colavito, blanked in the Indians' loss to the Athletics.

Oliva, bogged down by a slow start this year, now has a batting average of .310, behind Yastrzemski at .329 and Robinson, whose two-for-three night pulled him to .325.

WINS FIRST START

Bert Campaneris's two-run homer and Rene Lachemann's homer powered Kansas City over Cleveland as Lew Krausse—just up from Vancouver Mounties of the Pacific Coast League—won in his first big league appearance of the season.

Krausse gave way to Don Mossi after Larry Brown's two-run homer in the seventh.

The White Sox banged out 25 hits and ran their winning string to five games with the doubleheader sweep at Washington. Pitcher Juan Pizaro put the second game out of reach with a two-run homer in the fifth inning.

The Yankees got above the .500 mark for the first time since April 18, reaching .504 with 61 wins and 60 losses.

Chuvalo Knocks Out Veazey

REGINA (CP) — George Chuvalo, Canadian heavyweight champion, knocked out Orvin Veazey of Stanford, Conn., at 44 seconds of the second round of a 10-round non-title bout Tuesday night.

Chuvalo, who weighed in at 213 pounds and had 20 pounds on his six-foot, four-inch opponent, fired a fast left hook at short range that caught Veazey on the right cheek.

Veazey went down for the 10-count and stayed there at least a full minute.

Chuvalo said he was never hit solidly during the bout and said the knockout punch was the only one he threw at Veazey's head. About 3,000 fans watched the match.

"With that offer to fight Clay in the wind I'm glad this one is over," Chuvalo said. "Now I can go back to Toronto, do some more training and see what develops in negotiations with Clay."

World heavyweight champion Cassius Clay said in London Monday that Chuvalo would be his next opponent and the bout would likely take place within 90 days.

Dates Set For B and D Finals Series

Dates for the first two games of the Belleville and District Softball League finals, between Bloomfield and Belleville Ellis Juniors, were announced yesterday.

The series, a best-of-seven affair for the Bill Ott Trophy, will commence at the Fairgrounds Monday night, at 8.30.

Second game of the set is scheduled for Picton on Wednesday, August 25, at 8.00 p.m.

Prior to the opening game in Belleville, a meeting of the league executive has been called. It will be held under the grandstand, at the Fairgrounds, at 7.30 sharp and all executive members are urgently requested to attend.

Bloomfield ousted Cobourg in their first round of their OASA Intermediate "B" playdowns, two games to one, while Ellis Juniors eliminated Trenton 2-0. Ellis' will meet Brockville in the second round with that series likely to open on the August 28th weekend. Bloomfield has a bye in their second round.

WILL BUILD THEATRE

MONTREAL (CP) — A special theatre for the 1967 Montreal world's fair will be constructed at an estimated cost of $2,520,000, it was announced Tuesday. Col. Edward Churchill, Expo planning director, announced plans for the 2,000-seat building at a press conference.

U.S. Davis Cup Team On Brink

BARCELONA, Spain (AP)—The U.S. Davis Cup team hung on by its finger-nails today but nobody gave it any hope of salvaging the inter-zone final from Spain after a disastrous opening day.

The Spanish took a 2-0 lead, beating America's best tennis player with a rookie, and needed only a victory in one of the final three matches to qualify for the next zone match against India.

They probably will clinch it in today's doubles, in which the United States sent a last minute, patch-up team of Dennis Ralston and Clark Graebner against Spain's experienced Manuel Santana and Luis Arilla, never beaten at home.

"We've still got a chance—and I honestly think we can win," said the U.S. captain, George Maccall.

"I believe we will win the doubles. I am sure Frank Froehling can beat Juan Gisbert. Ralston has played his bad match. He has a good chance against Santana."

If the Americans should beat the Spanish doubles team, it would be one of the upsets of the year.

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes and Toronto Argonauts — both winless so far this season — will display revised lineups when they take the field in tonight's Eastern Football Conference game scheduled for 8 p.m. EST at Montreal's Molson Stadium.

The game will mark the first telecast of an EFC contest this season and will be carried on the CTV's eastern network.

Argos' coach Bob Shaw announced Tuesday his club will dress Mike Wicklum, obtained from Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Conference in a January trade, at defensive halfback.

Wicklum had been attending the University of New Brunswick in Fredericton prior to his recall.

Marty Martinello, a seven-year veteran at defensive tackle with the Argos, has been released. Martinello, a former Alouette, is in his 15th season of pro ball.

Two other newcomers to go on display for the Toronto club are quarterback Ron Calcagno, who will share duties with veteran Jackie Parker, and centre Bill Johnson, a Canadian who learned his football at Northeast Oklahoma College.

PLAYED IN UFL

Calcagno played 14 games for Indianapolis of the now-defunct United Football League last season and held on with the Saskatchewan Roughriders of the WFC until the July 30 cutoff this year.

Johnson of Lethbridge, Alta., had a tryout with the Alouettes in 1963, but didn't make the Montreal club. He moved to Ottawa Rough Riders and remained there until cut at the end of July.

Montreal coach Jim Trimble found himself without the services of linebackers Bill Bewley and Jim Andreotti for tonight's contest. Bewley is sidelined with a badly sprained ankle, but Andreotti's trouble is more serious.

The Als received word Tuesday that Andreotti will be lost to the team for an indefinite period after being smitten with infectious mononucleosis — a disease that demands complete rest for considerable time.

Mononucleosis produces violent fever and swelling of the lymph glands in the throat.

Trimble took immediate steps to shore up his defensive line and had Gus Gonzales, a U.S. import utility lineman, back at practice. Gonzales, along with rookie Canadian fullback Joe Arcaro, had been cut by the Als Monday night. Trimble will move Wilbert Scott to inside linebacker from guard.

"Billy Roy will move from tackle to guard on the offensive line with Dick Dalatri taking his place at tackle," the coach added.

Dalatri, a versatile performer, had been sharing centre duties with rookie Basil Bark. However, the acquisition of Terry Fernandez from the Washington Redskins of the National Football League relieves Dalatri of his centre chores.

Another newcomer, also obtained from the Washington club, is J. W. Lockett, who will run from the fullback spot. Defensive halfback Ralph Goldston or Larry Tomlinson will double as linebacker for the injured Bewley, as well as carry out their regular duties, Trimble said.

Gino Berretta, and Ernie White as backup, will handle the place-kicking job. George Bork, Als' U.S. import quarterback, will not dress for the contest. Young Canadian rookie Larry Fairholm will be the Als' backup quarterback for this game and will also try his hand at the deep defensive halfback position.

The next EFC game has Ottawa at Hamilton Saturday.

Women's Lawn Bowling

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A Hamilton rink took top honors Tuesday in the Ontario women's Lawn Bowling Association championships at the Elmwood Club.

Mrs. Margaret Howard, Mrs. Dorothy Gretton and Mrs. Lillian Webb of the Hamilton Roselawn Club captured the Don Taylor Memorial Triple Trophy.

Mrs. Grace McNaul and Mrs. Emma Geh of the Toronto Dentonia Club won the doubles trophy. The singles championship went to Mrs. Jessie Lundy of Merritton, Ont.

Lightfoots Shade Belvedere

Doug Rose's wrong-field blast in the bottom of the eighth inning drove in the deciding run last night as Lightfoot Construction nipped Belvedere Hotel 4-3 in Commercial Softball action.

Belvedere had tied the score with two runs in the seventh and final regular inning on hits by McGrimmon and D. Reidd, plus King's pinch-hit single that scored both. King tried for home when the ball was bobbled but was cut down at the plate.

Dolan opened the bottom of the eighth with a single and Rose hit a ball to right field that fell just inside the line, scoring Dolan from first base to end the contest. Rose is credited with a triple.

George Young hurled the victory. He gave up seven hits and struck out 11 in a strong performance. He walked one.

Ken Osborne allowed five hits, fanned three but walked six in going the first six frames for Belvedere. Loser Joe King gave up two more hits and did not strike out or walk a man.

No Lightfoot player had more than one hit. Doug Rose's triple was the key blow while Joe Clapp hit a double, Don Dolan, Rusty Garvin, Jack Gilby, Jack "Deacon" Whiting and George Young a single each.

Cliff "Sonny" McGrimmon collected two Belvedere singles with one apiece going to Bruno Ialenti, Jack Lucas, D. Reid, Joe King and Ken Osborne.

Kuntz To Shed Mothballs

KITCHENER (CP) — Bobby Kuntz, 1964, all-star linebacker with Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football League, Tuesday said he is ready to come out of retirement and play again.

The 33-year-old Kuntz retired from the Tiger-Cats in June because of business pressure. He is president and general manager of an electroplating firm here.

He said he found watching games from the sidelines a "little difficult" and met with Ticat coach Ralph Sazio to discuss his return to the team.

"I'm ready to play again," said Kuntz, "but I realize the coach has his problems, mainly where to play me. I've got the itch as usual. It's a lot tougher than I thought sitting in the stands."

Coach Sazio was not available for comment.

Knudson Contender In World Golf

Canadians Stronger

SUTTON, Mass. (CP)—Wilf Homenuik, the new Canadian PGA champion, predicts Canada's golfers will make a better showing than last year in the $200,000 world golf tournament which starts Thursday.

"I'm a little stronger than last year and a little more experienced," Homenuik, still flush from his victory in the Canadian PGA at Montreal last week, said Tuesday.

"So I'm looking forward to making a better showing. In fact, all the Canadians should be better."

The other Canadians are amateur Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., and Professionals George Knudson, Toronto; Adrien Bigras, Montreal; Bob Panasiuk, Windsor, Ont., Moe Norman, Barrie and Len Collett, Vancouver.

Homenuik, a Winnipeger who turned pro in 1960, shot 75-74—149 in the inaugural tournament last year at Oakland-Hills, Mich., a stroke too many to qualify for the 36 holes.

Homenuik played a practice round with Collett Tuesday. He said neither kept score.

PREDICT TOTAL

Four of the seven Canadians expect a total somewhere between six and eight under par will win the $35,000 first prize. That means 276 to 278 over the 6,713-yard Pleasant Valley course.

Weslock end Bigras favor 276. Panasiuk, who shot an even-par 71sTuesday, calls it 276 or 277, and Norman thinks it will be 277 or 278.

"The course is wonderful," said Homenuik, the five-foot-seven, 140-pounder who sharpened his game considerably playing the Caribbean tour last winter, winning a total of $4,883.

Panasiuk, at 23 the youngest Canadian on the pro tour, called the course fabulous, adding that the rough is really rough. Panasiuk, who entered the pro ranks in 1960, made an auspicious start this year by being low pro and winning $1,200 in the Ontario Open. He was Canadian junior champion in 1958.

"It's well-broomed," said 35-year-old Norman, a pro for nine years, who holds 20 course records. Although not up to his calibre of past years, he qualified for his second world tournament by taking the Manitoba Open this year.

HAS AN AIM

Bigras, who thought he shot a 75 or 76 Tuesday, aims to shoot low enough to play the tour rounds, ending Sunday. The handsome 27-year-old golfer, winner of the Quebec Open, played in five tournaments on the Caribbean tour.

Weslock, Canada's longtime great amateur, said after going three over par Tuesday: "I think I can play well on this course." Weslock, born 47 years ago in Winnipeg, has three Canadian amateur titles and six Ontario Opens to his credit.

A strong Canadian contender in the tournament undoubtedly will be Knudson, currently enjoying the most successful season of any Canadian in the history of pro golf. He had won $29,978 in official money and a total of $34,568 up to and including the Canadian Open.

This is the fifth year on the PGA tour for Knudson, 28-year-old Winnipeg native. He was 1964 Canadian PGA champion.

Braves Dump Cards

Dodgers Nip Phils; Cling To Slim Lead

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Singles that have held Los Angeles Dodgers atop baseball's National League since the second week of the season, except for a baren 14-day stretch, saved their lead again Tuesday night as they skittered past Philadelphia Phillies 4-2.

The victory kept them a half game ahead of Milwaukee Braves, who had earlier defeated St. Louis Cardinals 4-1.

Knowing they had to win, the Dodgers opened with a run on two singles, a walk and a hit batter, but still were down 2-1 after six innings.

Then, with one out John Roseboro, now hitting .215, singled, and pinch-runner Willie Crawford beat an attempted force at second.

After Maury Wills popped up, Jim Gilliam singled home Crawford with the tying run and Jim Lefebvre, a .238 hitter, singled in pinch-runner John Kennedy. The Dodgers added a run in the ninth when Wes Parker singled and eventually scored as Kennedy, .198, singled.

HIT 10 SINGLES

All told, Los Angeles had 10 hits—all singles. That was nothing unusual, however, since the Dodgers have the fewest extra-base hits and the third most singles in the league.

Elsewhere in the league, San Francisco Giants edged New York Mets 3-2, Cincinnati Reds downed Chicago Cubs 6-4 and Pittsburgh Pirates outlasted Houston Astros 8-6.

Denny Lemaster stopped St. Louis on three hits while Felipe Alou rapped four hits, igniting both Milwaukee scoring innings. Hank Aaron clouted his 27th homer in the fifth.

The Cardinals had only one hit until Tim McCarver singled in the eighth and Dal Maxvill doubled him home.

MAYS RESTING

Ken Henderson, giving Willie Mays a rest, scored in the third inning on Willie McCovey's single, then doubled across the Giants' two other runs in the fourth. Bob Bolin checked the Mets on three hits in 6 2-3 innings of relief.

Leo Cardenas slapped a two-run double in the eighth inning, carying Cincinnati past the Cubs. Deron Johnson drove in two Red runs with a homer and a single while Frank Robinson contributed a homer. Billy Williams homered for Chicago.

Pittsburgh's Al McBean pitched out of a bases-loaded jam in the ninth inning and saved Vernon Law's 14th victory against nine defeats. Pittsburgh built up an 8-0 lead .s Don Clendenon socked a two-run homer and Gene Alley batted in two runs with a pair of singles.

Belch's Win Over Kingston

Belch and Son Construction outlasted the Kingston United Travellers 11-9 in the first game of the O.A.S.A. Peewee Playdowns at Belleville last night.

Bill Bleekman hurled the victory for Belleville, with relief help from Gary McMurray.

On the opposing mound, Goodfellow went the distance.

Tom Hiddleston spearheaded the winner's attack with two singles and a double. David Pascoe and Gary Morton both slammed home-runs.

For the visiting Kingston crew, Goodfellow and McCue were best at the plate.

The next game is to be played in Kingston Thursday night.

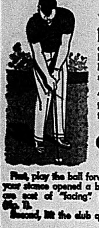
USE THE SOFT WEDGE FOR QUICK 'STOP'

On many occasions the average golfer encounters a situation where he must stop a short shot quickly on the green. An example would be where a sand trap rests between him and the hole, which is near his side of the green.

Such a situation calls for a high, "soft" wedge or 9-iron shot that imparts a great deal of backspin to the ball. To play such a shot:



①

③

First, play the ball forward with your stance opened a bit so you are sort of "facing" the hole (No. 1).

Second, lift the club quickly on the backswing, keeping your right elbow close to your right side (No. 2).

Three, return the clubhead "leisurely" downward into the ball, but with your left arm and wrist very firm (No. 3).

This leisurely, upright swing from the open stance will float the ball upward onto the green where it will settle quickly.

Quebec Women's Open Golf

QUEBEC (CP) — Monique Langlais of the host Royal Quebec Club defeated Cathy Wardlaw of Lasalle, Que., 6-4 Tuesday in the match - play first round of the Quebec Provincial Women's Open golf championship.

Jocelyne Bourassa of Trois-Rivieres, Que., defeated Sue Brown of Vancouver two up and Sandra Post of Trafalgar, Ont., defeated fellow club membr J. McNeil 4-3.

S. Kirkpatrick of Lambton, Ont., downed C. Boyer of Whitlock, Ont., 3-2 and Helen Gagnon of Saguenay, Que., defeated Estelle Boucher of Royal Quebec on the 19th hole.

J. Murray of Royal Quebec beat Pam Miller of Oshawa on the 20th hole, Mrs. H. Nadeau of the host club defeated Liz Ferier of Credit Valley, Ont., 3-1, and Mrs. Graham Pyke of Montreal Whitlock downed Mrs. P. Pilon of St. Johns, Que., 5-4.

The championship continues with a second round today, semi-finals Thursday and a 36-hole championship final Friday.

W.B.A. Endorses

Three-Bouts Series For World Title

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The World Boxing Association endorsed Tuesday a proposal by Harry Markson of Madison Square Garden to stage three championship bouts as the solution to the muddled heavyweight title picture.

Markson, director of boxing at the garden, started negotiations a month ago to promote a title-fight doubleheader in New York with Cassius Clay meeting former champion Floyd Patterson in one, and WBA champion Ernest Terrell going against the No. 3 contender, George Chuvalo of Toronto, in the other.

He put his suggestion in the form of a proposal.

"The idea," said Markson, "is that all four fighters would sign a prior agreement that the two winners would meet for the undisputed championship within six months. We would give both fighters equal billing and equal publicity."

Clay was stripped of his crown by the WBA last year for signing a return - match contract with Sonny Liston.

Terrell later won the WBA version of the title by defeating Eddie Machen and Clay stopped Liston in the first round of their rematch.

"It was these two bouts that further degraded boxing," said Markson. "I think the doubleheader would return some respectability to the sport."

Following a lengthy argument, the WBA at its annual meeting here passed a motion that the convention approve in essence Markson's proposal, providing it is based on the following:

1. Clay's formal request to the WBA for the lifting of the suspesion now in effect.
2. That Clay and Patterson post substantial guarantees of later performances by the winner of their contest with the then WBA champion, the amount of which would be fixed by the WBA executive committee.
3. That contracts guaranteeing performance of the contest with the WBA champion within three or six months to be filed with the WBA.
4. That lifting of suspensions now in effect on Clay will not be accomplished until these conditions are fulfilled and formal approval is given by the WBA executive and world championship committees.

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP)—Cassius Clay, the heavyweight boxing champion, repeated here Tuesday that Canadian George Chuvalo probably will be his next oponpent in defence of his title.

But Clay said nothing had yet been settled. Clay anounced Monday in London that Chuvalo—the Canadian champion from Toronto—would probably fight him in about three months.

Clay arrived in Glasgow to a skirl from the girl pipers of Braemar — and looked somewhat stunned.

The girls in their kilts escorted him from the airport and the bagpipes wailed and wailed.

"I've never heard them bagpipes before," he said.

Saskys Grab Argo Castoff

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Football Conference Tuesday added a 14th import to their lineup but lost a valuable Canadian player at the same time.

Coach Eagle Keys said the club has picked up halfback Sherman Lewis from Toronto Argonauts but has been forced to put rookie Alan Ford on the 30-day injured list.

Lewis, a graduate of Michigan State, arrived in Roughrider camp Tuesday and, Keys said probably will be in the lineup Friday when Saskatchewan meets British Columbia Lions here.

The five-foot seven inch, 157-pound Lewis was cut by Argos last week.

ESCAPE HEAT IN HOLES

People in the mining town of Coober Pedy, Australia, escape the desert heat by making their homes in artificial caves.

Eskimos Stamps Tonight

CALGARY (CP) — Coach Neill Armstrong of Edmonton Eskimos says he will start Randy Kerbow at quarterback when the Eskimos clash with Calgary Stampeders tonight in their first Western Football Conference encounter of the season.

Kerbow, signed by Armstrong in 1964 from Houston Oilers of the American Football League, is an all-purpose back who can pass, catch, run and punt with authority.

Kerbow opened the season as a flanker to take the pressure off end Tommy-Joe Coffey in the Eskimo passing attack, but became quarterback when regular Jon Anabo was injured.

Coach Jerry Williams of the Stampeders will probably go with Eagle Day at quarterback. Day, who had to fly to the United States last week when his mother became ill, was not on hand when the Blue Bombers dumped the Stampeders 19-8 in Winnipeg.

Stampeders, with a 1-2 record, share third place with British Columbia Lions at two points each. Edmonton is in fifth nd last spot with three straight losses.

Winnipeg, with a 4-0 record, has surprised everyone and grabbed first place with eight points. Saskatchewan has second place with a 2-1 record and four points.

CEPEDA'S BACK

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Slugging first baseman Orlando Cepeda was put back on the active roster of San Francisco Giants Tuesday and right-handed pitcher Jack Sanford was sold to Los Angeles Angels. Cepeda, 27, went on the disabled list May 7 after an off-season knee operation left him limping.

6,500 or 7,000 Winners

Longden Eyes New Mark

By JACK MORRIS

VANCOUVER (CP)—Win No. 6,500—perhaps even 7,000 — for millionaire jockey Johnny Longden?

It sounds incredible. But it just may be what Longden has in the back of his mind.

A record nobody will ever equal.

At 58, and already a grandfather, Longden returned to his boyhood home of Canada last week for No. 6,000 amid a whirl of publicity he would then retire.

"Canada is where I started out," he said. "I've a lot of old friends there."

He got his 6,000th win Monday night. But he didn't retire.

"I didn't say I was going to retire," said the English-born Canadian-raised jockey who now makes his home near Riverside, Calif.

"I said I was going to think about it, and I am still going to think about it."

While he was still "thinking about it" Tuesday, he signed to ride three more horses at Exhibition Park today. He was considering more for Thursday's card. Then he will leave for Chicago Saturday and a $50,000 filly race.

In his 13 mounts here — he needed four winners to reach 6,000—he showed the championship form that made him the world's most successful jockey.

A track physician called him a "physical marvel" with the reflexes, muscular development and heart of a man of 25.

But Longden still is 58. And Willie Shoemaker — with more than 5,100 wins so far—is only 34.

Longden came to Taber, Alta., aged two. His career as a jockey began in 1927.

Now, 38 years later — and bone mends almost everywhere and a toupee that sits where his hair used to be—Longden still sticks to his jockey routine of strict dieting, early rising and physical conditioning. And he still rides winners.

Minor Baseball Results

A lone run in the top of the seventh frame allowed Park Dale to nip Barriages 4-3 in a bantam baseball fixture, at Park Dale, last night.

Park Dale took a 1-0 lead in the division's semi - finals with the closely - contested victory.

The winners jumped into a 2-0 lead in the third and made it 3-0 in the top of the sixth. Barriages scored all their runs in the bottom of that inning to tie it but Park Dale's loner in the seventh decided the issue.

Jim Wood hurled fine two - hit ball, whiffing seven and walking two, for six innings, then got hitless, three - strikeout relief help from Ted Shaw in the seventh, for Park Dale. Eddie Christopher and "Red" Burnette shared the catching.

Wayne Farrell and Hubert Hicks split the losers' pitching chore. They gave up ten hits, struck out seven and passed five. Brian Coughlin was their receiver.

Ted Shaw starred on the Park Dale attack, getting two doubles and two bunt singles in four tries. Gary Burnette had a triple and single Barry Burnette two singles, Eddie Christopher and Kevin Allen one apiece.

Dwayne hit a two - run triple and Terry McTaggart a single in a losing effort.

PLANS SETTLED

TORONTO (CP)—The British Empire Motor Club announced Tuesday that the Canadian Grand Prix scheduled for Mosport Park Sept. 25 will be strictly a sports - car race as it has been since 1961. Original plans were that the September race would be Canada's first for Formula One cars.

Crackers Win Pair, Leafs Split

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Larry Maxie, a six-foot-three right hander for Atlanta Crackers, had an unimpresive record of five wins and 11 losses before Tuesday night but he raised his season's mark to 6-11 with an impressive performance.

Maxie pitched the third no-hitter of his career in organized baseball as he allowed only two Toledo Mud Hens to reach base in Atlanta's 1-0, seven-inning victory in the first game of an International League doubleheader. Atlanta also won the nine-inning nightcap 9-1.

In other action first baseman Abe Altobelli hit his 19th home run of the season to give Rochester Red Wings a 1-0 victory over Toronto but the Maple Leafs won the second game 5-4 on Bob Guindon's 10th-inning homer. Columbus Jets defeated Jacksonville Suns 12-4 and Syracuse Chiefs downed Buffalo Bisons 3-1 and 2-1 as both contests were decided by home runs.

SET DATE

OTTAWA (CP) — Commonwealth finance ministers have agreed to hold their 1965 conference at Kingston, Jamaica, Sept. 22-23, it was announced Tuesday. Their talks will centre on world economic trends and problems.

Americans Dominate

Canadian Junior Tennis

OTTAWA (CP)—Top United States players continued to steamroll their Canadian opponents Tuesday at the Canadian junior open tennis championships, but Canadians remain in contention in 11 categories.

The visitors from south of the border are assured of victory in the boys' and girls' 12-and-under titles following Tuesday's play, when the last Canadians in these classes were eliminated.

Top - seeded Dan Bleckinger of Oshkosh, Wis., had no trouble in advancing to the quarter - finals of the 18-and-under class when he eliminated Don Young of London, Ont., 6-0, 6-0. The American boy multiplied ace serves and beautifully - placed shots.

John Pryor of Houston, Texas., third seed among the 18-and-under U.S. entries, also gained a berth in the quarters with a 6-3, 6-2 win over Geoff Harris of Edmonton.

Chuck Brainard of Hamtramck, Mich., second - seeded in the 18-age class, said U.S. players will continue to dominate in the open until Canadians can receive better training.

HAVE A CHANCE

He said that at Hamtramck, teen - agers are given an opportunity to develop their ability in tennis while attending high school.

If such a system was developed in Canada there is no doubt that the standards of play would improve, he added.

One bright spot for Canadian players is in the girls' 18-and-under where they hold seven of the eight quarter-final berths. The only remaining U.S. entry is top-seeded Marjorie Gengler of Locust Valley, N.Y.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP)—Scat Time came from last position to take the lead by 2½ lengths and win the featured eighth race at Greenwood Raceway Tuesday night.

The five-year-old, driven by Bob Silliphant, paid $5.90, $3.70 and $3.30.

Mistress Mine finished second for $4.10 and $2.90 and Away Kid was third for $5.

In the daily double, Starlite Grattan and Tango Lobell combined for an $18.10 win.

The combination of Belmont Frances and Late Frost brought a $24.20 quinella.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (CP)—Canadian-bred Armbro Flight, one of the favorites in the Sept. 1 Hambletonian, won both heats of the Illinois Breeders' trot Tuesday in identical times of 2:04.

Piloted by Joe O'Brien, the Alberton, P.E.I. native who handles the 1964 Canadian Harness Horse of the year for Ted, Elgin and Charles Armstrong of Brampton, Armbro Flight was an easy winner in both dashes.

The victories earned the three-year-old filly $3,542, her smallest pay day this season, and boosted her earnings to $73,701.

Winner of 20 of 26 races last year, Armbro Flight netted $107,452, the largest amount ever earned by a two-year-old filly in a single season in the sport's history.

She had won all 11 of her races this season and in two weeks enters the $125,000 Hambletonian at Du Quoin, Ill.

Armbro Flight was selected several weeks ago by a University of Southern Illinois computer as the winner of the Hambletonian. This was a surprise choice in the eyes of many horsemen who had conceded the race to also-unbeaten Noble Victory, owned by K. D. Owen of Houston, Tex.

The Hambletonian was won by Armbro Flight's mother, Helicopter, in 1953, the only Canadian - owned horse to win harness racing's most coveted race.

Publicity Turns Heads of Zambia's Astronauts

By DENNIS LEE ROYLE

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — You have no idea what problems you run into when you're trying to put the first African on the moon.

The finances are slow, the would - be astronauts are balky, and there's a matter of biology, too.

Zambia, formerly the British colony of Northern Rhodesia, is a small country in the heart of Africa. Its minister of space research, as he describes himself, is Edward Mukuka Knoloso.

"We are delaying our plans to plant the Zambian flag on the moon," Nkoloso says. "But this is only a temporary setback. A reply to my request to the United Nations for a loan of $19,600,000 (U.S.) and a further $1,900,000,000 from private foreign sources hasn't yet been received."

The little space enthusiast flutters around in a faded, torn, red -and- green, superman-style cloak.

His 10-man team of astronauts has revolted against his tortuous space training program.

"After the world-wide TV showing and press publicity of our astronauts in training I received thousands of letters from foreign countries," he said. "But my spacemen thought they were film stars.

"They demanded payment and refused to continue with our program of rolling down hills in oil drums and my special tree-swinging method of simulating space weightlessness."

Zambia's No. 1 space girl, Matha Mwamba, completed the full course of 50 hill rolls and tree swings, but now she is pregnant. She has returned to her parents who have, according to Nkoloso, talked her out of continuing her space training.

HAD DRINKING SPREE

"Two of my best men went on a drinking sprée a month ago and haven't been seen since," he said. "Another of my astronauts has joined a local tribal song and dance group. He says he makes more money swinging from the top of a 40-foot pole."

Dejected though he is, space research director Nkoloso has not entirely abandoned his ideas to get the first African on the moon. Government sources say, however, that President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia has asked him to curb his enthusiasm.

Nkoloso's grubby little office in the Zambian capital of Lusaka is cluttered with piles of letters from foreign well-wishers containing plenty of advice—but no money beyond a 10-rupee ($2.50) note sent by a space - minded Indian schoolboy.

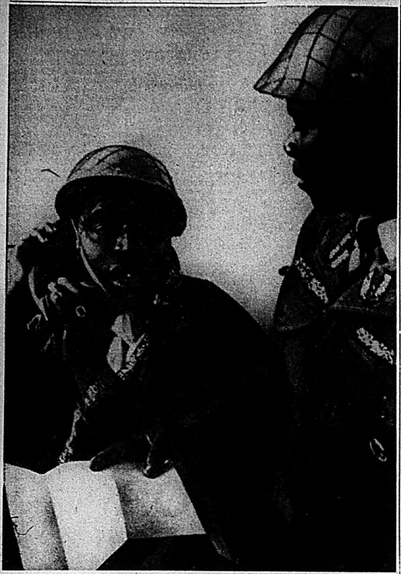
One American company donated a complete set of space research books.

"Look at all those letters from every country in the world," he said. "I've got the finest foreign stamp collection in Africa these days.

"If this space program doesn't work out I may consider becoming an expert on stamp collecting."

Despite his setbacks, Nkoloso maintains he could have the Zambian flag on the moon in a couple of years if the money were forthcoming. He has new plans for a rocket to replace one "recently sabotaged by foreign elements." He wouldn't elaborate on that.

"Perhaps the Americans would like to join me in my space program," he said. "I'd be most happy. But let's get one thing straight—I step on the moon and hoist the Zambian flag first."



PLAGUED BY PROBLEMS — Edward Mukuka Knoloso (left), Minister of Zambia's Space Research Program, instructs an aide while taking a phone call in his Lusaka office. Knoloso is usually preoccupied with problems in getting his small African country's space program off the ground. What with a pregnancy, absenteeism, drunkenness and resignations among his astronauts and a shortage of funds, it may be years before he gets a Zambian in orbit.

ZAMBIAN ASTRONAUT ALOFT — Wearing a spacesuit that can be best described as "unusual," a former Zambian astronaut performs atop two 40-foot poles at Lusaka, Zambia. The ex-astronaut quit Zambia's space program because he can make more money performing with a local tribal song and dance group.

Scoharie

SCOHARIE — Mrs. Louis Peterson is a patient in Prince Edward County hospital.

The members of the Auxiliary to Prince Edward County Home entertained the residents of the Home to the turkey dinner at South Bay Church hall provided by the U.C.W. of the church.

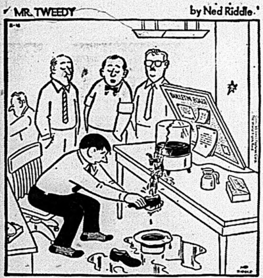
Mrs. Wilfred Simpson and baby son arrived home from Prince Edward County Hospital on Sunday.

Miss Jean Baxter spent a few days with Miss Patricia Dew in Picton.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Wilson of Toronto spent their holidays with her mother, Mrs. B. Leavitt.

SEEK CONVICT

QUEBEC (CP)—Louis Arthur Levesque, 41, serving a life sentence for attempted murder is being sought following his escape from hospital where he was being treated for a mental illness. He was held in St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary north of Montreal until last March 12 when he was transferred to the mental hospital.



"Let it go. We'll go out for coffee today."

Slattery's People Is Sole Dramatic Series of Year

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Old movies actually look better than ever after three weeks spent earnestly scouting what network television euphemistically calls "new product."

This reporter so far has visited sets, talked with writers, performers, directors, producers or read an occasional scrip' for more than 20 of the 33 new network series and has yet to encounter a fresh concept or, for what matter, unqualified enthusiasm about a new idea.

Only one dramatic anthology Bob Hope Theatre, and the men who plan the nation's entertainment menues frankly expect the weekly evening hours to be devoted to showing films originally made for movie theatres to take the place of new productions of original scripts.

Slattery's People, on CBS will return as the sole dramatic series with a serious point of view and the potential of tapping meaty subjects.

The James Bond influence has hit the plot-builders like an epidemic. Even good Old Mr. Ed will be turning up at some point soon as Oat-Oat Seven, which sounds pretty grim. And the star of a new hour-long series, Wild, Wild West, described the project unblushingly as "a comedy-western-spy story" and "James Bond on a horse."

SERIAL INFLUENCE

Multi - part series — six or seven episodes to a single story—are so common in series which have continuing characters that one cannot help but suspect the influence of Peyton Place.

Generally, the building blocks for the new series appear to be a lot of hand-me-down ideas.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Terry-Thomas as Jack Lemmon's "gentleman's gentleman", Virna Lisi as Jack's wife and a scene-stealer in George Axelrod's original comedy "How To Murder Your Wife", in Technicolor, opening tonight at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. 2nd comedy hit, also in Technicolor "The Mouse On The Moon", also stars Terry Thomas with Margaret Rutherford and Ron Moody.

Brass Reckons Without Loyalty of Polynesians

By BOB THOMAS

HONOLULU (AP)—Cut here they're still talking about the Hawaii mutiny.

It was a clash between high-powered corporative thinking and the gentle spirit of Polynesia.

Here is the picture of the mutiny I drew from the survivors:

After filming in Norway, New England and Hollywood, the Hawaii company came to Oahu with high hopes and budget to match. Meanwhile, the movie's backers watched the budget climb higher and higher. Finished film was returning to Hollywood at a sluggish rate. Panicsville.

United Artists and Marisch Brothers brass converged on Honolulu. They arrived at the classic solution for such affairs: Fire the director—George Roy Hill.

THREE PROBLEMS

What had gone wrong?

Said star Max von Sydow: "There were three problems—we ran into a lot of rain; working on the sailing ships consumed a lot of time; and the number of unprofessional actors required time and patience on George's part."

"There was never a question about the quality of the film," added Julie Andrews. "When the trouble arose, we asked to see what had been shot, and we found it excellent."

But the corporative minds decided Hill must go.

They reckoned without the simple loyalty of the Polynesian people.

An imposing figure among the amateur actors recruited for Hawaii is Jocelyn Lagarde, a 300 - pound Tahitian who was signed to play the Hawaiian queen Malama. She knew no English before the film, and Hill had directed her with infinite care.

When she heard the director was fired, she issued the edict: No Hill, no Malama. She would sail home to Tahiti.

Manu Taunaole, a Fijian who portrays her son in the film, agreed that he would quit the movie if Hill were canned. Hawaiian extras also threatened action, and the casting workers who hired them resigned their jobs.

Now the bosses were caught in the middle. Reshooting with a new native cast might shoot the budget up to $20,000,000. They acquiesced. Hill was rehired.

When Hill reported to the set the day afterward, he was greeted with applause and kisses from his loyal cast.

What's Up Doc? Newman Chews Carrots on Set

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Paul Newman has a cinch way to break the cigarette habit.

"When I take my first cigarette," says Paul who has been off them for a month, "it will cost me $9,500."

When Newman decided to quit he placed bets at three-to-one odds with some of his friends that he would quit for good.

Even in his movie The Moving Target, he doesn't smoke.

"Fortunately the script came that way—and I'm glad," says Newman.

Newman keeps an icebox full of carrots in his dressing room. When he gets the cigarette urge, he chews a carrot.

"Every time I bite one I think how much money it's saving me."

Newman's new movie is a refreshing departure from the rash of James Bond-type movies being made nowadays.

Since the phenomenal success of Goldfinger and the others, many producers have jumped on the Bondwagon.

Not Newman.

"I am the very antithesis of James Bond," says Paul. "I buy my suits off the rack and I live in an ordinary room. There is no luxury although I do all the agent stuff and all the fisticuffs."

The movie is reminiscent of such Humphrey Bogart movies of the '30s and '40s as The Maltese Falcon and The Big Sleep.

BOGART IN VOGUE

Which is okay because Bogart seems to be as much in vogue, especially among the college kids, as James Bond.

But unlike Bogie, Newman no longer is a heavy smoker.

Bogie, in his prime was a four-pack-a-day man. He died of throat cancer.

"I was getting there myself," says Newman, "so I decided I had better call a halt. I love money more than cigarettes so I knew if I bet on myself I could do it.

"If I lose, it's going to be the most expensive smoke yet."

TENDERS

Sealed tenders will be accepted by the undersigned until 12.00 noon on August 20th, 1965 for the undernoted real property of Daniel Vincent Doyle, late of the City of Belleville, in the County of Hastings, deceased, namely.

PARCEL NUMBER ONE:

23/27 Campbell Street being in the City of Belleville, and being composed of part of Lots 10, 11 and 12 and part of Lot 13 according to Plan Number 108, and part of the 12 foot lane in the rear thereof, and being part of Lot 36 on the west side of Pinnacle Street according to Government Plan. The frontage of the property on Campbell Street being approximately 78 feet one and one-half inches (78' 1½") by an irregular depth of 125 feet (125') more or less. Subject to a right-of-way over an existing 12 foot travelled lane along the most westerly 12 feet (12') of the said parcel.

PARCEL NUMBER TWO:

46/48½ Bridge Street East in the City of Belleville, being known as Lot 3. Together with the right of user over the right-of-way in common with others entitled thereto over and along the lane to the rear of the said property. Frontage of property is approximately thirty feet (30') by a depth of one hundred and five feet (105'), more or less.

PARCEL NUMBER THREE:

120 Chatham Street being in the City of Belleville, and being composed of part of Lot 78 as shown on Henry Carre's Plan for the said City. Frontage of property approximately thirty-four feet (34') by the full depth of the said lot.

PARCEL NUMBER FOUR:

62/62½ West Moira Street being in the City of Belleville, and being composed of the most westerly thirty-five feet (35'), more or less, by a depth of ninety-four and one half feet (94½'), more or less of Lot 7 according to Plan Number 183. Together with a 15 foot right-of-way over the 15 foot lane extending westerly from Boswell Street to the said property.

A certified cheque for 10% of the tendered price payable to the Solicitors hereinafter referred to, in trust, must accompany each tender. Said cheque will be returned if the tender is not accepted. The highest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

Further information with respect to the properties may be obtained by contacting the undersigned Solicitors.

Point Anne

POINT ANNE—Mr. and Mrs. Ed Weatherdon have returned home following a vacation in Nova Scotia with relatives.

Mr. D. Hamer of Halifax is vacationing with the Milton Akey family.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs James Sero on the recent death of her father.

Friends of Miss Mary Dunley held a shower for her last Thursday evening in the parish hall. Mary received many gifts and good wishes for her forthcoming marriage.

Dale King returned Saturday from a summer camp with the army at Petawawa.

Friends of Miss Janna King gathered at the canteen at Canada Cement Co. to honor her with a surprise party on Friday evening. They presented her with a transistor radio. Janna was thrilled with the gift and thanked her friends for their thoughtfulness.

On Saturday afternoon members of St. John's Friendship Group presented Mrs. Dale King with a gift from the group. The King family is moving to Cochrane and will be greatly missed in the village.

Miss Joyce Maher has been undergoing tests in hospital in Toronto.

Mrs. Chris Akey, Mrs. Grant Kells and friends held a shower in the parish hall to honor Mrs. Dennis Hull who was a June bride. Mrs. Hull received many useful gifts.

Municipal Board to Hear Application for Annexation

PICTON (Staff) — Town council planning committee chairman, Robert Walmsley, stated Monday an Ontario Municipal Board hearing for Picton's application to annex part of Hallowell Township should be held before the end of the year.

The application is for an area of about 3,000 acres as recommended by the Central Prince Edward Planning Board in a detailed report published in January of 1963.

Apart from the main recommendation that the area be annexed by Picton, the planning board report includes a proposed land use designation plan, complete with areas set aside for residential, industrial, commercial and recreational purposes.

Some members of town council have said the main point in favor of Picton in the coming dispute is the area will be properly zoned and planned if it is in Picton's hands. Hallowell has turned down the planning board's report.

Reeve John Fox of Hallowell Township said his council turned the report down about two years ago, not because of the zoning and planning recommendations but because of the recommendation that Picton annex the entire area which was planned.

He also said today he cannot recall any time in his nine years on council when Hallowell Township was asked to consider any specific plan for any area. He said his council is not opposed to planning.

"We set up our own township planning board at the first of this year," he said.

Hallowell's main objection to the annexation proposal is loss of assessment and population. Hallowell councillors also feel Picton is asking too much, an area about three-and-a-half times as big as Picton's present site.

A secondary blow if the annexation is approved would be the loss of about 900 population. This would reduce Hallowell's population sufficiently that it could no longer have a deputy-reeve as a second member on county council.

At present, the town of Picton, and Hallowell and Ameliasburgh Townships are the only municipalities in Prince Edward County to have two representatives on county council.

Although Picton is acting on the entire planning board report, some members of council are concerned about the size of the area and wonder how the town would service and look after the increased area should it be awarded the entire 3,000 acres.

In the forthcoming hearing, town solicitor R. E. Nourse will represent Picton, assisted by J. R. Bousfield, a specialized planning consultant of the Toronto consultant engineering firm of Proctor, Redfern, Bousfield and Bacon.

Ronald Cass, a prominent Belleville lawyer, has been retained by Hallowell Township for the hearing.

News Briefs

PICTON — County Constable Earl Marvin of Wellington has added another to his large collection of trophies, evidence of his trap shooting ability. In connection with the Rock Gemboree held at Bancroft, on Sunday, a trap shoot was held, and Constable Marvin walked off with the Carling award for top score.

A letter from Ontario Minister of Health to Norris Whitney, M.P.P., advises that a cheque for $19,448.72 is being sent to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital. This is a progress payment in connection with the expansion program at the county hospital.

Picton Playgrounds are having a Penny Carnival from one to four o'clock this Wednesday afternoon at the Fair Grounds. The public is invited. Mayor McFarland will be on hand at three o'clock to present trophies.

Duck production looks better than average throughout the district says the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests report.

Ruffed grouse "partridge" brood counts indicate a better picture than last year. The season opens on September 25th.

The Department is again asking hunters to co-operate in submitting wing and tail feathers from grouse and one wing from each duck that is bagged.

Cottontail rabbits are plentiful in the southern portion of the district and should afford excellent gunning this fall. (Season opens Sept. 25).

The deer population looks good, having had a favorable winter and spring. Many fawns have been reported, indicating a high rate of production and if weather conditions are normal come November 8th, an increase in hunter success can be expected.

County Gets Play in Top Magazine

PICTON (Staff) — "The Playground of Prince Edward" is the title of two-page article in the magazine "Ontario Homes and Living." In addition to a map, there are photos of the Sandbanks, Salmon Point lighthouse, Black Creek cheese factory, fishery at Salmon Point and Outlet Beach.

The opening paragraph reads "Thanks to the benevolence of an ancient glacier and a modern government, Ontario is heir to one of the world's finest shore-side vacation areas—the Playground of Prince Edward."

A splendid word picture of the county's attraction is painted by the writer.

WINS WITH GLADS

Gladioli grown by Jack Laundry, East Lake Road, can hold their own in any competion as was shown at two exhibitions last week. At Peterborough gladioli show on Friday, he won 33 first and 16 second prizes. He also won the Eaton's of Canada trophy for grand champion spike in the show; the Keith Brown trophy for outstanding arrangement; the Canadian Gladioli Society challenge cup for the best six spikes; the W. H. Mentell trophy for best white white spike in show; the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co. of Canada award for champion spike.

On Saturday, the International Gladioli Show was held in the Legion Hall at Bowmanville with entries being received from many distant points. Mr. Laundry made 16 entries and won 13 first and three second prizes. He had Reserve Champion spike in the show with a beautiful speciman of Landmark.

Water Supply Now Back To Normal

PICTON (Staff) — Picton Public Utilities Manager H. C. Blakely said Monday the water situation is now back to normal but said the routine monthly cleanings of the town reservoir may be whittled down a bit.

The next cleaning will probably be delayed for slightly more than a month, he said, even close to two months in hopes of reducing the danger of another water crisis such as experienced about a week ago.

He said the PUC is hoping to hit a cool spell for the next cleaning when water usage may not be so high.

At the last cleaning, the chemicals used opened up sufficient cracks in the old reservoir that the PUC water processing and pumping equipment could not fill the reservoir again without a patching operation. It took more than four days before the town's water supply system was working normally.

The Rural Scene

PICTON (Staff) — Although raspberry harvest is completed it is not time to forget about your planting especially if you are interested in a crop for next year.

It is time to cut out and burn old fruiting canes and severely diseased new canes. This is important in the control of anthracnose and spur blight as well as for cane borer and some viruses.

It is also important now to apply a fungicide spray to further cut down the spread of anthracnose and spur blight. 76 percent ferbam W.P at 5 lbs. in 250 gallons of water an acre is what to use. For one-fifth of an acre use 1 lb. of ferbam in 50 gallons of water or whatever proportionate amount suits your acreage.

If you have had a problem with the raspberry sawfly, the one that cuts holes in the leaves use lead arsenate at a rate of 6 lbs. in 250 gallons of water to the acre.

It is agreed that the most important spray in a raspberry planting is the one just before the blossoms open, but a spray at this time of year will also do much to reduce disease and insect injury.

126 BOARS APPROVED

A total of 126 boars were approved for premium under the Boar Premium Policy during July. This number included 81 Yorkshire, 28 Landrace and 17 Lacombe. Wilholme Farms, Picton were among those listed with Yorkshire boars for sale. Anyone interested in purchasing an approved boar can obtain the names of breeders at the local Department of Agriculture Office.

BUS TOUR PLANNED

During this week, two Junior Farmer delegates, Leslie Latchford and John Jones are representing Prince Edward County on the Eastern Ontario and Quebec Bus Tour. The tour began Sunday, August 15th lasts until Saturday, August 21st. and will include visits to points of interest in Kingston, Cornwall, Montreal, Trois Rivieres, St. Hyacinthe, Quebec City, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Ottawa and Peterborough. The tour will include stops at Upper Canada Village, site of Expo '67, Provincial Agricultural Institute of Technology, Macdonald College, Parliament Buildings, the Mint, the War Museum, Central Experimental Farm, Central Canada Exhibition and some individual farms of particular interest along the way.

The trip has been organized to be educational and enjoyable and we hope that our delegates will enjoy representing Prince Edward County this week.

STARTS IN FALL

Farmers are reminded of the Farmstead Improvement Centennial Competition, which has been planned to help clean-up, paint-up, dress-up and generally improve rural Ontario in preparation for Canada's Centennial in 1967. The competition will start in the fall of 1965 and end in the fall of 1966. Entries should be forwarded to the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Box 470, Picton by September 1st. First inspection will take place between Sept. 6th and Oct. 15th. Those entering the competition will be responsible for taking before and after pictures which will be used to assist the judge in reaching his final decision. The f[illegible]ure should be taken before any work on the project is done to show the original condition of the farmstead. In addition to over-all prizes at the County level the Farmstead Improvement Committee is giving consideration to breaking the competition down into several divisions so that more entries can be included at the first prize level. This will be done on the basis of the divisions in the Judge's score sheet or by Township. The number of entries received will determine the means by which this will be done.

Approximately $400 is now available for prize money based on grants and donations which have been promised to date.

The Handguns

Louis Kulesar scored a 261 to top the field at the Quinte Marksmen's International Course shoot, at the Rednersville range, last night.

Frank Allin was a close second with 260, followed by Ray Read with 251 and Don Parks with 233.

FANS NOT WARNED OFF

BLACKBUSHE, England (CP) Hundreds of people turned up at this Hampshire airfield for a flying display, only to be told it had been cancelled two months before. The organizers knew there would not be many patrons, but had forgotten to announce the cancellation.

FICTIONAL CHARACTER GIVES TOWN NAME — Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba stands in front of a statue of Josiah Flintabbatey Flonatin, a character in a 1905 novel who went searching for a bottomless lake. A group of prospectors who discovered ore in Northern Manitoba around 1913 had a copy of the book and named the discovery site Flin Flon, as the character was known for short. During the four-day annual Flin Flon trout festival, camp fires are kept burning day and night in front of the statue designed by cartoonist Al Capp. (CP Photo)

History of Flin Flon Recalled Via Statue

By IRA DRYSDALE

FLIN FLON, Man. (CP)—Josiah Flintabbatey Flonatin stalks the stranger like a shadow in this hard-rock mining town.

From a hillside perch near a Welcome-to-Flin Flon sign, the bespectacled old fellow watches all who come and go by the main highway.

He stares up from place-mats in hotels and restaurants; he peers out through windows and down from the shelves of shops.

He's a curious-looking character from the Jules Verne school of science fiction who gave his name to this northland community.

Flin Flon residents, who welcome visitors to this land of big fish and game about as well as they grind the base metals from underground, tell the story of their town's naming like this:

Somewhere in England in 1905 a novel by J. E. Preston-Muddock was published. It was called The Sunless City.

The hero was Josiah Flintabbatey Flonatin, who worked in his father's New York grocery store. He inherited the business when his father died, but was more interested in an amateur science group he had joined and his business soon went bankrupt.

LAND OF GOLD

The group at this time was interested in a lake that was supposed to have no bottom, so Flintabattey Flonatin—now with time on his hands—decided to investigate.

He built a one-man submarine and went down into the lake. Sure enough it had no bottom and he soon found himself in the centre of the earth. Here everything was laden with gold.

Moreover, everyone in that underwater land had tails, and worst of all the women were the bosses, the men the servants.

Around 1913 Tom Creighton, one of a party of northern Manitoba prospectors, found a copy of the novel near Churchill.

A year later they were prospecting in this area and spending the winter in the bush. The party ran short of meat in January and Creighton went moose hunting.

Walking over what now is known as Flin Flon Lake near here, he fell through the ice. He got to shore feeling cold, built a fire in a crevice in a rock and started to dry his clothes.

The snow melted, exposing the rock, which appeared to have a high mineral content. Creighton thought it was gold and took the other prospectors back to the spot the following day.

They staked claims, and, remembering the gold-laden lake of The Sunless City, called their claims site Flin Flon, the name Flintabbatey Flonatin got for short in the book.

ONLY THREE COPIES

Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd. started to mine the claims in 1928. It still is doing it, with mines now at Flin Flon and Snow Lake, Man., producing copper, zinc, gold, silver, cadmium, selenium, tellurium and lead concentrates.

In 1932 Jack Carr, as head of the company's research department, began trying to find a copy of The Sunless City. It took several years and more than 850 letters to points around the world before one copy was obtained. There now are only three copies known to be in existence.

A few years ago the people of Flin Flon decided to try to get a form to fit the Sunless City description of Flintabbatey Flonatin.

Al Capp, creator of L'l Abner, turned out the chubby, curious-looking little person you can't help seeing in Flin Flon now.

His statue at the welcome sign stands 24 feet tall, and for four days each year, when the Flin Flon Trout Festival is on, fires are kept burning day and night before it.

While the gas fires flare boy scouts guard them, living in tents a few yards away and working in shifts.

Vice-marshal J. B. Harvey Will Retire

OTTAWA (CP) — Air Vice-Marshal J. B Harvey, 54, will go on retirement leave late next month, the defence department announced yesterday. He is commander of NORAD's northern region at North Bay, Ont.

A native of Dauphin, Man., Air Vice-Marshal Harvey graduated from the University of Manitoba with an arts degree and later did post-graduate work in economics at the University of Toronto before joining the RCAF in 1938.

Diefenbaker Planning Tour Of Quebec

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker is planning a late August tour of several areas of Quebec, the province where his political support has dropped most sharply in recent years.

Informants say his first major foray in the heartland of French Canada since the 1963 election is expected to last about five days and may take in Quebec City, and some of the Gaspe and Eastern Townships.

Business Briefs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

COSTS RISE

The bureau of statistics' indexes of building costs showed further increases in July, but not as sharply as in earlier months this year. The price index for residential building materials rose to 150.7 from 150.5, and the index of non-residential building materials advanced to 148.5 from 148.1.

INCOME IMPROVES

National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada Ltd. reported Tuesday in Montreal net income of $16,000 or four cents per share for the 24 weeks ended June 22, against a loss of $238,000 for the 24 weeks ended June 23, 1964. Sales for the current year to date are about four per cent higher than at this time last year.

REPORTS EARNINGS

Traders Finance Corp. Ltd. reported Tuesday in Vancouver record earnings of $3,380,031, equal to 77 cents a share, for the six months ended June 30. Earnings for the same period last year totalled $2,645,039 or 60 cents a share.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For August 19

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your own judgment apt to be most accurate now. Those who try to influence you may not possess complete facts. Go slow where possessions, finances are concerned. Check details.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Cycle remains high. Some changes in basic requirements may be necessary. Catch up on correspondence. Ask questions. Fine for making new purchases, adding to wardrobe. Busy day indicated!

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You now gain through indirect approach. You could lose advantage if you attempt to force issues. Numerous reports must be sifted through, clarified. Key is careful study.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Important that hopes, wishes now be brought into line with reality. Means make resolution which is practical. Avoid daydreaming. Instead, outline working program.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Be aware of security, inner potential. Straighten out domestic situations. Don't magnify problems. If you pace yourself . . . progress follows. Set sights high!

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): What you desire can now be transformed to reality. But you require confidence. You can gain it through research. Ask and read . . . make inquiries. Investigate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Important you get proper credit for efforts, work. Element of deception involving money indicated. Take initiative. Throw off tendency toward false modesty. Speak out!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Be discreet. No time to reveal all that you know. Key is patience, maturity. You attract attention if you try. Whether it is favorable is up to you. Think!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Dig deep for information. Results follow if investigation is thorough. Refuse second-hand reports. Some deception likely — if you are careless. Study methods . . . and motives.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22—Jan. 19): Best to regard one who gossips with extreme skepticism. Trust loved one. Pay no heed to "outsider" who tells stories. Place high premium upon loyalty.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): May be difficult to be practical — yet realize it is necessary. Temptations apt to be placed in your path. Don't skip details. Wise course sees you being thorough, specific.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): No time to go off on wild-goose chase. Be sure of instructions, directions. If family member offers aid . . . accept it .Take special care where correspondence is concerned.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you possess talent necessary to illustrate meanings. Would make excellent showman, advertising or public relations executive.

When Fantasy Becomes Reality, Help Needed

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'll never make fun of people who write to you again. Now I'm the one with the problem and it's every bit as loony as some I used to roar over.

ANN LANDERS

My husband started having life-like dreams about six weeks ago. Arnold woke up exhausted, said he dreamed he had managed to swim the English Channel with Johnny Weismuller. He couldn't go to work until noon.

A few weeks later he woke up in a cold sweat. He said he had dreamed he was a captain under General Custer and the Indians had given him a very rough time. Arnold had the shakes so bad at breakfast that I called the doctor. He sent over some tranquilizing pills.

This morning my husband woke up in great pain. He had dreamed he broke his leg scuba diving. He limped around all day and he couldn't get his shoe on so he didn't go to work.

Ten times I said to him, "Look, Arnold, you know it was a dream, don't you? So if it didn't actually happen how come your leg hurts?" He replied, "Your guess is as good as mine." Please tell me what to do. — MRS. L.J.G.

DEAR MRS. L.J.G. — Since your husband is so good at dreaming it's too bad he doesn't treat himself to something better than a fight with Indians or a broken leg.

If Arnold's dreams persist he should talk to his physician. When fantasy and reality get so close together help may be needed.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I own a small business and we are deeply in debt. If the whole family works together and if we watch our pennies we can make it all right. I want our two teenage sons to work in the business this summer without a salary. I'd be glad to give them the car two nights a week plus spending money when they have some place special to go.

My wife says I should give them wages and let them pay for room and board. She feels they should use their own judgment about how much to spend on fun. Who is right? — D.B.

DEAR D.B. — Your wife. If you want your sons to have the proper attitude toward their jobs you'd better treat them as employees. You will then have a right to expect them to behave like employees.

Since they'd be paying for room and board you'd probably come out the same as if you gave them spending money. I'm for keeping the arrangement as business-like as possible.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I have been reading your column for almost ten years. You have printed a lot of funny letters and a lot of sad ones, too. But I don't recall ever having seen a letter that got me madder than the one from the mother of five children whose husband's two free-loading brothers helped themselves to four pork chops each — which left three chops for the mother and five kids. The mother gave the three oldest kids one chop each and she and the two youngest kids had cheese sandwiches.

You told her to fix the plates in the kitchen because it wasn't safe to pass platters to pigs. Why didn't you tell her to fix the kids' plates in the kitchen, help herself at the table and then pass the platter to her slobby relatives. By the time her husband got the platter he'd have to go to the kitchen for a cheese sandwich. — OL SPUNK.

DEAR SPUNK — Yup . . . your advice is better than mine. Thank you for the improvement.

Rivard's Friend Pleads Guilty On Fraud Count

MONTREAL (CP) — Eddie Lechasseur, 33, friend of Lucien Rivard, now awaiting trial in Texas on narcotics trafficking charges, pleaded guilty Tuesday to plotting a $40,000 fraudulent bankruptcy.

Lechasseur changed his plea to guilty when his trial was about to proceed before Acting Chief Sessions Judge Armand Cloutier.

He is to be sentenced Sept. 17.

He admitted defrauding creditors in the bankruptcy of a Montreal furniture store to the amount of $40,000.

District Farmers to Get Drought Aid Applications

TORONTO (CP) — Applications are being mailed this week to 20,000 Ontario farmers so they may benefit from the $12,000,000 federal - provincial program of drought relief, the provincial agriculture department has announced.

The farmers will receive coupons allowing them to buy animal feed at reduced prices this fall and winter. The coupons will allow a $30 reduction a ton on feed grain $24 on ear corn and $15 on hay.

The number of coupons a farmer gets will depend on how many animals he keeps during this winter and how severe the drought has been where he lives.

Farmers are being asked to return the signed applications to their county representatives by Sept. 1 and must include sworn affidavits the information is correct.

The program applies in the counties of Carleton, Dundas, Glengarry, Grenville, Hastings, Lanark, Leeds, Lennox and Addington, Prescott, Prince Edward, Renfrew, Russell and Stormont as well as the districts of Muskoka, Parry Sound, Nipissing and Sudbury.

The drought program announced July 21 was expected to cost $15,000,000 to be shared equally by the province and Ottawa. But the figure has been reduced by $3,000,000.

Try Space Launch Again Tomorrow As Breakdowns, Storm Cause Delay

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Thwarted by last-minute equipment troubles and the boiling black clouds of a thunderstorm, two American astronauts smiled their way through the disappointment and aimed for another try at their space flight Saturday.

They turned today to repeating the pre-flight routine they had stepped through two days ago — mission review meetings, more flight rehearsal and early-to-bed tonight.

After postponement of their eight-day space stint, astronauts L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr. got a short recess Thursday.

"We gave them the afternoon off and I don't know what they're doing," said the astronaut co-ordinator, Donald K. (Deke) Slayton.

The astronauts were "fairly disappointed," he said, but they didn't "get clanked up about it or anything like that."

Indeed, after more than two hours of futile waiting in the cramped cabin, both emerged smiling and sharing the kind jokes of technicians and space flight comrades.

During the long wait, Conrad—with an eye on the storm—asked for permission to turn on non-existent windshield wipers.

'AW, GEE'

On the word of postponement, Cooper said: "Aw, gee, you promised us a launch and not a wet mock" (simulated mission).

It was to be man's longest voyage in space—nearly 192 hours and covering 3,120,000 miles.

But it seemed burdened with trouble from the beginning.

Early troubles caused a three-hour-and-18-minute hold in the countdown. When it was solved, things rolled along smoothly until 10 minutes before the nine-storey Titan II rocket was due to blast the capsule into orbit.

At 1:08 p.m. EDT—10 minutes before blastoff—space officials announced they were holding again. This time the trouble was in the telemetry. A switch would have to be checked out. The hold continued.

LIGHTNING HITS

But now thunderheads closed in on Cape Kennedy. Lightning surged into the power lines of the launch complex. In a complicated system that depends on controlled electricity, it struck a vulnerable spot: The memory of a spacecraft computer.

Was the memory of the computer damaged? It would take hours to check.

At 1:43 p.m.—with the sky now black with a summer thunderstorm—flight officials called off the flight.

Less than four hours later, they announced that the flight would be rescheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday—maybe.

Four Robbers Get $80,000 From Que. Bank

QUEBEC (CP) — Four bank robbers crouched patiently for several hours in a small space just under the roof of a Royal Bank of Canada branch in suburban Limoilou before forcing employees to open a safe Thursday and escaping with $80,000 in cash.

Police said Thursday night they have vague descriptions of the bandits and of a car they are believed to have used to escape after threatening the driver of a truck whose parked vehicle blocked their way near the bank.

A Royal Bank official said the four broke through the roof early Thursday and crouched in a 2½-foot-high space between the ceiling and the second-floor ladies' washroom.

As the first employee arrived for work, the quartet broke into the lower floors through a trap door which led into the washroom and surprised two girl employees.

HERD AT GUNPOINT

Pushing the girls ahead of them, the four rushed downstairs to the bank proper, herded most of the staff to the basement at gunpoint and forced one employee to open a safe in the office.

The men first "neutralized" the bank's alarm system.

The robbers rushed out of the building with the money before any customers had arrived. No shots were fired and no one was seriously hurt although one girl who had been pushed in the washroom was shaken up.

As they fled down the street, the robbers came face-to-face with truck-driver Raymond Letourneau who had just stopped his vehicle. The driver said one of the men waved a revolver under his nose.

CARRIES BAG

Pedestrians who called police said the first bandit to emerge from the bank carried a bag which apparently contained the money. The large amount was held in the safe as provision for pay-day cheques scheduled to be cashed Thursday by employees of a nearby plant.

Two other bandits acted as armed protection. The lone fourth bandit who left the bank some moments later was spotted by a service station employee who described him as a young man about six feet in height.

The men then apparently escaped by car, dumping some of their arms in a nearby alley. A bank official said they carried an automatic rifle and revolvers.

Federation Seeks Right To Strike

By PAUL DUNN

OTTAWA (CP)—If Canadian customs and excise workers have their way, the 80,000-member Civil Service Federation will seek the right to strike in new federal bargaining legislation promised this fall.

The 6,600-member Customs and Excise Officers Association Thursday announced the results of a referendum on the strike issue.

In a complete turnabout of the association's no-strike policy, 3,194 members favored inclusion of the right to strike as the "enforcement instrument" in new bargaining legislation. Supporting the present no-strike policy were 1,917.

The vote means the association's delegation at the triennial Civil Service Federation convention opening Monday in Windsor will press to have the convention seek a strike clause in the collective bargaining legislation.

Prime Minister Pearson has said the government cannot tolerate work stoppages in the public service. The recent postal strike is believed to have hardened his view on the subject.

REVIEW FEELINGS

"The same strike, said Doug Paterson, association executive vice-president, "obviously made a lot of our members review their feelings on the strike question."

In October, 1964, the associ-

Negroes Facing Job Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) —Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey says Negroes are on the verge of a major economic crisis, with the gap widening between their taining and job requirements.

Humphrey said in a speech Thursday at the White House conference on equal employment opportunity that non-white joblessness increased in July when the national employment rate fell to 4.5 per cent.

"Less than four per cent of the white working force was out of a job," he said. "But for adult non-whites the employment rate actually increased.

"It is no exaggeration to say that non-whites, principally Negroes, are on the verge of a major economic crisis. For the gap is widening between Negro education and training on the one hand, and the requirements of the labor market on the other.

"Three Negro men in five are unskilled or semiskilled. And more than half the Negro men over 25 have less than a grammar school education. In some neighborhoods the unemployment rate among Negroes is as high as 40 per cent."

Iraqi Army Is Again Balked In War With Rebellious Kurds

By ALEX EFTY

* * *

Associated Press correspondent Alex Efty is one of a handful of reporters who have managed to penetrate northern Iraq to report on the four-year war between Kurdish rebels and the Iraqi Army. Despite the Iraqi government's ban, Efty has been there three times since 1962. Kurds from the war zone came to Cyprus this week and Efty interviewed them. Here is his report.

* * *

NICOSIA (AP) —The Iraqi Army's latest attempt to crush the Kurdish rebels in northern Iraq is turning out as inconclusively as previous major government offensives in the four-year-old war, Kurds who left the war zone a few days ago report.

The rebel visitors to Cyprus claim the situation in Iraqi Kurdistan is much the same as it was in the summers of 1962 and 1963, when two other major Iraqi Army campaigns spent themselves.

Now, as then, the Kurdish sources say, the Pesh Merga-the uniformed Kurdish revolutionary army — still holds the mountain highlands where the majority of the 1,500,000 Iraqi Kurds live.

Government forces have managed to maintain their authority only in the foothills and plains of Kurdistan. The poorly-armed Kurds cannot hope to win a battle in the plains, where the Iraqi army's tanks and air support can be used to full advantage against them.

This year's offensive has been the most serious and determined to date. The government threw in four infantry and one armored divisions—practically the whole of the Iraqi army—and the whole of the Iraqi air force, a total of about 60,000 men. The battles have been harder and casualties on both sides heavier than ever before.

An Iraqui army advance was stopped in July at the end of a continuous 40-day battle. The Kurds counter-attacked at the end of July, pushing the army back at several places.

The position of the Iraqi army was so desperate, the Kurds claimed, that the Baghdad government authorized its local commander to use poison gas. They said this had been established through the interception of Iraqi army orders.

The Kurdish leaders sent messages from Nicosia Thursday to UN Secretary-General U Thant and other world leaders, asking them to intercede with the Baghdad government to prevent the allegedly imminent gas attacks. The messages were brought to Cyprus by Ismet Cheriff Vanly, the Kurds' official repesentative abroad.

Informed sources in London claimed last March that the Baghdad government had imported 70,000 gas masks via the United Arab Republic and issued them to its troops with instructions on their use.

The Kurds are a tribal people who inhabit the eastern provinces of Turkey, Soviet Caucasia and northwestern Iran.

They demand self-rule for the Iraqi Kurds and more than $100,000,000 a year of the government's oil revenues.

Catholic With Eight Children Backs U.S. Birth Control Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Philip A. Hart, (Dem. Mich.), a Roman Catholic, joined today as co-sponsor of a bill by Senator Ernest Gruening (Dem. Alaska), to deal with population control.

"My wife and I have eight children whom, I suppose, could be accurately cited as evidence of our attitude toward birth control," Hart said.

"But this is a matter for individual decision. I do not think that I as a Catholic should impose my moral judgments in this area on others."

A Senate committee has been conducting hearings on the bill which provides for federal research into population control problems and the dissemination of birth control information in the United States and abroad.

Same Treatment as Postmen Sought by Civil Servants

OTTAWA (CP) — After approving extra pay increases for 22,000 postal workers, the government now is being asked by the Civil Service Federation to do the same for 65,000 Group B government employees.

The federation said in a statement today it has requested a meeting with the Civil Service Commission to reopen consultations on a Group B pay increase announced a year ago. Group B takes in clerks, stenographers, typists, and other office workers.

"We feel that further increases for Group B, effective Oct. 1, 1964, should be negotiated immediately," the 80,000-member federation said in a letter to R. G. MacNeill, outgoing chairman of the Civil Service Commission.

Mr. MacNeill, since named consul in New Orleans, replied that the commission will be prepared to discuss with civil service associations "the implications of Judge Anderson's reports, when his final report is available."

This report by Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville, federal commissioner-mediator in the recent postal strike, has been submitted to the government.

The federation said the commissioner concluded in his interim report that government salaries generally trailed two years behind those in industry. This principle applied not only to postal workers but to the whole program of government salary reviews, it added.

Austerity Measures Grip U.K.

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (CP) — Austerity measures geared to stall domestic demand in Britain took hold of the important automobile industry Thursday and showed up in higher unemployment figures.

The British Ford Motor Company announced a reduction in production and put 10,000 of its 40,000 employees in two factories on a four-day week, from five days.

"The credit squeeze and the latest economic measures have reduced demand substantially in the home market," a Ford spokesman said.

Ford's squeeze, which will have repercussions in steel and other supply industries, follows disclosure by the Hoover Company that 4,000 of its 6,000 staff in two washing machine factories would be put on a reduced work week.

The Ford announcement coincided with publication of national employment figures showing an increase from a month earlier in the number of jobless by 58,333 to 338,910. The British labor force totals about 25,000,000.

The percentage of the labor force unemployed—1.5—is minor by North American standards but significant in a country where unemployment has been negligible for years.

IN A CRISIS

The apparent slowdown reflects the Labor government's effort to reduce domestic consumption to deal with a crisis resulting from the fact that Britain has been buying more abroad than it sells. This trading deficit has drained gold and U.S. dollar reserves and led to talk of devaluing sterling, a measure the government is determined to avoid.

The reduction in Ford's car production, by 1,700 units a week from about 13,000, reflects the instalment buying squeeze in which the repayment limit was reduced last month to 30 months from three years. Automobile sales account for almost 75 per cent of the instalment purchase debt.

35,000 Civil Servants Will Get Pay Hike

OTTAWA (CP)—About 35,000 federal civil servants are going to receive pay increases comparable to the raises recently given postal workers, Revenue Minister Benson said today.

Mr. Benson said the government has agreed to accept the financial recommendations in the second report by Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville, which was made public today.

Fraudulent Bankruptcies Costing Quebec Govt. Million And Half Yearly

QUEBEC (CP)—Big businessmen and established racketeers have cheated the Quebec government of "as much as $1,500,000 a year" in taxes since 1959 through fraudulent bankruptcies, says a government report made public Thursday.

The 31-page report, released in French by Revenue Minister Eric Kierans, said much blame for the frauds rested on trustees, inspectors and purchasers "whose transactions came very close to being a matter of receiving stolen goods."

"At the same time, the underworld did a lucrative business to the detriment of honest creditors" who are "frequently helpless to prevent the losses which they would be called upon to bear and to protect themselves against such a fraud."

The report said one bankruptcy ring had a string of 60 companies in its operations. Its sole aim was to "appropriate funds, merchandise or other benefits, and to have recourse to the Bankruptcy Act to completely dissolve their business."

The report was based on 10 months of closed-door investigations conducted by Lucien Mercier, internal auditor of the revenue department who was appointed to investigate fraudulent bankruptcies in November, 1964.

A detailed study was made of more than 400 bankruptcy files from throughout the province. Total loss to the public purse between Jan. 1, 1959, and last Feb. 1 was estimated at $5,400,000.

Mr. Mercier recommended that bankruptcy investigations be carried out by a special new revenue department branch rather than by groups of investigators working for various branches of the department.

While recognizing that the Bankruptcy Act and law regulating liquidation of assets of bankrupt firms are federal, the report recommended that all matters relating to bankruptcy be handled directly by the official investigator rather than through trustees.

The inquiry also recommended that a number of government investigations into fraudulent bankruptcies be continued with the aim of finding the amounts of non-declared revenues. No single firm was mentioned by name.

Criticism was levelled against the "disorderly state" of records at the bankruptcy court in Montreal.

The bankruptcy rings usually proceeded by incorporating a series of companies, each of which operated only a few months before it wound up its affairs, leaving its creditors and the department of revenue holding the bag.

Mr. Mercier reported conflicts of interests that sometimes favored the bankrupt party rather than the creditors.

"In many cases the monies of a bankruptcy deposited in trust in a bank account in the name of the trustee served to cover embezzlements from other bankruptcy accounts or had been usurped by the trustee himself."

Mr. Mercier also found that "it is current practice for certain trustees to require and receive hush-money from lawyers" and that some representatives of trustees use "blackmail" to gain "advantages or interest in the businesses."

The report also said that "numerous defrauders were using the Company Act as a cover to commit fraud."

PUC Wants Dam, Spillway And Storage Pond Included In Town's Capital Budget

TRENTON — The Trenton Public Utilities Commission will direct town council to include $300,000 in the five-year capital budget for the construction of a dam, a spillway and a water storage pond in Murray Township.

Mayor James MacDonald told the commission yesterday he had received assurance that a 75 per cent grant on the project would be forthcoming from the Ontario Department of Energy and Resources. Trenton may be the first Ontario community to get this new grant, made available for water conservation purposes last year.

An estimate of costs for the project, compiled by Northumberland County Engineer George Totten, named the cost last month as being in the neighborhood of $700,000, but the commission was told yesterday by utility manager James Page that there had been typing errors in this estimate and the figure was now down to $540,000.

Even then, said Mr. Page, he questioned many of the items in the estimate as either not being necessary or as the responsibility of some other agency. For instance, the dam is to be built beside the new suburban road in the township, and Mr. Page felt such things as "concrete for culverts," and "fencing," "sodding," "guide posts," and "guide rails" were the responsibility of the Department of Highways, rather than the PUC.

Mr. Page and Mayor MacDonald will meet with Mr. Totten and will endeavor to get the costs down near the $300,000 to be named in the capital budget. Of this, the PUC would pay less than $100,000, the government grant considered.

START IN SEPTEMBER

Meanwhile, the commission has been asked to carry out any necessary water main installations on the approaches to the new bridge across the Trent, so that the pavement will not need to be cut once it is down. Work on the bridge is scheduled to start this September. A small amount of installation work will be done on Morgan Street and Marmora Street and this will cost the commission around $4,000.

The commission will also see to the installation of water mains in the Burtidale Heights federal-provincial government land assembly project in the Sidney Street - Reid Street area. A 12-inch main will be installed from Sidney Street to Prospect Hill Road; an eight-inch main from Seneca Road to Prospect Hill and a six-inch main from Prospect Hill Road to Reid Street.

As the government agencies plan to develop 500 lots in this area, a 12-inch main from Sidnew Street to Reid Street might be indicated, but the government will only pay for the six-inch installation. If the 12-inch main were put it, the PUC would face an almost immediate outlay of $12,000.

"We just haven't got the money," said Mr. Page.

The commission voted yesterday to sell 1.63 acres of land along the Telephone Road in Murray township to the Department of Highways for road widening purposes. The PUC will collect $454 at $200 an acre, and as the land in question is swampy, the commissioners feel they haven't a thing to lose — and $454 to gain.

WILL ATTEND MEET

Mr. Page will attend a conference on the control of radioactive fallout in water systems at the Emergency Measures Organization Regional Headquarters at Camp Borden, September 16 and 17. The conference is sponsored jointly by the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Commission chairman, Clifford A. Baker asked Mr. Page to bring back a comprehensive report and relay the information to waterworks men, and also to arrange to send others in the waterworks division to future meetings.

"I can't think of any greater harm being done to a community than through its water supply," Mr. Baker said.

Mayor MacDonald was dubious about the worth of the conference as he said he felt it would be a re-hash of details already brought out by Lt.-Col. Angus Duffy, EMO co-ordinator for this area.

"And I imagine the RCAF here is fully aware of the danger," the mayor said, "the station is supplied with river water."

Mr. Page reported that the activated carbon machine, recently installed at the filtration plant, was now in operation. The water is being filtered through the carbon the waterworks had on hand and the operation will go into full swing once a shipment of carbon arrives.

SEEKS COMMENT

Mr. Page said he hoped people from the RCAF Station would get in touch with the utility office and comment on the taste of the treated water.

OWRC engineers last year decided the taste of water taken from the river was due to algae and suggested that the activated carbon test be run. They did not guarantee results but thought it "might help."

The commission will have a lawyer's letter written to persons living back of the new utility storage shed on Victoria Ave. who have built a fence to within two feet of the shed. When the commission built the garage, a survey of the land was done and it was discovered that two buildings had been erected on PUC land. These were allowed to remain, but the commission now feels "insult is being added to injury," with the further encroachment on the land.

Weed Control Requested By Resident

TRENTON — Trenton businessman R. E. (Roly) Whitley has protested to Mayor James MacDonald about the amount of ragweed and goldenrod in town, and especially on town-owned property. Mr. Whitley says he has heard of numerous residents who are suffering from hay fever, and thinks it's "about time the town did something about the weed situation."

700 ATTEND

Miss Penny Fair, Sherry McFarland of Allison Park Playground and Mr. Penny Fair, Richard Kettle of North Trenton Playground, reigned over Wednesday night's Penny Fair in Hanna Park, which brought to an end playground activity for the summer. More than 700 kiddies attended the playgrounds this summer, and the new sports' program for older boys and girls at the high school proved to be very successful.

Hull's Happy Breed Wins Championship . . . in Show Ring

Meet Hull's happy breed of Herefords.

For the second year in a row the Big Island-based herd of Chicago hockey ace Bobby Hull has walked off with a first-class citation at Belleville Fair.

Taking the prize was a 2,200-pound bull of the Hull herd, (bottom), judged grand champion in its class at the Fair's beef show yesterday.

Reluctance to exhibit by one steer (top) caused some muscular heaving and hauling by the hockey star and his team-mate brother, Dennis — along with other helpers.

Another steer proved so frisky it made a dashing entrance (centre) with Bobby bouncing alongside it. It kept up its hi-jinks through the auction sale immediately following the show.

Top price paid at sale was 33 cents a lb. by Canada Packers for a 785-pound champion commercial class steer entry from Uxbridge.

Old 1886 Circular Tells Of New-fangled Wire Fence

Woven wire fence has been common throughout the rural area for many years but how many present day farmers know when it first started to replace the old fashioned split rail fences?

A yellowed circular letter mailed out from Picton county council in 1886 seems to date the introduction of the then new-fangled wire fencing.

The old circular letter was found in the wall of the Burton Morton farm house in Rawdon township as the Morton kitchen was being remodelled. Back in the 1880's the Morton farm was owned by a James Duncan, one-time reeve of the township.

The letter from Prince Edward county council recommended adoption of the then new woven wire fencing with the view to reducing drifting on rural roads during the winter.

It seems the old fashioned snake rail fences then common along all county roads were ideal snow fences -- but they were in the wrong spot and drifting snow frequently filled the road right of way to the top of the fence.

As result, even though there was then no motorized transport, the cost of keeping roads open in the winter was proving burdensome.

But even though woven wire fencing has been in vogue for three quarters of a century, the old snow-catching rail fence is still in evidence throughout some rural areas.

Pleads Guilty To 15 Charges Of Uttering

It took almost ten minutes to read charges involving bad cheques against 42-year-old Gordon Fralick in Belleville magistrate's court today.

Fralick pleaded guilty on 15 counts of uttering — then told the court there were similar charges against him in Brampton which he wanted heard in Belleville.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills adjourned sentence for a week.

"The charges almost speak for themselves," he added dispensing with police testimony.

He also decided against having the accused's record read to him — when assistant Crown Attorney John Lennox said it dated from 1945.

Catching sight of the three-page closely-typed document the magistrate hastily ordered: "Show it to him; ask him if it's correct then show it to me."

The cheques, passed mostly in Belleville in April, July and August totalled $360.

SENIOR JERSEY CALVES — Belleville 4-H Jersey Calf Club held their own achievement day at Belleville Fair yesterday. Top senior group are shown by Doug Jarrell, Chris Brown and Joan Chisholm.

TOP SHOWMAN — Blair Vermilyea of Thurlow township was the top showman and also showed the top calf in the Belleville 4-H Calf Club which held its achievement day on the last day of Belleville Fair.

Two Calf Clubs Hold Achievement Day at Fair

Two Belleville 4-H calf clubs with a total membership of 25 juniors held their respective achievement days on Thursday – the last day of Belleville Fair.

Holding their achievement days were the Belleville 4-H Calf Club (open to all breeds) with 15 members and the Belleville 4-H Jersey Calf Club with 10 members. Both clubs had 100 per cent completion of thir projects.

For the Jersey Calf club it was the second annual achievement day and saw Christine Brown as the top ranking club member. Runners up were Doug Jarrell and Robert Jarrell, who was top showman for the club.

One of the club projects this year was the sale of tickets on a Jersey calf donated by the Foxboro Co-Operative. From the proceeds club members purchased material to make blankets for all their calves.

TWEED MAN WINS CALF

Winner of the Jersey calf was Mrs. Harry Martin, Tweed district Holstein breeders.

Top showman and showing the best calf in the Belleville 4-H Calf Club was Blair Vermilyea of Thurlow township. Second and third place calves were shown by Larry McComb, and Gordon Striker.

Top club member for the year was Harry Huffman of Corbyville with Bonnie Carleton and Doug Eggleton as runners up.

The club also had a class for last year's calves which was won by Kirk Carleton with Robert Hamilton as top showman. The class for the best Holstein calf sired by a Breeders bull was won by Blair Vermilyea with Larry McComb and Kalvin Sharp as runners-up.

Records Set as Lights Dimmed on Fall Fair, Highest Entry in History

The lights have dimmed out on another Belleville Fair.

Early today workers were dismantling its props and dispersing the big local show for another year.

The curtain came down in style—on an almost-full grandstand applauding championship harness-racing.

The highpoint of the evening saw the Black Diamond Cheese trophy being won by an Elgin entry, Early Lake's John.

More than 1,100 were drawn to the stands by the night-racing ponies.

This pushed grandstand attendance into the record brackets. More than 6,300 paying customers thronged through the turnstiles for the four-night grandstand shows. This compared with 4,346 last year—when rain washed out one whole night's show.

Rain did strike again this year—but the 1965 Fair may also have set a record for pure luck.

After three scorching days rain arrived early Thursday and fell through the night. Showers fell intermittently during the afternoon, but skies cleared long before supper to coax nearly 5,900 paying patrons to the Fairgrounds.

The figure brought total paid admissions to 32,668 This compared with 31,069 for last year.

The Fair also was the most successful on record for attracting exhibitors, Fair president Bob Phillips noted.

In nearly all categories, whether static or live displays, the entry lists were crowded.

Livestock flowed in from around Southern Ontario, bidding on the big 1965 prize list. This year's horseshow was the biggest yet—in fact Fair officials fail to see how it could possibly get bigger without over-running the grounds.

During the whole four days it seemed that classes were being judged anywhere there was room on the grounds, or time on the program.

Commercial and industrial displays were also up and this year saw the Quinte Curling Club premises thrown open to exhibitors.

Industry in Belleville

Nothing in this world stands still. That is aw of nature and of progress and development. t we may be justified in thinking at times at Belleville is standing still.

Standing still, at least, where large-scale dustry is concerned. Belleville is fortunate in ving a number of major industries, but they ve been in existence for some years. That is e reason why Ontario Minister of Economics d Development Stanley Randall was in some fficulty Monday finding something of value or spiration to pass on to Belleville audiences.

Mr. Randall said he would be happy to see e area between Oshawa and Cornwall lined ll to wall with industry. A startling thought, r even if it were possible—and it is not . . . t without despoiling the park and riverfront eas of the St. Lawrence—where would Bellele fit into such a plan, having regard to its esent slow rate of industrial growth?

But Belleville must progress, must have new dustry to absorb its fast-growing populaon? Time enough to worry about Oshawa and rnwall (which are doing all right for themves) and points between when our own inters have been met.

There is the new Canadian National expresseight terminal of course, in the offing, and Mr. andall broke the first sod on the east end site. t other than this fine asset he could add thing more in the way of development beyond e statement that the terminal "may well be e impetus for new industry to follow."

It may well be that Mr. Randall has knowlge of increased interest in our city on the part industrialists, in which case we can underand his non-committal remarks.

Belleville was fortunate in having Mr. Ranll come to our city and see for himself that we ve much to offer those who are seeking a new e for plant expansion.

Beatles Return

The Beatles are back and apparently joying as much success as ever. The popular ursome, the pandemonium over their MBE corations now but a memory, have played New rk and Toronto to the usual chorus of teenage couragement.

And not only the teenagers, for if the eatles have their adult detractors they have eir adult fans too—among them conductor eonard Bernstein.

The Beatlemania phenomenon certainly nnot be ignored. In fact, it has been the bject of study and analysis by musical authories, as well as by sociologists.

Richard Freed of The New York Times has oted that the "grand simplification in the way chord sequences and melodic development" of e Beatles' music has been likened by some holars to the work of Carl Orff, the distinuished German musician, while a similarity etween the theme of "I want to hold your and," perhaps the Beatles' most famous numer, and the credo of Gounod's St. Cecilia mass s been noted by several musicologists.

One thing is certain, the Beatles' music is oing to last longer than that of their rivals. ne of their records is in the selection of articles laced in a capsule at the New York World Fair hich Fair authorities have packed with the njoinder to a future age of man, 5,000 years ence, to open for the edification of the people their day.

'Big Brother' Methods

Installation of an electronic device to easure each man's output has raised the ire the 2,700 workers at the Toronto plant of assey-Ferguson Industries Ltd. The workers aged a wildcat strike last week in protest gainst what they felt were "big brother" ethods.

The workers would seem to have a point. production had seriously declined the company ight have been justified in introducing such device, but otherwise not. The methods of 984 are as out of place in industry as they are government and should not be countenanced.

If you decide that you will be handsome, outhful and fit for the rest of your life, then ou will be.—Cary Grant.

Thick Skin Upon Feet Can Result in Infection

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My heels are cracked, the callus being very thick. The doctor called it hyperkeratoses. This is new to me, but I have been having skin troubles for years.

The skin on my heels is ugly and I've decided to take things in my own hands. Would an overdose of Vitamin A be harmful?. I think I need cod-liver oil and Vitamin D, too. — A. L. P.

Hyperkeratosis (or hyperkeratoses, when multiple areas are involved) means thickening of the skin.

While this can occur elsewhere, (elbows, fingertips), the heels are the more common place.

Overweight is an aggravating element. Under pressure, the thickened skin cracks, the area becomes sore, and there is risk of infection.

Underactive thyroid is another factor.

As for taking things in your own hands, I am afraid you are heading for overdosage and trouble. Vitamin A may help to some extent, but too much of it can cause Vitamin A poisoning.

The do-it-yourself part consists of losing weight, and getting properly fitted shoes. Cod-liver oil and Vitamin D won't do a thing for your problem.

Let your physician advise on the Vitamin A, check your thyroid, and guide you on choice of salves to reduce the thickening.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Please send me your booklet on mononucleosis. I'm enclosing the required 20 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. When you say there is no cure, do you mean the patient eventually dies from it? — Mrs. I. A.

Heavens, no! I mean that infectious mononucleosis, like the common cold, and some other ailments, is a "self-limited" condition. It runs its course and then the patient gets better.

The important thing is to understand what kind of a disease it is so that complications can be prevented.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Can a person have a "simple form" of glaucoma, in an early stage, and after using drops prescribed by the optometrist, discontinue treatment and never again need it?

Or is the saying true that "once you have glaucoma you always will have it?" — P.G.S.

First of all, I can't think of many conditions which can be treated with a guarantee that you will never have any more trouble.

With glaucoma, which is an insidious thing that creeps up without much warning at first, it is doubly necessary, for safety, to have the eyes pressure-checked periodically.

Second, it is not true that once you have glaucoma you always have it. However, it is true that once the eyes have been affected by the pressure, you can't undo the damage. Rather, it is then necessary to make sure that pressure doesn't develop again.

Glaucoma can be detected in early, mild form, but its treatment is never simple.

Today in History

August 20, 1965 . . .

St. Bernard of Clairvaux, one of the great figures of mediaeval Christendom, died 812 years ago today—in 1153—at the abbey from which he took his name. During his lifetime the number of Cistercian monasteries increased from one to about 90. For the last seven years of his life, one of his old pupils was Pope Eugenius III, and Bernard had immense political influence in the church. He was largely responsible for the disastrous Second Crusade and the suppression of the Albigensian movement in France. Bernard was canonized in 1173, only 20 years after his death.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1915 — British airmen destroyed a German submarine off the Belgian coast; the 100 miles of British trenches were quiet, but there was activity along the French line.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1940 — the agreement to lease the United States bases on British territory was announced while the payment of 50 First World War American destroyers was kept secret; the second contingent of Rhodesian airmen reached England; an assassin mortally wounded Leon Trotsky, at his home in exile in Mexico; the Canadian mission in Chungking was burned in a Japanese air raid.

Strictly Personal

Variable Weather Is Best

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

My column on climate a few weeks ago — in which I expressed my preference for variability over sameness — so impressed me with its cogency that I decided to find out whether this was a mere prejudice on my part, or if it had some objective truth to it.

A friend of mine who professes geography at a state university, asked to recommend a book or two on the subject, told me that "civilization and Climate," by Prof. Ellsworth Huntington, was an acknowledged classic in the field.

Huntington suggests that three main factors provide the best climate for human health and activity. These are (1) Moderate contrasts between summer and winter, (3) Rain at all seasons, so that the air is moderately moist much of the time, and (3) Constant variability of weather.

Of the third factor, he remarks: "Constant but not undue variability of weather is almost as important as the right conditions of temperature and humidity.

"As an example, among factory workers and students it has been found that if the temperature of one day is the same as that of the preceding day, people's work is not so good as if there is a change — and especially if there is a drop of temperature.

"The health of the community and the death rate vary in the same way," Huntington says, "a drop of temperature being almost invariably beneficial, unless it be very extreme. This is true in winter as well as summer, and even if the actual temperature is so low as to be harmful if continued."

The heart of the matter, he concludes from researches extending over two decades in all parts of the globe, is that change itself is exhilarating — change not only in temperature but also in sunshine, humidity, and even wind velocity, provided they are not too severe and frequent.

And the variability due to the march of the seasons, he points out, is probably much more important than that due to day-today changes. Other factors being equal — as they rarely are — both health and productivity are improved in those regions with a change of seasons.

"The failure to appreciate the great importance of variability in the weather," Huntington observes, "is one of the main reasons why the pervading effect of climate and of changes of climate is even yet only dimly appreciated." Those lines were written in 1927, and nearly 40 years later they are still not widely recognized.

Federal Medicare Plan

The Globe and Mail

Prime Minister Lester Pearson's medicare proposal is a considerable diplomatic achievement. He has produced a plan which would meet the country's most important medical needs, which is capable of expansion on a priority basis, which disarms Quebec's constitutional objections while maintaining a national standard, and which has apparently gained the approval in principle of all the Premiers save one, Mr. E. C. Manning of Alberta.

Essentially, Mr. Pearson offers to transfer to the provinces sufficient revenue to provide approximately half the cost of provincial medicare plans which meet certain basic specifications. Have-not provinces would be assisted to meet these specifications with additional equalization grants.

The plans would have to be universal. In a province where the provincial share of the cost was raised by taxation, this would mean that benefits would be available to all residents. "If a province elects to use a premium, universality means that the premiums should be compulsory for the same people as are covered by the province's hospital insurance plan," Mr. Pearson said.

The plans would have to cover, with minor exceptions such as certain cosmetic surgery, all services provided by general practitioners and specialists. That would have to be publicly administered, either by the provincial Government or by a Government agency. Benefits would have to be transferable if a subscriber, moved from one province to another. None of these basic requirements, Mr. Pearson said, would be negotiable.

At the same time, he recognized that such an expansion of medical insurance would produce an expanded demand for medical personnel. He proposed to meet this with a federal health resources fund, set up in consultation with the provinces, which would provide capital grants for research centres, teaching hospitals and medical schools.

It is a package with which it is difficult to quarrel. There will be those, ourselves included, who will wish that, initially at least, the doctor-sponsored plans could have been given a place. We would hope, however, that the doctors will co-operate sufficiently to make the direction and administration of the plans virtually their own. That is the way it should be.

Premier Manning's objections are understandable. The present Alberta plan is voluntary and includes commercial insurance carriers. Under the Pearson formula, commercial carriers will be excluded; and as the Alberta hospital insurance plan is supported by taxation and available to all residents, the Alberta medicare plan would have to follow similar lines.

The people of Alberta have largely rejected commercial carriers, six of seven Albertans who have medical insurance having chosen to belong instead to the doctor-sponsored plan, so that any pain felt over the carriers' exclusion will be mainly Mr. Manning's. By his own Government's admission, also, the people who have not voluntarily subscribed for medical insurance are those who cannot afford it.

The federal plan would therefor serve Albertans better than the plan now in operation, and it is unlikely, on that score, that Mr. Manning could conscientiously withhold his approval. It is inconceivable, on another score, that he would block for all Canadians a plan approved by nine colleagues.

Premier John Roberts shares Mr. Manning's objections to the federal proposal—his own plan would have been voluntary and would have included commercial carriers. He has said, however, that some such national plan as that proposed is inevitable, and has agreed to discuss it. In this attitude he is both correct and consistent: he has always asserted his willingness to take part in a national plan.

Mr. Pearson's proposal is sound. It would provide the first and most important benefit recommended by the Hall Royal Commission on Health Services — physicians' services and the physicians to supply the services. It can be expanded to meet other needs—such as drugs and dental services—as the provinces agree that they should be met. Before any such expansion is undertaken, however, Canada should examine all its national needs, particularly those that must be met to stimulate the economy. To buy all the Hall Commission benefits we will need a healthy economy indeed.

Secrecy in Government

Kingston Whig-Standard

Since a major part of this nation's business now seems to be conducted behind the closed doors of the annual federal-provincial conferences, the time has come when it must be decided if the secret policy now employed is actually in the best interests of the public. In our view there seems to be no valid reason why the conferences could not be opened to the public in the same way that the sessions of Parliament and of the provincial legislatures are opened now.

It is most important that the people of Canada know precisely what is said, how it is said and who is doing the talking at these meetings of the nation's leaders and their advisers. As it is now reporters— seeking to inform the citizens about what went on—must rely upon corridor-meetings with the politicians and, obviously, this haphazard arrangement has serious shortcomings. During the discussions on medical care, for instance, one could read several different versions of what was supposed to have transpired; in some instances the second-hand information was erroneous or misleading. On as important an issue as this one, every Canadian has a right to know how certain decisions come about; we are certain that, at the moment, many Canadians are completely confused as to what was proposed and what the various reactions were. The presence of reporters at the sessions would have helped immeasurably to remove confusion and doubt.

There were, of course, other instances where the reports which finally appeared in one newspaper were at odds with what appeared in another. It depended to a large extent upon which politician a reporter talked to and upon how that politician presented the facts as he had listened to or understood them. It would be naive to assume that such "facts" were passed on completely devoid of any party or personal bias.

Prime Minister Pearson, at the conclusion of the conference, admitted that the subject of opening the meetings to the press (and to members of opposition parties we would hope) had arisen and that it was now "under consideration." Premier Robarts of Ontario has stated that very little, if anything, in the conference room was being hidden by the delegates from the press outside and that if reporters were permitted to cover sessions they might be able to report them more accurately. As he put it, "Ottawa overdid the security bit."

All sorts of arguments are used to defend the present system of secrecy which is used, including the old saw which is heard at all levels of government where in-camera meetings are favored, "discussions sometimes can be freer behind closed doors." Neither that argument nor others hold much water, for most of them infer that the public cannot be trusted. That seems a strange attitude when one remembers that the men conducting such business are doing so only because the people said they could through their votes.

After all, what is there to hide about federal-provincial relations these days? Is secrecy due to the fact that, while the substance of the deliberations can be passed on to the electorate, there are arranged certain deals with which the public might not agree. The truth of the matter is that the public has a right to know precisely how their affairs are being conducted, whether in the smallest village or at the highest level.

Northern Capital

Until such time the Territories can have self government, having the territorial government located in a northern capital makes good sense.

As matters now stand, every important issue has to be referred to Ottawa for decision. Often it takes weeks to get an answer; sometimes the issues are ignored altogether.

20 YEARS AGO

There is no difference between beet sugar and cane sugar. They look alike, taste alike—are identical. Producers of sugar beets are performing a vitally essential task, and everything possible has been done to increase to still larger quantities the amount of beet sugar produced in Canada. But, if this could be achieved, it would not mean an increase in the amount of sugar available to Canadians.

The quantity of sugar available to the world pool is divided on the basis of population. Canada's allotment is six per cent.

When a country's allotment is determined, the amount of sugar it produces is taken into account, and the balance is supplied from the world pool. Thus if Canada's own production of sugar increased, she would receive proportionately less from the pool.

Under the auspices of the Women's Institute of West Belleville, an ice cream social was held last evening at the playgrounds in connection with Queen Mary School. There was a large attendance and the affair was most enjoyable. The band of the 15th Regiment rendered excellent music.

A large number of persons from the city and vicinity took in the excursion to the 1000 Islands today per the steamer Brockville.

Mr. Ed Naylor left today for Syracuse, N.Y., where he will visit friends.

Mr. A. C. Dafoe reported to the police today that a bicycle was found by him on his lawn yesterday, and awaits the person proving ownership.

Educational Needs

Montreal Gazette

The pressure of educational needs across the country are dramatic, even dismaying. And they cannot be postponed. It is not possible for the provinces across Canada to turn young people away, and say there is no room for them to be educated — not enough assistance, not enough buildings, not enough libraries and other resources, not enough teachers. Projections show how steeply the demands for education will be rising. But nobody seems to have an answer as to how the needs are to be met.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP)—Prices on most grades of slaughter cattle dipped in dull trading at the Ontario public stockyards this week.

Receipts of unfinished grass-fed cattle were heavy. Prices were lower on narrow demand. Good and choice slaughter steers and heifers sold at barely steady prices. Cows and bulls were lower and replacement cattle slow.

Runner calves, particularly heifers, were slow and hard to sell. Veal calf prices gained after a slow opening. Hogs were higher and sheep and lambs steady after opening at low prices.

Cattle receipts of 9,000 were off 2,500 from last week and 200 from the same week in 1964. Western Canada receipts totalled 329 head, down 42 from last week.

Slaughter cattle 9,000: Choice steers 25.50 - 26.50 with high yielding steers from 26.50-27.20 and a few tops to 27.50; good 24-25; mediums 20-23; commons 14-19; good heifers 21-22; choice 22.50-23.50 with fancy to 25.10; mediums 17-20; commons 14-16.50; choice fed yearlings 24-26; good 21-23; good cows 14.50-15.50; mediums 13-14; canners and cutters 10-13; good heavy bologna bulls 17-18; commons and mediums 14-16.50.

Replacement cattle: Good stockers 23-24 with sales to 25.50; commons and mediums 16-22.

Calves 2,100: Choice vealers 27-29 with odd singles at 34; good 23-27; mediums 21-23; commons 18-20; boners 12-17.

Hogs 8,500: Grade A 36.05-37.75; heavy sows 27.75-28.10 with a $2 premium on light sows; boars 12.80 per hundredweight on a liveweight basis; stags 15.75.

Sheep and lambs 1,900: Lambs 24-26.50; sheep 3-9 according to quality.

Playground Activities

PLAYGROUND SOCCER

Last Tuesday night at Zwick's Island the Belleville All Stars, behind the sparkling performance of Bob Watson, whitewashed Trenton to the tune of 7 to no score.

Belleville, showing a tremendous offensive display, were never in danger. Bob Watson netted the first two goals, driving the ball into the left and right corners, respectively. Allan Brown on a pass from Watson, scored at the twelve minute mark and with less than five minutes remaining Watson scored his third goal of the evening, ending the half with the score 4 to 0.

Trenton showing more offence in the second half pressed but were shut out by superb goal tending by Fraser Ritchie.

Peter Crowley scored Belleville's fifth goal with an assist from Mac Pugh and Watson, then closed the scoring with two identical picture play goals. Norm Carter threw Watson two breakaway passes and he scouted in to put the ball past the goalie for his fourth and fifth goals.

Bob Keeble, Bob Shoniker and Vic Whitman played well for the Trenton team.

The Belleville team consists of Fraser Ritchie in goal; Bob Cretney and John Hayman, full backs, Bob Maines Graham Gildant and Mac Pugh, half backs and George Campbell, Peter Crowle, Bob Watson, Allan Brown and Norm Carter as forwards.

Next game for the Belleville team is next Tuesday, at 7 o'clock at Zwick's Island against Wilson's Concrete.

CHURCHILL HEIGHTS

The children of Churchill Heights playground participated in a series of races on Aug. 18. Winners were as follows, those under 7, 1st Stephen McCann, 2nd David Brinkert, 3rd Rhonda Archer. 7 years: Susan Sequin; 8 years, Michael Sequin; 9 to 10 year olds, Janet Dall; over 12, 1st Suzanne Holmes, 2nd Patsy Chambers, 3rd Brenda LaRue.

On the following Friday all enjoyed an active day of Cowboys and Indians. Games were played. They were followed by the judging of costumes: horse races (wheelbarrow races) and Indian wrestlers. The winners of the costumes were: best Indian, Elizabeth Dall; best cowboy, Vernon Woodbeck; best girl's costume, Ann Pearson; best boy's costume, Stephen McCann. Winners of the races were: over 7 years, 1st Annis Culloden and Patsy Chambers, 2nd Vicki Tucker and Suzanne Holmes. The best Indian wrestlers were: under 5 years, Rhonda Archer; 5 years, Stephen McCann, 7 years, David Archer; 8 years, Brian Dall; 9 year old girls, Janet Dall; 9 year old boys, Ron Elmy; 10 years, Duffy Sprague; 11 year old girls, Mary Wilson; 11 year old boys, Jim McCann; 13 years, Allis Culloden.

Throughout the afternoon the children bought "Home Brew" at the saloon which was a mixture of freshie and orange crush and traded their books and toys at the Indian Trading Post.

WEST HILL

Last Thusday, "On Wheels Day" was held. The contestants were given half an hour to decorate their bicycles, and tricycles, then the judging was held. The best tricycle was Sandra Wilson's; best bicycle, Charlies Vanderwater; most colorful, John Garvin; most original, Mike Goegan; most unusual, Pat Callan.

Thanks go to the judges, Rita Mallory and Bob Cretney.

Wednesday, August 18th, the playground baseball team met Hillcrest for the Playground championship. West Hill defeated Hillcrest 9-0, so they are now city playground champions.

On Thursday the children held a contest with modelling clay. Each child was given a piece of clay and used his imagination. All the children won prizes as it was hard to judge, as they were all good.

Supervisors Elaine McBride and Bob Cretney.

27 Trillium Awards Made By Horticultural Society In City Beautification Bid

Winners have been declared in Belleville's first annual Trillium Award Program, to encourage the beautifying of the city.

Sponsored by the Belleville Horticultural Society, the program was organized by Ald. Enos David. Nominations were received from private citizens for the program, and the panel of four judges viewed the lawns and gardens and presented trillium awards.

There was a total of 52 nominations, 42 in the residential category, five in industrial and five in commercial.

Twenty-seven trilliums were presented, 25 of them to residential nominees, and one each in the industrial and commercial categories.

The judges, Lloyd Syer, chairman, Mrs. Archie Graham, Mrs. R. Griffith and Tom Purdy, rated the various lawns and gardens on a points basis in seven areas. The areas were originality of garden or landscape design; foundation planting-balance; cleanliness of building, flower beds, shrubs; maintenance of trees, shrubs, etc., in relation to pests and disease; lawns — general appearance; use of color in flowers, shrubs; and general condition of the garden in relation to the neighborhood and environment.

Mr. David said, "It is amazing what a program like this can do to beautify a city.

"It's unfortunate that there are bound to be many places in the city that are beautiful but were not nominated. We hope this situation will be overcome next year with the acceptance of our program."

The gardens and lawns nominated were all at the front of houses or other buildings. The committee felt that gardens and landscaping in backyards can not be seen by enough people to make a real contribution to beautifying the city.

OFF THE RECORD By Ed Reed

According to Hoy

By

Claire Hoy

For the Common Good

A man approached me the other day and said I should write a column on the Belleville Police Department.

"I've had two tickets in the past two months," he said.

"What for?" I asked.

"Oh, for speeding."

"Were you speeding?"

"Why yes, I suppose I was a little, but what's the harm. Some of those guys just can't wait to nab some poor unsuspecting driver and give out a ticket. I think they must get a cut or something on the number of tickets they give out."

That wasn't the first time I'd ever heard those sentiments. In fact, most people, at one time or another — especially after they've been caught breaking the law — do blame the police.

I wonder if that man would have asked, "What's the harm?" if one of the thousands of people killed annually by people speeding happened to be his little girl?

If you break the law, it is not the fault of the police. They are doing their job, nothing more. Not only do they not get any cut from the tickets they give out, they usually get a verbal swipe. A swipe they aren't allowed to rebuke.

The law is designed for the good of all. The police make sure that law is obeyed. It is all to the common good.

So I told the man who was complaining to me that it was he who was breaking the law, not the policeman, and the constable was simply doing his job, a job of protecting society.

"Well, maybe that's so," he said. (I thought he was mellowing.) "But they're never around when you want them. I saw some fellow tearing around a corner yesterday in the city and passing a guy on a hill. He must have been going about 65, and where were the police then."

I assured him I didn't know where the police were then, but if they had been there, they would have apprehended the speeder.

There are only a certain number of policemen. They can not physically be everywhere all the time. And if they ever were everywhere all the time, I suspect there would be more complaints than there are now. Would you like to have a policeman following you around all the time, whenever you drive your car, or whenever you walk down the street? Of course you wouldn't, but in order for the police to catch every incident of law breaking they would have to follow every citizen every minute of the day.

The police are not society's babysitters. It is not their fault if you speed or go through stop streets or make incorrect turns, it is your fault.

More people should put the blame for lawbreaking where it belongs, smack on the shoulders of the lawbreakers. It is almost like blaming the golf ball when you hit it over the fence.

Or, in the words of D. H. Lawrence, "Error alone needs artificial support; truth can stand by itself."

Readers' Friday Column

QUESTION:

I enjoy your column very much and like others have clipped many of your recipes. Presently I am looking for a Chocolate Malt cake and wonder if you happen to have such a recipe. Mrs. M. W. S.

ANSWER:

I had to start testing from scratch to get the recipe for Chocolate Malt cake that you requested and was happy to produce a real good cake on the first trial. I hope you and our other readers try and like it too. It is rich and dark. The chocolate malt powder is packed for making chocolate malted drinks.

CHOCOLATE MALT CAKE

1¼ cups sifted cake flour,
½ cup chocolate malt powder (Horlick's-98c for 1-lb. jar),
1½ teaspoons baking soda,
½ teaspoon salt,
⅓ cup butermilk or sour milk (see note below),
⅓ cup butter or margarine or shortening (I used butter),
1½ cups light brown sugar,
2 large eggs,
2 sq. melted unsweetened chocolate or 2 envelopes "choco-bake" or "redi-bake",
1 teaspoon vanilla,
⅔ cup boiling water.

Note: If you do not have any buttermilk put 1 tablespoon vinegar in your ⅓ cup measure. Slowly add sweet milk to fill ⅓ cup measure and let stand while you proceed with making cake.

Cream butter or margarine or shortening well, then add sugar and beat until pale and light. Beat in eggs, one at a time, until fluffy. Add melted chocolate or "choco-bake" or "redi-bake" and vanilla and beat well.

Sift together sifted flour, chocolate malt powder, baking soda and salt. Sift them over the creamed mixture, ⅓ at a time, alternately with the sour milk or buttermilk, until you have a smooth batter. Slowly add the boiling water, stirring until batter is smooth. This batter is very thin. Pour into an 8¾ x 8¾ x 1½" square pan lined on bottom with buttered heavy wax paper. Put cake in dead centre of oven heated to 375 deg. Fahr. and bake 17 or 18 minutes. (Note: Do not overbake this cake for, because it has a high sugar content, it will burn readily.) Let rest in pan 5 minutes, turn out on cake rack, peel off wax paper. Let cool then frost with Mint Icing: One and one-half cups unsifted icing sugar, 3 tablespoons butter, shake of salt, 2 tablespoons evaporated milk or cream, ¼ teaspoon peppermint flavoring. Mix ingredients well until smooth, spread on top and sides of cake. If desired, sprinkle top with cocoanut. A lovely cake.

Note: The leftover chocolate malt powder makes excellent chocolate malted drinks. If you have a blender and some ice cream you can make soda fountain "chocolate malteds".

Playground Activities

STANLEY PARK

During the week of August 13 to August 19 the children of Stanley Park playground participated in a number of small special events which included a Scavenger Hunt, a Treasure Hunt, Sand Building contest, a Bicycle Rodeo and a football game.

The Stanley Park Rough Riders played the Bayview school team in an exhibition game, which was won by Bayview by the close score of 24-18. Another challenge match will be played next week.

Some of the winners in the other events were: Shelley Hartt, Bobby Glover, Terry Roman, Steven Lochatel. Susan Lochatel, Ronnie Ludolf, Patrick Hoy, Wendy Woodman, Brian Jones, Meg Howell.

Special assistants were Marj Woodman, Art Bridge and Mike Marino.

Quebec Wives May Enjoy Both Equality and Protection In Realm of Property Rights

Impending revisions of Quebec's civil code may put married women in the province in a superior legal position compared with the rights enjoyed by wives in the rest of Canada. In this story Linda Crawford, Canadian Press staff writer, examines various views of those involved in the situation.

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP) — Should married women have protection or equality?

Some women here think the province's married women—until recently denied any rights by Quebec's Napoleonic civil code—will soon have both.

Montreal lawyers Diane Dunton and Lilian Birtz think revision of sections of the code dealing with married women—started in July, 1964 with Bill 16—will eventually produce an arrangement superior to the separation-of-property system governing wives in the rest of Canada.

"We are hopeful that Quebec will soon have the best system," Mrs. Birtz said in an interview. "Community of property with equal partners would be ideal."

Community of property—the legal regime in Quebec only—is a system that joins the movable possessions of both partners at marriage and gives only the husband power to administer them. Although the wife had no control over the community property, half of it was hers by law and automatically fell to her without succession duties upon the death of her husband.

This system provided the Quebec wife with a great deal of protection, but if she happened to find herself saddled with an unco - operative or imprudent husband, she discovered she had almost no legal rights to fall back on. She needed her husband's signature for almost everything.

EQUAL PARTNERS

Bill 16 put her in [illegible] better legal position [illegible] her to execute certain transactions without her husband's consent. But it left the prime authority with the husband. Further legislation is expected in the near future and Mrs. Dunton and Mrs. Birtz are hoping it will somehow revise the community system to make the partners equal.

If this could be done within the existing framework the husband and wife would jointly administer the property of the community. They would be equal partners but the wife would have more protection, they say, than a wife in a separate - property marriage because half of the community is legally hers and can't be willed by the husband to anyone else.

"The women of Ontario now are trying to get community of property, and up to eight states in the United States are using this system," Mrs. Dunton said.

Other women concerned about their present lack of equality under Quebec law are not so optimistic about the final outcome of the current revision program. Nor are they enthusiastic about the progress already achieved.

"What the explanations give and what Bill 16 really achieves are two different things," says Montreal lawyer Rejane Colas. "I was hoping it would be more than a patching of laws already existing and that it would all be done at once."

Mrs. Colas said the right granted wives in common-property marriages by Bill 16 to veto proposed sale of land or buildings by the husband is not of much use because most money today is tied up in stocks and bonds which can be sold by the husband without the wife's consent.

She thinks the community system has outlived its usefulness and should be replaced by separation of property with protection clauses requiring the husband to will a certain amount to his wife and children.

REVERSE LAWS

"The law should be made for the majority and left for the minority to complicate," Mrs. Colas said, explaining that approximately 70 per cent of the province's married couples now have marriage contracts ensuring separation of property and thereby putting them outside the community regime.

Revision of the community system, she said, is therefore being undertaken only for the benefit of the other 30 per cent.

Therese Casgrain, one of the original leaders of the movement for women's rights in Quebec, agrees that the existing law should simply be reversed.

"Separation of property should be automatic," she said. "Then marriage contracts can be drawn up by couples who want community of property—since they are in the minority—and not by those who want separation of property as now is the case."

Marriage contracts are drawn up before the marriage and most of them provide for a sum of money or equivalent property to be given to the wife by the husband during the marriage.

Mrs. Casgrain said Bill 16 "made things better but didn't solve anything. It's still the community, its confused, and everyone is hesitating — the banks and so on," she said. Cases of banks, trust companies and hospitals asking for the husband's signature when it is no longer required by law have been reported by others.

Claire Kirkland - Casgrain, Quebec minister of transportation and communications, said such cases "aren't necessarily acts of bad faith—it's just that the old habits are ingrained."

FREEDOM BUT NOT CREDIT

The minister said a number of women had written to her to complain about being asked for the husband's signature, and that she had advised them to change bank managers.

"But women must remember Bill 16 gives them the right to act alone—it doesn't give them credit," she said. "In Ontario or anywhere else in the world, bank and credit managers want the husband's signature if the wife hasn't any money of her own."

"It's going to take time for the law to settle because it involves so much in business circles," said Alice Desjardin, professor of law at the University of Montreal. "But wives must stand firm and insist their rights be applied."

Miss Desjardin agreed, however, that the wife confronted with his denial of her new rights found it easier to ask her husband for his signature than to go to court, although she had the legal right to do so in such a case. As yet, there are no court cases of this nature on record.

Therese Cromp, a lawyer for the City of Montreal, suggested the law had been more updated in practice than in writing and that Bill 16 simply codified much of what had already been achieved through jurisprudence.

Roger Comtois, a law professor at the University of Montreal who is working with the Nadeau commission, says Bill 16 didn't give the wife in common - property marriages any power but only took some away from her husband.

Mr. Comtois who says the separation-of-property system is "the one most unfair to the wife," favors community of property with equal partners who both have full power to act alone. Many European countries, he said, are adopting this type of community system.

"It would be just like separation of property except that the wife would receive half of the community upon the death of the husband."

Mr. Comtois said that under separation of property the husband often leaves his wife a small sum and wills the rest to someone else.

Regardless of what system the commission recommends, it is doubtful that the controversy over the degrees of equality and protection afforded by the various solutions will cease.

"Women must decide what they want," says Therese Casgrain. "If they want protection, let them keep their antiquated laws and way of life. If they really want equality, then they must stop being little girls and live up to the responsibility."

Mother's Helper

"TONE TALK" is a wonderful way to please both the new baby and the two-year-old who may be suffering pangs of jealousy. Remember, an infant recognizes only your tone of voice. So, addressing the baby, say in playful and soothing tones things like, "What a pretty Big Sister you have! She's such a big help to Mommie!" Baby will coo and Big Sister will glow! ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I don't know if I am crazy or just "behind the times" as my husband insists.

We both work and have excellent jobs. I wanted children but it appears we will never have any. Three months ago my husband and I moved into a flat which I felt was too expensive. He said we'd manage the rent by taking in a roomer—someone he had known for a long time. Well, the "someone" was an old boy friend of mine.

The "roomer" makes passes at me right in front of my husband. He doesn't say a word — just walks into the other room. I'm beginning to think the two of them had an understanding that I go with the rent.

Last Sunday the roomer brought an attractive young girl to the house. She took a shine to my husband and the two of them decided to go for a walk. The roomer followed me into the pantry and I nearly brained him with a jar of pickled peaches.

This morning my husband and I had a big argument. He says I am square and this is the way half the world lives. I need your help. — B. WILDERED.

DEAR B. — His estimate is high, in my opinion, but if he wants to live like that half tell him to move out and take the roomer with him. Otherwise he'd better give the roomer one week to find another place.

In the meantime run an ad for a nice, mind-your-own business type school teacher.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My oldest son married a girl who was a disappointment to us. He could have had any young woman in town (a judge's daughter included) but I'm sure Rene (not her real name) attracted my son with her worldly ways. (She is French.)

Last week Rene gave birth to a baby boy. Her husband did not want the child to be named after him as he has always deplored the confusion of juniors. I thought surely they would name the baby after my husband who died last year. But no, Rene insisted on naming the child after my younger son. I always suspected Rene had her eye on him and now I am sure.

I am afraid my older son is blind to this and it is making a nervous wreck out of me. How long can a mother remain silent? — BROKEN-HEARTED MOM.

DEAR MOM — You'd better remain silent permanently unless you've got better evidence than you presented in your letter. Merely because Rene wanted to name the baby after your younger son doesn't mean she has her eye on him.

I think you have too much spare time on your hands, Mom. Why don't you do some volunteer work for the Red Cross?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a widow, 53, with three grown children. We all live here in Johannesburg, South Africa.

I have a dear friend who is 73. He has been my faithful bridge partner for many years. This is not a romance — Jack is strictly a card companion and nothing more. The problem is that Jack is getting awfully deaf. He misses important bids and spoils the game for everyone. Last week he didn't hear my three no trump and went off on the wildest tangent imaginable.

Who should tackle Jack about his deafness? He has a daughter whom he sees about once a week. She must be aware of it. Some hard of hearing folks ignore their deafness in the hope that others will not notice.

Please tell me what to say — or what not to say. — BIDI.

DEAR BIDI — Tell Jack he should do something about his deafness and propmtly. If he can't hear you, write it on a piece of paper — but get the word to him somehow.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN G. LOCKRIDGE

Lockridge — Whittle

Rev. A. W. Lauder of Christ Church, Belleville officiated at the wedding ceremony on Saturday, August 14, 1965, when Ida Mary Whittle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Whittle, Belleville, R.R. 4 was united in marriage to John Garry Lockridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. John K. Lockridge, Newburgh, R.R. 1. Musical arangements were by Mrs. Helen Henderson who accompanied the six-member choir in appropriate renditions.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a floor length gown of embossed white brocade featuring a fitted bodice with rounded neckline and long lily-point sleeves. The skirt was enhanced at back with a detachable train flowing from the waist. A shoulder length veil was held by a wedding ring headdress of matching white brocade. She carried a white Bible crested with Sweetheart roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Miss Gloria Whittle, sister of the bride as maid of honor wore a street length gown of medium blue peau de soie designed identical to the bride's. She wore a wedding ring headdress of pleated peau de soie with short veil and carried a crescent bouquet of white Shasta daisies and fern. The three bridesmaids Miss Joy Whittle, sister of the bride and the Misses Shirley and Sheila Lockridge, sisters of the bridegroom were dressed identical to the maid of honor but in pale blue. The little flower girl Miss Anne Leeming wore a short dress of white peau de sole with blue sash with a blue satin ribbon headdress and rosebuds. She carried a nosegay of red Sweetheart roses and white poms.

Mr. Robert Lockridge of Newburgh was groomsman, while Mr. William Leeming and Mr. Donald E. Leeming, both of Belleville, and Mr. Carl Kirkpatrick of Kingston were the ushers.

The reception was held at St. John's Parish Hall in Point Anne where the bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped with wedding bells, doves and wedding rings. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a pink silk knit sheath dress with matching jacket and pink and white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's grandmother was also in the receiving line dressed in navy blue dress, with white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

For the wedding trip to the East Coast and other interesting points the bride chose a turquoise dress designed the same as her wedding dress, white wool coat, white accessories and a corsage of white 'mums.

Mr. and Mrs. Lockridge will reside at 441 Miller Street, Oshawa.

Successful Living

Parents Think College Waste of Time for Girls

DEAR DORIS — I hope to take a four-year honors course to get my Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in psychology. However, my parents don't approve of my chosen course nor do they want me to go to university. I have three younger brothers that must be educated and we are a family of limited means so I see their point. However, my counsellor at school has encouraged me to borrow and I have seriously considered this suggestion.

DORIS CLARK

Also the idea of being a stewardess has greatly appealed to me. Since the required course is quite short and there is not much future in this field, I would like to take the course and work here for one or two years.

Do you think that I would make enough to help a great deal towards my college education doing this? Do you have any other suggestions? Where can I write for more information on loans for students and on becoming a stewardess? — HONOR STUDENT.

DEAR STUDENT — There are parents who still feel, alas!, that a university education is wasted on a girl, who, they say, will probably get married as soon as she graduates anyway.

Trouble is, they forget that a well-organized household, complete with happily-handled girls and boys, calls for a high degree of trained intelligence on the part of the mother.

They also ignore the fact that 50% of our female labor force now consists of married women.

There are loans, bursaries, and scholarships to help; and your own principal can clue you in. Air stewardess is not a career to "fill in" with for a year or two, and you have to be 20 before applying. If you must take time out to earn and save up for college, consider a crash course in typing and an office job.

New Schedule Approved By Teachers

TORONTO (CP)—The women public school teachers of Ontario approved a new recommended salary schedule for themselves Thursday.

It would raise the recommended salary for a woman teacher with a basic certificate and no experience to $3,600 from $3,400 a year. A certificate, basic degree and 10 years' experience would earn her $10,000, a raise of $1,600 from the present recommendation.

The schedule was approved by the 500 delegates representing the 24,000-member Federation of Women Teachers' Association of Ontario at its annual meeting.

The new schedule now will be reviewed in co-operation with the men teachers' federation.

Florence Henderson of Sault Ste. Marie, finance committee convener, explained that the new schedule emphasizes the importance of a degree and offers incentive for further study.

The recommended salary for a beginner with a degree is $5,500 and the first several raises recommended are $500 a year, compared with $400 in the lower categories.

PLAN BRIEF

At the same time, the FWTAO is planning a brief to the provincial committee on teacher education and certification to urge that elementary teachers meet the same basic academic qualification as secondary teachers, and that after 1972 a teacher entering the profession be required to have a degree.

Delegates approved a suggestion from Ruby McLean of Leamington, superannuation commissioner, that the years for computing pensions be decreased to the best three from the best seven.

After a lengthy debate they approved a resolution that FWTAO membership fees continue at three-quarters of one per cent of salary, but with a $50 maximum. there is currently no maximum.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Mrs. John Lockridge (nee Ida Mary Whittle) was honored previous to her marriage at a kitchen shower held at the home of Mrs. A. McGowan with Mrs. W. Leeming as co-hostess and at a community shower at the home of Mrs. F. Peters with Mrs. W. Warren as co-hostess. A presentation was also held in her honor by co - workers of the dietary staffs of Belleville General Hospital. The bridegroom was presented with a cocktail set and tray by his fellow workers of the Bank of Montreal Staff at Whitby.

Previous to her recent marriage Mrs. Paul B. Bridges (nee Lois Smith) was honored at a kitchen shower at the home of Mrs. Clayton Reide; at a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Sheldon Weese as hostess and at a miscellaneous shower given by her co- workers at Lorne McDougall Insurance Agencies held at the home of Mrs. Bruce Holton, R. R. 5 Belleville. The insurance staff also presented her with a set of TV stacking trays.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon May left the Toronto International Airport at Malton for their home in Edmonton, Alberta, after holidaying with the former's mother, Mrs. V. May. While here they also visited his brothers, Bernard, Ivan, Orville and Leonard ;also sisters, Mrs. V. Ethier and Mrs. Ronald Jones.

Toronto Woman Starts Foreign Aid Program

TORONTO (CP) — Determined to find something useful to do with old magazines, a Toronto woman has started a small-scale foreign aid program that now involves hundreds of Canadians.

Barbara Redlich says it may have been her upbringing in Latvia and displaced persons camps that taught her to dislike waste. Whatever it was, she developed an aversion to throwing away magazines.

She tried all the logical people here who might use them but found they weren't interested.

"I had heard there was a need overseas and I got the address of a family in India and began sending mine there. They were a large family and they got the whole village interested. I had about 15 requests and began to talk to my friends about it."

Later she placed an ad in an educational paper in India asking anyone interested in receiving North American periodicals to write to her and say what sort of reading matter they'd like.

Since then, Miss Redlich says, she has matched about 3,000 Canadian senders with people in India and requests are still coming in. Recently she decided to branch out and now has letters from Ceylon and Korea asking for magazines.

ACTS AS AGENT

She emphasizes that she does not send the magazines herself, adding that anyone interested in participating may write to her at Apartment 409, 141 Erskine Ave., Toronto 12. She will try to match the offer to one of the requests she has received.

"The thing that takes time is matching," Miss Redlich explains. "I try not to put a farmer in India in touch with a doctor here."

She says some people want to correspond as well as receive or send magazines, others are content with the periodicals alone. One girl who is interested in recipes got pen pals in three or four countries through her contact in India and now all have started an international recipe collection.

Barbara says she would be happy to find more teen-agers interested in sending publications to teen-agers abroad.

The magazines are valued as entertainment, Miss Redlich says, although they would presumably have some educational and, perhaps, propaganda effect. She notes, for example, that Soviet magazines are made available free in India while one copy of a North American magazine might cost a man twice a day's salary.

She says she has been told they are so popular that a magazine exchange is carried on from village to village by a man who transports them in a cart. He leaves one month's issue and picks up last month's to be taken to the next village. This goes on until the pages are worn out.

MR. AND MRS. PAUL BRUCE BRIDGES

Bridges — Smith

Halloway United Church was the scene of a lovely wedding on Saturday, August 14, at 2.00 p.m. when Lois Delma Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey E. Smith of Halloway, was united in marriage to Paul Bruce Bridges, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bridges, Halloway, R.R. 2. Rev. C. Gilbert of Foxboro officiated at the ceremony.

Miss Heather Grant played traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Robert Hough in selections before the ceremony and during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length organza over taffeta wedding gown featuring a molded lace bodice with square neckline and long lily point sleeves. A flowing chapel train was accented at the back with a large bow. A fingertip veil of silk illusion tulle was caught by a coronet of tiny seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of red roses and trailing ivy.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Linda Smith who wore a street length dress of aqua silk organza over taffeta with white hat and shoulder length veil, white accessories and a corsage of white Shasta daisies.

Mr. Thomas Bridges, brother of the bridegroom was best man and Mrs. Douglas Smith, brother of the bride and Mr. Ivan Reid, both of Halloway were the ushers.

A reception was held in the church hall where the bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake, topped with miniature bride and bridegroom beneath an arch of white roses. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a two-piece brown linen sheath dress with beige accessories and a corsage of orange-gold carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a green linen sheath, beige accessories and a corsage of orange-gold carnations.

For the wedding trip to Stratford and points west the bride chose a blue nylon over taffeta dress, white accessories and a corsage of baby blue 'mums.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Bridges will reside at 84-A Geddes St., Belleville.

Susanna's Family Fare

IT'S YOUR MOVE

Dear Susanna: For thousands of families, like ourselves, a few preliminary suggestions on how to pack breakables when moving, will mean the difference between delight and disappointment at the end of the journey. Whether it is merely a carton of earthenware one is taking a few miles or your Sunday china being shipped to Nowheresville, you may be glad to make use of some of the tips I have gathered through years of following my husband from airforce base to airforce base.

As excelsior is frightfully expensive for many people, and straw is not always available, plenty of shredded newspaper (finely cut up) will give a good springy layer to the bottom, sides and top of a carton in which breakables are packed. A quantity of crumpled paper will do.

Plates should be wrapped and stacked with three or four thicknesses of paper between each one. Newspapers are fine although it dos mean washing everything when you arrive, as the print usually rubs off.

Professional movers use a medium-firm springy white paper that is ideal if you would rather invest in this. Wrap cups and saucers individually — first in tissue or paper toweling — an extra precaution is to wrap the handles separately in paper hankies.

Have plenty of soft tissue between tumblers before you roll them in newspaper.

Stemware is tricky. My favorite plan is to wrap each piece with yards of toilet paper — stuff some inside as well — then roll in newspaper. Be su alternate the stemware wh packing.

Finally, using only sturd cartons for the breakables, tr to pack them just firmly enoug so that nothing will shift — thi is one of the main causes fo articles becoming cracked.

Do hope others will benef from my experiences. — Mr W. M. Brown — Airforce Wife

Because of your great lette we have done some devling int the subject of shipping belong ings as well as when and wher it is wise or unwise to try an save money on packing. Sev large movers have been about it all, and Mrs. A whose husband is a profes mover has added several ideas to the list you have ready provided. We are hap to send this list of additional vice to any of our readers w wish it — as long as you wo forget to send us that little you've been keeping up you sleeve.

To you it may seem like old hat of an idea, but someon else might be able to turn it int a brand new French chapeau Just try us with a few! — SUSANNA

BLEACH BOTTLE PAIL

Dear Susanna: Plastic bleac bottle art goes on and on. M latest discovery is how I ca make an extra pail for my littl boy who loves to play at th beach. He needs one to carry u water for the moat around hi sand castle.

I merely slice a large oblon hole out of the side of the blea bottle just above the widest pa but on the side directly opposit to the handle. Everything els remains intact. It fills easil and is light and handy to carry — Evelyn M.

Bobby Hull's now famous declaration that he will demand a $100,000 salary this coming season may have been a lighthearted quip under moonlit Hawaian skies to the music of throbbing guitars, but it has caused some headscratching among the purse-strings manipulators of the National Hockey League.

While admitting he made the statement, Bobby is quoted as saying he did not know that he was talking to a sports writer or some other ink-drenched slave of the public prints.

In any event the word got around to the "syndicate" while the seed, it is claimed, found fertile ground in the mental gardens of other topflight National League stars.

The $100,000 demand has been called "ridiculous" by more than one member of the gilded cage set. In fact, it is stated Chicago Black Hawk owners Jim Norris and Arthur Wirtz laughed it off with a quick flip of their morning orange juice and promptly forgot about it.

The Montreal Canadiens' manager, Sam Pollock, called the Hull demand ridiculous and told a Montreal columnist that he didn't think his players were bothering so much about Hull.

"I know I'm not," he said. "We have a set policy and I intend to follow it." He agreed that a "set policy" was that salary increases were fixed by the kind of a year a player had the season before.

But Sid Abel, manager-coach of the Detroit Red Winggs, took a different view. "I know my guys read that statement of Hull's and it's going to be tough for me when I start talking contracts."

Abel won't have long to wait. He plans to discuss salary terms with Gordie Howe, Alex Delvicchio, Norm Ullman, Floyd Smith, Andy Bathgate, Billy Harris and Ab MacDonald at a luncheon in Detroit's Olympia.

The wily contract-wise veterans of the Red Wings will look at the ace in their hands before they answer to the "how many" of Abel the dealer.

The ace is the fact that last year the Red Wings won their first league championship in eight years and although eliminated by the Black Hawks in the semi-finals they figure a hike in the pay cheque would be in order.

Norm Ullman will do a lot of serious thinking. After all the Wings' veteran centre handed in the best effort of his career last year, helping pilot the team to the flag and poking home a top 42 goals. He'll figure he's worth a substantial boost and will likely get it.

The old maestro, Gordie Howe, sat pat with his salary hand a year ago and didn't ask for extra cards. He is said to be the highest paid player in the league at $35,000. He may not draw any this year and will likely be satisfied with his 1964-65 stipend.

Hull's five-year contract expired last year when he is reported to have collected a salary of $30,000. In the first half of the season he was sensational, scoring 32 goals in 35 games. He was waylaid by injuries and a goal-getting slump in the second half, finishing with 39 goals. At that he has averaged 33 goals a season in his eight years with the NHL.

He is alleged to have said that one of his reasons for the $100,000 demand was "because that's what Mickey Mantle gets from the Yankees and I think I'm just as important to the Black Hawks and hockey as he is to New York and baseball."

Bobby may have had tongue-in-cheek when—and if—he made that statement.

I believe Hull is broadminded enough to know that hockey arenas do not have seating capacities like the major baseball league's stadia, also that pro hockey does not have a stream of gold flowing in from those television rainbows.

However, it was a good try, and fully warned the Black Hawk owners of what to expect at the contract table. Not that Hull will get the "one hundred grand." My belief is that he will settle for less than half that amount.

Walked 10 Batters ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ In Ten Innings

Reds' Jim Maloney Tosses No-Hitter

CHICAGO (AP) — Jim Maloney of Cincinnati Reds, haunted by memories of being robbed of no-hit pitching victories, finally broke the spell.

It could be the sloppiest no-hitter in baseball history.

But like the golfing duffer whose topped tee shot rolls 150 yards into the hole, it's in the record book without an asterisk.

In Thursday's first game of a National League doubleheader with Chicago Cubs, the strapping 25-year-old righthander hurled a 1-0 no-hit triumph in 10 innings.

Using a fast ball and a sharp-breaking curve, Maloney struck out 12. But he issued 10 bases on balls and also hit a batter. The 10 walks were the most ever issued by a pitcher in a no-hitter.

He threw a staggering total of 187 pitches and 15 times had a full 3-and-2 count on the batters.

It even looked as if Maloney might pitch a no-hitter and lose. However, Chicago Cardenas' home run off Larry Jackson's first pitch—a belt-high slider—sealed victory in the 10th. The ball caromed off the left field foul pole, staying fair at odds of about 1,000 to 1.

BEAT BY HOMER

Last June 14 in Cincinnati, Maloney pitched 10 innings of hitless ball against New York Mets only to have Johnny Lewis lead off the 11th with a homer that beat him 1-0.

And last April 19 at Milwaukee, he had a no-hitter humming through seven innings against the Braves, but Denis Menke led off the eighth with a single. Maloney won that one-hit job 2-0 on Deron Johnson's homer. He also had one-hitters in 1964 and 1963.

Maloney became the first major leaguer to turn in a complete no-hit game this season and the first pitcher to hurl two nine-inning no-hitters in the same season since Virgil Trucks did it for Detroit Tigers in 1952.

"But after what happened to me against the Mets, I was wondering plenty after nine innings of no-hit ball if somebody was going to bash in my chance again," said Maloney. "When I came to bat in the seventh inning, Bailey (Cub catcher Ed Bailey) looked at me and said:

"You look pretty good, but we've got someone hiding in the weeds who will knock it out of the park on you."

Maloney said he just grinned and replied: "Bailey, you might be right, After what's happened to me before, nothing would surprise me."

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The first time Jim Maloney went into extra innings with a no-hitter this season, a home run put him out of business.

The 25-year-old right hander found himself in the same position Thursday night, but this time the explosion came from his own side as Cincinnati Reds edged Chicago Cubs 1-0 in 10 innings in the first game of a doubleheader.

The blow by Leo Cardenas put Maloney in the National League record book again and took some of the sting out of the 11th-inning blast by Johnny Lewis that cost Maloney a no-hitter and a 1-0 decision against New York Mets June 14.

Maloney gained three distinctions with his feat—he became the first pitcher in major league history to pitch two extra-inning no-hitters, only the third to win an extra-inning no-hitter and only the fourth to pitch two no-hitters in one season.

Cardenas came up against Larry Jackson with one out in the 10th and rapped a home run against the left field foul pole.

NLEDED 15 INNINGS

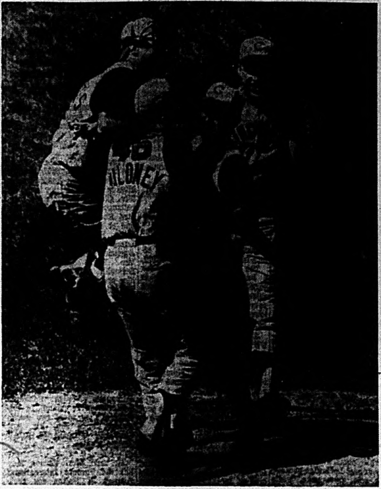
In other games Los Angeles Dodgers regained first place by defeating San Francisco Giants 8-5 in 15 innings, Milwaukee Braves dropped to second, one half game out, by losing to St. Louis Cardinals 5-4 and the Cubs edged the Reds in the nightcap 5-4.

Maloney achieved another distinction. The 10 walks he gave up were the most ever issued in a no-hitter.

The Cubs won the second game after trailing 4-0. Williams hit a three-run homer off Joey Jay in the eighth and Don Landrum connected off Bill McCool with one on and two out in the ninth.

The Dodgers moved back into the lead with a three-run rally in the 15th inning. Lou Johnson slammed a two-run homer off Gaylord Perry, and consecutive singles by Wes Parker, Willie Davis and John Roseboro brought in another run. Tom Haller's two-out, two-run homer off Don Drysdale in the ninth pulled the Giants into a 5-5 tie.

Four Milwaukee errors helped St. Louis end the Braves' winning streak at six. Ray Sadecki and Lou Brock scored in the third on errors by pitcher Ken Johnson and Gene Oliver. In the fourth Ken Boyer reached first when Denis Menke bobbled his grounder and eventually came home on Woody Woodward's bad throw.



JUMP FOR JOY — Cincinnati catcher John Edwards leaps up to hug Cincinnati pitcher Jim Maloney after he completed pitching a 10-inning no-hitter against Chicago Cubs. On other side congratulating hurler are first baseman Tony Perez and third baseman Deron Johnson (11). Redlegs beat Cubs 1-0, in the first game of double-header. (AP Wirephoto)

Hit by Injuries

Saskys Call For Help

REGINA (CP)—Struck hard by injuries since the season opened, Saskatchewan Roughriders began an airlift for American players this week in an attempt to fill holes in the lineup in time for tonight's Western Football Conference game here with British Columbia Lions.

The Roughriders, tied for second place with Calgary Stampeders four points behind Winnipeg Blue Bombers, brought in four Americans in the last four days.

They lost Bob Ptacek, defensive captain and one of the league's top corner linebackers, Tuesday when he snapped an Achilles tendon in practice. He and Alan Ford, a Canadian halfback who replaced Ed Buchanan but was injured in Edmonton last week, underwent surgery Thursday. Ford has a knee injury.

Rounding out the six men on the 30-day injured list were Buchanan, defensive end Nat Dye and defensive halfbacks Jim Copeland and Bob Good.

Coach Eagle Keys said Sherman Lewis, 157-pound halfback from Toronto Argonauts, was the only sure starter among the newcomers. He'll go at left half.

Other newcomers are two-way halfback Bill Butler of Minnesota Vikings, a seven-year veteran of the NFL; Wilton Manley, a 260-pound two-way tackle from Dallas Cowboys; and tackle John Paglio from Baltimore Colts.

Davis Cup

Yankees Salvage Point

BARCELONA, Spain (AP)—With a final margin of victory of 4-1 over the United States in interzone Davis Cup play, Spain qualified to meet the winner of the eastern zone match between India and Japan for a shot at Australia in the challenge round in December.

Dennis Ralston salvaged a final point for the United States Thursday with a listless victory over Juan Manuel Couder.

He beat Couder, a sub for top-ranked Manuel Santana, in a dull match marked by repeated service breaks 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-3 after Spain's young Juan Gisbert had outfoxed hard-hitting Frank Froehling of Coral Gables, Fla., 6-3, 3-6, 6-4, 2-6, 6-3.

A controversy was raised when Jaime Bartroli, the Spanish captain, called George MacCall, U.S. captain, late Wednesday night and said Santana wished to be excused from the final match because he was mentally and physically tired. MacCall said, "Our boys are mentally and physically tired too. If they can get out there after suffering defeats as they have, so can Santana."

Santana appeared on scene with what he called a bruised bone in his right hand but admitted it was an old injury. Three doctors examined him—a Spanish doctor, a Venezuelan doctor and the U.S. team physician.

All acknowledged that Santana had an injury but could play.

When MacCall insisted that Santana play, the Spanish team sought to have him sign a medical certificate that Santana was playing with an injury.

"I'll sign nothing," MacCall said. "It's your decision. You picked Santana to play. He should play."

Santana was getting ready to go on the court when MacCall told Bartroli: "I'd like to talk to Santana."

He went into the dressing room and returned after a few minutes, telling Ralston: "You'll play Couder — I saw Santana's hand and it is swollen."

Early Lake's John Sets Two Records

Wins Black Diamond Stakes

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

A fleet-footed dark brown stallion flashed over the mile raceway at the Fair Grounds last night to smash two records and capture the coveted Black Diamond Cheese Stakes.

Early Lake's John, owned and driven by Earl Lake of Elgin, Ont., paced the mile final heat in 2.05.4-5 to break his own record of 2.06.1 and set a new seasonal mark for the track.

Veteran horsemen claim the all-time track record for the "long mile" is 2.04 set by Lastic Gratton over two decades ago.

Early Lake's John recorded his 17th victory in 21 starts winning the final heat by twenty lengths over a field of eight horses.

He won the first elimination under wraps in the slow time of 2.23. The horse broke its own record for the third time in three weeks.

HEAVILY BACKED

Heavily backed Early Lake's John paid bettors $2.20 in the first elimination race and $2.10 in the final.

Gloria Vance's Nida Dillard lived up to pre-race prediction by winning the first elimination in 2.15 but was the victime of a surprise upset in the final heat.

Osborne McKane's Miss Gananoque, third in the second elimination heat caught Dillard in the stretch and finished second by two lengths in the final. She paid $33.80, second top price of the night.

The element of surprise was noted in the fact that Miss Gananoque's owner, Osborne McKane wagered heavily on Nida Dillard to finish second without putting "a nickel" on his own horse.

Lucky Linda Gale finished second in the first elimination followed by Melody Tripp, Deputy Chief Orr and Devon Way.

Astrosam was close behind Early Lake's John sulky in the second elimination, followed by Miss Gananoque and Riverdale Bill.

Ben Dewey got its legs tangled in front of the grandstand and fell heavily to the track. Driver W. Sullivan was not injured nor was the horse. The race was re-started.

A capacity grandstand crowd that spilled over into the infield saw some exciting racing. Bettors pushed $11,174 through the pari mutuel windows.

DOUBLE WINNERS

Driver G. Sheldon piloted Grattan Portage, owned by Paul Gassier of Lindsay to the only double triumph of the night. It won the second and seventh mile heats in 2.17, paying $4.10 and $8.00.

Georgina led a field of eight to win the first mile heat paying $7.90 with Ray's Abbe Dee second and Hieland Herbie in the place position. Time of the mile was 2.20.

Hieland Herbie came back to win the sixth event, nosing out Betty Chief and Meadow Domini to pay his backers $9.20.

Ehlen Hanover paying $13.10 led Lu Attorney and Luella Scott to the wire in the fifth race.

The Hanover horse had to be content with the show position in the ninth race as Luella Scott spurted into the lead in front of Lu Attorney to win in 2.13 1/5 and pay $39.00, the top price of the night.

The daily double paid $14.40 and the quinellas $22.10 and $7.40.

The handsome Black Diamond Cheese Stakes Trophy was presented to Earl Lake, owner-driver of the winner, by Alderman Don Joss of the Black Diamond Cheese Company who donated the trophy for annual competition for horses with financial handicaps last year.

The Fair Board race committee chairman, former fire-chief Gerald Vance, presented Mr. Lake with a handsome "cooler," the gift of the Fair Board who with the Black Diamond Cheese Company jointly sponsored the meet.

The total purse money was $1,575.

WIN EASTERN TITLE

DUNDAS, Ont. (CP) — Stoney Creek, Ont., defeated Valleyfield, Que., 3-0 Thursday night to win the Eastern Canadian Little League baseball championship. Stoney Creek will meet Trail, B.C., Saturday for the Canadian championship and the right to represent Canada at Williamsport, Pa., in the world tournament next week.

With Minnesota Vikings

Jim Young Has Chance

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Jim Young, the only Canadian in the National Football League, has "a lot to learn but he has a chance" with Minnesota Vikings, says coach Norm van Brocklin.

The 205-pound backfielder played well in his debut Saturday, when the Vikings defeated Pittsburgh Steelers 31-21. He scored a touchdown the first time he carried the ball—on a three-yard run—and another the first time he caught the ball on a 31-yard pass play.

His problem in American grid circles is to learn to block. But he's a fast runner with good hands and Vikings coaches concede he has great promise. Now, with the talent-laden Vikings, he has—as van Brocklin puts it—a chance.

Young, for the last three years rated the outstanding collegiate halfback in Canada with Queen's University, Kingston, passed up another college football year and a Canadian football contract to sign with the Vikings.

It was reported earlier the Vikings planned to keep Young, from Hamilton, on their "taxi squad," an unrostered group kept by NFL teams for use in case of injury to regulars.

CENTRE INJURED

FAIRFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Greg Larson, veteran centre of New York Giants of the National Football League, re-injured his right knee in a workout and will be lost to the team for its exhibition against Pittsburgh at New Haven, Conn, Saturday. Larson resumed heavy contact work only Wednesday, following a mid-winter operation on the joint.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—Victorian Era, a colt racing experts compare with Northern Dancer, Canada's finest thoroughbred, has been entered in Saturday's $29,550 Prince of Wales Stakes here.

The son of Victoria Park missed last June's Queen's Plate when his owner, Allen Case of Toronto, neglected to meet an eligibility payment.

Ten other three-year-olds have been entered in the 1⅜-mile turf race, including Good Old Mort, last year's champion two-year-old, and Flyalong, recent winner of the Manitoba Derby and runner-up in the Queen's Plate.

Victorian Era is after his sixth stakes success this season. In nine outings, the colt won seven races, came second once and third once.

Commercial Playoff Spot Still Open

The playoff situation in the Commercial Softball League remained unsettled today after Lightfoots blanked Ter-Haar Daubers 15-0 and RCAF Cosmos defeated Point Anne 5-1 last night.

With but a single game left to play, City Hotel, Lightfoots and Stewart Warner are assured of the first three playoff spots, while Point Anne, Black Diamond, and RCAF are tied for the next position.

Stewart Warner visits Point Anne for a six o'clock game Sunday and a win for the Warners will leave the three clubs tied, forcing a round-robin playoff. Should Point Anne win, they will climb into the playoffs tied with Stewart Warner and these two clubs will play a sudden-death game, at Prince Charles on Monday.

Meanwhile, Black Diamond and RCAF will clash Monday, at Zwick's, at 6.30. This game will either be the first of the round-robin or a sudden-death to decide positions for the consolation playoffs, depending on the outcome of Sunday's game.

Lightfoots scored a dozen runs in the third frame last night to win easily over the tail-enders. Don Smith threw five-hit ball, whiffed six and walked three for Lightfoots.

Bud Pringle and L. Hamlin in the third were tagged for 13 hits in defeat. They struck out one each and passed ten, eight by Hamlin.

Don Smith sparked his own attack with three singles but got plenty of help from Jack "Deacon" Whiting and Jack Gilbey, each with a double and single, plus Rusty Garvin and Don Wood who added two hits each. Tim Cook and Ken Brooks also hit safely.

Walter Wickett had two Ter-Haar safeties with one each for Pat Glancey, Ron Pointer and Don Moore.

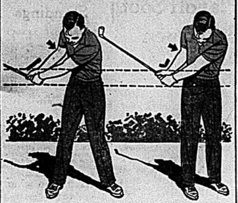
THE ARNOLD Palmer Method

by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER



WRIST COCK VARIES WITH THE SHOT

Normally, I would not advise golfers to be concerned about when their wrists begin to cock on the backswing. The wrists should cock automatically when the hands reach about hip height.

However, it is important to note that the wrists do cock earlier on short shots than on shots with the woods and long irons. You will note in the illustrations that, though my hands are about at a similar height, the wrist cock is much more noticeable on the short iron shot.

On long shots there is more emphasis on distance. Therefore you need a wider swing arc. The hands and arms should push the club away from the body on the backswing, even if the right elbow must move away from the right side. All this results in a later cocking of the wrists.

On short shots, where the premium is on accuracy, you want a more compact swing. The right elbow should remain close to your side. This forces a more upright backswing and an earlier cocking of the wrists.

Whip Tigers 8-3

'Mudcat, Kitty Have Sam Sittin' Pretty'

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

You could wrap up Minnesota Twins pitching situation these days by singing, "Mudcat and Kitty have Sam sitting pretty."

Mudcat is Jim Grant, whose five-hitter in the first game Thursday gave the Twins an 8-3 American League victory over Detroit Tigers. Kitty is Jim Kaat, who completed the sweep with a 2-1 six-hitter in the nightcap.

Sam is Minnesota manager Mele, whose Twins lead the American League race by 8½ games and look more like the genuine article every day.

Mele has kept his club on top in spite of injuries to his top pitcher, Camilo Pascual, and his No. 1 slugger, Harmon Killebrew. Both are in their third week of convalescence—Pascual after surgery on his pitching arm and Killebrew with a dislocated left elbow.

Grant's five - hitter Thursday was his 16th victory of the season and no other American League pitcher has that many.

Kaat, a 17-game winner last season, picked up his 12th victory in the nightcap. It was his sixth victory in the last eight decision and lowered his earned run average to 2.68.

RECORD BETTER

Grant with a 16-4 record, has a 3.52 earned run average. He was 14-13 last season when he split his work between Cleveland Indians and Minnesota.

In the only other league games Thursday, New York Yankees topped Los Angeles Angels 3-1 and Boston Red Sox ripped Baltimore Orioles 11-3.

Sandy Valdespino's pinch single in the eighth inning drove home Zollo Versalles with the run Kaat needed to beat the Tigers in the nightcap. Don Mincher's three - run homer made it easy for Grant in the opener.

Mel Stottlemyre scattered eight hits and won his 15th of the year for the Yankees. Clete Boyer tagged his 13th homer and New York again moved one game over .500.

The Orioles dropped into a three-way tie for third place, nine games off Minnesota's pace and one half game behind Chicago White Sox as Jim Lonborg pitched a six-hitter for the Red Sox.

Lee Thomas drove in four runs with a single and a triple and Felix Mantilla and Lonborg knocked in two apiece.

Scuba Diver Is Given Fish-Eye View

Little or nothing has been written or said about the love-life of the poor fish, but a scuba diver may have hit upon something.

Jim Graham, a Deseronto diver was cruising some 18 or 20 feet below the surface of a lake not far from here when he noticed a spinner moving slowly through the water.

He thought a topside angler was dangling the lure, but then he observed the bait was being towed by an 18-inch pickerel.

It could have been an amorous walleye resorting to cave-fish tactics to secure a mate.

But more likely the dore with the roving eye was devising ways and means to regurgitate an undigestible lead sinker.

The same diver, according to a Lands and Forests Department release by Russ Whitfield, when in Mazinaw Lake, south of the narrows, reported 70 or more pickerel at a depth of 15-19 feet along the edge of the current which flows south through the narrows at Bon Echo Rock.

The fish were close to the bottom that falls away sharply from the main shoreline.

Wellington has always been a popular vacation spot for eels.

A diver cruising along the shoreline near the West Lake outlet saw a school of thirty of the "Slippery Sams" playing hide and seek in a cluster of rocks some 15 feet below the surface.

The eels disappeared among the rocks when the diver approached.

Mr. Whitfield says his department appreciates receiving authentic information, from divers who go below the surface of district lakes, on fish and other aquatic life.

Leafs Zero Wings 5-0, Jets Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Right-hander Bill Rohr shut out Rochester Red Wings 5-0 Thursday night to keep Toronto Maple Leafs within two games of league - leading Columbus Jets.

In other league action, the Jets edged Jacksonville Suns 7-6, Toledo Mud Hens whipped Atlanta Crackers 10-5 and the game between Syracuse Chiefs and Buffalo Bisons was rained out.

Roman Mejias hit a three-run homer in the first inning to provide Rohr with all the support he needed. The Wings managed only four hits, all singles as Rohr struck out nine and walked only two in winning his sixth game in 13 decisions.

Pancho Herrara drove in George Spriggs with the winning run with two out in the ninth at Jacksonville. Jerry May had tied the game for the Jets with a two-run homer in the eighth.

The Mud Hens scored six runs in the third inning and coasted behind Jack Curtis' 10-hit pitching to register their win.

NEED HEAVIER STEAKS

Steaks for open-air barbecuing need to be thicker than for indoors cooking, because thin cuts of meat would dry out quickly.

Inter-City Tennis

The tennis season in the city draws to a climax with the annual play-off for the Doug Grant Trophy between Belleville and Kingston.

The opening match will be played in Kingston this weekend with the final of the home-and-home, total match series scheduled for Belleville the following Sunday.

Kingston are present holders of the trophy with an easy victory last summer, one of the few Belleville wins being scored by David Hurst in a surprise victory over Kingston star Johnnie Johnson who had never before suffered defeat in inter-city competition.

This year the Belleville team is being selected on the basis of a round robin tournament which will not be decided until the end of the week. Among the Belleville players eligible for selection are Bill Redquist, David Hurst, Bill Moffatt, Mike Black, John Black, Mike Walcott, Tom Woodley, Doug Grant, Tim Cook, Gord Smith, Don Brearly, Larry and Kerry Soden.

On of the features of play at the Quinte Club this season has been the good form of Bill Redquist who has played well at doubles with Tom Woodley and scored a stunning upset over David Hurst in round robin competition for the number one spot in singles against Kingston.

Maccabiah Games Set For Monday

TEL AVIV (AP)—Hundreds of workers toiled under a blazing sun Thursday and on into the night under lights, preparing for Monday's opening of the seventh Maccabiah Games in this Israeli capital.

Although there still was much work to be finished in and around the 50,000-seat stadium at suburban Ramat Gan, a games spokesman said: "Don't worry. The games will open on time.

The quadrennial games, sometimes called the Jewish Olympics, are expected to draw 1,500 athletes from 30 countries.

Canada's 32-member team and the American squad, the largest contingent, are expected to arrive today.

The sizzling Middle East heat has been hard on early arrivals.

The Maccabiah torch will be brought to the stadium for the opening ceremonies Monday by relay runners from Modiin, 20 miles away. A British woman athlete, Debra Turner, will carry it on the final lap.

AMERICANS LEAD

MARBLEHEAD, Mass. (AP) Moms Meg VII, skippered by Clinton McKim of Marblehead, captured two firsts and a second Thursday to take the lead in the world and North American championships in the international jolly-boat class. With four of six races completed, the first seven places were occupied by Marblehead sailors. The top Canadian boat, Joyful Too, owned by Eric Joy of Montreal, was in 21st place.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Fact and fiction, often proclaimed to be close, were more than 3,000 miles and 32 years apart Thursday.

At Cape Kennedy, two disappointed young U.S. astronauts climbed out of their capsule as their mission was postponed by weather and mechanical trouble.

At a studio on the other side of the U.S. actors were wrapping up another adventure about a family of astronauts stranded on an uncharted planet after a space accident occuring in 1997.

If one is to believe the script writers of Lost in Space, a new CBS series, travel to distant planets in the future will be a little more scary than the scrubbed manned spin around this globe: the passengers of the TV spaceship start their long, long voyage to a distant star frozen alive so they will neither age nor consume food in transit.

But in spite of its futuristic trappings, the series is just good, old-fashioned adventure stuff, complete with an earthling villain who is an inadvertant stowaway.

SMOOTH NEWS JOB

As far as the real events of Thursday went, the experienced teams of the three networks turned in their usual smooth jobs. Pooling much of the picture coverage seemed sensible and in no way detracted from the viewer's interest.

At some time in the near future perhaps the networks will agree to start covering a launching considerably closer to the scheduled take-off time—three hours of preliminaries and time-filling explanation does seem excessive now that the public is more familiar with the procedures. The networks had devoted more than 6½ hours to the event when it was finally called off.

CBS has decided that its "color signature" proclaiming tinted shows will consist of the network initials in yellow, red and blue, with the familiar eye logotype appearing on the screen in white and changing to green. NBC, which has spent so many years and so much money establishing its peacock identification, is expected to stick with it. ABC has yet to make a decision but has cut the suggestions to two distinctive designs.

ABC News, for the benefit of viewers with hearing difficulties, will henceforth present its mid-program TV news bulletins by printed headlines as well as spoken announcements.

The Trots

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Bret Hanover, winner of 35 consecutive races, lost his first in two years Thursday during the grand-circuit harness racing program at the Illinois State Fair.

Bret Hanover was defeated in the first heat of the Review Futurity for three-year-old pacers by Adios Vic in 2:00.

But the great pacer, owned by Richard Downing of Shaker Heights, Ohio, came back to win the second heat in 1:59 2-5.

Bret Hanover had won 24 races as a two-year-old in 1964, a feat that made him the Harness Horse of the Year, and 11 in a row this year.

Read, Latta Play 1-1 Deadlock

Read and Latta failed to settle a thing after ten innings of South Hastings Baseball League semi-final playoffs, at Latta, last night, battling to a 1-1 deadlock.

This was the first game in a four-of-seven semi-final with the next tilt slated for Read's diamond Sunday afternoon, at 2.00. In the other half of the semis, Shannonville and Foxboro also tied their first game and now play in Foxboro, Saturday, at 6.15.

Latta scored their run in the first last night, unearned. An error put one on and he rounded the bases on a wild pitch, fielder's choice and another wild pitch.

Read tied it in the sixth. Farrel singled, stole second and took third and home on a pair of fielder's choices. The duel continued until darkness halted it at the end of ten frames.

Frank Farrel gave up six hits, struck out a half dozen and walked two on the Read rubber.

Stan "Lefty" Reid allowed just four hits for Latta, whiffing 13 batters and walking one.

Errors were scarce with Read committing two and Latta one.

Don Harris got two of Latta's six singles. The others were shared by Larry Mavety, Howard Meeks, Doug Geen and Stan Reid.

Percy Milligan rapped a double for Read and singles went to Frank Farrell, Peter Enright and W. Pascoe.

Activities of Julie Andrews Curtailed by Popularity

By BOB THOMAS

HONOLULU (AP) — What a difference a year makes in the life of a girl, if the girl happens to be Julie Andrews.

A year ago she was floating in a luxurious limbo. She had completed three major movies, but none had been released. She was able to travel about with complete ease, recognized by only the most discerning of fans.

It couldn't last. Now Julie is in the post-Poppins, post-Oscar phase of her career, and her life will never be the same.

During the filming of Hawaii on location here, Julie spends most of her non-working hours behind the gate of her ocean-front home in the Kahala section east of Waikiki.

She sat on the veranda one afternoon and chatted as her brother Chris, 19, just arived from England, skin-dived in the reef waters in front of the house.

WENT UNNOTICED

"Yes, I sometimes look back fondly on those days a year ago," she said. "I felt as if I were leading a kind of secret life as I went about town unnoticed. The sense of conspiracy was delicious."

And now?

"Well, I'm not as free as I used to be, no. It's not possible to do some of the things I took for granted before. Like shopping. It's difficult for me to go to a shop and look through the dresses.

"The trouble is not so much with the first person who recognizes me. It's what happens afterward. The word gets around and all of a sudden there is a large crowd around me. That sort of thing I find difficult to cope with. It doesn't happen in Beverly Hills. But in a place like Hawaii, where there are so many tourists, it can become a bit sticky."

As a result, her activities here are curtailed. She seldom dines out; instead, she entertains fellow workers and visitors at her home.

Don't get the idea that Julie is complaining. That's not the Andrews style.

During the filming of Hawaii she has: Spent day after day aboard a wave-tossing ship; risen at 5:30 to spend the day on the blistering sand of Makua Beach; worked from dusk to dawn during a week of village-burning scenes; endured a production crisis in which director George Roy Hill was briefly replaced; been beset by a myriad of mothers pushing forward their children to shake hands with Mary Poppins.

Her co-workers have yet to see Julie vary from her sprightly good humor.

Missing from the scene is her husband, Tony Walton, who is designing A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum in Madrid. Their careers still diverge.

AT THE PARK — New AIP Star — Aron Kincaid, shaggy blonde he-man type plays a featured role as best friend of a bevy of beauties in American International's new musical comedy "Ski Party", now showing at the Park Theatre. It is his first outing with the Beach Party gang. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00 p.m.

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

AT THE BELLE — Frank Sinatra and Trevor Howard in "Von Ryan's Express", deluxe color. Feature at 2.10 - 7.10 and 9.20.

AT THE PARK — In Color "Ski Party", Frankie Avalon, Dwayne Hickman, Deborah Walley, Lesley Gore, James Brown and The Famous Flames, 7.45 - 9.50.

Society Aims to Aid Friends Who Assisted Allied Airmen

PICTON (Staff) — Visitor to Picton this week was Mrs. Betty Johnstone, secretary of the Royal Air Force's Escaping Society. She was a guest at the home of William Jones, a member of the society. Walter Dreschler, Picton, is another member.

A new branch was formed recently in Toronto by Mrs. Johnstone and already it has a membership of more than fifty.

The society has its headquarters in London, England, and its aim is to help persons who assisted Allied airmen, who were shot down over Nazi-controlled territory in the Second World War.

The society has a file of 3,500 persons who helped fliers escape.

There are branches in Australia, New Zealand, Brussels, France, Holland, Italy, Luxembourg and Canada, and members seek to aid those who aided the fliers to get back to safety after they crashlanded or were forced to bail out. The Progress Report of the RAFES for 1964 contains many interesting accounts of activities around the world and of helpers who have been helped by the 2,000 who escaped as a result of their efforts.

Mrs. Johnstone noted that the Royal Air Forces' Escaping Society may not fully convey the society's aim in its title. It is not a social club for people who have shared escape or evasion experiences, nor is it an educational program for people to learn how to escape

It is an opportunity for veterans of the air campaign in Europe who were assisted in their escapes or evasions to help those who helped them.

The society was formed shortly after the war by a group of airmen who were deeply grateful to the men, women and children of occupied countries who risked, and in many cases, lost their lives to help them escape.

While most veterans who survived their time in enemy-occupied Europe have, on their own, retained contact with the people who helped them, the society is an opportunity to give collective assistance to all known "helpers" as they are termed, through direct financial aid and other tokens of gratitude.

There have been members of the RAFES in Canada since the society was first formed, said Mrs. Johnstone, but it was hoped, with the formation of a Canadian branch to revive interest and weld a more solid and national-based unit.

MANY IN AREA

Mrs. Johnstone is sure that there are many air force veterans today living in the Quinte area or other parts of Eastern Ontario who owe their freedom and their lives to the RAFES and who will want to aid the people who helped them—people who are still living a sub-existence in poverty-stricken areas of Europe.

When assistance is requested by any of these people, the RAFES supplies funds for food, clothing, shelter, heat or medical bills. Christmas cards are sent each year and a special expense-paid holiday in Britain is given a group of 25 to 30 each year.

Mrs. Johnstone said true stories of individuals who escaped are high-ranking adventures in themselves. But even more heart-warming are the many relationships which have been cemented between escapers or evaders and helpers.

Particularly between Britain and Europe, some families hold frequent get-togethers, name their children after each other and serve as god-parents for their respective families.

An example is the Jones family here, where Mrs. Jones is god-parent for the people who assisted her husband, who has visited them since the war.

Mrs. Johnstone, who will soon be returning to England, admitted that the work of the RAFES is so closely connected to a particular period of history that it will eventually die out, but as long as veterans remain grateful to Europeans of all ages and classes who helped them escape, the aid will continue to flow.

She also said that any recent battle areas, such as Korea, where the names of people who assisted airmen escape can be established ,the airman involved is eligible for membership and the RAFES will provide a similar service to the people involved.

It is 20 years since history saw the end of the Second World War and the work of the Royal Air Force Escaping Society is an indication that gratitude has a long memory.

Caribbean Team Tops Tuna Race

WEDGEPORT, N.S. (CP)—The Caribbean team boated two tuna Thursday to take the lead in the international tuna tournament off this southwestern Nova Scotia community. The Mexican team got the only other fish of the day.

The three big bluefin tuna were the first in a tournament that began in 1958. Not a single strike was made in that match and the competition was not resumed until this year. No strikes were made Wednesday, opening day of the 3½-day match.

Louis Mowbray of Bermuda, a tournament veteran, boated the biggest fish Thursday. He took his 600-pounder in 45 minutes.

The other teams in the match are Canada and the United States.

Woman Killed Instantly As Ore Train Strikes Car

PICTON (Staff) — A Trenton woman, Mrs. Bernie Lois Beal, mother of three, met death yesterday afternoon when the late model convertible she was driving was struck by an ore train, which had just left Picton en route to Marmora.

The accident occurred about 2.00 p.m. at a level crossing near Mallory's crossroad some three miles west of Picton. The crossing has no signals but visibility was excellent and road conditions good. The tracks are visible for some distance either way and it is not known exactly how the accident occurred.

Mrs. Beal was alone in the car at the time of the accident and the vehicle, when struck, was carried nearly a half mile up the track toward the village of Bloomfield. Mrs. Beal was thrown from the wreckage about half that distance from the crossing. It took workmen a good part of the afternoon to clear the wreckage and repair damage to the front of the locomotive before it could continue on its way. The white convertible was a complete wreck. Hundreds of people gathered at the scene of the crash to witness the wreckage.

The train normally makes one trip into Picton every day except Sunday, bringing ore pellets to Marmaton Mines docks for shipment by boat to the smelters.

Constable Goodkey of the Picton O.P.P. detachment investigated the accident. Mrs. Beal was taken to Whattam's Funeral Home in Picton and later transferred to Trenton. She resided at 45 Third Ave., Trenton.

Wreckage of the car in which Mrs. Bernice Lois Beal, 35, of Trenton, was killed yesterday afternoon three miles northwest of Picton. An ore train carried the car for about half a mile after the impact at the crossing.

Six Obtain Scholarships In Exams

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward Collegiate Institute Principal J. H. Syrett said results of June examinations for Grade 13 students were mailed out to students Tuesday — the same day they were received from the Department of Education.

While summaries of the results are not yet complete, the results showed the collegiate this year has six Ontario school scholars — students who have obtained 80 per cent on eight paper including English.

"Leading the class," said the principal, "was William Cunningham with first in all papers written, including 100 per cent in Algebra, for an average on nine papers of over 88 per cent."

Also having firsts in all papers was Diane Van Dusen. The other students having earned the right to be named Ontario scholars are Lillie Gibb, Linda Mayhew, Linda Pierce and Laurene Roblin.

Mr. Syrett said, "a number of students whose marks during the year were marginal ended up failing most or all of their subjects." In the opinion of the principal, the June examinations, taken all in all, were coped with much better by the leading students than by those who had previously scraped through during the year.

"From early returns it would appear that the number of graduates this year will be about the same as last, but the final figures will not be known for a month or more, pending the results of appeals submitted by a number of students."

TO AID FARMERS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives passed and sent to the Senate Thursday night an omnibus four-year farm bill. The bill would set up programs for production controls and price supports for wheat, feed grains, cotton, wool and dairying. It also would set up a new program for long-range contracts with farmers for diversion of surplus cropland to conservation and other non-production uses.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For August 21

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Emphasis on comfort, well-being. No time to go to extremes. Highlight moderation. Friends, neighbors not much help now. Depend upon your own judgment. Get needed rest.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Speak up where money is concerned. Find reasons. Fine day for purchase of gift. You now seem to have special awareness of true bargain. But don't invest without knowing all facts.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Necessary you seek cooperation of those in authority . . . also family members. Cycle remains high. But your morale may require a "boost." Don't argue with one close to you.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Intuition could provide proper guidance. But safer course is to check directions, correspondence, instructions. Tendency exists to be careless, impatient. Keep within rules, regulations.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Being "natural" your greatest asset now. Best not to strive too hard for recognition. Check tendency to spend, to be extravagant. Review budget, resolutions. Highlight simplicity.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Set. 22): Live up to responsibilities. Don't heed words of one who advises you to shirk duty. Important persons observe. Loved one bases respect on how you react to emergency.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Important to outline future program. Strive for knowledge. Fulfill potential. Sense of humor your great ally now. Avoid scattering forces. Finish what you start.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Question of buying and selling likely to arise. Take mate, partner into your confidence. Very important to be aware of details. Read between the lines.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Be aware of alliances. Know partnership, friendship, is two-way street. Key is maturity, practical knowledge. Avoid wishful thinking. Do plenty of listening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Many depend upon your judgment. Remain calm. Avoid unnecessary strain. Be sensible at party or celebration tonight. Don't be the last to leave.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Press forward where hobbies, creative interests are concerned. Day for self-expression, relaxation. Break away from routine. Evening features romance, possible travel.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Strengthen family ties. Be aware of true values. Fine for talk with real estate expert, visit to one confined. More responsibility due . . . you also can receive greater rewards.

Community Handicapped Assisted by Workshop

Over two years ago a young Belleville man, married and a father, was involved in a car accident and became paralyzed from the waist down.

For months and months, after getting out of the hospital, he sat around home brooding, not being able to do anything else.

Then it happened. He found a job, a useful job that he could do. With that job came his self-respect.

This is just one story of what the Sheltered Workshop of Belleville has given to many handicapped people in the community.

The Workshop was started two years ago by Neil Davidson, now Chairman of the Board for the Workshop. Mr. Davidson had seen a similar operation in Montreal and had suggested one for Belleville.

The Workshop is a profit-sharing, self-sustaining organization employing only physically handicapped people. It is located in the Kiwanis Centre on Dundas Street and was originated and sponsored by Kiwanis.

At their booth in the Industrial Building at the Belleville Fair, Workshop Manager Alexander Fedirka explained, "I was hired two years ago to start the Workshop and I went to Montreal for a familiarization course with their Workshop.

"We started here with three men and at the pre we fluctuate between six and eight men. We have a two-fold purpose at the Workshop; to rehabilitate workers who because of their handicaps have often lost their feeling of usefullness to the community, and to reassess and place these men in regular industry.

"We've had men come into the Workshop who were so wrapped up in their shell that they wouldn't speak to anyone. But after working here for a time, they regained their confidence and found jobs in regular industry.

"The Kiwanis Club helps us secure our work," he said. "We take sub-contracting jobs from local industries. We do light assembly, direct mailing, soldering, drilling, assembling packages and other light work.

"Right now we have 10 major contributors to the Workshop. They are Corbys, Mead Johnson, Deacon Brothers, Pidduti-Fabri, Northern Electric, Stewart Warner, Vagden Mills, Deloro Stellite, Stephens - Adamson and American Optical.

"The Sheltered Workshop gives people, who don't otherwise have a chance, the opportunity to get into regular industry and become useful citizens to the community again."

Sunday School Lesson

Football Player's Text

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

> The Uniform Sunday School lesson for August 22: "The Passions Of The Flesh," Galatians 5:13-26.

There is one text in the Bible that ought to appeal to every football player. It is Galatians 5:7 (RSV) "You were running well; who hindered you . . .?" The Greek word translated "hindered" is exactly the same word that could be used to express the felling of a tree. So Paul is saying, "You were running well; who felled you?" Or, in football language, "You were running well; who tackled you?"

Many forces try to tackle the person who tries to run in the game of life. There are forces of evil waiting to trip him. Sometimes he is tripped by his own physical desires. This is why self-control of one's physical passions is so important Paul used the language of athletics to describe the truth. "Every athlete," he wrote, "exercises self-control in all things." (I Corinthians 9:25 RSV) And he went on to say, "I do not run aimlessly, I do not box as one beating the air, but I pommel my body and subdue it, lest after preaching to others I myself should be disqualified." (I Corinthians 9:26-27 RSV)

NO GAME WITHOUT GOAL-POSTS

A quarterback is free to call any play he thinks will help to win the game, but neither he nor the other players are free to disregard the sidelines and goal-posts. Wipe out the sidelines, throw away the goalposts, and football would no longer be an exciting game. It would become only a mad and meaningless scramble. So it is in the game of life. The Christian is free to serve God in many ways, but he is not free to indulge his physical appetites without restraint. This is what Paul meant when he said, "You are called to freedom, brethren; only do not use your freedom as an opportunity for the flesh." (Galatians 5:13 RSV).

If one is to win in the game of life, he must remember that life has its goal-posts. And those goal-posts are spiritual. The physical senses are merely means of achieving spiritual goals. In marriage, for example, marriage without sex would be sadly incomplete; but if sex were made the goal, then the true goal of marital happiness and family life would be endangered. In economics, private enterprise gives the person the greatest freedom to carry on his business. But if competition becomes a cut-throat affair, everyone, including the businessman, suffers. Paul said this bluntly when he wrote, "If you bite and devour one another take heed that you are not consumed of one another." (Galatians 5:15 RSV)

THEY GO TOGETHER

Life has its physical and spiritual sides, and both are important. After all, God made man's physical desires. One can suppress them, and pretend they do not exist. Or he can indulge them, and make physical satisfaction an end in itself. Or he can enjoy them within the framework of the purpose for which they were made. Men were made to eat so they would grow, not so they would make pigs of themselves. People were given sexual desire so they could enjoy love at its deepest level within the marriage relationship, not so they can act like animals.

The tendency today is to tear down moral and spiritual goal-posts. The senses are calling the plays. Love, as someone has said, has been taken out of the treasury of the poets and put into a text-book on physiology. Books and entertainment are not popular unless they exalt sex and describe it in anatomical terms. Indulgence of all kind is encouraged. People are encouraged to make eating and drinking ends in themselves. All this is bound to lead to a cheapening of manhood and womanhood, the home, and life itself.

One evidence that the goal-posts are spiritual is that life lived only for the satisfaction of the senses leads to disgust and boredom. As one writer says, if life is lived only for physical satisfactions, one can get so fed up with that, he could spit at it. Life's deepest satisfactions come when the soul calls the signals and directs the plays.

Let the desires of the flesh get out of hand, and the game of life degenerates into such dirty plays as "immorality, impurity, licentiousness, idolatry, sorcery, enmity, strife, jealousy, anger, selfishness, dissensions, party spirit, envy drunkenness, carousing, and the like." (Galatians 5:19-21 RSV) Let the goal-posts be moral and spiritual, and the scoreborad registers victory for "love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, self-control." (Galatians 5:22-23 RSV) Against such gains, the Referee of the universe will never have to call a penalty.

ASTRONAUTS OFF ON 8-DAY VOYAGE

Police Patrol Athens After Heavy Rioting

ATHENS (AP)—Thousands of police backed by armored cars patrolled Athens today after two nights of rioting against King Constantine and Premier Elias Tsirimokos.

At least 157 persons were injured Friday night in a wild one-hour battle between 15,000 demonstrators and 5,000 police. Hours later, police hurled teargas bombs at scattered outbreaks of rioting.

A police official said it was the worst rioting in the Greek capital since the 1947-49 civil war.

Since July 21, riots by supporters of fallen premier George Papandreou have caused more than 500 injuries and resulted in the death of one student.

The street disorders started after the 25-year-old king fired Papandreou July 15 over a dispute on control of the armed forces.

Just before Friday night's riot, the king swore in Tsirimokos as premier.

SHOUT INSULTS

Demonstrators shouted insults against the royal family and 58-year-old Tsirimokos, who recently bolted from Papandreou's Centre Union party.

Tsirimokos indicated he will crack down on street protests during the parliamentary confidence debate on his government, scheduled to start Monday. Observers say Tsirimokos fears more rioting may result in a vote of no confidence.

The new premier toured the riot scene early today and made a personal plea to Papandreou to exert influence against "the downhill course to abnormality."

The government has forbidden street demonstrations but permits rallies in closed areas like stadiums and theatres. Friday night's trouble started when demonstrators left a theatre rally and tried to march on parliament.

Athens public prosecutor, Panayiotis Nikolodimos, said: "This is not rioting. This is an insurrection."

The demonstrators set bonfires and smashed shop windows.

Pearson Presses Button

By BOB EXELL

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson officially opened the Canadian National Exhibition Friday, pushing a button that activated a series of explosions and caused him to say he was happy to "produce an explosion which will not produce a controversy."

With that, the prime minister raised Canada's maple leaf flag over the CNE grounds and made a brief tour of the international building before being hurried off to a dry Expo '67 reception. He didn't even get a chance to see the midway.

Mr. Pearson had told several thousand persons gathered around the CNE bandshell for the opening ceremonies that he doubted whether today's kids had as much fun at the fair as he did as a boy growing up in Toronto.

Children are "more blase and choosey now," he said.

As a boy, Mr. Pearson came to the fair "clutching a few nickels for the day's celebrations." When he returned to open the 87th version of the CNE Friday, he offered a gift of federal financial support.

WILL AID GROWTH

Ottawa will help pay for a study to determine where the exhibition goes from here, and will assist in building new CNE projects to make the annual fair a "great national showplace," he said.

Departing from his prepared text, Mr. Pearson suggested that "undoubtedly other levels of government will wish to give support."

If his remark was meant for the Ontario government, it was in vain. Neither Premier John Robarts nor any of his cabinet ministers was on the platform to represent the province. Toronto Mayor Philip Givens introduced Mr. Pearson.

Today's Chuckle

A procrastinator is one who puts off until tomorrow the things he has already put off until today.

The Weather

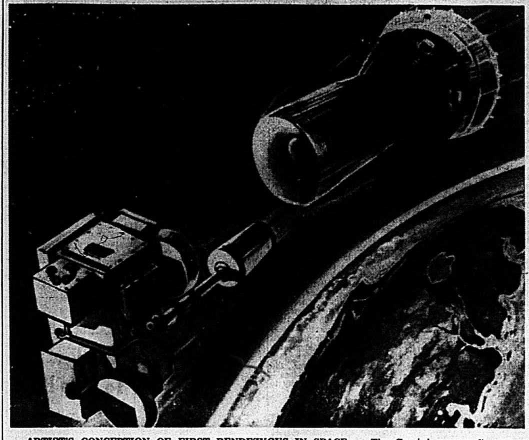
Synopsis — Cool weather is firmly entrenched over Ontario and temperatures both today and Sunday are expected to show little change from Friday's, when afternoon temperatures in the south were mostly in the low 70s and in Northern Ontario in the 60s. Scattered showers are likely to spread into southwestern Ontario some time Sunday in advance. of a. disturbance approaching the Great Lakes.

Job Corps Trainees Riot

MORGANFIELD, Ky. (AP)—A U.S. Job Corps spokesman says trouble at the Camp Breckinridge Centre — which fostered a 45-minute riot among 80 trainees Friday—apparently originates from "a certain protection racket (that) has been in operation for about two weeks."

At least 11 persons were injured.

Charles Preston, camp public relations director, added that the "protection racket and a rash of burglaries . . ." have brought FBI agents on to the post several times in the last few weeks.



ARTIST'S CONCEPTION OF FIRST RENDEZVOUS IN SPACE — The Gemini spacecraft pursues "Little Rascal," Radar Evaluation Pod, through the heavens in man's first attempt to rendezvous with another sattelite. Astronauts L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr. are scheduled to launch the "Little Rascal" on their second orbit, back about 52 miles away from it, and then try to manoeuvre within 20 feet of it by using a radar system. Associated Press artist John Carleton depicts this manoeuvre.

Slow, Painful Process Of Repair In Low Gear In Riot-torn City

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The slow, painful process of social and material reconstruction ground along in low gear today in riot-devastated Watts, but political leaders still sparred over many questions of how to do what and when.

A special commission appointed by Governor Edmund Brown sought the cause of six days of violent rioting in which 36 persons died.

Some 3,000 national guardsmen remain on duty.

Mayor Samuel Yorty blasted the commission and religious leaders demanded action.

Yorty complained bitterly Friday about Brown's blue-ribbon commission, saying an appointed Negro minister "was among the first to blame the police for the riots."

Yorty declared that Rev. James Edward Jones, a member of the Los Angeles board of education, "will be given a forum to attack the police department."

In Sacramento, however, an aide to the governor said: "It's ridiculous to think you could find any eight people in Los Angeles without any opinions about last week's riots. The governor chose these commissioners because he knows they have the integrity to make fair judgements based on fact, not on any opinions they may hold."

In Washington, President Johnson told a conference on equal employment opportunity Friday that "a rioter with a Molotov cocktail in his hands is not fighting for civil rights any more than a Klansman with a sheet on his back and a mask on his face."

"They are both more or less what the law declares them, law-breakers, destroyers of constitutional rights and liberties that would ultimately destroy a free America. They must be exposed and dealt with."

City council entered the fray Friday in a heated dispute over its own role in investigating the riot. When the shouting subsided, two resolutions asked a committee to suggest what the council might do.

The Board of Rabbis and Council of Churches of Southern California and the Roman Catholic Human Relations Council of Los Angeles issued a joint statement, which read in part:

"The mayor, the police commission and the police chief (should) initiate consultations with skilled human relations personnel and community leaders for development of a broad program . . . to improve community-police attitudes."

Earlier estimates of damage were scaled down from $200,000,000 to slightly more than $45,000,000.

Loot recovered in the last few days is piling up at police stations.

'Easy-going' Deputy Sheriff Admits Slaying White Student

HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (AP)—A part-time deputy sheriff described by friends as "an easy-going, good fellow," is being held today on murder charges in the slaying of a white theology student.

The student and a Roman Catholic priest, both here for summer civil-rights work, were gunned down with an automatic shotgun Friday on a gravel lane outside a weather-beaten grocery store.

The priest is in hospital in "very critical" condition.

Police said Tom Coleman, about 55, a grandfather and the father of a highway patrolman, turned himself in a short time later and admitted the slaying.

He was charged with first-degree murder and jailed without bond. A county official said a grand jury probably will consider the charge in September.

The clergymen were shot a few minutes after they were released from the Lowndes County jail. They were arrested last week during a civil rights demonstration at Fort Deposit, a nearby community.

The dead man was Jonathan Daniels, 27, who had completed two years of a three-year course at the Episcopal (Anglican) Theological School in Cambridge, Mass.

Critically wounded was Father Richard Morrisroe, 26, assistant pastor at St. Columbanus Church in Chicago. He was taken to a Montgomery hospital where two teams of doctors operated on him in shifts Friday night.

Daniels, licenced to wear a clerical collar although he was not an ordained priest, was engaged in civil-rights work for the Episcopal Society for Cultural and Racial Unity which has headquarters in Atlanta.

He was valedictorian of his graduating class at Virginia Military Institute in 1961.

Sheriff Frank Ryals said he understands the two were shot after Coleman went to the store, a one-storey frame structure about 500 yards from the county courthouse, to check a report of a disturbance.

Ryals said he was out of town at the time, and could not give a detailed account.

However, a Negro girl, Ruby Sales of Columbus, Ga., said she and three other Negroes had been released from jail with the two men and were with them when they were shot.

Gemini Safely Lifted Aloft By Titan Rocket

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Two United States astronauts rode a Titan 2 rocket skyward today, aiming for an eight-day orbital flight that would wrest the space endurance record from Russia.

The tall rocket flashed to life at 10 a.m. EDT, briefly shrouding its launch stand in a dense cloud of rust-colored smoke. Then the 165-ton projectile thundered aloft.

Astronauts L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr. hoped to remain up 192 hours, breaking the record of 119 hours, six minutes, set by Russian cosmonaut Valery Bykovsky June 14, 1963.

If they succeed, they will have been in space long enough to fly to the moon, explore its surface and return to earth. And, if all goes well, they will accomplish the first known rendezvous with another orbiting satellite.

The launching was observed by thousands of persons lining Atlantic beaches and other vantage points in the Cape Kennedy area, and by television viewers.

Among those who watched breathlessly from the cape were Mrs. Cooper and the two Cooper daughters, Camala, 16, and Janita, 15.

Mrs. Conrad watched on TV at her Houston, Tex., home with the three Conrad boys.

PATTERN IN SKY

After 20 seconds, the Titan headed over to the northeast and sped out over the Atlantic. As the red-hot exhaust penetrated the cold upper air, a trail of white vapor fanned out behind and was twisted into a curly-cue pattern by high-altitude winds.

As the rocket zipepd above 35,000 feet, three jet planes streaked in behind it and added their vapor trail to that already in the sky. The planes, which carried cameras to photograph the rising rocket, created sonic booms that sent loud thunderclaps rolling over the cape and startled visitors not accustomed to such high-altitude antics.

Slightly more than two minutes after liftoff, the first stage of the Titan 2 booster rocket separated and the second ignited. The second-stage thrust looked normal.

Three minutes, 30 seconds into the flight, the control centre reported all systems functioning perfectly. Telemetry data showed the rocket was moving along exactly in the planned trajectory.

Joe Verlander, launch director for the Martin company, told reporters the count on the Gemini 5 mission was "the smoothest one so far" in this program, the semi-final series of flights before the Apollo program takes Americans to the moon.

Astronauts L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr. were awakened at 5:30 a.m. and by 7:07 were climbing into their space suits and everything was ticking along right on schedule.

Frustrated Thursday by stormy weather and equipment troubles, crew members were determined to make this shot a good one.

As dawn broke, a large bank of fluffy white cumulus clouds was visible over the Atlantic

Canada Urges Parley

By BORIS MISKEW

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Canada has urged the United Nations to convene "special pledging conferences" this fall to help the world organization reduce its peacekeeping deficit.

Ambassador Paul Tremblay, Canada's permanent representative at the UN, told the 33-member special committee on peacekeeping operations Friday the way should be now clear for support of the voluntary campaign by all United Nations members.

Referring to Monday's statement by U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg who had announced the United States would no longer seek application of UN charter penalties depriving countries two years in arrears on peacekeeping assessments of their assembly voting rights, Tremblay said:

"We believe . . . that an appeal for funds should be launched as soon as possible. In order to dramatize the appeal, might it not be desirable to organize one or possibly two pledging conferences, to be held, perhaps, in September or October?"

The Canadian ambassador pointed out that Canada has already pledged $4,000,000, adding that pledges by Britain, the Scandinavian countries and Jamaica will bring the voluntary contribution to $18,000,000.

Secretary-General U Thant has estimated the UN peacekeeping deficit at more than $100,000,000.

Marine Casualties 4 Per Cent In Two-Day Battle, Viet Cong's 66 Per Cent

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP) —About one per cent of the U.S. marines who took part in the two-day battle against the Viet Cong on the Van Tuong Peninsula were killed and about three per cent were wounded, Lt.-Gen. Victor Krulak, marine commander in the Pacific, said today.

He said about three quarters of those wounded suffered light injuries.

He gave no numbers, but said:

"We can say, though, that by Korea or (Second) World War standards, the casualties were light, but I don't want to take it lightly," he said.

". . . You can't equate flesh and blood with achievements in terms of the inspiration that this victory has given our side or the damage done to the enemy," Krulak told a press conference at Da Nang.

He did not say how many marines were involved in the operation that hit the peninsula, 330 miles northeast of Saigon, by sea and air Wednesday.

But military spokesmen said the attack involved a regimental landing force which usually numbers 5,000 to 6,000 men.

Reuters news agency reports that some individual U.S. units are known to have sustained heavy losses.

By accounts of marine officers, more than three-fourths of the 2,000 Viet Cong in the area were killed, wounded or captured.

Krulak confirmed that the marines killed more than 500 Viet Cong.

"The last figure (of Viet Cong killed) was 564. I would say this is an incomplete figure."

He said 108 prisoners were taken, but it has not been determined how many are Viet Cong and how many are Viet Cong suspects.

He said the operation went off "extremely well."

"They (the Viet Cong) did not stand up under the power of our supporting arms, nor certainly under the individual aggressiveness of the marines," he said.

The general also revealed that "weapons of Russian design, probably Chinese manufactured," were taken from Viet Cong bodies.

In Washington, a U.S. official estimated that as many as 1,000 Viet Cong may have been killed. He based this estimate on reports that with only half the battle area searched, 451 bodies had been counted.

As marines continued their mop-up operation of the peninsula Friday, a marine spokesman in Saigon said the leathernecks still were encountering sniper fire. He said the area had been the stronghold of the 1st Viet Cong Regiment, "one of the toughest."

Sentences at Auschwitz Trials Draw Mixture of Reactions

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Accountably, the prison sentences announced at the conclusion of the long and exhausting Auschwitz trials in Frankfurt have drawn a mixture of world reaction.

Some countries, principally those whose citizens became the victims of Nazi brutality, feel the sentences are insufficient. Others suggest West Germany has once more demonstrated a sense of justice and remorse.

Undoubtedly, hundreds of officials had to co-operate fully to allow the Auschwitz camp directors to carry out the destruction of such vast numbers of humans. Of these co-operators 20 were placed on trial with only six of them drawing life sentences at hard labor—the maximum sentence under existing West German law.

Eleven were given lesser terms and three were found not guilty because of lack of evidence. There is no evidence that those who drew the maximum terms have shown any signs of remorse or regret over their wartime activities. A common defence was that they either did not know what was going on in their death factories or that they were mere cogs in the machine and that to have disobeyed Hitler's orders would have meant death.

LONGEST TRIAL

To bring these men to trial required almost five years of complex investigation involving statements by some 1,300 persons. The trial itself was the longest in West German criminal history, starting Dec. 20, 1963, and entailing evidence by 359 witnesses.

In terms of the crimes committed, the punishment meted out at Frankfurt may have little meaning. But the Auschwitz trials did help impress on the world the authenticity of the Allies' charges of Nazi bestiality and provided a record for future generations of Germans who may wonder and question stories of German aberrations during the darkest period of German history.

And the Auschwitz trials do not, of course, end the prospect that more Nazis may be unearthed to face justice.

LAW EXTENDED

Over the last 20 years the Germans have convicted 80,000 war criminals. There still are some 13,800 cases to be completed. The law of limitations has been extended to reduce the possibility of escape from murder charges.

In addition, the West German government has provided huge sums of money to ease the financial plight of those still alive and who have suffered as a result of the Nazi atrocities.

The punishments and the indemnification may be of little use to erase memories of Nazi horrors. There are indications the bulk of the German people would like to see an end to the continuing recollection of an embarrassing episode.

The exchange of ambassadors between West Germany and Israel may perhaps be a step in that direction. But the outburst by some Israelis against the arrival of the West German ambassador may be an indication that bitter memories may linger for many more years.

Twin Double Winner Faces Tax Charge

NEW YORK (AP)—The winner of a $98,237 twin double was accused Friday of hiring a stand-in to cash his ticket so he could escape the federal income-tax bite.

The winner was identified by federal authorities as Irving Fishman, 30, father of four children. A truck driver, he has not worked since he made his big score at Yonkers Raceway last Nov. 12.

To win the twin double, a bettor must select the winner of four specified consecutive races. The winning post positions of Fishman's horse was 5-5-7-4 and the payoff on his $2 ticket was the eighth largest twin on record at a harness track.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert G. Morvillo said Fishman paid a stand-in, whom he did not identify, to cash his winning ticket. The name the stand-in provided went into Internal Revenue Service files, as is customary when a big bet is cashed.

Fishman was released in $5,000 bail by U.S. Commissioner Earle N. Bishop for arraignment later on tax-fraud charges. Conviction carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Russians Warm Up To Turks

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—A year ago the Soviet government issued a statement that added an ominous new dimension to the crisis then brewing in the eastern Mediterranean.

Replying to an appeal from President Makarios, the Kremlin boldly declared that if Cyprus were invaded the Soviet Union would help the Republic of Cyprus defend "her freedom and independence."

The warning was clearly intended for Turkey. The world then was waiting anxiously for a possible Turkish invasion of the island, torn by strife between the Greek-Cypriot majority and the Turkish-Cypriot minority.

The Soviet press carried indignant articles about the "barbarous bombing" of Greek villages in Cyprus by Turkish air craft. A few days ago, Turkish Prime Minister S. H. Urguplu was in Moscow receiving a red-carpet welcome and Soviet newspapers were vying with one another in flowery platitudes about the growing warmth of Russian-Turkish relations.

NOT A WORD NOW

Cyprus was not even mentioned by Soviet leaders in public statements connected with the first visit by a Turkish prime minister in 33 years.

Urguplu showed no such restraint. In an outspoken speech at a Turkish embassy luncheon, he charged that law and order in Cyprus based on international agreements are "unceremoniously violated and attempts are made towards the actual and juridical annihilation of the Turkish community."

His Soviet guests, including Premier Alexei Kosygin, could only wince at this caustic reference to the latest Makarios manoeuvre—the stripping of certain constitutional guarantees from Turkish-Cypriots.

Even at the United Nations, the U.S.S.R. failed to take the side of the Makarios government. The Soviet delegate there said Russia stood for a solution protecting the rights of all Cypriots — significantly including those of Turkish blood.

WHAT CAUSED SWITCH?

Observers here see at least two primary factors in Russia's intriguing about-face on Cyprus:

1. Russia's stance of last year jeopardized its campaign to improve relations with Turkey, pursued in recent years. Designed partly to weaken NATO's southern flank politically, this campaign is also part of a wider effort to improve relations with all countries on the southern border of the Soviet Union, including Iran, Afghanistan and Pakistan in addition to Turkey.

All the countries except Afghanistan, are members of Western-oriented defence pacts.

2. Russia may have come to fear it was getting in over its head with its support of the ambitious and determined Makarios; that it could be drawn into another Viet Nam dilemma, threatening a confrontation with the West in an area where Russia has no immediate power.

How the gains and losses of Russia's policy switch stack up makes for interesting speculation. There have been reports that the Greek government, for one, doesn't like it at all.

The Greeks are said to feel that Russia pulled the rug from under them in their dealings with Turkey and in their efforts to bring about unification of Cyprus with Greece.

Two Area U.S. Marines Met at 'Boot' Camp and Had 'Hitch' in Viet Nam

L/CPL GARTH SANGSTER

Pfc JOHN BONTER

TRENTON — Two young Canadian adventurers from the Quinte district found the excitement they were looking for while serving with the U.S. Marines in Viet Nam.

Lance Corporal Garth Sangster, 21, of Trenton and Private First Class John Bonter, 19, of Carrying Place are back in Canada on 30 days leave after a seven month "hitch" with the same infantry unit in southeast Asia. In army jargon they "hit the beach" the same day with the first 1,500 American combat troops that went ashore at the big Da Nang base.

It was by coincidence rather than previous arrangement that Lance Corporal Sangster met Pfc Bonter at "boot" camp (basic training centre) in South Carolina.

Previously they had never been acquainted. Earlier, however, they had crossed the border at different points with the same idea in mind. They had obtained visas for the purpose of seeking work on the other side. Instead, as it turned out, each made his own way to the closest recruiting office and "signed on" for four years.

In the series of events that led up to their meeting weeks passed before either discovered he was a near neighbor back in Canada. Both agree they were restless at home and yearned for the same things — actions and the opportunity to travel.

WOULD GO BACK

In the two years since they enlisted they've become war veterans and criss-crossed the Pacific in company with young service men of various nationalities and beliefs. And they both said they would go back ti Viet Nam regardless of the extreme heat, mosquitoes in the millions and the unpredictable loyalty of south Vietnamese villagers. "We'd like to even the score for the buddies we lost over there," explained Corporal Sangster who believes the United States forces can turn the tide for the government and stop the spread of communism in that part of the world.

From the stories these two young marines tell about their experiences the basics of waging war have not changed. It's still a 95 per cent waiting game.

Guard duty on an airfield perimeter and menial tasks around the permanent camp took up a lot of their time. It wasn't until they were assigned to a five-day patrol they faced the grim reality of hunting for and being hunted by a cunning enemy.

Armored helicopters carried them to areas where guerillas were reported to be operating. Continuously on the move they searched hills, dried up river beds, rice paddies along trails that took them through dense jungles. Constant danger of ambush was present at all times. They soon learned to resect traps primitive by modern comparison but deadly in effect. The natives call them punji pits.

SET TRAPS

The Viet Cong set them for unsuspecting victims, similar to the way natives procure wild animals for eating. Needle sharp bamboo sticks dipped in poison are fixed in the bottom of a hole dug in the ground and camouflaged beside a travelled pathway. The skewers could pierce the thick sole of an army boot which prompted ordnance experts to provide "foot sloggers" with steel reinforced footwear. But the only defence against buried mines and boobytraps was caution and probing doubtful ground with a bayonet on the end of a rifle. One mine killed two marines and wounded 13 others when Sangster and Bonter were out on patrol with them.

Scorpions and giant leeches add to the discomfort soldiers from the northern hemisphere have to contend with. After one trip into the jungle Pfc Bonter watched motor crewmen help a fellow infantryman remove more than a dozen three-inch-long bloodsuckers clinging to his body. Some of the worms hung on stubbornly through the soldier's clothing. Heat and humidity created more problems for medics to treat.

Once while the local "boys" were there the temperature soared to 127 degrees. Marines on patrol fell like flies from prostration, Corp. Sangster recalled. He treated his drinking water with pills but Pfc Bonter blames contamination to blood poisoning he suffered in one hand and subsequent confinement in hospital for three days.

PRISONERS SCRUFFY

Prisoners brought in for interrogation looked scruffy. Weapons cached for them were found secreted in huts in villages and caves in the hills. Some were communist manufactured, some had belonged to South Vietnamese, the VC either killed or captured defending government outposts earlier.

On the less serious side Pfc Bonter actually celebrated Christmas in Viet Nam six months late. The parcel his mother sent from Trenton in November reached him in June. The arrival of "goodies" to supplement army rations was considered a special occasion which called for a party. This event was enjoyed by those G.I's who sampled the gift, needless to say.

L. Cpl. Sangster is the son of Station Warrant Officer and Mrs. John Sangster of RCAF Station Trenton. He attended commercial classes at Belleville Collegiate Institute for three years. An enthusiastic golfer he missed the game during his overseas tour with the Leathernecks. "I was lucky to get in some practice on the beautiful 18-hole course on Okinawa where my outfit stopped, returning to the United States," he said. And what do you think Garth catches up on most these days? Sleep first, regular home cooked meals and of course, golf.

Oldest son of the late Weddell and Mrs. Francis Bonter, R.R. 4, Trenton, Pfc Bonter looks forward to continuing service with the U.S. army. One reason in particular, he's been recommended for promotion effective on return to duty at Camp Pendleton in California.

Fined $400, Costs on Two Liquor Charges

TRENTON — Cecil Belnap of 193 Marmora Street, pleaded guilty in Trenton magistrate's court yesterday to a charge of keeping liquor for sale and to a further charge of selling liquor to a person under the age of 21. He was fined $300 on the first count, a second offence and $100 on the second and ordered to pay $27 court costs.

Belnap's home at 193 Marmora Street was declared a public place, even though he explained to Magistrate T. Y. Wills that he "only boarded there."

"The liquor was sold from the premises," said the magistrate.

Constable Jack Graham told the court that he and two other policemen, in company with two OPP officers from Brighton searched the house at 193 Marmora Street in the early morning house of June 27, a Sunday, and found several cases of ale, wine and whisky. The list was lengthy.

"A bit deleted from the weekend trade," remarked the magistrate.

Belnap was charged with selling a case of beer to Gerald Anderson, of Film Street, age 19, for $5, approximately twice the retail value.

"A hundred per cent profit," said the magistrate.

Accused Must Sign Bond To Keep Peace

TRENTON — In magistrate's court at Trenton on Friday, 20-year-old Ronald Albert Yeatman was placed on a year's suspended sentence by Magistrate T. Y. Wills after he pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the Subway Lunch and to three charges of stealing money from Globe and Mail newspaper boxes in town. The money taken has been returned.

Gerald Arsenault, 19, charged with breaking and entering with intent, the Weese Motors' premises, pleaded guilty at a previous court session and Friday his present suspended sentence was continued because the magistrate said he wanted to give him "one more chance."

Arsenault must sign a $100 bond and may not own or have any interest in a motor vehicle for two years. He must maintain steady employment, support his wife and family, report at two weeks' intervals to probation officer Dennis Atkins and must not associate with persons who have known criminal records. He was also advised by the magistrate to co-operate with the probation officer or anyone else who might help him with his liquor problem.

353 Persons In Hospital During July

TRENTON — Thirty four of the 353 persons admitted to Trenton Memorial Hospital during the month of July came from Prince Edward County, and 224 from Hastings County. Other admissions were from Murray Township and others from various Canadian communities.

In her monthly report released today, hospital administrator Miss Hazel Naudett notes that 14 deaths occurred in the institution in July and 47 babies were born.

Operations were up last month with 57 major and 53 minor operations being performed.

In the out patients' department, 1,672 patients were treated and 836 emergencies were handled.

X-ray totalled 540 and 794 patients received physiotherapy treatment.

Tests done in the hospital totalled 11,219 while 378 tests were sent out to other laboratories. Electrocardiograph tests totalled 552 and eight basal metabolism tests were taken.

IN MEMORIAM

DOLDER — In loving memory of a dear mother, Ellen Dolder, who passed away August 21st, 1958.

At the pathway's end is an open gate,
Through which our loved ones go,
To a place of far more peace and joy,
Than we could ever know,
Our loving Father was waiting there,
To give her strength and rest.
May we, then, find our comfort,
In the thought that God knows best.

—Lovingly remembered by daughter Doris, son-in-law Jack and family.

ROSE — In loving memory of my dear husband Harry who passed away August 22, 1960.

You left memories to blossom,
Bearing fruit for years to come,
In the lives of those who loved you,
Precious memories of days that are gone.

—Sadly missed by wife Pearl and family.

DOLDER — In loving memory of my dear wife, Ellen Dolder, who passed away, suddenly on August 21, 1958. She was well loved and will be sadly missed by so many relatives and friends who knew her so well.

As I sit here all alone,
And think of you each day,
With farewells left unspoken,
You quickly passed away,
God took you away from us,
And though we miss you still,
He blesses and He comforts you,
For this it was His will.

—Ever remembered by your loving husband Herbert Edward.

GRAY — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Henry Gray who passed away August 21, 1963.

—Always remembered by wife and families.

CLEVELAND — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, L. Frank Cleveland, who passed away August 22, 1962.

When evening shades are falling,
And I sit in quiet alone,
To my heart there comes a longing,
If he only could come home,
Friends may think I have forgotten,
When at times they see me smile,
But they little know the heartache,
That smiles hide all the while.

—Sadly missed and always remembered by wife Helen and family.

CARDS OF THANKS

Playground Activities

RETARDED CHILDREN'S PLAYGROUND

Wednesday August 18 the children visited the Belleville fair. They visited the craft display. The children were very pleased to see the crafts made by them throughout the summer. The chuckwagon races thrilled everybody and will be long remembered. They talked enthusiastically about the Roman riders and the speedy chariot races.

Mr. Bobby Hull shook hands and signed autographs with all the children and kindly posed for pictures with the children. They toured the cattle stalls and horse barns. After going on a couple of rides the children were taken home after a busy but exciting day.

Thursday August 19, the Retarded Children returned to the fair. Mr. Sullivan from the Conklin Midway accompanied them through the midway generously giving the children many thrilling rides. Before going home they had hamburgers, hot dogs, chips, drinks and a large bag of caramel popcorn. They were beginning to believe that Christmas is in August. Transportation to and from playground was supplied by Mrs. Russell, Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. A. Parkhurst. This outing was supervised by Mrs. Audrey Parkhurst, Miss Barbara Lang, Miss Chris MacDonald, Miss Angela Murray, Miss Patricia Barkley, Mrs. Bone, Mrs. Russell, and Brenda Stanley.

Friday August 20 was a very sad day as it was the last day of the summer playground for another season. The children made envelopes and placed the summers crafts inside them to take home as souvenirs. As this is our last write up we would like to take this opportunity to thank Roblin Dairy for donating milk for the 8 weeks of the playground. Also a thanks is extended to the Kinsmen for the use of their pool during the summer months. Appreciation is given to anyone who helped in making this playground a success. Playground supervisor: Mrs. Audrey Parkhurst.

Around the 'Cat'

On Thursday afternoon the women of the Lawn Bowling Club held their matches and a rink of Mrs. Vera McIntosh, Mrs. Lil Mascaro with Mrs. Thelma Fitzgibbon as skip, won the high score with a rink of Mrs. Genevieve Gallagher, Mrs. Laura Hyde with Mrs. Carm Mott as skip in second place.

At the social hour after the games Miss Winnie Smith and Mrs. Anne Avery were the tea hostesses.

Three rinks of women's doubles journeyed to Stirling on Friday afternoon where 12 rinks gathered to enjoy a tournament sponsored by the Stirling club. Rinks were present from Peterborough, Brighton, Madoc, Campbellford, Trenton and Belleville.

Mrs. Lil Mascaro and Mrs. Grace Clapp from the local club won the one-game high count, while Mrs. Lil Ashley and Mrs. Lil Hermon won the no-game high. Another rink from the city, Mrs. Anne Avery and Mrs. Mildred Smith won the two games but did not make the prize list.

Aptitude Tests Will Be Made Compulsory

TORONTO (CP) — University entrance aptitude tests, used for many years in the United States will be compulsory for applicants to the first year of an undergraduate course at the University of Toronto next year.

The test was established many years ago by the college entrance board in the United States.

In 1966 students applying to the University of Toronto during their last year of high school will be required to write it as well as their Grade 13 examinations.

McMaster University in Hamilton has been conducting experiments with the aptitude test but officials have not yet decided whether to make it compulsory next year.

Queen's University in Kingston has a committee considering the aptitude test.

Registrar Jean Royce of Queen's said use of the entrance test probably would become general practice in Ontario universities in the next few years. Miss Royce made it clear she was not speaking officially for the universities.

Robin Ross, registrar of the University of Toronto, said his university would use the test mainly to assist in making provisional acceptances to its freshman year before the results of the Grade 13 examinations became available.

Harry Alford, Retired Excise Officer, Dies

Dr. Harry Franklin Alford, First World War veteran in the Dental Corps, former Customs and Excise Officer died in the Belleville General Hospital on Friday afternoon after an long illness.

Dr. Alford was born in this city, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter Alford, and he lived his entire life with the exception of the war years in this community. He was educated in the public and high schools of the city, and although he never practised his profession, graduated as a dentist from the College of Dental Surgeons at the University of Toronto in 1915.

He immediately entered the service in the First Great War as a captain in the Canadian Army Dental Corps, and served with distinction in the Mediterranean zone and in England, receiving his discharge in 1918. A short time later he was appointed to the Customs and Excise branch of the civil service and for 35 years was a valued member of the Belleville office, retiring in 1956.

Dr. Alford never lost his love for the army and shortly after returning from overseas joined the Argyll Light Infantry Regiment, a militia unit, and rose to the rank of Major and second in command. At the outbreak of the Second World War he again offered his services and was appointed to the district headquarters in Kingston and served for the duration. In all his military life he was highly respected by the officers of his regiments and the men under his command.

In his retirement years he joined the editorial staff of The Intelligencer as writer of the "Looking Backward" column, and did an outstanding job. His knowledge of the city in its younger days and of its former citizens made for interesting reading in the column.

Dr. Alford was a member of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, and when health permitted was most interested and active in the work of the Brotherhood of Anglican Churchmen. In the social life of the city he was a member of the Belleville Club.

Dr. Alford was a man of quiet nature but enjoyed the friendship of a wide circle in every walk of life and his death will be sincerely regretted.

He is survived by his wife, the former Laura Russell Coulter; one step-son, Robert P. Coulter of Rhodesia, South Africa, and one step-daughter, Mrs. Shirley Ann Martin, of Toronto. Also surviving are five grandchildren.

The funeral for Dr. Alford will be held from the John R. Bush Funeral Home on Monday afternoon, at 2.00 p.m. with Archdeacon A. S. McConnell officiating and with interment in the family plot at the Belleville cemetery.

Obituary

MRS. NATHAN BRONSON

Mrs. Etta Leola Bronson of R. R. 4, Madoc, died yesterday in the Peterborough Civic Hospital in her 67th year. She had been in failing health for the past three years.

Born in Worthington, Minnesota, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kirk, she came to Madoc 45 years ago from Rockwell City, Iowa, where she received her education. Mrs. Bronson was a member of the Wesleyan Methodist Church, Madoc, and taught for many years at the Spry Settlement Sunday School. A member of the Madoc Women's Institute she was quite well known and highly respected in the area.

Mrs. Bronson is survived by her husband, Nathan; four sons, Melverne and Grant of Madoc, Verle of Peterborough, and Donlon of Brockville; one sister, Mrs. E. (Ella) Summerfield of Rockwell City; two brothers, Philo Kirk of Rockwell City, and Tobias Kirk of Redwood City, California; 12 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. One sister and five grandchildren predeceased her.

Resting at the MacKenzie Funeral Home, Madoc. Funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

Spectacular Car Collision Not Serious

A spectacular two-car crash at Bridge and George Streets Friday afternoon was less serious than it looked.

A mother and daughter were slightly injured when cars driven by William Pearce, 31, 55 Emily Street, and Albert John Veltman, 55, Consecon, collided at the intersection. The Veltman car rolled over.

Mrs. Pearce and her four-year-old daughter, Patricia, were treated for cuts and bruises.

Diplomatic Retreat

Russia has won a diplomatic victory with he American retreat over unpaid peacekeeping ssessments.

For years Russia has not contributed a ngle ruble toward the maintenance of United ations units in the Congo and elsewhere.

France and 11 other countries similarly have efused to contribute and the deficit now totals ore than $100,000,000.

The U.S. retreat, announced by Ambassador rthur J. Goldberg, means that another blow has een struck at the effectiveness of the United ations as an instrument of world order. It eans that the United States will not invoke rticle 19 of the UN Charter which provides that member country will lose its vote in the ssembly if it falls two years behind in payment ssessments.

It may well be that the world organization as seen the last of its international-peace-eeping forces, apart from those now based in yprus and the Middle East. Even the United tates, according to Mr. Goldberg, is reserving he right to refuse to pay assessments if it feels trong and compelling reasons exist for doing ."

Jap Economy Slows

Recent reports of heavy Japanese investment new industries in British Columbia seem out line with comment in U.S. News and World eport that there is no longer talk about "econmic miracles" in Japan these days.

Noting that Japan's industrial output has een on a plateau since early last autumn, the agazine says no upturn is foreseen for a year longer and some authorities fear a recession ay be near.

Behind this turn of events, the magazine ntinues, lies a story of financial manoeuvring.

"Japan used large amounts of foreign capil, mostly American, to build up and modernize er industries. Fearing domination by outside terests, the Japanese tended to discourage rect investment by U.S. companies or sales of ock outside Japan. Instead, they relied mainly selling bonds in the U.S. and Europe and on rrowing from American and European banks.

"Serious flaws first began to show up in July 963, when the U.S. announced plans for an terest-equalization tax on foreign securities rchased by Americans. The threat of this x, actually applied in 1964, stalled sales of panese bonds in the U.S."

If all this weighed heavily on the Japanese onomy at home it certainly did not place a rb on Jap developments in Canada, particularly the west coast.

Concluding its article on a more optimistic te, U.S. News and World Report says: "Actually, Japanese exports are one of the bright spots an otherwise bleak picture. They were up 37 er cent in the first five months of 1965, comared with 1964. Spending by Japanese nsumers also remains brisk."

Gunfire in Toronto

Without decrying the courage and resourcelness of the Toronto policemen who apprehendd a man who broke into a downtown sporting oods store and held them at bay for 45 minutes ith a shotgun there was surely too much of the ollywood touch about the whole affair.

No fewer than 50 policemen, led by Chief ames Mackey, hunched down behind cars trying get the man to surrender. Chief Mackey vice warned his men not to shoot unless they ad to, but a shotgun blast—the third—from the an in the store was the signal for a general arrage from the police.

"He has asked for it," a detective was uoted as saying, and he emptied his revolver to the store while a uniformed officer beside im fired five shots. In other words, from the me of the third shotgun blast it seems Chief ackey was no longer in control.

Miraculously the man in the store was not it and he was eventually flushed out with tear as. The same job might just as easily have een done by six men or less using only tear gas. s it turned out, it was more like something ut of The Untouchables or Chicago in the wenties than quiet, relatively law-abiding oronto.

Just imagine, here were fifty men amassed gainst some poor deluded soul in a store across e street. More than 25 shots were fired at im—probably 25 too many in the circumances.

Regulating Heart's Rhythm Can Be Done Various Ways

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please discuss heart rhythm and sinus rhythm. I understand there are two methods of correcting faulty rhythm: by medication or by electric shock, and I am particularly interested in the latter. Is it a permanent restoration, etc.? — Mrs. E. H.

The whole story of how the heart beats is, as you may well guess, a rather complicated one. However, a regular impulse arises in the sino-auricular node in the upper part of the heart.

This impulse is transmitted, via nerves, to the heart muscle, telling it when to contract, or "beat."

The sinus rhythm is the rate and regularity of this impulse as it appears in the sino-auricular node.

If the sinus rhythm is abnormal, or if the impulse originates from another source, the first method of correction usually is with drugs (quinidine, digitalis, procaineamide, etc.). Very often this keeps the heart beating at a suitable rate.

But if the faulty condition is protracted, or of life-endangering proportions, then an electrical method called cardioversion may be used. Essentially this is a system of applying regularly - timed electrical impulses so that the body's mechanism is guided and helped into returning to the proper rhythm.

A "pacemaker" is used for certain excessively slow rates, so that the frequency of the electric impulses and their strength are precisely controlled.

For varying purposes, electrodes may be taped to the chest and back, or in other cases, may be implanted inside the chest, to place the impulse as close as possible to the spot where it is needed.

For people who need continuous stimulation of heart rhythm small battery-operated "pacemakers" can be implanted entirely beneath the skin. The batteries only require changing at intervals of months or years.

In other instances, temporary use of such electrical stimulation can bring the heart back to normal rhythm.

Restoration of normal rhythm by this type of cardioversion may or may not be permanent, again depending on the basic cause of the disorder.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 72 and had a double hernia operation last December. Doctor's orders were to work very little around the house and garden for six months. This I have done.

Even without exertion sometimes symptoms develop as before the operation. Possibly I should allow more time for healing. What should I do? — J. W. C.

Your six months is up. If you really had a recurrence of either hernia, I am sure that you would have trouble with exertion, and in particular would feel a bulging in the area. To allay your concern, consult your doctor. It is not too uncommon for people to worry, or to be unwilling to believe that the healing has been complete.

Dear Dr. Molner: Should a 20-month-old baby be given a raw egg every day? I have read that the white is harmful. — Mrs. E. A.

There's no reason to avoid the white of the egg. However, there can be a hazard in a raw egg, since it can contain germs that produce dysentery.

My advice is to soft-boil the egg, or, if the shell is cracked, to cook it thoroughly.

Jean - Baptiste Bernadotte, one of Napoleon's chief generals, was elected crown prince of Sweden 155 years ago today—in 1810—and ascended the throne eight years later as Charles XIV on the death of the childless Charles XIII. His departure to Sweden probably suited Napoleon, since Bernadotte was a fine soldier but cast a cool eye at politics. For example, one of his battle orders complimented the enemy on their bravery. Bernadotte proved a popular monarch and founded the present royal house of Sweden.

Conversation A Lost Art

North Bay Nugget

These are days when "flip" conversation is prevalent in our way of life. The pun, the wisecrack, the needle — all come in for full use during day-to-day existence. Serious conversation and discussion seems to be on the wane.

We suggest there should be more debates and panel discussions. And they do not need to be on television. Service clubs, for instance, instead of having guest speakers—some of whom are not able to hold the interest of their audience—should schedule debates on lively issues. Or panel discussions, with a moderator to quarterback the verbal game.

We need to be serious in our conversation more frequently. Television has curtailed a lot of conversation, and so the only way to ensure that there is discussion of municipal, provincial, national and international events is to make such discussion happen.

Public speaking contests such as those fostered by Ontario Hydro, the Royal Canadian Legion, and other groups, are doing much to encourage young people to master the language and speak it well.

But here again, this is one speaker addressing an audience. The opportunity for discussion is not afforded.

Most persons hold opinions on almost everything that goes on locally, or in their province, their nation, or the world in which they live.

Fewer "lone" speakers and more discussions—that's the way to encourage serious conversation today.

Freeways Can Be Dangerous

Hamilton Spectator

The "suicide strip" of Highway 401 has gone.

The 30-odd miles of two - lane road outside Chatham had taken more lives and had more attention than any other piece of highway in the country.

The reason given for the high accident rate was that drivers came off the superhighway to this two - way strip and forgot they could not pass safely with another car approaching from ahead.

The danger from superhighway euphoria still exists.

Turning off the Queen Elizabeth to the service roads can often be more dangerous than driving by the superhighway itself. The inclination to believe there will be no traffic approaching still exists.

Speed limits on most service roads are too high. This coupled with the security induced by the highway, causes accidents only the driver can prevent.

A moment of relaxation on a service road is as dangerous as one on the highway.

Liberals Hopeful Winters May Accept Leadership Challenge

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Federal Liberals — both Right Wing and those occupying the centre of the Party ideological road — are taking a sudden new interest in one of their ex-political stars, big-time Canadian industrialist Robert H. Winters, for nine years a leading Cabinet light in former Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent's Government.

He caught their eye and compelled their attention with a recent statement into which they have read an indication of "availability" for the Liberal leadership, if and when it becomes vacant.

And that, with Prime Minister Pearson 68 and finding the unrelenting pressure of responsibility ever increasing, just possibly could happen after a reasonably decent interval following the coming Federal election.

Bob Winters, now 55, was one of the Federal Party's glamor boys as well as an outstandingly able Cabinet performer. Vigorous, handsome, personable, talented, he served as Minister first of Reconstruction and Supply, then of Resources and Development, and closed out his nine Cabinet years as the Government's "clean-up man" in the previously inefficient - and-worse, patronage-rotten Department of Public Works.

There he cleaned house, and the Department, scrubbed and scoured, since has remained spic and span.

THE TOP JOB

Then, after defeat in the Conservative toppling of the St. Laurent Administration in 1957, Bob Winters gave up politics for industry.

That was eight years ago and it looked like a clean and final break.

Until now.

So what has he said that rekindles Liberal interest and fires party imagination in his possible political future?

Just this:

"There is no novelty in merely joining a cabinet after my years in Ottawa. Being in government simply for the sake of being in government isn't my idea of a good, interesting or challenging time."

That was in reply to a direct question as to whether he might ever return to politics.

Then he added this:

"What could happen would depend on what the circumstances were — how the whole thing might be presented — and just what challenge and opportunity there would be to serve."

To a lot of wishfully thinking Liberals, this has sounded as if Bob Winters could be drafted as the next leader.

These are the Liberals who want a businessman in Government, a talent now in exceedingly short Cabinet supply. Preferably, if they could find him, a businessman to lead it.

They have had enough of a Civil Service - dominated administration, with the Prime Minister and seven of his top hands all ex-Bureaucrats . . . and Immigration Minister Jack Nicholson the sole business head.

CHANGE OF DIRECTION

If Bob Winters did turn out to be available and, more important, if he could be drafted, there almost certainly would be a turn-to-the-right in Liberal policies.

For Bob Winters is a "Big L" Liberal, and so, financially speaking, a "small c" conservative.

He has made no secret of his concern that the policies of some Members of the current Liberal Cabinet — almost certainly including Finance Minister Walter Gordon, although he was careful not to name names — sometimes go beyond what he calculates is Canada's capacity to pay.

Bob Winters is "certainly for social welfare and the betterment of all Canadians," as he puts it, "but only to the extent that the country can afford them."

When social welfare gets to be "too much of a good thing," he's alarmed that the "strain on the economy could become dangerous."

The financial thinking of the "inner cabinet" of the Pearson ministry is "quite different from mine," concedes this former Federal Liberal political star, and then allows that governmentally, perhaps he's been out of direct touch too long and fallen behind in what he calls "the new politics."

If he is available, and does turn out to be draftable, say along about 1968 or so when the Liberals call a leadership convention to find the successor to a then-possibly-retiring L. B. Pearson, it could cost Bob Winters dearly financially. He would have to cut back to $37,000 if the Liberals still were in power, or to $27,000 if they were in Opposition, from the current $100,000 plus directors' fees in a half dozen major corporations he now makes.

But there are plenty of Liberals who hope he'll decide the "challenge and the opportunity" worth the price.

Leisure Time May Be Myth

Ottawa Journal

People who are, as Katherine Mansfield put it, "keen on social questions," are doing a lot of worrying about what mankind is going to do with all the leisure it gets when automation is in flower.

Isn't there a long road to be travelled before we need to cross the bridge? The problem at the moment is not a surplus of human energy and capacity but an overload of work that isn't being done.

For a start we need a great many more doctors and dentists. To get them we need more people to teach medical and dental students, more people to build, staff and administer medical and dental schools and hospitals. To build and equip the new hospitals and schools would absorb the energies of more engineers and architects and technologists and so on. And they in turn would need people to train them and buildings to be trained in.

Granted, the occupations in which many more people are most urgently needed are those calling for superior intelligence. But many psychologists now believe that superior intelligence is, in part at least, made and not born. Mental development of children, stunted in homes uncongenial to learning, could be helped to flourish if we had more kindergartens, teachers and child psychologists. So there is another way man can beat the devil at finding work for idle hands.

And surely there is a place for surplus human capacity in making our cities a little less ugly, repairing the damage we have done to the countryside, overcoming the pollution of water and air, policing the chaos of our traffic, and so on and on.

This is not to say that Utopia is there for the taking. No doubt matching the manpower available to the jobs that needed doing would involve all manner of economic, social and political problems.

But simply to worry about how to get people to learn to live with leisure seems much like worrying about how best to waste time and energy that, for some time to come, man cannot afford to waste.

And the little leasure that comes in the life of a person who is busy and productive is no problem. Has anyone ever heard a doctor complain that he doesn't know what to do with his spare time?

Those Liquor Laws Again

Montreal Star

It will be small comfort to Mr. Gerald Laydon, who is 19 years old, that others before him have seen incongruities in the law, but still he must be wondering. Mr. Laydon was married recently. To celebrate the occasion he bought beer, and promptly the authorities in Oshawa, Ontario, charged him with drinking while under the legal age of 21. The magistrate was understanding. Nonetheless he fined him.

The rest of us will, like Mr. Laydon, marvel that society can believe a man adult enough to get married and raise a family, but too immature to drink a glass of beer.

Mr. Anatole France wondered once too, when he remarked that the law "in its majestic equality forbids the rich as well as the poor to sleep under bridges."

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

August 21st, 1945

The common cold affects more women than men, and hits at office employees much harder than factory workers, according to a two-year study conducted by Joseph H. Kler, M.D., of New Brunswick, N.J.

Dr. Kler's report, appearing in a recent issue of Archives of Otolarynology, published by the American Medical Association, covers basic and detailed facts about the occurrence of the common cold in industry which, he said, is responsible for more than one-third of the total number of days lost in factories. Among other things the study disclosed that:

There is a definite pattern to the incidence of colds, with the highest peak in December and the lowest in July;

There is a definite correlation between temperature and the onset of colds, every sudden drop in temperature being followed in a day or two by a rise in the number of colds;

The highest incidence of colds was found in the age group 20 to 29 years and the lowest in the age group above 50 years.

Classroom Pressure

Ottawa Journal

Every profession has its drudgery. But from what teachers say at their annual conferences it seems they are forced by the pressure of over-sized classes and of final examinations into a headlong rush to spoon out the mass of information required by a rigid course of study. There's little time or scope for individuality in an operation like that, and it must discourage many good people from entering the profession.

Readers' Saturday Column

QUESTION:

Often I am able to purchase stewing veal for 79c per lb. Is there any way I can dress it up for a meal when we have guests from the U.S. later this month? Myrna B.

ANSWER:

I liked your question because by coincidence I was ready for it. I have a recipe called Veal Vesuvio which my sister made for Sunday night dinner. I was so taken with it I asked her for the recipe and here it is. Other hostesses should note that this dish could be almost completed and stored in the refrigerator and then finished off just before serving time. Another feature of Veal Vesuvio is that it makes an excellent buffet item.

SATURDAY Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Corned Beef; Mustard Pickles; Parsley-buttered Whole Potatoes; Broccoli; Cottage Cheese-and-Chive-Stuffed Tomatoes; Chilled Watermelon; Chocolate Malt Cake (see Friday); Coffee.

VEAL VESUVIO (serves 3 or 4)

1 lb. stewing veal, cut into 12 even pieces,
1 egg,
½ cup fine crumbs,
¾ cup grated Romano (or Parmesan) cheese,
1 tablespoon chopped parsley,
½ teaspoon salt,
shake of pepper,
12 slices side bacon.

Flatten the veal pieces with a cleaver or pound with a meat pounder. Beat egg. Mix together crumbs, cheese, parsley, salt and pepper. Dip flattened pieces of veal in beaten egg, then in the crumb mixture. Fold them and wrap each in strip of bacon. Have ready twelve 5" squares of foil. Place bacon-wrapped veal pieces on foil squares and fold foil over to enclose. Place on shallow baking dish and bake 2 hours at 300 deg. Fahr. (fairly slow oven). (If desired cool, then store in refrigerator for later finishing.) Unwrap and place on broiler pan and broil for about 10 minutes, turning once, to crispen the bacon. Serve with Red Currant Sauce: To ½ cup red currant jelly in a saucepan, add 1 tablespoon butter, juice of ½ lemon, ½ cup water, 3 whole cloves, ¼ teaspoon salt. Heat to simmering point then stir in 1 tablespoon cornstarch mixed with 1 tablespoon water to a paste, until sauce is thick and clear. Remove cloves and serve hot with veal or chicken dishes.

QUESTION:

I like the bought canned french beans and would like to can my own. Doreen Y.

ANSWER:

CANNED GREEN BEANS

Wash young tender beans. Trim ends, string if necessary. Leave whole or cut in half lengthwise - "frenched". Cover with boiling water. Bring to boil, and boil, covered, 3 minutes. Pack hot. Add salt: ½ teaspoon to each pint or 1 teaspoon to each quart. Cover with hot cooking liquid from beans, leaving ¼" headspace. Process in pressure cooker at 10 lbs. pressure - 30 minutes for pints or 35 minutes for quarts.

U THANT TO SPEAK

OTTAWA (CP)—United Nations Secretary-General U Thant is expected to be one of the main speakers at the 54th inter-parliamentary conference which will make Ottawa a 10-day world centre of debate on topics of international importance. The Sept. 6-17 conference will draw some 800 delegates and guests here, it was announced Thursday.

Romantic Old Venice Just Too Everything to Be Real

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

VENICE, Italy — Whatever you have heard about Venice, forget it. It's all there, all right. But it's bigger, noisier, more watery, more luminous and shimmering, more graceful and romantic than life, about as real as a stage setting. It has to be seen not to be believed.

Whatever you expect, your first reaction on stepping out of the railroad station is ye-gods-the-place-is-flooded. No tangle of trams and wires, no roaring trailer trucks or ferocious Fiats greet the eye. There is only the eighteenth century painting you usd to wonder at in your grandmother's parlor, complete with barber poles sticking out of the water.

The church bells clang sonorously and solemnly all day. People promenade the broad Quay of the Esclavons or ascend and descend the 400 little stone bridges — each one different — like walk-ons in a ballet.

The gondoliers in their striped shirts, astride their black barges, bellow arias at themselves, as do random passersby in the alleys and cul-de-sacs that serve for streets. Everyone seems to be outside all the time; except for the luxury hotels, it is all but unlivable inside. Venice is slowly sinking into the lagoon whence it was fashioned, at the rate of several inches every hundred years. Before it is inundated, it may fall down. All the incredible Gothic and Renaissance palaces rest uncertainly on countless thousands of wooden pilings. Most of them date to the sixteenth century or earlier, and there hasn't been a new building since the tenth century. There never will be for there is no space to build (there's hardly space to walk) and nothing may be torn down. Every important hotel is in a former palace; you may sleep in a nobleman's bed, for there is virtually no place else to stay in Venice.

MIGHTIEST NATION

Venice was once the mightiest nation in Europe, a maritime power whose influence and domination extended across the Mediterranean through Syria, Palestine and Persia as far as the Indian Ocean.

Even trade with China and — some historians believe — Japan were the fruits of Marco Polo's journeys. While the rest of Europe wallowed in the stagnation of the Middle Ages, Venice flourished. With its system of merchant noblemen electing a ruling Doge, it even had a primitive form of democracy.

It lasted exactly 1,100 years, from 697 to 1797, 120 Doges' worth. The best was over by the time Columbus discovered America, and Venice turned to ill-advised land conquests to offset the loss of its privileged trade routes. But while it was going downhill commercially, the rich spent their fortunes on making Venice into the most decorative city in the world. It still is.

How did it get that way? It all began when the early Venetians fled to these marshy islands and lagoon to escape barbarian depredations. As with San Francisco, on its mountainous, isolated peninsula, the people found things weren't so bad there, and in their isolation created a new kind of city.

Except for the elephantine water buses and sleek Chris Craft taxis (which are threatening to put the gondolas out of business), it remains as it was, an inscrutable maze of waterways, stone squares and narrow alleys, thoroughly impossible to find your way in.

ROMANTIC SQUARE

Most tourists head straight for the vast romantic square called St. Mark's, after the city's patron saint. It is dominated by a great brick campanile bell tower and surrounded by what seem to be a hundred thousand rhythmic Gothic arches, ten thousand cafes and shops, a million littering and cooing pigeons littering and cooing over an expanse of stone as big as Soldier's Field.

Facing it all like a stage scene is the crazy mixed-up facade of St. Mark's Cathedral — flights of Baroque stone angels, incongruous bronze horses hi-jacked from Greece, and the most exquisite gold mosaics west of Byzantium. Inside, the domes, ceilings and arches gleam with more of them, detailed as paintings, each five to six centuries old.

Behind the altar is the famous Pala d'Oro, 70 pounds of pure gold encrusted with 2,400 huge precious stones and delicate enameled figures with pearl haloes. More than 900 hears old, it was carried off from Constantinople.

Adjoining the Cathedral is the very heart of the Venetian Empire, the great Ducal Palace, seat of the Doges for centuris. In its arts, it is as royal a palac as there is in the world, replete with canvasses by Titian, Bellini, Heronymus Bosch and Tiepolo, gilded and richly carved ceilings with paintings by Tintoretto.

In the great council room, huge as a roman Piazza, is one of the largest and most intricate paintings in the world, Tintoretto's Paradise, a work that took two-and-a-half years. The ornately decorated chamber is one of the most beautifully proportioned anywhere. Though its unsupported ceiling is 34 feet high, it is just half as high as it is wide, and half as wide as it is long, a masterpiece of design and engineering.

BRIDGE OF SIGHS

The Bridge of Sighs, made famous by Lord Byron, links the palace with its dungeon, a dank stone cavern laced with bars, gates and pits, as eerily authentic as it was when the elusive Casanova was imprisoned here — temporarily.

In the Church of St. Mary of the Friars reposes Titian's masterpiece, his fluid, brilliantly colored Assumption. Painted on wood above the altar, it is one of the few paintings he ever signed. Here too is the unique pyramid of the tomb of Canova, Venice's great sculptor, originally planned for Titian. Canova died before it was finished, and ultimately it was dedicated to him. The only Donatelli sculpture in Venice, is gaunt haunting wood figure of John the Baptist, also is in the Church, as is a three dimensional tryptych by master.

Perhaps the greatest treasure trove of all is St. Rocco's School, nearly all of its vaulted ceilings and walls covered with heroic sized paintings of the brilliant, highly original Tintoretto, who Titian snubbed as a pupil, but who went on to be one of the masters. Critics still marvel over his violent Annunciation, strangely set in a ruined building, his Last Supper set in a Venetian Kitchen, his Nativity depicted in the hayloft of an Italian countryside barn, and his stormy Crucifixion.

From its imposing patrician palaces, like the lacy Ca' d'Oro on the Grand Canal, to its whimsical imitation Tower of Pisa on the little but grandly named Calle E Corto Contarini del Bavolo, no catalogue of the enthrallments of Venice can ever be complete. But there's still time; nothing very important has been added for the past 200 years, and they still have another few hundred until the sea reclaims it.

Sleepy Date Must Be Given Wake-up Bait

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm a young woman in my middle 20's who has been dating a man 29. After an evening at the movies, bridge, bowling, or just visiting with friends Rodney wants to sit in the car in front of my place and chat awhile, no matter how late it is.

I don't mind, except he always falls asleep in the middle of what I think is an interesting conversation. Last night he did this for the 15th time, so I decided to teach him a lesson. I got out of the car and left him there.

When I woke up this morning to go to work (at 6:30 a.m.) I looked out the window and he was sound asleep at the wheel. I dashed out in my bathrobe and woke him up. He was furious with me for not waking him last night and sending him home. Do you feel this was my fault or his? — VALERIE.

DEAR VALERIE — A person asleep in a car is easy prey for a hold-up man or worse. You should not have left him there.

From now on tell Rodney that if he wants to chat he'll have to come into the house. Otherwise, give him a couple of toothpicks to prop his eyes open and send him home.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm a girl, 18 years old. Although most of my friends consider me quite sophisticated because I have travelled around the world a lot (I am an Army brat) I realize I still have a lot to learn.

Several months ago I dated a fellow who was very popular at school. Terry took a summer job in New Mexico working for a relative who has pecan orchards. Since Terry has been away I have received 14 letters from him. (I have written him four.)

His letters are so torrid I tear them up the minute I finish reading them. I'd just die if anyone in the family should accidentally get hold of one. We never went beyond kissing but to read Terry's letters a person would think I was make-out for sure.

I do want him to write to me, Ann, but I don't care to receive any more red-hot mail. He's a sensitive person and I don't want to hurt his feelings. Please tell me what to do. — SUGAR PUSS (His name for me.)

DEAR SUGAR — Tell Terry his letters are a fire hazard around the house and that you are worried that they might ignite some members of the family.

Make it clear that you do want him to write, but that you'd appreciate it if he'd tone down the love talk.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — We are three teen-agers, just ordinary, every-day girls who get a small allowance and take baby sitting jobs.

We heard it is possible to "adopt" a child overseas through some agency for about $10 a month. We were told that we can select the child through pictures and that we can carry on a correspondence with someone who will write for the child.

We do not know the name of the agency and would appreciate it very much if you would help us. Thank you in advance.— M.E.L. New Monmouth, N.J.

DEAR M.E.L. You sound like terrific young gals and I am delighted to provide you with the address of one such organization. Write to Foster Parents Plan, Inc., 352 Park Avenue, New York. The cost is $15 a month.

Letters like yours prove there are as many different types of teen-agers as there are pebbles on a beach. It burns me up when I hear blanket condemnations of all teens as wild, irresponsible, inconsiderate and selfish.

* * *

Do you feel ill at ease . . . out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Talents Meaningless Unless Harnessed by Hard Work

By DR. STUART E. ROSENBERG

Some people resemble tots in the supermarket who load up mothers' baskets with all that their eyes espy. At some point, however, we need to grow into an awareness that life is not a tot's life and that the world is not a supermarket. You cannot get everything you want, and not everything is available at a price.

For things that matter, that matter most, one has to work, and work hard. The slothful or the indifferent too easily assume that excellence can be equated with luck; that all of life is simply a game of chance.

Ask a surgeon, however, whether his skill came to him by inheritance or fate's fortunate smiles. Enquire of singers, artists or musicians how they grew into their larger stature. To be sure, there are God-given talents which some possess in greater measure than others, but no talent was ever nurtured without effort. Even such gifts become meaningless unless they are hooked up to sources of personal power. Energy is indeed available in the universe, but someone has to build a generating station to harness and channel it for human use.

The easy ways turn out to be the hard ways, for they demand too little from us — they do not force us to stand on our toes. A man's reach can exceed his grasp, and when it does, it elevates him to his real potential.

We tend, too often, to think of men as if they were identical machines; we overlook the personal equation in making and shaping of life's circumstances. Children from the same family, endowed with similar social, cultural, and even biological backgrounds, easily disprove such assumptions. Some have refused to work on their own rough edges, to cultivate their own potential talent, and to apply their own hard-won insights to their lives. The others, with similar natural and social endowments, become useful, creative and even fulfilled people because they were determined to work at becoming real persons. Indeed, Flaubert has said it: Genius is 10 percent inspiration, 90 percent perspiration!

If you see a man who excels his colleagues, who stands out above the crowd, who is worthy of emulation, then you have seen a man who has worked hard at becoming more of a man than he would have been.

Pilgrims Marching To Miracle

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — More than 10,000 pilgrims from all over Asia and Africa are making their way to a remote Himalayan mountain to observe what they believe to be a miracle.

Their destination is a giant snow-shrouded cave called Amarnath which, according to widely-held belief, contains a tall snow image of the Hindu god Shiva.

Some say the image, which is believed to wax and wane with the moon, is merely a natural formation. But others who have seen it claim it is fashioned by "divine hands."

The journey to Amarnath is made by train, bus, horseback and finally on foot. The trip from New Delhi takes seven days.

From New Delhi the pilgrim arrives by train at Pathankot in the foothills of the Himalayas. A 20-hour bus journey takes him to Srinagar, capital of Kashmir province. A further three-hour bus journey brings him to the 6,000-foot-high Himalayan health resort of Pahalgam where the real climb to Amarnath begins.

MANY CARRIED

The Indian government has mobilized 2,000 horses, 1,000 mountain ponies and hundreds of "dandies"—chairs borne on the shoulders of porters—for the benefit of the pilgrims.

But many pilgrims prefer to make the 30-mile trek from Pahalgam to the cave on foot. Some go barefooted because they believe that the more suffering they undergo, the larger will be god Shiva's blessings.

Halfway to Amarnath is the fabulius Seshnag Lake, fed by the Kohenhar Glacier, and said to be the dwelling place of a huge water serpent.

Half of the 10,000 pilgrims to Amarnath are Sadhus, Hindu holy men. Some of them began their journey on foot more than a year ago.

Swami Shankarji, a 60-year-old monk, started from his temple in Trivandrum in south India last September. He walked the 2,500 miles to Pahalgam.

The pilgrims include many wealthy men and women, among them several former Indian princes.

A dozen foreign tourists also are on their way to Amarnath.

One, a 23-year-old woman from Chicago, flew to Srinagar from Singapore where a Hindu merchant told her about the divine snow image.

LIGHTING THE WAY

By Walter S. Crone

HOW TO USE TROUBLE

The story of Charles Jessup, of Burlingame, California, is inspiring. His 19-year-old daughter Susan, was killed by a speeding auto in 1963. Though heartbroken the father felt that in some way Susan's untimely death might serve a good purpose.

About a month after the accident, Jessup wrote a letter to a San Francisco newspaper proposing an "Alert Crusade", a movement designed to convince everyone that traffic accidents are needless. His letter was met by a flood of enquiries. At his own expense, Jessup has printed the first of a series of Alert Crusade bulletins, detailing ways in which motorists can curb slaughter on the highways. He mails these bulletins upon request, from his home.

Trouble will do something to us, unless we do something with trouble. Some of us choose to wallow in self-pity, and trouble proves to be a curse to us. Others, like Jessup, find ways of using our adversities and heartbreaks to bring blessing to others. In helping others, we help ourselves. We can't assist another to the top of a hill, without getting to the top ourselves!

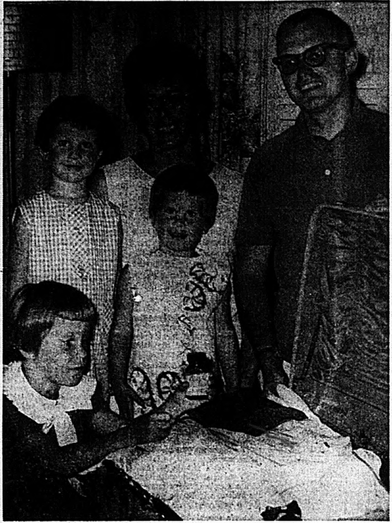
Lockyer Family Bound for Nigeria Where Dad Will Teach Teachers



ANTI-MALARIA PILLS A MUST—Mr. and Mrs. Don Lockyer and daughters Lindsey, Jennifer and Paula pack for a two-year stay in Nigeria, where Mr. Lockyer will instruct in a teacher-training college.

Three Belleville children must part soon with a beloved pet dog, but they're too excited to care. They're looking forward to the companionship of more exotic pets such as tropical lizards, and perhaps a camel.

The youngsters, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Don Lockyer, will leave on Sunday with their parents to live for two years in northern Nigeria. Their new home will be 33 miles from the 2,000-year-old city of Kano, West African trading centre, one-time site of a flourishing slave trade, and still a main stop-over for camel caravans travelling the east-west route across Africa. The Lockyer children, Lindsey, aged six, Jennifer, five, and Paula, two and a half, are hoping to adopt a pet camel to replace their dog. Failing that, they can take their choice of several species of lizards or a Nigerian goat.

Mr. Lockyer, who has five years of experience as a Belleville public school principal, is sponsored by the Canadian government's External Aid Program and will teach principles and methods of primary education to Nigerian students at Bichi Training College for teachers. He paused in the midst of last minute packing to explain his reasons for going to Africa.

"I've got my Master of Education and inspector's papers," he said, "and I'm ready for a change. I want to put theory into practice. This is a chance for me and my family to learn about an entirely different culture and in the process re-evaluate some of our ideas."

WIFE TEACHES TOO

Mrs. Lockyer, daughter of Mrs. Merle Sprague of Belleville, is also a teacher. The village of Bichi has no elementary schools, so Mrs. Lockyer will set up a school in her house for her daughters and other European children. Her husband expects to refer his Nigerian students to her for remedial instruction in English.

English is the language of educated Nigerians. Hausa, the native dialect, is unsuited to the complexity of 20th century knowledge. Only nine per cent of the Nigerian people can read or write. Through External Aid, the Canadian government is helping Nigeria solve its illiteracy problem by sending instructors like Mr. Lockyer to train teachers.

At Bichi Training College, Mr. Lockyer will teach students who have completed seven years of schooling before entering a five-year college course. Student enrollment numbers 240. The staff is a miniature United Nations, composed of seven instructors from Nigeria, three, including the principal, from England, three from the American Peace Corps and one each from Ireland, India and Canada.

The Lockyer family will live in the college "compound," three miles from Bichi. They have been asigned a two-bedroom bungalow, supplied with electricity for six hours a day. The rest of the time they will rely on kerosene for lighting, cooking and refrigeration.

THOROUGHLY BRIEFED

Mrs. Lockyer praised officials at External Aid for the help they gave her in the difficult job of moving a young family to a strange and primitive land. She was thoroughly briefed on living conditions in Nigeria and last June, on the advice of officials she shipped a two-year supply of clothes, bedding, dishes, toys, tricycles, swings and drugs (chiefly anti-malaria pills, water-purification chemicals and Vitamin capsules) to Bichi.

Along with 200 other Canadians bound for posts in the Caribbean West, Central and East Africa and Singapore, Mr. Lockyer attended a two-week orientation course at MacDonald College this summer. He learned that Nigeria, a former British colony granted independence in 1960, draws heavily on Commonwealth countries for technical assistance. Missionaries and traders have been active in the coastal region of Nigeria, for one hundred years, but the conservative Muslim northern territory remained underdeveloped until recently.

Although the Lockyers must agree not to engage in any missionary or political activity while in Nigeria, they are free to attend a Christian church in Kano. Kano, with a population of 400,000, also has a European social club with a golf course, an open-air cinema and doctors.

Because Canadians find it hard to adapt to extreme heat of Nigeria (120 degrees at mid-day during the dry season) the Lockyers will be flown to Switzerland for a two-month holiday at the end of their first year's service.

With all this, and camels too, it's no wonder the Lockyer children are looking forward to their flight to Nigeria with all the excitement most youngsters save for Christmas Eve.

Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Hart are pictured following their marriage in the Wesleyan Methodist Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Barbara Ann Simpson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Hibbett of Belleville and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hart of Roslin.

Women Teachers Want To Become Principals

TORONTO (CP) — Women grade school teachers want equal opportunity with men to become principals or teachers in schools with Grade 5 and higher.

Delegates at the Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario passed a resolution Friday directing their executive to decide how to place their case before the people who hire elementary school teachers.

There are 500 delegates attending the three-day convention which opened Tuesday and 100 visiting teachers. A show of hands indicated 21 of them are principals, 117 teach in senior grades, 15 are in other supervisory jobs. About 80 indicated they would apply for or accept a principal's job. About 30 said they had been offered such jobs and turned them down.

There are about twice as many women teachers as men in grade schools, and Greta Noble of Gormley, who presented the resolution on behalf of York Township area association said: "We in the majority are in the minority. Men are appointed as principals who have less experience and fewer qualifications than women teachers on their staffs."

PROPOSAL REJECTED

Another skirmish in the battle of the sexes was fought over the question of amalgamation with the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation.

A resolution presented by Margery Druce of the Niagara Falls association asking that the women's associations open negotiations with the men's to discuss amalgamation, was defeated 257 to 181.

Delegates said they fear the men would take over total charge of a joint organization. There was one suggestion that the men want the associations joined solely to get the money the women's group has.

During the morning session, delegates approved budget proposals which include a $100,000 fund to be used for the benefit of needy retired teachers.

Foster Mother To 110 Boys Is Honored

TORONTO (CP)—Ruth Mandley, a childless widow who has been foster mother to 110 boys, was honored Friday by the Toronto Children's Aid Society.

The last of Mrs. Mandley's boys, 13-year-old Doug, came from his new home for a tearful reunion with the woman who cared for him for 10 years.

In June Mrs. Mandley decided to retire after 36 years as a foster mother for the Children's Aid.

Starting with George, a teen-ager, in 1929, Mrs. Mandley said she "just went on the best way I could—like any other family." Sometimes she had 13 boys at the same time.

After her husband died, she had to handle the children, some of them retarded or emotionally disturbed, by herself.

"All they ever want is loving, a lot of loving and they want to be wanted," she said. "I don't believe there's a real bad boy."

Lloyd Richardson, executive director of the Children's Aid Society, said Friday Mrs. Mandley is one of a vanishing breed of foster parents.

"Every one of the children she had was a real challenge . . ."

A Lift for Living

Great Religion Rests Upon Making Correct Responses

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Responsivness is fundamental to all of life.

In nature we witness responses that are called "tropisms," meaning tendencies to turn toward or away from some stimulus. You have noticed house plants slowly shifting their leaves and blossoms toward the light. A begonia sitting on a dining table gropes toward a window, and ivy in the kitchen is drawn toward gentle sunlight drifiting through a pane above the kitchen sink. Dark-eyed sunflowers turn their blossoms toward the sun as it circles across smiling summer skies.

This response to light is called "phototropism," from the Greek words for light and turning. Phototropism is commonly found in plants, and it is so pronounced that the observer may well wonder if plants do not possess some faint consciousness of their surroundings, much like that found in animals.

Other responses found in nature are elemental to life, such as geotropism, an attraction toward the centre of the earth, which makes roots grow downward instead of upward, and hydrotropism, which is a response to moisture found in rootlets that grow toward moist regions in the soil.

Human beings are made to be responsive. Light, sound and air were here before man was. We have eyes for response to light, as for response to sound, and lungs for responding to air, and we are not fully alive until we answer to the stimuli in our environment.

Indeed, one of the saddest sights on earth is a person incapable of response, such as a brain-injured infant who vegetates through months and years or an adult so sick or so injured that he does not recognize those who hold him most dear.

HE WAS DISTURBED

Jesus was disturbed by a lack of responsiveness He found in His disciples. He one time asked them, "Having eyes do you not see, and having ears do you not hear?" They watched Him perform His redemptive work and heard Him speak the redeeming words, and still they were pathetically uncomprehending of who He was and what He was doing. And so they were missing the meaning of Christ's mission on earth. This dullness and insensitivity saddened the Master.

A suggestive phrase, rich in meaning, occurs in the Forty-Second Psalm. It treads, "Deep calleth unto deep." This is the Psalmist's picture of streams leaping down Mount Hermon in the springtime, with the sounds of roaring cataracts echoing back and forth accross the gorges as if the waters were calling to one another.

It is an apt likeness to the human spirit and its relationship to the world, "Deep calleth unto deep." The deep things of life bid for our attention, and the responsive soul answers from the depths of his being. Moreover, the shallow things of the world call out to us, and the shallows within us answer. We are in deep trouble, however, when the shallow things call and the depths within us respond, or when the deep cries out and the answer is but a shallow one.

For example, one of life's superficial, secondary matters is the way we decorate our persons, our homes, our institutions and our automobiles. Far more important is the kind of character that is behind the adornment, the sort of person who lives in the home, who works in the institution, and who rides in the automobile.

Too often we give more attention to a child's appearance than we do to his character. We show more concern for the clothes that are on a child's back than we do for the ideas that are in his head. And we are more interested in the make of his first car than we are about his philosophy of life. We are more likely to know the brand name of a son's suit than we are to know his main purpose in life.

Thus we give first rate attention to second-rate matters. When the shallows call, we answer from the depths.

TEST WILL TELL

Test the appropriateness of your responses. What upsets you more, an irritating neighbor who forgets to return the garden tools he borrowed from you or news of hundreds dying in a flood in India? What grieves you more, some embarrassment that has caused "loss of face," or a slum fire that wipes out the lives of three small children?

Isn't it so that most of us give too profound a response to some superficial affairs and too shallow an answer to matters of the highest consequence?

On the eve of the French Revolution the Bishop of Nancy gave an address in which he clearly pictured the appalling wretchedness of the French people. Louis XVI was present, heavily jeweled and grandly dressed in his royal robes. While the Bishop described the misery of King Louis' subjects, the king fell off to sleep. The incident tells us something vital about the King of France. When the deep trouble of his people called out to him, nothing deep within him answered.

We all need to be awakened and alerted to profound matters, to the anguish of our fellow men, to the beauty of the natural world and in human life, to the truths which we have overlooked, to the goodness God has showered upon our days. The purpose of the Church is to awaken us to awareness of those things that have supreme value. The word "worship" is related to the word "worth," and literally means "the capacity to recognize worth." Worship is the practice of directing our thoughts toward what matters most.

Above all else, the Church provides a time, a place, and a setting for giving profound responses to God. To use a teenage expression most appropriately, "He is the greatest!"

MR. AND MRS. EUGENE A. HARVIE

Harvie - Garrett

Pink and white gladioli formed the setting in the Church of the Assumption at Erinsville, on Saturday, August 14, at 10 a.m. when Margaret Ann Garrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Garrett of Erinsville was united in marriage to Eugene A. Harvie, son of Mrs. Bernadette Harvie of Marmora. Rev. J. F. Feeney officiated at the ceremony with Rev. O'Neill, cousin of the bride, of Madoc, and Rev. Healey of Marmora also present in the sanctuary.

Mrs. Wilfred Bolger of Whitby was organist and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Fergus Cassidy of Stoco in several selections.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a floor length bridal gown of white satin and net highlighted with Chantilly lace with the bodice featuring long lily-point sleeves. A solitaire white rose held in place a four-tier shoulder tip veil of fine nylon tulle. She carried a cascade bouquet of red Sweetheart roses.

The attendants, Miss Eileen Garrett, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids, Mrs. Clarence Murphy, Marmora, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Christine Gordon, Belleville, niece of the bride, were identically attired in street length bouffant gowns of copen blue nylon organza over taffeta, highlighted at the back with a flowing panel. Their headdresses consisted of matching bows with circular veils and each carried a bouquet of white and yellow 'mums.

The little flower girl was Miss Louisa Murphy of Marmora, niece of the bridegroom, who wore a white lace dress with blue cummerbund held with large bow at back. He headdress was identical to th other bridal attendants an she carried a bouquet of whit and yellow 'mums.

The wedding dinner and reception was held at the Ceda Bend Lodge at Erinsville wher the bride's mother received th guests wearing a royal blu sheath with nylon and lac bodice over rayon crepe, whit accessories and a corsage o pink carnations. Assisting wa the bridegroom's mother, wh wore a blue sheath crepe dres with matching hat, white accessories and a corsage of whit carnations.

For the wedding trip to th Maritime provinces, the brid chose a pink linen suit wit matching hat, while accessorie and a corsage of white carnations.

On their return Mr. and Mr Harvie will reside in Bradfor Ontario.

Duckdom's aristocrats as well as the rank and file will be fair game for the hunter come Saturday, Sept. 25th.

A half-hour before dawn and even earlier in the case of some trigger-happy types, the peace and quiet of the district's waterways will be shattered as thousands of nimrods let loose with thousands of shotguns at anything within sight that flies and quacks.

The 1965 wild duck season will be under way to close on December 15th in Ontario. Fair game will be ducks, rails, coots, gallinules, Wilson's snipe, woodcock and wild geese.

Many of the hunters will come home with a bag limit but they will be the experienced men who know where to find the birds and can tell, at a distance, the difference between eatable ducks and those that taste like the bottom of a garbage can. (Who knows what that tastes like?)

Bag and possession limits for waterfowl remain essentially unchanged in Ontario, according to the 1965 Migratory Bird Regulations.

These limits are five and ten for ducks, geese, rails, coots and gallinules, ten and 20 for Wilson's snipe and eight and 16 for woodcock.

Ontario hunters may take four woodcock per day as part of their daily bag limit and may possess eight. On and after October 15 two additional scaup or goldeneye may be taken daily, and four may be possessed.

The daily duck bag may include two canvasback or redhead ducks and two may be possessed.

"We expect a big invasion of the duck haunts all over the district," a Lands and Forests official told me. "That is on opening day. Hunting-wise veterans have developed the habit of staying at home on the morning of opening day.

Better, they claim, to wait a couple of days until the amateurs, after a couple of days of duckless shooting sprees, decide to stay at home.

And while on this hunting column spree here's news for the deer hunters.

The Hon. Kelso Roberts, minister of Lands and Forests, has announced part of the open seasons for deer hunting in those southern parts of the province where seasons are held annually. Most of these seasons are similar to those held in 1964.

It's a boon to hunters who do not believe in long treks. You can eliminate extensive preparations and worries about hunting camps.

To you guys who like a short haul there is a six-day season from November 8 to 13th inclusive in the counties of Hastings, Frontenac and Lennox and Addington lying between Highway Number Two and Highway Number Seven. How's that for a short hike and a quick buck.

That also applies to that part of Peterborough county south of Number Seven. That part of Lanark lying between highways Seven and 13 and that portion of Leeds county lying west of and north of Highways 32, 15 and the Narrow Locks Road.

A four-day season from November 8th to 11th inclusive will be held in the remainder of Leeds county. There is no restriction on the use of firearms.

If you like to add to the dinner menu a delicious Hungarian partridge the season opens September 25th through November 27th in this part of the province. The bag limit is eight per day, 16 in possession.

If you prefer bobwhite quail you can hunt them in Middlesex, Elgin, Lambton, and Kent counties from November 1 to the third. Bag limit five, possession 10.

If you are gourmet-minded and prefer pheasant under glass you can shoot them in this district of Ontario from September 15 to December 15, with a bag limit of three birds per day. Shooting hours are from eight a.m. to five p.m., over the province.

A number of friends of mine go to Pelee Island for their pheasants. It's good hunting but a split season has been established.

The first is from October 21 and 22nd with a two-day bag limit of eight cocks, two hens and from October 28 to 29 with a two-day bag limit of seven cocks and three hens.

Closer at hand you can hunt pheasants in Durham county from October 2 to December 15th and in other parts of Ontario from September 25th to December 25th. The bag limits in these parts is three birds per day.

Guelph Whips London For 3-1 Series Lead

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Guelph CJOYs trounced London Pontiacs 7-1 to take a 3-to-1 lead in the Senior Inter-County semi-final baseball series here Friday night.

Fifth game of the best-of-seven series is scheduled for here next Tuesday

CJOYs jumped on Pontiac starter Roy McKay for four runs in the first inning and then coasted the rest of the way.

Terry Valeriole took over at second base for Guelph when Bud Westaway was ejected for arguing with the umpire in the sixth inning. He responsed by hitting a homer over the left field fence.

Mike Mahoney belted two doubles while John Skinner and Jim Baker had one run apiece for the CJOYs. Baker drove in three runs in the first with his double.

WINS SENIORS TITLE

MONTREAL (CP) — Frank Desrivieres of Ottawa Rivermead emerged winner of the Quebec seniors golf championship held at the Royal Montreal course Friday. Desrivieres shot 75 in the 50-54-year-old class one section of the tournament. He finished the first nine in 37 and came in with a 38.

Mike Souchak One Up In World Golf

SUTTON, Mass. (AP)—A veteran professional who went back to golf school and an unknown judo exponent from Japan shared the attention Friday in the world $200,000 golf tournament.

Mike Souchak held a one-stroke lead entering the second round after posting a 32-36—68 over the par-71 Pleasant Valley Country Club course.

The 38-year-old Souchak, who has yet to win a tournament this year, said he paid a recent visit to his old teacher and employer, Claude Harmon, at Winged Foot Country Club at Mamaroneck, N.Y.

"I worked with him for five hours a day for four days and came away with some good ideas," he said. "Now the smoke has cleared away and my game has got better each day."

Japan Open champion Hideyo Sugimoto was one of six players one stroke behind Souchak. The others were Miller Barber, Arnold Palmer, Joe Campbell, Dick Hart and Jim Ferree.

Sugimoto is a touring pro in Japan who played in three previous U.S. tournaments.

The jovial 180-pounder who holds a black belt in judo, earned an invitation here because of his performance in Malayan and Thailand tournaments.

Canada's seven-player contingent was headed by Toronto's George Knudson who carded a 72. Knudson was one of 154 golfers still to finish when play was called Thursday.

Wilf Homenuik, the 29-year-old Canadian PGA champion, from Winnipeg, scored 73. Bob Panasiuk, of Windsor, Ont., 23, winner of the Ontario Open, also recorded a 73.

Moe Norman of Barrie, Ont., shot 74 and veteran amateur Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., 76. Montreal's Adrien Bigras finished with 77 and Vancouver's British Columbia Open champion, Len Collett, a 78.

Jack Nicklaus bent a four-iron Friday when it hit a tree and had mud hole trouble on the 17th fairway as he staggered to a 74.

U.S. Open champion Gary Player of South Africa gained a stroke by having the first round washed out. Player was one over Thursday, but finished with a par-71 the second time around.

Commercial All-Stars Selected

The Commercial Softball League managers and coaches have selected the loop's 1965 All-Star team and other individual award winners.

Jack "Deacon" Whiting, of Lightfoot Construction was named the league's most valuable player for the second year in a row.

Sonny Holway, of Black Diamond Cheese, was selected as the loop's most gentlemanly player, combining sportsmanship and ability.

The All-Star team will meet the pennant-winning City Hotel squad in an exhibition game shortly, with the date to be announced.

At least two players, and more where ties are conterned, were named for each position.

Alf Rowbotham, of Stewart Warner, and City Hotel's Leo Lucciola, tied for the All-Star coaching job.

Tom Coolen (City Hotel) and Eric Maher (Point Anne) share the catching chore. The pitching half of the battery saw a three-way tie, a mong Tommy Thompson (RCAF), Sonny Holway (Black Diamond) and Ron Maracle (Point Anne).

Doug Murray (City Hotel) won first base honors with Don Dolan (Lightfoots) second. Doug Moreau (City Hotel) copped the second base position, with Rick Rosebush (Point Anne) and Floyd Crawford (Stewart Warner) tied for the runner-up spot.

Lightfoot's Jack Whiting won third base honors followed by Gerry Maher (Point Anne).

Doug Hull (City Hotel) is the club shortstop with Rusty Garvin (Lightfoots placing second.

In the outfield Jack Martin (City Hotel) was first choice. Wayne "Weiner" Brown (Belvedere Hotel) and Jim Horwood (Point Anne) tied for second, Bob Brooks (City Hotel) and Don Smith (Lightfoots) tied for third and Chuck Rowbotham (Stewart Warner) was the final choice.

Says Rifles Can Beat Argonauts

TORONTO (CP) — Bob Frewin, general manager of Toronto Rifles of the Continental Football League, said that if an exhibition game were played between the Rifles and Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference "right now, I think we would win."

Frewin, in his first year as general manager of the Rifles, formerly Quebec Rifles of the United Football League, was asked to speculate on an exhibition match between Toronto's two professional football clubs.

"We have greater depth and, on the average, better experience. Later in the season, though, I wouldn't want to predict the outcome because they will improve."

Lew Hayman, Argonaut general manager, said he wouldn't be against such an exhibition game provided the Canadian Football League was agreeable.

"I would have to see the terms and it would depend upon when the game was to be played. We have commitments to the CFL for pre-season games."

Credit Pass Defence

Riders Hold Lions To 10-10 Tie

REGINA (CP)—The top two Western Football Conference teams figure they've found the key to stopping the Grey Cup champion B.C. Lions — spike Joe Kapp's passing attack.

Saskatchewan Roughriders gained sole possession of second place in the league Friday with a 10-10 tie in a game against Lions, and Riders coach Eagle Keys gave the credit to his secondary for stopping quarterback Kapp.

"I said pass defence was the key," he told reporters in the dressing room. "Our guys in the defensive backfield did a good job out there."

Bud Grant, coach of Winnipeg Blue Bombers who lead the WFC with four straight wins, had similar praise for his defensive squad after Bombers downed B.C. 12-6 Monday.

Lions are in fourth place in the conference with three points, one behind Calgary Stampeders. Edmonton Eskimos are last with four straight losses.

B.C. coach Dave Skrien said after Friday' contest: "We had trouble moving the ball. But a couple of times, time ran out on us.

"We had a chance to score when the first half ended, and with a couple of plays more at the end we might have won it."

KAPP THROTTLED

Kapp's second - down passes were ineffective most of the night. He completed 15 of 25 attempts for 142 yards, but missed flanker Sonny Homer on the short attempts. Homer was zero for six in the pass-catching department.

Rookie Jack Abendschan kicked a 40-yard fourth-quarter field goal to gain the tie for Roughriders. He also converted Saskatchewan's only touchdown a one-yard plunge by fullback George Reed in the third quarter.

Lions' place-kicking specialist Peter Kempf opened scoring in the first quarter with a 34-yard field goal that stood up to give B.C. a 3-0 half-time lead. Kempf also converted fullback Bob Swift's three-yard touchdown in the third quarter.

Saskatchewan quarterback Ron Lancaster passed for 56 yards on five completions of 14 tries and Roughies gained 145 yards on the ground for a total offense of 201 yards. B.C. went 141 yards on the ground for a total 283-yard offence.

Saskatchewan fumbled twice and lost the ball once, an error that led to B.C.'s first score. On the first series from scrimmage, Lancaster attempted a pitch-out to import Sherman Lewis, but Bill Munsey broke in to knock it down and recover on the Saskatchewan 28. Kempf made his field goal two plays later.

Flanker Hugh Campbell, took three passes in Roughies' touchdown march, the second a 28-yard sideline pass that put Saskatchewan on the B.C. four yard-line.

Two plays later, Reed barged over for the touchdown from the one.

B.C. came right back after the kickoff, marching 73 yards to a touchdown in seven plays including a 36-yard pass to Munsey.

Koufax Eyes Records

NEW YORK (AP) — Sandy Koufax must feel like a kid who has been given a choice of a dozen presents for his birthday. Los Angeles Dodgers' southpaw has a chance at so many pitching records, he can't make up his mind which he wants the most.

It's a safe bet, though, that Sandy would settle for the honor of being the major league's first 30-game winner in 31 years since that would greatly enhance the Dodgers' chances of winning the National League pennant.

With 21 victories in the bag and at least 10 more starts coming up, Koufax is still in the running.

Koufax has a better chance, however, of breaking Bob Feller's major-league single-season strikeout record of 348 set by Cleveland Indians' fireballer in 1946.

Sandy already has registered 288, averaging about 10 strikeouts a game. At this rate, he figures to have no trouble establishing a modern strikeout mark.

Koufax already is the first National League pitcher to strike out 200 or more batters in four consecutive seasons. His 306 in 1963 is the modern National League record.

Anne Acton Among Qualifiers

KINGSTON (CP) — Gail Harvey of Toronto led a field of 92 golfers Friday, firing a 78 in the qualifying round of the eastern provinces women's golf tournament.

She had an eight-stroke lead over Nancy Stoddard of Toronto and Catharine Cartwright of Kingston. The 18-hole tournament was held at the par-76 Kingston Cataraqui Golf and Country Club.

Tied for fourth were two Napanee golfers, Mildred Robison and Marg MacPherson, both 87s.

Other qualifiers included Anne Acton, Belleville, 93; Jean Davidson, Brockville, 95; Geraldine Cubrule, Prescott, 96, and Pat Culhane, Picton, 97.

The top 16 qualified and enter match play today and Sunday.

QUITS BASEBALL

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Mets said Friday that right-handed pitcher Gary Kroll has decided to quit baseball. The 24-year-old Kroll was optioned to Buffalo of the International League last week, but after reporting there he changed his mind and departed to his home in Provo, Utah.

Mays, Mathews Put Dodgers On Spot

Braves Grab Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Home runs by Willie Mays and Ed Mathews powered Milwaukee Braves into the National League lead Friday, dropped Los Angeles Dodgers half a game back and pulled San Francisco Giants to within half a game of the Dodgers.

Mathews started it with a decisive two-run homer as the Braves dumped Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3. Mays finished it with a two-run homer in San Francisco's 5-1 victory over Los Angeles.

Both Sluggers have been on the rampage during August.

Mathews has hit seven home runs, driven in 25 runs and improved his batting average 20 points to .258 while Mays has hit 12 homers to lead the league with 36, driven in 19 runs and increased his average 12 points to .320.

Elsewhere in the league, Cincinnati Reds pulled to within three games of the lead with a 3-2 win over Philadelphia Phillies on Catcher Jim Coker's 10th-inning homer; Bob Gibson pitched St. Louis Cardinals to an 8-1 breeze over New York Mets and Houston Astros split a twin bill with Chicago Cubs, winning 7-4 before losing 2-0.

Mathews' 28th homer came after a single by Hank Aaron in the eighth inning. Joe Torre also homered in support of Wade Blasingame, now 15-8, who gave up a homer to Roberto Clemente in the sixth.

Mays got his homer early, pushing the Giants ahead 2-1 in the third when he connected against Howie Reed following a double by Matty Alou. Jim Hart also hit a homer for San Francisco, along with a double and single.

Sammy Ellis went the full 10 innings for the Reds against the Phils as Coker and Don Pavletich, another reserve catcher, supplied the offensive punch. Pavletich drove in the first Cincinnati run in the opening inning with the first of his three hits, then tripled in the eighth and scored on Coker's sacrifice fly.

That made it 2-1, but Johnny Briggs tied it with a leadoff homer in the last of the ninth. Coker's winning homer in the 10th came off reliever Gary Wagner.

Gibson (15-9) was overpowering in running his lifetime record against the Mets to 11-2. The big right-hander gave up three hits, struck out 11 and put down the last 18 batters in order after Charlie Smith's homer in the fourth inning.

Ken Boyer rapped a homer and triple for the Cards, knocking in three runs, while Lou Brock singled three times and stole his 50th base.

Bob Aspromonte's bases-loaded single was the winning hit in Houston's ninth-inning rally in the doubleheader opener against the Cubs. Bill Faul won the second game for Chicago with an eight-hitter for his third victory-all shutouts.

But Twins Get Split

Giant Castoff Slows Minnesota Surge

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jack Sanford, a 24-game winner for San Francisco Giants in 1962, rose up and smote Minnesota Twins 3-1 Friday only four days after being sold to Los Angeles Angels.

Out most of the 1964 season with a damaged pitching arm that required surgery, Sanford had compiled a 4-5 won - lost record in 16 starts for the Giants before being dealt.

Friday, he set the American League leaders down in the opener of a twin bill, allowing only two runners to reach third base before being relieved in the seventh by Bob Lee. It was Sanford's first start since Aug. 1.

The Twins bounced back in the second game to win 3-1.

In other league action, Chicago White Sox trimmed Kansas City Athletics 3-1, Detroit Tigers swept Boston Red Sox 2-0 and 3-2, New York Yankees shutout Baltimore Orioles 1-0 and Washington Senators nipped Cleveland Indians 3-2.

Joe Adcock gave Sanford a 2-0 lead in the fourth inning with a two-run homer. Albie Pearson knocked in the Angels' other run in the seventh with a single, one of his four hits in the contest.

George Brunet had the Twins shutout on three hits until the ninth inning of the second game. But Zoilo Versalles singled, moved to third as Rich Rollins doubled and scored the tying run on Tony Oliva's grounder.

TWO MORE SCORE

Rollins went to third on the grounder and scored as Andy Kosco filed out. Sandy Valdespino then added a run-scoring single.

Bill Skowron's two-run homer off Kansas City's Jum Hunter in the third inning powered the White Sox to their seventh straight victory.

Detroit's Denny McLain, now 11-5, stymied Boston on three hits in the opener. Don Wert backed McLain by scoring both Tiger runs after lashing a triple in the first inning and a double in the eighth.

Orlando Pena saved the second-game victory, getting Tony Conigliaro on a pop up with two runs in, two out and the bases loaded in the eighth inning Jerry Lumpe scored the eventual deciding run in the sixth on a wild pitch by Earl Wilson.

Jack Cullen pitched a three-hitter for his first complete game in the majors, and Tom Tresh hit his 19th homer in the fourth inning for the Yankees' only run.

Dick Nen pulled the Senators from defeat with a two - run homer off Luis Tiant with one out in the ninth. Nen also singled across Washington's first run in the fourth. Chuck Hinton homered in the Cleveland fourth.

Cats, Riders Battle For Lead

HAMILTON (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders move into Hamilton tonight to try to break a first-place deadlock with the Tiger-Cats and a habit of losing in Tiger Town.

The Riders lost a decisive home-and-home series to the Ticats last year and lost a 17-point lead in the second game of the total-points Eastern Football Conference final in Hamilton.

This is only the third game of the campaign for both undefeated clubs but Rider coach Frank Clair is not underestimating its importance.

"We have to play in Hamilton twice this season and they come to Ottawa only once," Clair said. "To finish first, we have to take two out of three from them, so we have to win at least once in Hamilton. In that sense, winning this one would give us a big lift."

The Riders suffered only minor injuries in last week's 23-2 victory against Montreal Alouettes. Quarterback Russ Jackson and the conference's top scorer, Ted Watkins, picked up leg injuries but both will start against Hamilton.

Ottawa will go with the same lineup that whipped Montreal. Bo Scott, the league's top rusher will be at fullback, Ron Stewart and Jim Dillard at halfback and Whit Tucker at flanker.

Frank Cosentino's illness earlier this week has made Joe Zuger the likely candidate as the starting Hamilton quarterback.

Zuger was the starting pivot in Hamilton's victories over Montreal and Toronto Argonauts but Cosentino took over in both contests.

Cosentino reported for practice Thursday with a cold and was sent home by team physician, Dr. Jim Charters.

The Ticats will dress former Argonaut tackle Walt Radzick, who will be used in case of a defensive emergency.

Kickoff time is 8 p.m. EDT and the game will be televised on the CBC eastern network with Toronto and Hamilton blacked out.

Toronto Pair Play For Title

TORONTO (CP)—Bob Breen and Leon DeCaire, both of Toronto, qualified Friday for the 36-hole final of the Ontario Professional Golfers' Assistants' match play tournament.

Breen defeated Bill McWilliams of suburban Richmond Hill in the quarter-final and Bob Rose of Toronto in the semi-final, both 2 up.

DeCaire ousted London Highland's Bob Osborne two-up and Larry Giuseppi of Hamilton Beverly 4 and 3.

Reach Finals For Toronto Tennis Titles

TORONTO (CP) — Detlav Nitsche of West Germany and John Powless of the University of Wisconsin have reached today's final of the men's singles of the Toronto and district open tennis championship here.

Final play starts with the women's singles when Della Lubin of Toronto meets Evelyn Egger of Vienna, Austria.

In Friday's semi-final, Miss Egger defeated Joan Griffin of Toronto 6-0, 6-0. Mrs. Lubin reached the final earlier in the week.

Nitche defeated Frank Wodzicki of Toronto 6-4, 6-2 in his semi-final. Powless eliminated Don Fontana 6-1, 6-4.

NHL Leafs Announce Exhibitions

TORONTO (CP) — Coach Punch Imlach of Toronto Maple Leafs has scheduled a 13-game exhibition season for his National Hockey League team this year, mostly against NHL opposition.

Included are home-and-home series against New York Rangers, Detroit Red Wings and Chicago Black Hawks, two games against Boston Bruins, probably in Peterborough and London, Ont., and at least two other games against the Rangers and the Red Wings.

The Leafs played 17 exhibition games last season and 15 in 1963. There will be no western tour this year.

Seventy-nine players are expected to attend the opening of Leaf training camp Sept. 16 in Peterborough. There will be seven goalies, 24 defencemen and 48 forwards. One of the goalies invited is Vladimir Dzurilla of the Czechoslovakian national team.

The roster includes four NHL players who were not with Leafs last year. They are Marcel Pronovost, Larry Jeffrey and Ed Joyal who played with Detroit and Orland Kurtenbach who was with Boston.

Other newcomers are Andy Hebenton also formerly with Boston, Jim Pappin, making his return from Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League, and rookie Mike Walton, an all star and rookie of the year last year in the Central Hockey League.

Jim Maloney Earns 2nd Big Raise

CINCINNATI (AP) — Righthander Jim Maloney of Cincinnati Reds has received his second $1,000 raise this season for pitching another no-hitter.

Bill Dewitt, president-general manager of the Reds, said Friday he gave Maloney the raise since baseball rules prohibit granting bonuses for performance.

Maloney pitched the Reds to a 1-0 victory over Chicago Cubs Thursday in a 10-inning game. On June 14, the 25-year-old hurler also pitched 10 innings of hitless ball against New York Mets, but was defeated by John Lewis' 11th-inning home run. The Mets won 1-0 but Dewitt also gave Maloney a raise for his mound work.

World Student Games

Canada Has 11 Entries

From Reuters-AP

BUDAPEST (CP) — Athletes from 35 countries paraded Friday night in a spectacular ceremony that opened the 10-day world student games in 80-degree weather.

Planes roared over Neps Stadium as red balloons carrying the flags of the competing nations were released against a backdrop of white, red and green smoke, Hungary's national colors. Thousands of fans exploded firecrackers and 5,000 doves flew aloft at the close of the ceremony.

Some of the events got under way even before the colorful opening ceremony. Competition began with the United States defeating Czechoslovakia 89-52 in the first game of the men's basketball tournament.

More than 2,000 athletes, including some of the world's best, are scheduled to compete in track and field, swimming, gymnastics, fencing, water polo, tennis, basketball and volleyball.

Canada, competing for the first time, is represented by 11 athletes in track, swimming and fencing.

Swimming events get under way today, while track and field is scheduled to start next Wednesday.

Hungarian Premier Gyula Kallai officially declared the games open at Friday's ceremony, after competition had already started in basketball, water polo and volleyball.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — Ben Herbert, owned by Bill Herbert of London, Ont., came from fifth position at the head of the stretch to whip six rivals in the sixth race at Greenwood Raceway Friday night.

Overlooked in the betting at 30-1, the Jack Herbert - driven pacer passed Twinkle's Adios in the final strides to win by a length.

Ben Herbert rewarded long-shot bettors with a $63.50 pay-off and combined with the runner - up for a $296 quinella.

Docmar, an 11-year-old pacer from the Rouge Valley Farm Stable of Toronto, won the first race and combined with Vera E. Scott in the second for a $30.10 daily double. Docmar returned $9.70 for the win and Vera E. Scott paid $5.30.

Winless in its previous 25 season's attempts, Lornie Rhythm, owned by Mr. and Mrs. William Caldwell of Clinton, Ont., held off the bids of its seven rivals to register a $71.80 upset in the seventh race.

COP GETS FAN MAIL

MANILA (AP)—The wife of rural police chief Ernesto Ricafort opened a neatly-wrapped gift package the mailman had delivered, and out slithered a full-grown cobra. The Philippine news service speculated the parcel was sent by someone who did not like the chief. The snake was killed.

Americans Hog Junior Net Glory

OTTAWA (CP)—A clash by top American tennis players highlighted the day's play at the Canadian junior open tennis championships Friday.

The Americans finally had to face each other after brushing off their Canadian opponents, and it resulted in some of the finest tennis seen to date at the tournament.

As the day's play ended many of the final and semi - final matches had been decided, and most of the silverware will again be going to the U.S. today.

Dan Bleckinger, top - seeded American in the boys 18-and-under class, squeezed into the final round when he beat George Taylor of Houston, Tex., 6-0, 6-8, 6-4, in their semi-final match.

WINS EASILY

Second U.S. seed in the boys 18 age class, Chuck Brainard of Hamtramck, Mich., walloped John Pryor of Tulsa, Okla., 6-0, 6-2.

In other days play Richard Stockton, 14, of Garden City, N.Y., and Steve Kraft, 14, of New York, walked away with the boys 14-and-under doubles title when they defeated 13-year-old Alexander and nine-year-old Eugene Mayer of New York 6-0, 7-5.

The girls 14-and-under title went to 14-year-olds Marjorie Gengler of Locust Valley, N.Y., and Emily Fisher of Hamtramck, who defeated 12-year-olds Susan Tenney of Scarsdale, N.Y., and Nancy Lewis of New Yor,k 6-1, 6-0.

Miss Fisher also won the girls 14-and-under singles title by beating Nancy Lewis 6-1, 6-0, and Amy Kiertanis, 12, of Hamtramck edged out Susan Pritula, 10, also of Hamtramck, 8-6, 6-3, for the girls 12-and-under singles title.

AT THE PARK — Lovely Anne Baxter and Donald Sinden are pictured in a scene from the exciting drama "Mix Me A Person", opening Monday at the Park Theatre. Co-starred with them in the film is popular Adam Faith. On the same program in color The Carry On Gang in "Carry on Jack", starring Kenneth Williams, Juliet Mills and Cecil Parker. One complete show starts at 7.30.

Smothers Brothers to Give CBS Fresh Comedy Team

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—If they are as funny on television as they are on a night club floor, then the Smothers Brothers should be television's freshest comedy team since Martin and Lewis.

Tom and Dick Smothers are basically folk singers but though they sing the ethnic songs like pros, they just use music as an excuse for comedy.

Dick, the tradition of comedy teams, is the straight man of the act. Tom is the bewildered one who plays guitar and blinks out at the world in tortured confusion.

At Las Vegas' Flamingo Hotel, they proved to be the comedy hit of the summer season. And no place hates folk singers more than Vegas.

Only Harry Belafonte has cracked the Nevada resort in the past.

Come Sept. 17 the Smothers Brothers television series makes its debut on CBS.

The format has Tom coming to earth as a bewildered angel—on probation. It takes off from there.

Perfectionists both, the two were not satisfied with their first shows. They hired a new producer - director, Freddy De Cordova, and will re-shoot most of them. They, naturally, own a piece of the show.

IS REALLY THEIR NAME

Both brothers report that the question most frequently asked them is: Is Smothers really your name? It is.

The two have just come up in recent years, starting at San Francisco's Purple Onion.

In a sense, they are the Spike Jones of folk music, spoofing the music that the avant garde groups dig.

Every song they sing gets an introduction just like the regular folk singers do. Some Smothers introductions:

"John Henry: Or as his close friends called him, Jack Hank, was a steel driving man. He was a high school dropout but what he lacked in education, he made up in raw courage. His final act of courage came when he pitted his strength against that of a machine. When the race was over, John Henry laid down his nine-pound hammer and died. And a railroad man looked down at his inert form and said: 'Look at that big, dumb Jack Hank — thought he could beat a machine.' "

"The founding of the colonies: The original 13 colonies were founded by our forefathers who were fleeing from religious prosecution and the Common Market. The Puritans were very religious people who worked hard to carve a home from the wilderness. But on Saturday night everyone let down his hair and relaxed around the fireside with a fun-packed, frolicsome witch burning."

OPENS MONDAY
Could An Innocent Person Hang in Britain?

In 1948, a future Lord Chancellor said in Parliament: "There is no practical possibility in this country of an innocent person being hanged."

This reassuring opinion is quoted by Donald Sinden in Mix Me a Person. Sinden plays the defence counsel of a teenager who is wrongly accused of shooting a policeman—and sentenced to hang.

A committee considering criminal appeals—presided over by Lord Merthyr, Lord Chairman of Committees and Deputy Speaker of the House of Lords—said in their annual report:

"There appears to be a kind of no-man's-land between the Court of Criminal Appeal and the Home Office into which the prisoner may fall—and from which he may never escape because vital new evidence—may never be given judicial consideration.

It is into this "no-man's land" that Adam Faith falls in 'Mix Me a Person.' Vital new evidence is brought up—but not accepted for consideration. And the margin between life and an unjustified death grows alarmingly slim.

Mix Me a Person probes into British Justice. And reveals that there can be a crucial difference between the Law and the Truth.

Anne Baxter plays the leading feminine role as a psychiatrist.

On the same progam, in Color, the Carry On Gang in "Carry On Jack." One complete show starts at 7.30 p.m.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — Wayne Harris, 18, won his first race as a journeyman jockey here Friday aboard a Kentucky bred two-year-old named Zip Zone.

Harris has been the Ontario thoroughbred circuit's top apprentice rider for the last season and a half. He graduated Wednesday from the rookie ranks.

Zip Zone was well-rated by Harris behind Larkin Maloney's Second Wonder.

Second Wonder led into the stretch in the six-furlong feature, but gave way to Zip Zone half-way to the wire.

The quinella, $269.50, was one of the meeting's larger payoffs, linking the winner Count Fox with the place horse, Victor's Best.

The daily double returned $14.50 on Bedford Park, the first-race winner, and Page Service which took the second.

DUREN ON WAIVERS

WASHINGTON (AP)—Washington Senators asked waivers Friday on veteran relief pitcher Ryne Duren and brought up right - hander Jim Duckworth from their Hawaii farm team in baseball's Pacific Coast League. Duren, once one of the top relief pitchers in the American League, had a 1-1 won-lost record with a 6.65 earned-run average in limited action with Washington.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Cliff Robertson as an American soldier and Irina Demick as a member of the French Resistance, are shown on the day after the Normandy Invasion in this scene from "Up From The Beach", a 20th Century-Fox release in CinemaScope opening Tonight at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. Also starring Red Buttons, the film focuses on two GI's and their adventures during the 24 hours following D-Day. 2nd action-packed feature, also in CinemaScope, "Sink The Bismarck" stars Kenneth More and Dana Wynter.

English Pro Soccer

New Season Starts Today

By JOHN FREEMAN

LONDON (Reuters) — England's professional soccer season opens today with 92 teams in the four English League divisions embarking on a gruelling eight-month season which will, after all, be only a warm-up for next July's World Cup competition.

National team manager Alf Ramsey has predicted that England will not only play host to the World Cup teams but win the cup to boot.

And despite 10 years of declining attendance, increasing concentration on colorless defensive tactics and a disturbing increase in violence, there are signs that England may be edging back to the top in the sport it once dominated.

One revolutionary and hopefully crowd-pleasing step is being taken this season—the use of a 12-month test period of a substitute (just one) who can replace an injured player during the game.

Soccer rules have required a team to play the same 11 men from start to finish of each 90-minute game. If a player was injured, his team played short-handed.

TO WIPE OUT VIOLENCE

Soccer czars also are stepping up a campaign to wipe out violence both on the field and in the grandstand. Last season a referee took the unprecedented step of ordering Everton and Leeds, two first-division teams, to leave the field for a 10 minute cooling-off period after some particularly brutal play.

Both last season and in recent exhibition games hooliganism among spectators also has caused concern.

The World Cup matches next July will pit England's top team against the world's 15 other leading sides. England's hopes for a return to top international ranks rest on signs such as West Ham United's victory in the European Cup Winners' Cup last season, and Liverpool's narrow one-goal loss in the European Cup semi-final.

Three teams are expected to dominate English League play in the coming season. They are Liverpool, English Cup winner last season and league champion in 1964; Everton, champion in 1963, and Manchester United, which will represent England in the European Cup for the first time since a 1958 plane crash at Munich shattered the team.

Bob Hayes Bids For Dallas Berth

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Olympian Bob Hayes continues his quest for a professional football career tonight.

Hayes, winner of two Olympic gold medals and holder of the world record—9.1 seconds—for the 100-yard dash, is scheduled to work at flanker for Dallas Cowboys in their National Football League exhibition against San Francisco '49ers at Portland, Ore.

Hayes, a 190-pounder, is seeking to make it where such sprinters as Dave Sime and Frank Budd failed, although Budd has caught on with Calgary Stampeders in the Canadian Football League this season.

"He's primarily a football player," says Hayes' college coach, Jake Gaither of Florida A and M. "He's a football player who just happens to be fast enough to run the 100 in 9.1."

The Cowboy-'49er game is one of five on Saturday's crowded professional football exhibition slate. The long weekend, in which 20 of the 22 major league teams see action, started Friday night with Tommy Mason leading Minnesota Vikings to a 35-21 win over the Philadelphia Eagles, while Baltimore Colts downed Detroit Lions 23-3.

BREAKS TIE

Mason scored twice on runs and passed for a third touchdown on a halfback-option. His 15-yard toss to Tom Hall in the fourth period broke a 21-21 tie.

Claude Crabb got the first Eagle touchdown, racing 97 yards after intercepting a pass from Ron Vanderkelen, and Tim Brown scored the other two on a three-yard run and a 51-yard screen-pass play.

Jerry Hill had two Baltimore touchdowns, both in the second quarter, on a short run and a six-yard pass from Gary Cuozzo. The Lions mounted only two threats and cashed in on only one, with a 22-yard field goal by Wayne Walker in the opening minutes.

Two games were scheduled this afternoon, New York Jets were to meet Buffalo Bills at New Brunswick, N.J., in the American League, and Chicago Bears and Green Bay Packers at Milwaukee in the National League.

Tuna Fishing

Caribbean Has Edge Over U.S.

WEDGEPORT, N.S. (CP)—The Caribbean team held a slight lead over the United States going into the final round of the international tuna tournament today.

After Friday's fishing, three giant bluefin were hanging by their tails at the weighing-in wharf in this southwestern Nova Scotia village.

Two of the fish were boated by the American team and the other belonged to Canada. It was the first of the tournament for both teams.

The Caribbean team took two fish and Mexico one Thursday. No fish were caught Wednesday, opening day.

Elwood Harry of Miami, one of the world's top tuna anglers, brought in a 583-pounder Friday and Osborn Owings of Washington caught one weighing 521 pounds.

The Canadian team's fish, a 573-pounder, was landed by Dr. Murray Newman, curator of the Vancouver Aquarium.

ON A POUND BASIS

Scoring is on a points-per-pound basis and the Caribbean fish outweigh the Americans' by 61 pounds. Louis Mowbray of Bermuda has boated a 600-pounder, biggest so far, and Louis Deverteuil of Barbados has taken a 565-pounder. This gives the Caribbean team 1,165 points, the U.S. 1,104, Canada 573 and Mexico 519.

Two hundred bonus points are awarded the team with the most fish and 200 to the team with the biggest single fish.

The weather cleared today for the first time in the tournament, ending two weeks of fog.

Leafs Win But Jets Sweep Pair

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rochester Red Wings' playoff hopes were dealt a severe blow and Atlanta Crackers were almost eliminated from the pennant race in International league baseball action Friday night.

The last-place Buffalo Bisons blanked the Wings 3-0 to drop the Rochester club 5½ games behind fourth-place Syracuse. League-leading Columbus Jets swept a doubleheader 4-1 and 2-0 from the Crackers to move 6½ ahead of Atlanta with 12 games remaining.

In other games second-place Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Syracuse 5-2 and Toledo Mud Hens edged Jacksonville Suns 3-2 in 10 innings in the opener of a doubleheader and took the nightcap 2-0.

Dick Selma and Don Rowe combined to shutout the Wings.

Mike Ryan's two-run triple in the seventh inning off reliever Ed Rakow broke a 2-2 deadlock and kept the Leafs in the pennant race.

WINS LADIES' CROWN

QUEBEC (CP)—Helene Gagnon, an 18-year-old brunette from the Saguenay, Que., club, came from four holes behind to sweep to victory in the Quebec provincial ladies' open golf championship played over the Royal Quebec course Friday.

Patty Caretto

Snaps World Swim Mark

CARDIFF, Wales (AP) — Patty Caretto, 14-year-old junior high school student from Whittier, Calif., broke the world record for the women's 1,650-yard freestyle swim Friday night with a time of 18:51.1.

She trimmed more than one-half minute off the pending record of 19:12.4 set by Kathryn Wainwright of Australia last February. It was the second world record in less than two weeks for the petite blonde.

She broke her own world record in the 1,500-metre freestyle with a time of 18:23.7 in the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union championships in Toledo, Ohio, a week ago.

Miss Caretto swam Friday without competition. Although she swam in connection with the U.S.-British competition, the 1,650 yards was a special event added for her record try and she swam alone.

John Nelson of Pompano Beach, Fla., broke the listed world mark for the men's 220-yard freestyle, swimming the first leg in an 880-relay in 2:01.

The listed mark is 2:01.1 by Australia's Robert Windle, but there are two better pending marks, including a 1:59.7 by Germany's Hans Klein.

TAIPEI (AP) — Typhoon Mary, which struck Formosa Thursday claimed 17 lives, police reported Friday.

Beavers To Tour Europe

KINGSTON (CP)—Sherbrooke Beavers, 1965 Allan Cup champions, will tour Europe this winter, it was announced this Friday.

Gordon Juckes of Melville, Sask., secretary - manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said the Beavers would leave Dec. 24.

Juckes said that two European tours will be available and that it was up to the Ontario Hockey Association to choose the other team.

Kingston Aces and Woodstock Athletics, both eliminated by the Beavers in Allan Cup playoffs last year, are the two teams in the running for the second tour.

ENDS FOOTBALL CAREER

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — George Fleming, a halfback and kicker with Winnipeg Blue Bombers until cut down by injuries, said Friday he is through with professional football.

Western Scoring Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Peter Kempf kicked a convert and a field goal for British Columbia in Lions' 10-10 draw with Saskatchewan Roughriders Friday night to grab a share of third place in the Western Football Conference scoring race.

Kempf's 21 points put him even with Larry Robinson of Calgary Stampeders, three points behind co-leaders Hugh Campbell of Saskatchewan and Jim Thomas of Edmonton Eskimos.

Bob Swift of Lions and George Reed of Roughriders scored touchdowns to boost their point total to 18, good for a five-way tie for fifth place.

Saskatchewan rookie Jack Abendschan matched Kempf's performance. Abendschan's 17 points are good for sole possession of 10th place.

The leaders:

Al Colwell Wins Senior Golf Crown

TORONTO (CP)—Al Colwell of Toronto fired a two-under-par 74 Friday to win the fourth annual Ontario seniors' golf championship for players over 60.

He defeated defending Canadian seniors' champion George Hevenor of Toronto by three strokes.

Colwell was two under on the front nine and survived a seven on the 10th hole to register his victory.

Jim Whitla of Waterloo was third with a 78.

Gord Campbell of Toronto won the low net prize with a 66 and the Toronto threesome of Hevenor, Harold Perrin and Dr. H. Halderson captured the team prize with 245.

There was a field of 86 veterans ranging in age from 60 to 91.

Athletics Tie Series

St. Catharines Athletics rallied to defeat Brampton Excelsiors 16-10 Friday night and tie the Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior A semi-final at three games each.

Brampton led 5-4 at the end of the first period but the Athletics outscored the Excelsiors 8-4 in the second period to put the game out of reach.

Ron Roy paced St. Catharines with five goals and three assists.

The Golden Years

'Give Us the Straight Facts' Says Man About to Retire

By THOMAS COLLINS

It is suggested that business and institutions could stop some of the retirement problems they are having with employees if they would take the marbles out of their mouths and start talking English.

And if they sent their lawyers out of the room for a while.

Ernest R. Bowden is somewhat indignant about the matter. He's an employee. He will retire in about 18 months. He'd be pleased to find out what his retirement benefits will be.

"I want you to just look at what one of the country's fine companies — not mine — is telling its employees about their pensions. Read it, if you can:

> Based on 20 years of service or more where a man may retire at age 60 or a woman at age 55, and based on 15 years of service for a man or woman at age 65. Annual pensions come to one percent of average annual salary for the five highest consecutive years of service, times years of company service, less one-third of Government benefit.

"Can an employee now in his 60's figure that out when he or she probably never had even a high school education?" Mr. Bowden thinks not. "It sounds like something a college professor might write in a research paper for the Ford Foundation . . . or something a lawyer cooked up to impress somebody . . ."

Mr. Bowden wants to know why the smart boys with their fancy computers can't figure out something simple that will let an employee know what his pension will be. "I could figure out that formula above, with an effort. I don't know about that 'five highest consecutive years' — why consecutive? Still, I could figure the formula, with an effort. Why must it be an effort?"

Mr. Bowden cites another bit of language a company gives its employees on the "Survivor's Option" on its pensions:

> An employee may decide, prior to retirement on a Class A pension to receive a lesser amount than his normal retirement payment and thereby qualify a named survivor (spouse or parent) for an annuity. This annuity would pay an amount of one-third the employee's actuarially reduced pension to the survivor for life.

"That word 'actuarilly' is the joker here," according to Mr. Bowden. "Who knows what it means? Anyway, why make things so tough? All an employee wants to know is how much pension he's going to get, or how much a spouse might get. And he had rather not have to go get a college degree to find out."

Mr. Bowden voices, with some emotion, the feelings of many people who are now coming up to retirement and are bewildered by what their retirement benefits will be. Usually business and institutions have personnel or finance officials who say they are more than willing to explain the retirement policies in detail to any employee who will ask. But too often they are out attending a committee meeting or have just stepped out for a short beer. Anyway, the average employee would be embarrassed to approach such an official's office and admit he is too dumb to understand the mumbo-jumbo in the employee manual.

Gemini

east of the cape, moving slowly landward.

Officials said the clouds posed no problem and weather conditions were nearly ideal, with a light breeze, gentle seas and only a few scattered clouds over the cape.

The planned flight time of 191 hours, 53 minutes would eclipse by three days the 119-hour, six-minute record held by Soviet cosmonaut Valery Bykovsky.

The time would also equal that planned for the first U.S. manned lunar landing trip, scheduled in 1969. Dr. Charles A. Berry, director of Gemini medical operations, said the flight hopefully will eliminate any doubts that man can survive in space long enough to rocket to the moon, explore and return.

A 14 - day Gemini flight is planned later this year to gather medical information for trips that would permit longer exploration on the lunar surface.

But before that there will be a two-day Gemini 6 flight, during which astronauts Walter Schirra and Tom Stafford will attempt to rendezvous and dock with an Agena rocket that will be launched separately.

Cooper and Conrad are making a vital practice run for Schirra and Stafford by testing the radar, computer and other electronic aids needed to catch another satellite.

"Pretty good imitation of your boss, wasn't it?"

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Many readers have complained that the amount term or interest rate of the mortgage delivered at settlement was different from what was promised. A simple precaution, as explained below, overcomes this hazard.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: When my father bought his house the mortgage he got was much less than what the broker had promised. He had to borrow the difference from his brothers and it was very embarrassing.

I am now about to buy my first house. My savings are only $2,000 and my salary is $120 per week, but I can swing the deal if I get the mortgage the salesman promised. I am a faithful reader of your column and have asked your advice to avoid many pitfalls. What do I do to solve my problem? — "Faithful Reader"

ANSWER: It gives me a warm feeling to see that my message of "get advice before you commit yourself" is beginning to get across. The solution to our faithful reader's problem is simple.

Instruct your attorney, or whoever is drawing up the agreement of sale that a mortgage clause be inserted stating the exact amount of the mortgage, its term and interest rate—and if such a mortgage is not produced the whole agreement is null and void. Don't sign until you are satisfied with the statement in this clause and that it is exactly as promised.

Don't accept oral promises! If it is not in writing — don't sign.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I don't understand why it costs me anywhere from $8,000 to $10,000 a year to keep up my house. Luckily my husband left me well off and I can afford it. It's only a small house with seven rooms and two baths.

I have a most wonderful man taking care of my house. Every month he stops by and fixes something. He is so good he is able to know what will happen in the future and fixes it before it goes wrong.

I appreciate the attention he is giving my house. I know you are an expert in housing costs. Do you think he is charging me too much? — A Lucky Widow

ANSWER: : You don't have a problem for a real estate expert — your district attorney is the one to whom you should submit your problem.

You are being bled by an unscrupulous villain and for the prices he is charging you he can afford to be pleasant. Your maintenance costs are at least 10 times too high by any conceivable stretch of the imagination. Anyone who has the clairvoyance of your contractor and knows what will happen in the future should know that his present course of action puts a nice jail cell in his future.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My cellar is full of cans of dried out paint. I was told that it was an excellent idea to save left-over paint and use it for touch-up at a later date. Sounds good and makes sense but what is the secret of storing left-over paint? — Mr. J. P.

ANSWER: Air causes paint to skim over and harden. To store paint you must get rid of the air in the container and use an air tight vessel.

I recommend that you use handy screw type jars. Fill to the brim to exclude all air. Place wax paper over the mouth of the jar, with about one inch projecting on all sides, and seal by tightly screwing on the lid. Your paint will now last indefinitely.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My asphalt shingle roof is about 18 years old but in good condition. A salesman tells me that roofs like mine usually have a life of about 15 years and that I should consider replacement. What he says sounds logical. As an expert, what is your opinion? — Mrs. J. T. K.

ANSWER: One replaces a roof, or any other item in a house, when it requires replacement — and not based on a theoretical schedule based on averages. I know many asphalt roofs that are still serviceable after 25 and 30 years. I know others that required replacement in less than 10 years.

When the leaks start you replace a roof — before that time you just listen politely to the salesman and think of all the money you are saving.

• • •

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

QUESTION: We are interested in the new Centennial Numismatic Park at Sudbury, and wondered if you could tell us something about it. — A. M. N., Belleville ANSWER: Taking shape on a windy hill overlooking the Northern Ontario city of Sudbury is a veritable fantasyland for coin collectors.

Centennial Numismatic Park is its name and, as travellers enter the westerly limits on Highway 17, they are greeted by its premier exhibit thus far — a five-cent piece the height of a house mounted on a nickel ore base.

Sudbury produces roughly 75 percent of the world's supply of nickel and the big coin model, measuring 30 feet across, 24 inches thick, and built at a cost of $35,000 has given the city a landmark almost as famous as its three giant smoke stacks.

Nearby is a king-size penny 10 feet in diameter 12 inches thick and built of local copper.

But perhaps the most impressive coin replica planned for the park is a 1964 U.S. half-dollar to commemorate the late president John F. Kennedy. The 20-foot model of nickel and stainless steel, 18 inches thick, will stand on a 15-foot base composed of a glass enclosure sheltering an eternal flame atop a marble pedestal.

Also in the offing is a five shilling memorial to Winston Churchill, 12 feet in diameter and 14 inches thick. It will be supported by three granite pillars, each bearing a symbol and description of Sir Winston Churchill's three greatest contributions to the world. Both of these will be installed in time for Canada's 100th birthday in 1967.

Idea for the park originated with Ted Szilva, a 30-year-old city fireman who heads a three-man private company in its operation. Admission to the park is free and the firm must therefore rely on the sale of souvenir medallions to keep it solvent. The medallions, five in all, are available to numismatists throughout the world.

The park's newest acquisition is a model mine, a realistic simulation of conditions and workings of an underground hard-rock operation. The visitor's first thrill is being furnished with a miner's hard hat. Then he enters a cage in the head-frame, the gates are locked and down goes the cage in a 60-foot shaft. At the bottom, the visitor emerges into a typical mine drift — a rough - hewn corridor with a track down the middle for the ore car.

On display are life-like dummies of miners at work with various drills and machines. A guide explains how the equipment is operated and points out the actual vein of nickel ore in the wall.

An admission fee is charged for a tour of the model mine house, with a continuous motion picture program showing all phases of mining in the Sudbury area.

Sudbury, lying 260 miles northwest of Toronto, is a major base for fly-in fishing and hunting camps in the wilderness beyond.

MASTER PLAN BUILT WABUSH — This town on the side of a valley in western Labrador did not exist three years ago. Today 2,800 people live in modern homes at Wabush and work in a $235,000,000 iron-mining project being developed by an international group of companies with Pickands-Mather of Cleveland as managing agents. Most of the 200 homes and other facilities in the town are owned by the companies. The average age of the town's population is 26. Canada

10 other countries are among those who have refused to contribute to these costs on grounds that the assessments were made by the general assembly and not by the security council.

After proposing the special pledging conferences, Tremblay said that "Canada welcomes and on the whole agrees with the guidelines prepared" by Thant and President Alex Quaison-Sackey for the future of UN peacekeeping.

Tremblay emphasized that all proposals to initiate peacekeeping operations involving the use of military forces should be "considered first in the Security Council."

SHOULD DISCUSS

"If the council were unable to act, the General Assembly would have the right to discuss the matter and to make recommendations either to the council or to member states," he said.

Tremblay said also the secretary-general must remain in a position to administer peacekeeping operations "subject . . . to periodic review by the council unless and until there is agreement that some other body such as the military staff committee should perform this function."

Another speaker, Chief S. O. Adebo, the Nigerian delegate, announced that his country was contributing $20,000 to the UN peacekeeping fund and said he welcomed the statement by Goldberg as a "good omen for the future."

Adebo said that other countries, earlier than the United States, "had come to the realization that the application of sanctions under article 19 could bring disaster to the organization." It is article 19 in the UN charter that takes away the voting rights of member states not meeting their financial obligations.

The committee adjourned indefinitely, with the next meeting to be called after private consultations.

Liberal Candidate Is Chosen

TORONTO (CP) — George Ben, 39, a lawyer and former Toronto alderman, received the Liberal nomination Friday for the Sept. 15 provincial byelection in the Toronto riding of Bracondale.

The seat was left vacant by the death May 8 of Liberal member Joseph Gould.

Wabush Grows From Wilds Of Labrador in Three Years

By DAVE BUTLER

WABUSH, Labrador (CP)— Three years ago the town of Wabush did not exist. Today 2,800 people live in this modern community built on the edge of the huge Wabush Mines development.

Wabush did not start out as a mining camp and it doesn't look like an old-fashioned mining town. The developers of the $235,000,000 iron-mining project knew where almost every house would be located before the ground was broken. The town was developed as a part of the industrial project.

Nestled on the side of a valley in western Labrador, seven miles from the Quebec border, the town is functioning almost as if it had been there forever. Every service needed by the miners and their families is available.

Wabush now has 200 houses and another 200 apartments. Single miners are housed in spacious, modern bachelor quarters. The average age of the population of Wabush is 26.

The area has a theatre, five churches, three supermarkets, three restaurants and a 50-room hotel, the Sir Wilfred Grenfell. Another hotel is soon to be built in Labrador City three miles away. One recreation centre already has been built and another is under way.

JOBS IN DEMAND

There's a modern curling rink and the local ski club says it has the best ski runs in Eastern Canada, complete with several lifts.

An active flying club has been formed and an all-services club is in formative stages. The 50 boats in the local yacht club can explore for hours on inland waterways.

For every person who leaves Labrador, two come in and there is a waiting list for employment. New housing units are snapped up as fast as they are finished.

Charles Divine, independent member of the Newfoundland legislature for Labrador West, says Wabush is a good place for young people. He says people who are leaving the town are those who probably would leave later on any way

There is no television in western Labrador and the predominantly English population makes little use of the French radio provided through Quebec stations. There is discontent over a CBC decision to start a joint French-English station in the area.

Wabush and Labrador City may be developing a terrific traffic problem. They have 1,400 cars and only nine miles of road apart from town streets. With nine RCMP officers patrolling the short stretch of highway joining the two towns, residents say laughingly they have the best policing of any town of similar size in the world.

Pay at the mill is high and unskilled laborers are having a field day. Said one 23-year-old mill worker, "I'm going to earn $8,800 this year and I'm not even a tradesman. I just work in the shop."

All houses have basements and oil heat. Each street has its sidewalk. As early as June, power mowers buzz over lawns seeded with a specially developed hardy grass seed. Shrubs and trees are being planted.

The pride of the community is the $600,000 community centre, operated by a non-profit citizens committee. It houses a library, a fully equipped stage, a snack shop, gymnasium, bowling alleys and movie theatre.

A new 73-bed hospital is being built by the Newfoundland government.

REACHED BY AIR

A show-place is the new 48-classroom school. It is divided into two parts—one for Roman Catholic students and the other for students of other denominations. There are two school boards, two superintendents and two principals.

Every year there is a winter carnival with ice sculptures. Temperatures can dip to 40 below zero but in summer days are usually sunny with highs in the 80s and lows in the 50s.

Most of the houses and facilities in the town were built and are owned by the companies which financed the big mining project. Pickands - Mather of Cleveland, Ohio, are the managing agents. The other 10 companies are Canadian, American, West Germand and Italian.

Wabush has no rail or road connections with the outside world but Quebecair runs scheduled flights to Sept-Iles, Que., and Montreal and Eastern Provincial Airways operates daily to points in Newfoundland.

'Easy-going'

She said in a statement released by the Student Non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee that they had stopped at the store to get some food.

"A man we assumed to be the proprietor looked at us with a shotgun in his hand and told us: 'Get off my property,'" she said. "He shot before we had a chance to turn around."

Alabama Attorney - General Richmond Flowers promised a full - scale investigation and vowed: "If this is murder, it will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law."

President Johnson instructed Attorney - General Nicholas Katzenbach to begin a "vigorous and immediate" investigation and the justice department ordered an FBI probe.

Coleman, a gray-haired resident engineer for the state highway department, often worked without pay as a part-time "special" deputy sheriff.

He is married and the father of two children. He is a native of the Hayneville area and comes from a family active in civic affairs.

"He is respected in the community," said a deputy sheriff. "He laughs and jokes a lot. I'd call him a friendly person."

"He was mild mannered," said another deputy. "He didn't show his temper usually."

Mrs. Viola Liuzzo, a white civil-rights worker from Detroit, was killed near here last March. Ku Klux Klansman Collie Wilkins Jr. was tried for the slaying, but the jury was unable to reach a verdict.

Another trial had been scheduled next month, but Wilkins' lawyer, Matt H. Murphy Jr., was killed Friday in a highway accident.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For August 22

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Much activity close to home indicated. Know where you stand. Spiritual advisor, one with experience could have answer. Encouragement may be obtained from loved ones. Not best to try "going it alone."

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Highlight pleasure, joy, versatility. Fine for reunion with relatives, visit with one confined. Be analytical. Overcome worry with optimistic outlook.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Check belongings. Best to delay vital moves. Cycle still high . . . but important to conserve energies. You can now plot course, understand results of past efforts. Be aware of dress, wardrobe.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Cycle high. Obtain hint from Gemini message. Be aware of personal appearance. Strive to make best impression. Possible to combine social affair with frank business discussion.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Find the why of things. Peek behind the scenes. Don't be in awe of one who puts on "airs." Spiritual advisor could prove constructive influence. Overcome secret fear.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Your ability to win friends of paramount importance now. Perceive needs motives of those around you. Stress understanding, cooperation. Give a little to receive much!

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Fine for dealing with older individuals. Study potential. Heed voice of experience. Don't battle with those in authority. Evening good for stimulating company, conversation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Be patient where details are concerned. Those around you may appear irritable. Look to future. Gain through writing, reading, correspondence. Attend church of choice.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Friends may be careless with your money or feelings. Set affairs in order. Remember past promises. Dig deep for information. Avoid conclusions based on superficial investigation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your judgment concerning mate, partner tends to be accurate. Best now to do more listening, observing than talking. Take delays in stride. Plant seeds for future action.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Give special consideration to basic chores. Once they are attended to . . . you can see way clear to constructive action. One who serves you speaks truth. Recognize this!

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Figure ways, method for obtaining greater freedom of action. Break from routine. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Evening can be productive, exciting . . . and romantic.

For August 23

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Work toward realization of aims. Important to put completing touches on major project. Handle responsibility. Fine for dealing with financial legal advisors.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Tune in on mental attitude of those who surround you. Find out the why of recent events. People may be curious about your attitude. Be explicit. No beating around the bush!

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Study purchasing power of your assets. Be realistic. New, fresh view advisable. One you rely on may not be available. Don't rush. Wait for the best offer.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Be conscious of public attitudes, reactions. Stress originality, independence. Be a leader . . . exhibit confidence. Your intuition now tends to ring bell of accuracy. Trust it!

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Many could ask your opinion in regard to secrets, clandestine activities. Key is being discreet. Don't wear heart on sleeve. Be willing to listen . . . then make private evaluations.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Study your "inner purpose." Be sure you know where you really want to go. Realize you are your own best friend. Have courage to face yourself. Observant attitude is key.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Maintain top standards. Reach for the sky! You can now get what you really require. Investigate, shop around. Make necessary changes. Exciting activity indicated!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Wonderful time for outlining future, realizing potential. Especially good for advertising, publishing programs. Keep promises made to family member. Highlight harmony.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Previous work apt to be closely judged. Fine now for testing sales techniques. Face facts as they exist. Much can be accomplished . . . if you put forth determined effort.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): If you insist or force issues . . . delay could result. Best tactic is one of quiet skepticism. Be aware of public reaction, relations. Be on best behavior!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Be sure of supplies. Take stock of basic needs. Better to complete rather than begin projects. Get fully rounded picture. No time for extreme measures.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Evening good for breaking away from routine. Give attention to special friends, hobby. Express yourself. Highlight creative endeavors. Change, possible journey indicated.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for Cancer, Leo, Virgo. Special word to Pisces. Activity involving youngsters proves of special benefit.

Wearing Shorts In Quebec City Not Allowed

QUEBEC (CP) — Ladies, if you wear shorts in Quebec City it's just like parking illegally. You'll get a ticket; at least a warning ticket.

In effect, that's the edict laid down Thursday by police chief Gerard Girard. He said police are starting a campaign against wearing shorts in the streets. A city bylaw backs him up.

Women who parade about in such skimpy attire needn't be surprised if they are approached by a policeman, said the chief. First they will be warned. If they persist in disregarding the bylaw "necessary measures" will be taken.

There have been complaints —and, indeed, verification by policemen themselves, said the chief. So the bylaw will be "rigorously enforced."

The police department has had warning circulars printed. Shorts wearers, in short, will be handed these circulars.

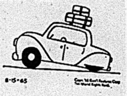
Your Car



Add Helper Springs for Heavy Loads

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

The importance of shock absorbers is constantly stressed, and should be, since they affect steering, braking, alignment and suspension.

But shocks are no guarantee against spring damage or sag when the car must haul heavy loads. During this time of year, especially, springs take a beating.

If your car is expected to pull a boat or trailer, or if it's going to be loaded down with gear for a family vacation trip, helper springs might be a sound investment. They will reinforce rear leaf or coil springs, protecting the rear suspension against abnormally heavy burdens.

When no longer needed, helper springs can be removed, and should be, unless you do not mind the riding stiffness you'll experience.

W.P. asks: "Does a cylinder head gasket leak cause engine overheating because water is being lost?"

Not necessarily. It could cause overheating by allowing exhaust gases to get into the cooling system and interfere with water circulation.

From H.M.: "The headlights on my car seem dimmer than those of others on the road. The battery is new and I've personally checked out terminal connections and wiring."

How about lamp sockets? Looseness or corrosion here can cause this trouble.

C.J. asks: "Can a leaking hydraulic shock absorber be repaired?"

Even if the leakage could be stopped, you can't properly refill or replenish the fluid. Replacement is the only answer.

From L. Y.: "I think you once wrote that a smoke test could pinpoint a muffler or tailpipe leak. Could I make this test myself?"

Yes. Block off the tailpipe temporarily and pour light engine oil into the carburetor air intake to effect a smoky exhaust. Then watch for smoke seeping through a crack, hole, or loose connection in the exhaust.

Successful Living

Bachelor Confuses Loyalty Between Queen and Wife

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — You advocate that a man's wife must take precedence in his affections over his mother. I agree that a man shall leave his father and mother and cleave unto his wife and that he shall love his wife as his own body as the Scripture states, but for Her Majesty's subjects, do you not think that the woman who must take precedence over all other earthly affections is Her Most Gracious Majesty herself?

Do you not also think that refusal to love our Queen more than our nearest is very near to treason? Her Majesty is the Lord's annointed in the terrorities over which she reigns, as she rules for God, and I have a strong feeling that it is only right that she should have first place in her subjects' hearts (next, of course, to God and His Christ). What do you say? — A QUEEN'S MAN.

P.S. — I am single.

DEAR QUEEN'S — Now, wait a minute. Supposing you were to express such a deep and abiding love to your Queen as you might have for a wife — wouldn't Prince Philip have something to say about it?

Our Queen is the symbol of our native land; as such deserves our patriotism. Sometimes such devotion is vested in a king, or a flag. In Canada we are lucky that we can actually respect our ruler for personal qualities; but our wise and dedicated Queen would be the first to agree that a man's warmest, most personal love and loyalty should be to his wife — Mr. Bachelor!

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Thank you for telling your Canadian readers about World Tapes for Education. We issue lists of members three or four times a year, and this typical (but fictitious) listing will show you the kind of information included:

"John J. Blank, 392 Blank Street, Elanktown, South Wales. Chief fire officer. Adult, male. Tape/slide shows, opera — classical and light, fishing. Daughter 22. English, Welsh, some German."

Each person arranges his own tape exchanges, on whatever subjects he wishes. WTE takes no stand on political or religious questions. It is a non-profit organization designed to promote international understanding through a free exchange of information, using the medium of tape recording. — WORLD TAPES FOR EDUCATION, P.O. Box 15703, Dallas, Texas.

DEAR WTE — Thank you. I understand that "tape/slide shows" means a member will exchange 35-mm slides with taped commentary. Also, WTE will help blind people find readers to put textbooks and necessary technical articles onto tape for them. Boy Scouts the world over compare notes on tape. And many handicapped members help others with problems like their own by friendly exchanges on tape.

(Readers may write direct to above address for more details.)

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Some time ago a newspaper item stated that by January 1st, 1966, the Government would assume all costs of illegitimate children. I would like you to explain just what it means.

I have a little boy 15 months old. The father helped for a while but is unable just now. Has been out of work for seven months and before that had to go away for treatment. He still won't admit the child is his.

The trouble is, Doris, I guess I was just too easy and he doesn't trust me. I am 18 years old, live with my brother and wife. I realize now I should have given the baby up for adoption. — E.H.

DEAR E.H. — The new legislation provides that, starting next January, the Ontario Government will assume all costs for the maintenance of children born to unmarried mothers and subsequently made wards of a Children's Aid Society. Right now costs are shared with the city where the mother lives — an arrangement which sometimes presents grievous difficulties for those concerned.

Natural parents must still pay what they can, and this may be enforced by a court order. The father is expected to help with hospital and medical bills, and with the support of the child (until adoption takes place — if this is planned.)

I'd suggest you discuss things with your local Children's Aid Society, since you still have some important decisions to make.

Eichmann's Son Arrested As Extremist

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters)—Horst Eichmann, son of Adolf Eichmann, executed Nazi war criminal, was among 400 right wing and Communist extremists arrested Friday night in a roundup by Argentine police, it was disclosed today.

Interior Minister Juan Palermo said Eichmann, who appeared last year at an Argentine press conference wearing a Nazi armband, had been released for lack of substantial evidence.

His father was kidnapped from Argentina by Israeli agents, tried in Israel and hanged May 31, 1962, after his conviction on changes of having engineered the mass-murder of millions of Jews.

The Argentine police began the roundup Friday night as Palermo reported to parliament on the activities of extremist groups in Argentina.

Deseronto News

Two Bylaws Passed by Town Council

DESERONTO — Deseronto council passed two by-laws at a special session. One by-law ordered execution of a deed to Orin Oliver for part of the old Ideal Venders property. A second by-law will permit the town to make application to the government to recover $3,000 of an estimated $7,500 spent on town roads. In connection with the town roads, a motion was passed to engage J. D. Lee of Kingston as consulting engineer to draw up plans for re-paving, curbing and drainage to a portion of No. 2 Highway passing through Deseronto.

Council here expressed concern for a pile of rubble built up in the area of the proposed Centennial Park.

The rubble is part of an old building which burned last winter and is on property adjacent to the site of the Tyendinaga Township Centennial Park project. The council was told that much of this fill and rubble is being hauled away by truckers to act as fill for land elsewhere. It was suggested that any of the debris still remaining in the area could be used in construction of a proposed pier in the park.

The Provincial government last week announced approval to a grant to the township for construction of the park.

False Alarms Being Probed By Department

DESERONTO — Tuesday two false fire alarms were turned in to the Deseronto and Napanee Fire departments.

The first call was to the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Knapp of Mill St., Deseronto. When the firemen arrived they surprised the Knapp family by asking where the fire was only to find it was a false report.

Later the Napanee firemen arrived having been summoned to a large fire at Metcalfe Foods Ltd., also on Mill St., also a false report.

Previous to these calls others have been received at late hours.

Police say they may have a lead on the person or persons making the calls and will have more information later.

No Extreme Shock Felt After Blast

NAPANEE — Thursday evening the H. J. McFarland Co., set off a test blast at the quarry they operate on Roblin Hill within the town limits of Napanee.

After council received complaints from residents in Clarkesville about the noise, dust and damage due to the blasting, council agreed to enforce a by-law which prohibits of a quarry within the town.

The McFarland Co., suggested a test blast and invited any interested citizens to come and view it to see if the blasting was actually causing damage.

Police Chief Harry Benn witnessed the loading of 42 drill holes with 27 cases of dynamite which the superintendant stated would be one of the largest blasts set off recently.

Less than ten citizens, including the mayor, Lorne Smart, stood within 200 feet of the charge when it was detonated and the felt no extreme shock.

NO GREAT SHOCK

Councillor Donald Reid, who was stationed in Clarkesville, stated there was no great shock felt where he was but felt that it was possible that with varying weather conditions and rock formations impact might be noticed in different places at different times. Previous to this time Councillor Reid states he has felt the floor shake in his home on Bridge St., upon questioning however, he stated he has noticed the same sensation when large transport pass the when large transports pass the

Mr. M. Storey who lives half-a mile away, arrived to complain that the blast had broken one of his windows and on August 11 two water pipes were broken.

Horn, McDuff and Hastings Co., of Toronto were engaged to set up a seismograph in the Clarkesville area to register the degree of shock, and these results will be learned later.

The insurance adjuster for McFarlands suggested this instrument be located at the home of Mr. Storey to ascertain the shock in that area.

Downtown tenants in Napanee were not aware that a blast had taken place.

The McFarland Co. employs over 50 men on the operation of the Roblin Hill quarry.

TORONTO (CP) — Denison Mines Ltd. announced Friday it has decided to drop its option to buy control of the financially troubled British Mortgage and Trust Co. of Stratford, Ont.

The company declined to say why it decided not to exercise its option, due to expire an hour after the announcement was made.

A Denison spokesman also declined to comment on recurring reports that Denison will make another offer for control of British Mortgage, but at a lower price than contained in the option.

Police Probing Assault Case At Bait Shop

CAMPBELLFORD — Provincial police are investigating an incident reported on Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. George Peake operate a bait shop just outside of Campbellford on the River Road West. Mrs. Peake was alone in the shop when a youth entered and asked for a can of worms. While Mrs. Peake was counting the worms the youth lunged at her, forcing here against the minnow tank and pressed a knife against her, grabbed the can of worms and ran.

The boy who had apparently arrived at the Peake place of operation by boat, escaped by pushing the boat back into the river and rowed away.

Mrs. Peake called police and was taken to Campbellford Memorial Hospital. She was found to be suffering from shock and a small scratch on her abdomen. After spending the night in hospital Mrs. Peake returned home Thursday.

Police have obtained a description of the boy and the boat. O.P.P. Constable M. S. Rutherford is investigating.

NUDIST CAMPS PROBED

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—Nudist camps in Bertie Township are under scrutiny by the township council with members worrying whether the special parks are properly fenced to seclude them from public gaze. "Council has been had," complained one councillor. "Permits for buildings were issued on the understanding they were for animal shelters."

Department of Public Works Makes Marine Survey Here

Belleville Harbor Commission is charting the city's waterfront—projecting it as a prime tourist area.

The entire bay area around the city has been under survey by federal Department of Public Works engineers.

Soundings have been taken and weed-cutting and dredging needs studied.

The survey also updates the area's marine statistics. The last known such record on file by the department at Ottawa is dated 1921, said harbor commission officials.

A deal of silt has sifted under Belleville's bridges since that time and the depth-pattern of the harbor and vicinity may have been altered.

To bring the pattern up to date, soundings have now been taken every 25 feet.

This task has been the daily lot for almost two weeks of Mac McKenzie, first engineer sent from Ottawa on the project. McKenzie, who incidentally designed the tunnelling for North Bay underground missile complex—was joined this week by colleague Curly Boyce, who has been studying weed and dredging problems.

CUTTER ARRIVES

The probe was pushed out into the Bay of Quinte itself with the arrival of the department's work cutter Cataraqui, despatched from Kingston.

"We sought the survey because we're projecting this as a great base," said harbor master Don Barrett. "We'd like to do everything possible in providing facilities for pleasure craft visiting Belleville."

A start on expansion already was made earlier this year with the construction of new small-boat docks in the harbor.

However, improvements — dredging and weed-cutting — are needed now, say officials.

"The weed growth has not been as great as in previous years because of cold temperatures," admits the harbor master. "Nonetheless we're recommending that the department send a weed-cutting machine to the city."

Fields Definitely Need More Rain Says Report

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Recent rains have eased a three-month drought in Ontario and Quebec but not to the extent that hard-pressed farmers can relax.

"The drought is in check and most areas show marked improvement," says E. A. Starr, associate-director of extension for the Ontario agriculture department.

"But the effects of the dry spell are still being felt. The fields definitely need more rain."

The drought began in May.

In both provinces, the rains came too late to benefit hay crops, causing a shortage that shot prices up.

In the Niagara Peninsula, bald hay was selling for $35 a ton, $15 above the normal price. But fields of corn and grain, which have a later season, are generally flourishing.

GETS SOME RAIN

A Quebec agricultural spokesman said his province's grain crops may turn out to be "quite good" despite the scarcity of rain. Quebec has received five inches of rain so far in August, too late to help hay production which will be down considerably.

To help its farmers, Quebec is making a two-week survey to determine needs for the distribution of $5,000,000 in federal-provincial grants.

In Ontario, the province's eastern areas are hardest hit. Ottawa Valley hay crops are down 25 per cent. In some other eastern areas, the drop is 60 per cent.

"The situation was quite critical a month ago," said Don Black, agricultural representative for Ottawa's Carleton County. "We got three inches of rain at the end of July, and the first few days of August which sparked things considerably. We'll need continued rain like this."

Less than one inch of rain fell on the valley in the crucial six-week growing period following May 16. It was the worst dry spell since records were first kept in 1809, and a low spot in a long-term dry period that began in 1952. The rainfall in June was .72 inches, compared to the normal of 3.02 inches.

Farmers in Belleville experienced an unusually dry June, but the situation improved with the late July and August rains. Hay, corn, peas and tomatoes were hurt. Prices were a little higher than last year.

HAS TOO MUCH

In contrast, Ontario's northern area farmers complained that crop damage would be severe if unusually heavy rains of recent weeks continue.

Timmins and Sault Ste. Marie officials say that unless the rains stop, corn and grain crops will be badly damaged. Rains have already caused damage to Niagara's early fruit crop.

In Ontario's western areas, fields and pastures were beginning to improve but hay, tobacco and corn crops will be in short supply because of drought damage.

More than three inches of rain fell in Ontario's drought-hit areas in the last four weeks.

Gemini Flight Routine After 2 Days' Suspense

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—The Gemini 5 astronauts, well-rested after sound sleeping periods, swept into their third day in space today and prepared to chase a phantom satellite across the skies.

L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr. were to begin pursuing the imaginary satellite about 12.50 p.m. EDT in a rehearsal for the Gemini 6 flight scheduled in October.

The Gemini 5 capsule, circling the earth every 94 minutes and 30 seconds, was due to start its 32nd orbit just before noon EDT.

"After the suspense of the first two days, we are turning to the routine," Flight Director Eugene Krantz said.

Flight controllers were confident the mission would go the full eight days, ending with a splashdown in the Atlantic ocean Sunday. Successful completion would eclipse the Russian endurance record of five days.

As the astronauts moved into their 32nd orbit, the control centre gave them the go-ahead to complete at least 46 of their planned 121 revolutions of the earth. The 46th orbit would end about 11 a.m. EDT Tuesday.

Because of a spacecraft power problem which caused concern early in the flight, controllers are committing the pilots to continue on a day-to-day basis. The trouble with a balky fuel-cell oxygen supply was improving steadily.

Both astronauts were reported in fine spirits after logging 10 hours sleep in the second day. Medical experts had been concerned because each had catnapped only about two hours on the first day.

For the phantom-satellite exercise, the astronauts were to assume that an Agena satellite was orbiting about 477 miles ahead of them on a different orbital path.

Over a period of 2¼ hours, Cooper and Conrad were to conduct four manoeuvres, using jet thrusters, to close to within 25 miles of the imaginary satellite.

This would simulate the Gemini 6 rendezvous and docking experiment up to the terminal phase. At that point in Gemini 6, the astronauts will require visual aids from flashing lights

Pearson Resting On Farm

VICTORIA (CP)—Prime Minister and Mrs. Pearson have started a holiday on a seafront farm 18 miles from civilization.

The prime minister told reporters Sunday he planned to lie around, have a few visitors, and perhaps visit Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, a personal friend, in Victoria.

And he will do some fishing, hoping to repeat his luck of Sunday, when he caught a small salmon during a fishing derby in Vancouver.

Wednesday he will return to Vancouver to continue a nine-day visit to British Columbia and Alberta.

The prime minister and Mrs. Pearson went to the farm, called Woodwynn, after a civic reception here Sunday. They had crossed from Vancouver on the destroyer-escort HMCS Saskatchewan.

The farm, owned by Mrs. W. C. Woodward, is 18 miles from Victoria. It was used by the then Princess Elizabeth when she visited British Columbia before she was crowned.

It has a one-storey house fronting on a large lawn that goes down to the shore of [illegible]anich Inlet.

ON ANNIVERSARY

Mr. Pearson, who had a busy day Saturday which included opening the Pacific National Exhibition, obviously had a wonderful Sunday —his 40th wedding anniversary.

Later in Victoria he was presented with one of the famous wool sweaters made by Vancouver Island Indians. Mayor R.

CNE Outing Wrecked

7 in Family Hurt In Foxboro Mishap

A planned outing to the Canadian National Exhibition was violently cut short Sunday night for a Gilmor family in a Highway 14 smash near Foxboro.

Some seven persons were hurt when the family panel truck of 40-year-old Burton Baker and two other automobiles collided south of the Madoc County Road intersection.

Bruce Baker, 11, was rushed to Kingston General Hospital with critical head injuries after he was reported thrown from the truck.

His mother, Bernice Baker, 39, suffered multiple face cuts while 72-year-old Harry Mullett, of Crookston, received a fractured leg. Both were admitted to Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Baker, Burton, 10, and Elizabeth, 12, and 14-year-old Judy Oleksek, also of Gilmour and travelling to the CNE with the family, were all released after emergency treatment at Belleville General Hospital.

Driver of the third car, Lloyd Jenkins, 67, of Harold, was uninjured.

Full details of the cause of the mishap were not learned. Police said the Baker vehicle was southbound toward Highway 401 while the two automobiles were northbound.

The Baker truck and Mullet's car were heavily damaged.

Political Rancor Swells As Aftermath of Rioting

LOS ANGELES (AP)—In the riot-devastated south Los Angeles district of Watts, the painful process of recovery continues—slowly and silently.

But elsewhere, the riot lived on in a controversy of growing rancor, as public figures probed for reasons and attempted to fix blame for the week-long disturbance.

Governor Edmund G. Brown and Los Angeles Mayor Samuel W. Yorty took to the airwaves Sunday with their explanations of the cause of the holocaust that left 36 persons dead and untold property damage.

By day's end, verbal salvoes had been fired as far away as Portland, Ore., where Los Angeles Police Chief William H. Parker addressed an American Legion convention; Washington, D.C., where Sargent Shriver heads the Office of Economic Opportunity, and Atlanta, Ga., home of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Brown, appearing in San Francisco on ABC's Issues and Answers radio and television show, said statements by Parker during the riots "hurt the whole cause of race relations."

Brown did not specify any particular statements by Parker.

Los Angeles Negroes maintain alleged police brutality—physical and psychological —was a contributing factor leading to the rioting. They have demanded Parker be fired or resign.

In Portland, Parker replied to Brown's statements:

"He'll have to be more specific than that. Before I can comment I'll have to know what statements he is referring to. I don't deal in generalities. He is making shotgun statements."

Yorty, appearing in Los Angeles on CBS' Face the Nation television show, criticized the federal administration of the war on poverty program.

Washington officials had said earlier that Yorty showed little interest in a summer-long program designed to improve economic conditions such as those existing in the Watts district. Yorty has retorted that he was not disinterested, but that Los Angeles was bypassed.

Yory also repeated criticism of Dr. King, who visited the riot area after violence subsided and said he believed police brutality was an issue.

Stranded Tourists Go Home

BRIGHTON, England (CP)—A group of Canadian tourists, including women and children, flew back to Toronto today after being stranded for almost two days because of an international dispute over an airline company's alleged debts amounting to some $26,000.

The Super-Constellation aircraft, carrying 104 Canadians, flew out of Gatwick Airport, about 40 miles south of London, at 10:54 a.m., local time.

An hour earlier, another Super-Constellation, carrying 67 Canadians and 40 Americans, also left Gatwick for Toronto. Airborne Aviation Services of Gatwick, which had seized the plane of the 104 passengers, also threatened to seize the one containing 107. But the Canadian government stepped in, arranged terms of settlement of debts and both planes were allowed to leave.

Herbert Snowball, Airborne's managing director, said he had not received the requested payment of debts as yet and if the payment did not come through, his firm would be prepared to seize other similar aircraft in the future.

The 104 Canadians were in a chartered flight sponsored by Toronto's Estonian Social and Athletic Club. Included were other Canadian nationals. All of them were housed and fed at a luxury hotel in this seaside resort Saturday and Sunday while transatlantic negotiations by cable and telephone continued.

The second aircraft that was almost grounded carried delegates of the International Council of Christian Churches, returning to Toronto from a world conference at Geneva. From Toronto they would take other transport to their homes.

At the centre of the dispute was World Wide Airways, whose licence was withdrawn by the Canadian government a week ago. Nordair Ltd. of Canada was given the job of fulfilling World Wide's transatlantic charter commitments.

A Nordair-operated Super-Constellation picked up 58 of the Estonian Club members in Amsterdam at the end of their 29-day holiday charter in Europe and flew on to Gatwick to take on the rest of the passengers.

Three Injured In Crash at Mountain View

Three persons were reported injured in a crash on Highway 37 at Mountain View early this afternoon.

The accident occurred outside the Mountain View RCAF airport and involved an automobile and a small delivery truck.

One of the injured was said to be an airman. All three were taken to Belleville General Hospital.

Full details on the mishap were not immediately available.

Space Sub-dividers Rebuffed by U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government has some advice for would - be moon homesteaders: Forget it.

"The moon belongs to the world, not the first arrival," said a spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. He added:

"We assume any exploration there will be handled on an international co-operative basis much like that in Antartica."

In recent years, however, many Americans have contemplated a life beyond earth.

In 1957, a man filed a quit claim deed in Navajo County, Arizona. He wanted enough land for his proposed King Solomon Mines subdivision.

Others have claimed, via written declarations, Saturn, Venus, Pluto, Jupiter, Neptune, Mercury, the sun and "all planetoids between the planets of Mars and Jupiter."

The bureau of land managements, because of its name, has been the recipient of most of these claims. Two accordion-type folders now house a 20-year accumulation of about 200 claims and queries.

Some writers had an eye for money-making schemes. They included working real estate men, a man who wanted to start a mushroom plantation on Venus, and one who hoped to start a trading stamp company on the moon.

After 30 Busy Hours Aloft Astronauts Finally Sleep

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—You could hear it in their voices beamed down from more than 200 miles in space: They were tired, and they needed sleep. Now at last they are getting it.

For their first 30 hours in space, the two Gemini 5 astronauts napped only briefly, perhaps compiling four hours of sleep between them. Lack of sleep had the doctors concerned.

"We don't like to see them so fatigued at so early a point in the flight," the flight surgeon said.

From the ground came comments such as: "Gemini- 5, Houston surgeon is a little concerned about your lack of sleep. We'd like a status report on each of you at this time concerning your fatigue level."

From the spacecraft came the tired voice of Charles Conrad Jr.: "We just been catnapping about 40 minutes on and 40 minutes off."

Sleep, the ground insisted. "I try to," Conrad replied, "but you guys keep giving us something to do."

L. Gordon Cooper Jr. talked, too, about the business of keeping up with the experiments, and the lack of sleep. His slow Iklahoma drawl got slower.

Trouble Appears For Wilson

LONDON (CP)—New trouble has hit Prime Minister Wilson's Labor government, increasing the possibility that he gradually may be forced into a political compromise or a general election at a time when Britain is becoming deeply concerned over an economic squeeze causing declining employment and industrial production.

The latest blow was the death of 61-year-old Norman Dodd, Labor member of Parliament who died of heart failure Sunday, reducing the party's majority to two in the 630-seat Commons.

Parliament doesn't reconvene until mid-October and though the recess gives Wilson a reprieve, the economic situation is likely to worsen in the fall, adding to political pressures that may force Wilson to revise his determination not to hold a general election this year.

There has been some speculation that he may seek some special understanding with the 10-member Liberal party in the House to ward off a defeat that could force his government to resign. That would mean modification of Labor policies, including plans for nationalization of the steel industry, which both the Conservatives and Liberals oppose.

U.S. Beginning To Roll In Viet Nam, Optimism Rising In Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — The small tide of optimism rising in the Johnson administration about the Viet Nam war is fed by obscure events and trends as well as by such developments as the successful outcome of the battle of Chu Lai.

But the optimism in the highest levels of government is restrained for several reasons, among them:

1. The successes and trends are still dwarfed by the massive setbacks during the last year or two.

2. History holds up a cautionary finger about optimism. In Korea, optimism was running high as American forces drove northward almost to the Yalu River boundary of the enemy, then toppled as hordes of Chinese Communists drove the Americans back.

Some of the reasons for the administration's slightly brightened view of the Viet Nam war are obvious.

The big buildup of U.S. military strength is beginning to roll. In the three-day battle last week that headed off a Communist attack on the marine air base at Chu Lai, U.S. officials say almost 600 Viet Cong were killed and hundreds more were wounded. U.S. casualties have not been listed. Lt.-Gen. Victor H. Krulak, marine commander in the Pacific, called the battle a major victory.

The daily bombing attacks on North Viet Nam targets are producing effects on the North Vietnamese civilian economy, it is contended in many administration quarters.

The expected scale of Viet Cong attacks under cover of the monsoon rains has fallen short of original predictions by U.S. strategists, in part because U.S. and South Vietnamese ground and air forces have been able to battle more aggressively than was expected.

There is some evidence the Viet Cong Communist guerrilla forces are having their own manpower troubles. Deputy Defence Secretary Cyrus R. Vance said in a speech last week that "war and time have taken their toll and Hanoi's reserve of southern manpower, like its arsenal of captured weapons, has begun to run out." (On the other hand, the South Vietnamese Army is finding that its reserve of manpower is growing low.)

Information obtained from battlefield contacts and other sources indicates now that average villagers are being brought into military service with neither experience nor enthusiasm.

Still there is no evidence to support belief that victory may come tomorrow, next month or next year.

Self-styled Nazi Apologizes For Hate Literature Sent

TORONTO (CP) — Self-styled Nazi David Stanley denounced Nazism Sunday and apologized for the hate literature campaign he has carried on against Jews.

The Toronto youth, who said he will be 20 in two weeks, held a press conference in a downtown hotel to announce the end of his six-year career as a Nazi.

"If it hadn't been for the publicity, I would have quit years ago," he said. "It was not an easy decision for me to make. I've come to the conclusion that my ideas are false."

He said he made the decision after self-appointed Nazi leader John Beattie of Toronto said a week ago that upon taking power in Canada he would shoot Stanley.

Both Stanley and Beattie face trial Sept. 28, on a charge of unlawful assembly for their part in a swastika-bearing parade in Allan Gardens, a city park, on July 25.

Stanley said he no longer believes the main point of his hate literature—that communism is Jewish. "Communism is no more Jewish than Nazism is German," he said.

HE APOLOGIZES

"I apologize to the Jews and to Rabbi (Abraham) Feinberg in particular," he said. Stanley published a booklet called The Red Rabbi charging that Dr. Feinberg is a Communist.

"He was just a pawn in this," Stanley said. "I think things he's supported I would agree with now.

"My ideas were not rational or logical. They were based on twisted emotion. They were negative and destructive, and I'm sick of it," he said.

Stanley first made news in March of 1964 when the suburban Scarborough post office closed his post-office box from which he had been distributing hate literature. Last July he was denied the use of the mails to send such material.

He said the only success he had in his hate literature activity was to create insecurity in the Jewish community. "No one joined the movement because of the hate literature. They joined because they were either anti-Semites or Nazi," he said.

"I am no longer anti-Semitic," he declared. "My ideas were immature. If I had been ignored from the start, it could all have been avoided and I would have outgrown it."

Car Rolls Over At Bridge, Two Men Hurt

Two men escaped with minor injuries after a car rolled over on the Salmon River bridge at Shannonville Saturday night.

Treated at Belleville General then released were Everett Parks, 37, R. R. 1, Belleville, and Thomas Brant, 42, Tyendinaga township.

Police say Parks lost control of the car as it approached the bridge on Highway 2.

Corn Contest Entry Date Now Sept. 1

Entries for the Quinte High Yield Grain Corn Competition will be accepted up to September 1. The original date was July 1.

A Grain Corn Day in October is tied in with the corn competitions in the four Quinte counties. The winner in the corn competitions will be Quinte Corn King for 1965 and will be presented with a $100 wrist watch. Many other cash prizes are offered in the competition. Entry forms are available from the Agricultural Office, Stirling.

The Stirling office of the Ontario Department of Agriculture has distributed information dealing with the drought assistance program for livestock farmers. Over 2,500 application forms and information sheets have been mailed to Hastings County Farmers. Because the mailing list was prepared from postal directories, there will probably be some farmers missed, but extra application forms are available from the Agriculture Office in Stirling.

NO WATER, DRANK BEER

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Fifty-eight passengers and crew of a ship that drifted in the Pacific with engine failure for eight days had to ration water—so they drank beer instead. They brought back 2,280 empty bottles to prove it. The ship, the West German freighter Cap Blanco, berthed in Sydney Sunday, 10 days behind schedule after a voyage from Los Angeles.

Dial Telephone Links Far-flung Communities Within Arctic Circle

By CY FOX

MONTREAL (CP)—The long arm of civilization is reaching deep within the Arctic Circle, bringing with it two of its chief accessories—the dial telephone and the telephone directory.

The directory used throughout the far northeast spells out instructions to subscribers in three languages —Eskimo, French and English.

So if it's a dull snowy day in Pond Inlet, way up on the northern fringe of frosty Baffin Island, you can get down your book of numbers and dial up a spot of electronic company from down the road (if there is one) or from Cape Dorset on the island's southwest tip or from Montreal 1,500 miles to the south.

Telephone service is spreading even farther across this part of the northland as a construction program brings more of the remote points into contact with Canada and the rest of the world.

Pond Inlet and nearby Arctic Bay have recently been cut in on a telephone circuit that includes Frobisher Bay, Resolute and two other communities on or near Baffin, as well as Cape Dorset.

Off to the southwest there will be local and long-distance communication available by the end of September for six centres in the hitherto - unserviced Keewatin district adjacent to northern Manitoba.

SPREADS IN LABRADOR

Extension of phone service is also under way in northern Quebec and Labrador. These and other districts form the "northeastern territories" served by the Bell Telephone Co. of Canada.

There are no phones to be found in igloos but Eskimos occupying the more modern habitation may acquire the gadgets if they need them.

The directory's pink, yellow and white cover bears the algebraic-looking letters of the Eskimo dialect as well as French and English. And often the names and numbers of Eskimo subscribers are listed with their government - registered identity numbers.

This makes identification easier since some Eskimos bear the same single name.

There are 8,000 phones in Bell's northeastern territories All are dial instruments and all but six centres have phones in private homes as well as a public station.

The Keewatin project will link six widely-scattered points by radio-telephone to a base station at Church ll, Man. The six—Eskimo Point, Chesterfield Inlet, Baker Lake, Southampton Island, Rankin Inlet and Whale Cove—will be able to call each other and will have access to the outside through Churchill, a station that will be operated for Bell by the Manitoba Telephone System.

In Labrador, September should see extra circuits carrying calls across the Strait of Bell Isle between Flower's Cove, Nfld., and L'Anse au Loup on the Labrador coast.

SERVE FISHERMEN

As part of the same project, additional radio and cable links will be installed to serve 24 isolated fishing communities along Labrador's south and east coasts from Forteau in the southwest to Smokey in the north.

The dial exchanges will go in at such spots as Ste. Modeste, Port Hope Simpson and L'Acse au Claire.

The long-distance centre at L'Anse au Loup will put the smaller coastal centres in touch with Canadian National Telecommunications, which operates the long - distance service in Newfoundland.

Also flowing out of L'Anse au Loup will be calls from the coastal settlements for the Trans - Canada Telephone System. These will go via the base station at Goose Bay, about 200 miles northwest. Goose Bay and other major Labrador centres have long had telephone service.

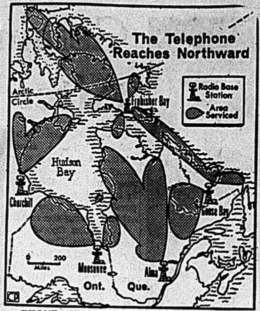
In many cases, the service to the new coastal points will operate only six months of the year, depending on the seasonal comings and goings of fishermen.

Meantime in northern Quebec, public long-distance stations will be built at four of the province's most northerly living centres—Deception Bay, Wakeham Bay, Ivugivik and Sugluk. There will also be private phones for local service going in at Deception.

The new stations will link up with existing facilities at Fort Chimo, Great Whale River and Povungnituk. They'll hook into the national telephone network by way of the high-frequency radio outlet at Frobisher Bay, 150 miles from Quebec across Hudson Strait.

The current 52-page directory was issued in November, 1964, complete with cover sketch of a military plane ready for action at Goose Bay airport.

Subscribers in 22 Arctic and sub - Arctic communities are listed, from Resolute in the far north—also well within the Arctic Circle—to Goose Bay in the more southerly climes.



PHONE SERVICE SPREADS — Most of the remote points in the Canadian North are being brought into telephone contact with the rest of Canada and the world. Two of civilization's chief accessories the dial telephone and the telephone directory — are becoming familiar. The directory spells out instructions in three languages — Eskimo, French and English. Map shows areas having, or soon to have, phone service. (CP Newsmap)

Child Steps Into Path Of Motor Car

An 18-month-old boy momentarily straying from his home Saturday received minor injuries when he stepped into the path of a car on Station Street.

Terry William Sherman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sherman, 201 Stanley Street, was detained in Belleville General Hospital for observation of head and face cuts and bruises.

Police said the boy had strayed around the corner from his home when he was hit by a car driven by Charles Gerard Doran, 161 Farley Ave.

Clai Hanoi Ready to Talk With No Retreat

From AP-Reuters

MOSCOW (AP)—The chairman of the British Council for Peace in Viet Nam quoted North Viet Nam officials here Saturday as saying that Hanoi never has insisted on total withdrawal of American forces as a condition for beginning negotiations for peace in South Viet Nam.

Lord Fenner Brockway, 77-year-old former left-wing Labor member of Parliament, said the lack of insistence on withdrawal as a precondition represented a change from what had previously been reported from Hanoi.

As such, he said, he believes it "removed a major obstacle to peace."

In Washington, officials took a reserved position on Lord Brockway's report.

Brockway is in Moscow on an "entirely unofficial" visit, quoted the North Viet Nam ambassador, Nguyen Van Kinh, as saying:

"Hanoi has never said that all United States forces must be withdrawn before negotiations for a ceasefire or peace begin. They did not insist on this."

This appears to contrast sharply with one of the conditions of a "peace settlement" broadcast by Hanoi radio last month. As recorded by foreign radio stations, that statement said:

"The United States must withdraw from South Viet Nam all U.S. troops, military personnel and weapons of all kinds, dismantle all U.S. military bases there, and cancel its military alliance with South Viet Nam."

This was given as the basis for a peace settlement.

Adenauer Hits Draft Treaty On Atomic Arms

BONN (AP) — West Germany's tame election campaign has come to life over a new issue that is dividing Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's Christian Democratic party: Does the new U.S. arms control plan promise West Germany enough say in the use of nuclear weapons?

The spark was supplied by former chancellor Konrad Adenauer. Though 89, he is still party chairman and campaigning actively for a seat in parliament in the Sept. 19 election. There is no love lost between him and Erhard, his successor and the party's standard bearer.

Adenauer attacked the draft treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons which the United States presented at the Geneva disarmament conference.

In deference to the West Germans, the United States refused to include a provision in its draft that the present nuclear powers would hold a veto over the use of nuclear weapons by any alliance of nations.

But Adenauer called the American draft an effort to deny protection to those who need it and a step toward turning Europe over to the Russians.

Erhard had termed the U.S. plan an "important contribution" that "takes into account the defence interests of the Atlantic Alliance."

Mayor Willy Brandt of West Berlin, who heads the opposition Socialist party, was quick to seek advantage from the split among the Christian Democrats. The Socialists warmly endorsed the American proposal, but Brandt took occasion during the weekend to pay a personal tribute to Adenauer.

Cottage Burns At Presqu'ile, Loss $2,000

TRENTON — A fire at Presqu'ile Point, south of Brighton, destroyed the cottage of Joseph A. Atkinson of Brighton, Sunday morning. Brighton fire department under Chief Edwin Boes played water on adjoining cottages which were scorched by the blaze. Mr. Atkinson was at church at the time of the fire and loss is estimated at $2,000.

At 5.00 p.m. Friday on Highway 33, south of Trenton, four year old Colleen Barr of 7 Bayview Drive, Roseland Acres, escaped with lacerations to her face when she was knocked to the pavement by a taxicab driven by Reginald Menzie of Trenton. She had darted out from behind trees into the path of the car and was treated and released from the Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rogers of Kentucky escaped injury on Saturday when their station wagon and trailer went out of control and rolled over on Highway 401, near Brighton. Ontario Provincial Police from Brighton said that the trailer lost a wheel and swerved out of control. Loss was $4,700.

CLERK'S MOTHER DIES

Mrs. Louise May Larry, wife of the late Herbert Leslie Larry and mother of Trenton clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry died in the Trenton Memorial Hospital yesterday following an illness of several months' duration. She was in her 85th year.

Trenton fire department was called to Alyea's Jewellery Store Sunday night when fire was discovered in an awning. It was quickly extinguished and prevented from spreading.

Charles Jonson, 54, of 257 Sidney Street, Trenton, was injured Sunday at 1.57 p.m. when the bicycle he was riding went into a ditch on the 2nd Dughill Road. He was treated at the Trenton Memorial Hospital for facial lacerations.

Special Service At Hay Bay Church Sunday

The Annual Pilgrimage Service of the Hay Bay Church will be held at Adolphustown on Sunday, August 29th, at 3 o'clock.

The guest speaker will be the Rev. Ernest E. Long, secretary of the General Council of the United Church, Toronto.

The Rev. Harry M. Davis, B.A., President of the Bay of Quinte Conference, will conduct the service.

The Rev. Harold B. Neal, D.D., Chairman of the Board of Trustees, will take part.

His Honor Judge Gerald Smith of Napanee, will act as Precentor in the Service of Praise.

Bridge St. choir will assist in the service and will contribute an anthem.

Incoming Officers of Lions Clubs Get Instruction

More than 100 members of Lions service clubs went to school in Belleville over the weekend.

The Lions were all incoming officers of clubs from Brockville to Ajax attending a two-day instruction period in their executive duties.

For the event, the club members took over the Sun Valley Motel -- for instructions and entertaining.

Guest speaker at a keynote night banquet was John L. Stickley, of Charlotte, North Carolina, past international president of the world-wide organization.

He recalled Lions in various parts of the world whose community work is undeterred by adverse local conditions. They set an example against procrastination when projects can be achieved by service clubs everywhere.

Other special guests present included George Laughlin, past international director, who once taught school in Belleville and Lions district governor H. Wark of Brockville.

Hard to Predict Which Path Viet Cong Will Take and When

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Johnson administration officials say severe Viet Cong battlefield losses indicate the guerrillas will have to choose between intensifying their war effort in South Viet Nam or seeking peace.

The officials say U.S. intelligence cannot know how debate is going in the inner councils at Hanoi and Peking, and therefore they are unwilling to predict which path the Communists will take or just when. They guess the Communists will pursue their current guerrilla offensive for another couple of months.

However, some things have been happening, the U.S. officials say, which indicate that the Communists may want to change their present course. The administration sources say:

1. Viet Cong guerrillas suffered heavy casualties two weeks ago — 1,300 dead, six times the number of South Vietnamese and Americans killed.

2. The Viet Cong losses are not just in large engagements such as the spectacular U.S. marine victory at Chulai, but are occurring in hundreds of small engagements too.

MORALE ON RISE

3. South Vietnamese morale is clearly on the rise, and so fare reports of lopsided victories over the guerrillas in numerous engagements.

4. The Communists had been expected to move into a new strategy, employing large units in conventional-type military attacks with the advent of the current monsoon season. But Viet Cong propaganda is not now talking of victory this year, military unit attacks have actually dropped below the comparable 1964 and 1963 raids and the guerrillas instead are resorting more to terrorist attacks.

On the diplomatic front the United States is conducting a substantial effort to brief foreign governments on the Viet Nam situation. U.S. officials estimate some 60 to 70 countries now support the U.S. position.

So far the Communists have not signalled an interest in peace negotiations, the administration officials add.

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—The Beatles' chartered plane landed with a smoking engine Sunday, but there was no fire or injuries. However, when they sang at Memorial Coliseum, five girls fainted. A broken oil line was blamed for the hot engine.

Public Works Union Local Holds Picnic

Members of the Public Works Union, Local 907, and their families enjoyed their annual picnic at Cedardale Beach, on Sunday, when approximately 70 were present. Some of the braver ones enjoyed swimming, while others took part in a game of softball.

Throughout the afternoon a number of races were run and the winners of these were as follows: girls 4 to 6 years, A. Cook and S. Reid; boys, J. Hanna, G. Green and K. Sager; girls 7 to 9 years, C. Hanna, M. Reid and S. Sager; boys, M. Hanna, G. Semark and R. Bly; girls 10 to 12 years, J. Semark, S. Sommerville and D. Lott; boys, G. Reid, B. Sager and J. Semark; girls 13 to 15 years, D. Semark and N. Bly; boys, H. Wilkinson.

In the adult races winners were: ladies, C. Cox, M. Bourette and B. Bly, men's, R. Dafoe, J. Semark and B. Hanna; ladies' peanut race, M. Bourette, B. Bly and D. Finkle; men's peanut race, B. Hanna, I. Bourette and B. Cox; mixed three-legged race; J. Green and B. Dafoe, C. Cox and B. Cox, and B. Semark and J. Semark.

The draw on a picnic cooler was won by Mrs. Doris Henn.

Car Blows Tire, Marmora Girl Hurt Internally

MARMORA — A Marmora girl is in Peterborough Civic Hospital as a result of an accident on the Crowe Lake to Marmora Road at 7 p.m. Sunday.

Miss Carol McKeown, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie McKeown of Marmora, was driving home from Crowe Lake with her sister, two- and-one-half-year-old Robin, when the car which she was driving blew a tire and went out of control, ending up in the ditch.

Miss McKeown was taken to Dr. Parkin's home in Marmora and from there, she was taken to hospital in Peterborough by Howden's Ambulance. She is believed to be suffering internal injuries.

Her sister, Robin, is at home and suffering from bruises and a bad bump on her forehead.

The car is a total wreck.

Dief. Tests Political Que. Water

By KEN KELLY

ST. HYACINTHE, Que. (CP) With an eye cocked toward a possible fall general election, John Diefenbaker today tested the temperature of Quebec political waters for the first time since the 1963 election campaign.

The Progressive Conservative chieftain plans six days of grass roots missionary work for his party, mostly in three Conservative-held seats in the Eastern Townships southeast of Montreal.

He spent Sunday at the farm home of Montreal lawyer Paul Lafontaine near St. Hugues, 55 miles east of Montreal, where he snarled traffic briefly by mainstreeting with local farmers.

He shook hands and posed for amateur photographers in his best election campaign style, advising the photographers to send him prints in Ottawa for autographing.

The Sunday informality was to be preserved through most of the rest of his foray in Quebec.

TO TOUR FACTORIES

A call at city hall and visits to two local industries—an insurance office and the weekly newspaper Le Courrieur—were scheduled for today, followed by tours of a shoe factory, a milk processing plant, a canning factory and local farms.

Mr. Diefenbaker's tour opened in the constituency of Theogene Ricard, MP for St. Hyacinthe-Bagot and the only former Conservative cabinet minister from Quebec still sitting with the Tories in Parliament.

Mr. Ricard, a minister without portfolio for about two months before the 1963 general election that ushered the Diefenbaker government out of power, has been mentioned as a probable successor to Leon Balcer, former transport minister and MP for Trois-Rivieres, as Mr. Diefenbaker's Quebec chief lieutenant.

Mr. Balcer quit the party earlier this year after a dispute centring on his support for the Fulton - Favreau constitutional amending formula. He now sits in the Commons as an independent.

He took with him Remi Paul, MP for Berthier - Maskinonge-Delanaudiere.

During the week, Mr. Diefenbaker will visit the constituencies of Heward Graftey, MP for Brome-Missisquoi and Clement Vincent, MP for Nicolet-Yamaska.

He also was to pass through parts of the constituencies of Jean-Luc Pepin, Liberal minister without portfolio, and Gilbert Rondeau, Creditiste MP for Shefford.

FALL ELECTION?

With Prime Minister Pearson showing signs of an intention to call a fall election, the Diefenbaker Quebec visit took on a greater significance than when originally planned before all the fall-election talk received prime ministerial support.

Twice in the last 10 days, Mr. Pearson has publicly passed up opportunities to deny speculation about a fall election.

The Conservatives hold only eight of the province's 75 seats and Mr. Diefenbaker apparently was planning to fight hard for every bit of support in the province which returned him 50 members in 1958 but cut him back to 14 in 1962 and eight in 1963.

Martyn Cooper Passes Exams For Embalmer

Mr. Martyn R. J. Cooper of the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home has received word that he was successful in passing the recent final examinations of the Ontario Board of Examiners and has been granted his Embalmer's Licence.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Reg Cooper, 390 Bleecker Ave., Martyn was born in England. Coming to Belleville he completed Grade 13 at Belleville Collegiate.

Interested in music he is a member of the Salvation Army Band and secretary of the Band. Martyn will remain with the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home where he has been associated for the past six and a half years.

Canoeists Take Weekend Break At Peterboro

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Canoeists taking part in a 600-mile marathon trip from North Bay to Gananoque arrived here Sunday complaining that the trip was too easy.

John Murrant, bearded commodore of the New Brunswick canoe, said:

"We're too civilized today. The first part of the trip up north was ok, but now we're in civilized country — canals and all that. They didn't have canals in the old days."

Other paddlers apparently didn't share his opinion, for the complaint from one of the two Ontario canoes was that the lack of girls was the greatest hardship of the voyage.

Except for a while one morning when one of the Ontario canoes got a head start, the Alberta canoes have consistently led the voyage. But Ontario canoes have won sprints at North Bay and Orillia.

The party took a weekend break here and leave today. They left North Bay Aug. 9 and hope to reach Gananoque Aug. 29, in time for the North American championships.

REJECTS REQUEST

OTTAWA (CP)—A request by the CNR to revoke certification of the Canadian National Railways Police Association has been rejected by the Canada Labor Relations Board, the labor department announced Thursday. The association was certified May 17, 1960, as bargaining agent for CNR employees classified as sergeants, patrol sergeants and constables.

LIFESAVING COURSE

A successful lifesaving course for Junior and Senior boys and girls has just been completed at the Y.M.C.A. There were 15 candidates who started, 12 tried the test and 10 persons will receive awards. The awards will be forwarded from the National Council offices in Toronto in about a week's time. The candidates are required to obtain a minimum of 225 points out of a possible 300 on the various tests. Marks ranged from a low of 226, to a high of 277.

The Juniors who passed were, Janet Watson, Judy Joblin, Gerry Pugh, David Grant, Steve Hatfield, Mac McCallum and Pat Lee.

The Seniors who were successful are Doug McEwen, Bill Juby and Graham Geldart.

The next step for these people will be to work toward the Y.M.C.A. master swimmers, instructors and examiners awards.

Auto Workers Eager to Retire On Pension

DETROIT (AP)—A sharp upswing in retirement applications has developed in the automotive industry, where a $400 monthly pension at age 60 becomes a possibility a week from Wednesday.

Retirement requests, which must be filed at least a month in advance, are reported running from three to almost five times above normal this month at General Motors, Chrysler and Ford.

With the already booming industry scheduled to start all-out production of 1966 models in September, the threatened rise in retirements is causing concern in some tight labor market areas with big auto plants. Flint and Saginaw, Mich., are examples with less than two per cent of total labor forces unemployed.

Also, industry spokesmen say there may be some shortage of skilled tradesmen in individual shops. In at least one shop, four out of five have applied for retirement, but none of the Big Three auto-makers anticipates trouble covering necessary jobs.

Retirement at age 55 at $200 a month also is a possibility Sept. 1 under three-year contracts negotiated in 1964 between the United Auto Workers Union and U.S. automakers.

Gemini 5 Commander Would Like Moon Trip

By HAROLD R. WILLIAMS

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A perfect space flight—one that astronaut L. Gordon Cooper would like to make—consists of a "walk in space, rendezvous and docking, 14 days long, and a stop on the moon."

That was how the 38-year-old U.S. Air Force lieutenant-colonel answered a reporter's question.

"What I would really like to do, though," he added, "is go to the moon."

The youngest of the seven original Mercury astronauts, Godo—as his friends call him—might have the opportunity to make that historic trip to the moon before 1970.

He does not think his age is a hindrance so long as he is healthy. He is one of only three of the original Mercury spacemen still considered physically fit for a space mission. The others are astronauts Virgil I. Grissom and Walter M. Schirra.

HAD U.S. RECORD

Cooper will be the first man in the world to fly in orbit twice. The air force lieutenant-colonel set a record for U.S. manned flight on May 15-16, 1963, when he orbited the earth 22 times in 34 hours. Astronauts James McDivitt and Edward H. White broke his record, however, with their four-day Gemini 4 mission of June 3-7.

But if Gemini 5, of which Cooper is command pilot, goes its full eight days, the quiet-spoken Cooper will take over the world record, along with his space partner, navy Lt.-Cmdr. Charles Conrad. The Soviet Union holds the current world record of five days.

Cooper, father of two teen-age girls, has been flying more than 32 years. He took the controls of an airplane over his native Oklahoma at the age of six while sitting on his father's lap.

He soloed by the time he was 16 and joined the marine corps after high school graduation in Shawnee, Okla., his birthplace. After a short stint as a marine, Cooper entered the University of Hawaii where he met his wife, the former Trudy Olson of Seattle, Wash.

After three years at the university he received a commission in the army but transferred to the air force. He was a test pilot when he was picked as an astronaut.

170-pound Sturgeon Taken Near Kenora

KENORA, Ont. (CP)—James Smothers of Montezuma, Iowa, left for home Sunday with a big fish tale—a successful 4½-hour struggle Friday night with a 170-pound sturgeon.

Mr. Smothers hooked the fish from a boat on the Winnipeg River eight miles north of Kenora. He was using a steel rod with a 20-pound test nylon line and a red-and-white daredevil spoon.

The sturgeon struck at 8 p.m. and fought until 12:30 a.m., when it was brought to shore a mile from the point of first contact with the aid of three other men. It measured six feet, 10½ inches long and 36 inches around the girth.

Employment Picture

Unemployment is not the big political issue it was in Canada some years ago. Even automation does not seem to have thrown as many out of work as might be supposed.

That is not to say unemployment can be ignored. Particularly hard hit at the moment are young people coming onto the labor market.

Latest figures show that unemployment dropped to 244,000 in July. This was 13,000 fewer than in June. However, while 260,000 teenagers had found jobs some 92,000 were still seeking employment.

The overall employment picture in July showed 7,251,000 were at work, an increase of 202,000 over June.

Shown as a percentage, unemployment rates for the country as a whole and for Ontario do not make bad reading—3.3 per cent and 2.4 per cent respectively.

Nevertheless, it should be the continuing concern of both government and employers to ensure that as many are employed as are willinng and able to work. At the same time job retraining programs for those affected by automation should be stepped up.

Not Only Viet Nam

With the war in Vietnam achieving new heights of violence, it is easy to overlook various other trouble spots around the globe.

Here are briefs from news reports released in the last few days: New Delhi—Thirty-nine infiltrators and Pakistani soldiers were killed by Indian troops in Kashmir.

Nicosia—In a cable from this Cypriot capital to United Nations Secretary-General U Thant, the leader of the Kurdish revolt in northern Iraq, Mullah Mustafa Barzina, claimed that the Iraqui government has authorized the use of poison gas to wipe out Kurdish resistance and end the four-year war.

Santo Domingo—Brig.-Gen. Antonio Imbert Barreras, president of the junta government in the Dominican Republic, claimed that rebel elements have a school in which they are training guerrilla fighters. He claimed also that communists were active in rebel-held areas.

Leopoldville—Congo rebels killed nine members of a 10-man Congolese National army patrol 60 miles from Albertville. Most of the members of the patrol were white mercenaries . . . There have been reports that the rebels have heavy arms, military installations and the aid of Chinese and Cuban technical assistance

The reports from Santo Domingo and Leopoldville speak for themselves. There have been recurring references to Chinese and Cuban infiltration, through the medium of trade missions, "technical assistance," and so on, in Africa, all the way from Zanzibar to Guinea. Here is further evidence of communist political activity, not only in Africa but the Caribbean as well.

Hungarians at CNE

The traditional western viewpoint of the Iron Curtain countries and their relationships with the Soviet Union have been undergoing considerable modification in recent years.

The barbed wire, the watchtowers, the guards with binoculars and guns still ring the frontiers with the west. However, these trappings are not so much a defence against possible attack as a discouragement to attempts at escape to the West by citizens of the communist lands.

Ever since Yugoslavia began to practise its own brand of socialism, without recourse to the dictates of Moscow, other members of the so-called people's republics have been following suit.

First, it was Romania which decided to increase its contacts with the West, resulting in a sharp upswing in trade with Western Europe and with Britain. Now Hungary is coming into the picture.

Hungary has a trade exhibit at the CNE in Toronto displaying furniture, silver, carpets and ready-to-wear clothing among other products. The country also produces heavy machinery for manufacturing tools and fine instruments.

An advertisement in a Toronto newspaper is a mine of information on the country's products ranging from agricultural equipment to diesel locomotives. Addresses of firms in Budapest are given, as well as the address of the Hungarian Trade Commissioner in Montreal.

Through increasing contacts such as these lies the prospect of steadily improving relations between east and west. Travel restrictions in the communist lands are also being eased, with Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria all bidding for the tourist dollar.

Lowly Potato Is Slandered; Is Healthful, Not Fattening

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I enjoy potatoes, but some people say they have no food value, and are merely fattening. What about this Irish porato? — Mr. G. A. G.

Your letter, sir, reminds me it's time that somebody came to the defence of the lowly, healthful potato. Irish, Idaho, Maine or Michigan — it's still a potato and it's still good.

The "some people" you quote are slandering the potato. Of course it has food value. In fact, there is no food which is merely fattening. True, some have more calories than others, but one thing only is fattening: that is eating more than you need, more than you use up in the form of energy and body-repair.

A potato has a little more than one-third of the calories of the same weight in beefsteak — 1,090 calories for an average pound of beef, and 375 calories for a pound of average potatoes.

Beefsteak is (average, again) 18.6 percent protein, 18.5 fat, one percent ash, and the rest water.

Potato is 18.4 carbohydrate, 2.2 protein, .1 fat, one percent ash, and the rest water.

For comparison, white bread is 1,180 calories to the pound: 53.1 percent carbohydrate, 9.2 protein, 1.3 fat, 1.1 ash.

Pound for pound, bread provides more calories than steak, is higher in carbohydrate, lower in protein and fat.

So now let's get back to the potato. Its protein and carbohydrate values are moderate.

Being a vegetable, the potato, particularly the skin, contribute to the "trace elements" of which we need tiny amounts, and also contains some Vitamin C, although not in such profusion as in citrus juices.

Some people who are on reducing diets apparently believe that the potato is an extremely fattening food — one extremely high in calories. That just isn't so. It is a substanital food but not particularly fattening, unless you eat too much of it, along with too much of other things.

The danger of potatoes, from the reducing standpoint, is that some folks insist on having them mashed and swimming in butter, or fried, or drenched in gravy.

This adds relatively enormous amounts of calories.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it true that an older person should not drink much milk, even the skim variety? I am 60 and wonder if two quarts a week are too much. How many eggs a week? — Mrs. M. C.

There is no reason why older people should not drink milk. They still need calcium, and milk is an excellent source. A pint a day is fine, so your two quarts a week are decidedly not too much. (Use skim milk if you have to watch your weight.)

One or two eggs a day are fine.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a young mother of three and have stretch marks all over my stomach. Is there any way to remove them? — Mrs. D. H.

No, stretch marks don't do any harm except in looks. They are often an angry red or purple at first, but gradually the color fades out and the marks aren't nearly as noticeable.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

August 23, 1965 . .

The second American revolution against a high-handed government took place 179 years ago today —in 1784—when the settlers of western South Carolina decided to form a new state. The South Carolina government had offered to hand over its western hills (now Tennessee) to the federal government without consulting the pioneers who lived there. South Carolina later rescinded the offer, but the state of Frankland (later Franklin) was set up and beaver skins and whisky served as its currency. The pioneers later allowed their own state to lapse and rejoined South Carolina.

Second World War

Strictly Personal

Each Nation Calls Own Balls, Strikes

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

My eye was caught briefly by an item on the sports page, reporting that the manager of the Minnesota Twins had threatened assault on an American League umpire for what the manager had fancied was a "bad call."

The item reminded me of a story told by Prof. Hadley Cantril, the social psychologist, in explaining the different ways we can approach what is "right" and what is "wrong" in such matters.

Three umpires were discussing the problems of their occupation. One said: "Some are balls, some are strikes, and I call them as they are." The second said: "Some are balls, and some are strikes, and I call them as I see them."

But the third umpire said: "I see them coming across, and some are balls and some are strikes, but they're nothing until I call them!"

The third umpire was the only realistic one of the three. What is called a "strike" or a "ball" in baseball depends not on the absolute "truth" of each pitch, but on the decision of the umpire. In a real sense, each pitch is "nothing" until the umpire calls it.

Obviously, of course, if his decisions are too often at variance with the judgment of the players and the spectators, he will not remain an umpire very long — but, except for such rare cases, he "makes" balls and strikes out of pitches.

The attitude of the third umpire has an importance far beyond that of baseball or any other sport. It lies in his candid recognition that objective "truth," or perfect "accuracy" or absolute "rightness" are impossible to achieve in many human situations.

This is the whole idea behind the establishment of an umpire or a referee or a judge. Within the rules of the game—wether the "game" is baseball or a lawsuit — the umpire or referee or judge makes the decision that both sides are bound to respect, even though one side or the other—may disagree with an individual decision.

It would be impossible to run a community of any kind without giving someone the power to exercise this function. Not a town, or state, or nation, could run for one day unless we agreed to accept such decisions, even when they go against us.

And this is the crux of mankind's failure in international relations. We have not, and have never had, such an umpire. We believe implicitly in the "rightness" of whatever we do — and so does every other nation — and do not feel bound by whatever decision some "world court" might make. All conferences will fail, all attempts at disarmament will fail, all summit meetings will fail — so long as each nation is calling its own balls and strikes.

Shadow Over Expo 1967

Sault Daily Star

A report from Ottawa the other day suggests that the next debate to dominate Parliament—the next debate of the magnitude of the flag hassle or comparable in volume and intensity to the Rivard affair —when the House of Commons resumes in the fall could be a parliamentary wrangle over the 1967 Montreal world's fair.

Basis for the report is the concern noted in Ottawa among the Conservative members over the disclosure that the original estimate of federal spending on the—fair $20,000,000 — has grown to $64,000,000. Apparently the Conservatives are disturbed by the deficit and are anxious to know how it is to be covered, and it is believed there is likely to be a demand that a special Commons committee be established to investigate the expenditures.

Any suggestion that Expo 67 is to be the subject of odious political debate on the same scale as and of similar calibre to the debate that preceded the adoption of a distinctive Canadian flag or that which swirled around the distasteful Rivard affair must bring a collective shudder from Canadians.

• • •

It is bad enough that right from the very inception of the fair, following the official designation of Montreal as the site in November, 1962, the fair has been ridden with doubt and confusion, and has been plagued by dissension, and shaken by resignations of fair officials.

It is bad enough that there has been petty opposition from some English-speaking factions in Canada to the selection of the Montreal site as the centrepoint of Canada's greatest celebration, the 1967 commemoration of the centenary of Confederation.

It is bad enough that only last April what started out as a stirring gesture with the lighting of a torch as a symbolic "flame of enthusiasm" ended in a debacle when the torch's flame was unceremoniously doused because the upkeep cost was too high.

• • •

And it is bad enough that some of our French-speaking compatriots continue to give Canada, and Quebec, and therefore Montreal, a dark image in the eyes of foreign prospective world's fair visitors.

All this is bad enough—without putting the fair through the parliamentary wringer and exposing it to the distorted and sometimes deliberately malicious verbal chatter of the kind that surrounded the flag debate.

Certainly, there should be questions asked in Parliament about the fair. And, if, in fact, the original spending estimate for the fair has shot up from $20,000,000, to an astronomical $64,000,000, there should be investigations and explanations demanded of the government.

But surely, considering the national and bicultural aspect of Expo 67, and its significance to Canada in the commemoration of the centenary of Confederation, this is one political debate that can be carried on without acrimony and with some dignity and reason.

Construction Lag in B.C.

Vancouver Sun

All this shunting and bunting around of Canada's economy arouses wonder about what kind of fiscal dervish is in charge at Ottawa.

Less than 100 days ago Finance Minister Walter Gordon budgeted for a $300 million deficit and cut personal income taxes to prime the business pump.

Monday the economy was found to be so over-heated that Prime Minister Pearson announced a painful policy for slowing down new construction. This comes on top of a perceptible tendency by the Bank of Canada to push up interest rates and so curtail credit.

None of this does any good to Mr. Gordon's reputation as a man who frequently fails to foresee the consequences of his own acts. The government which he graces is clearly embarrassed by the need to reverse his budgetary thinking in face of an inflationary emergency.

Even the sending of Immigration Minister Nicholson to recruit skilled labor in Europe apparently comes too late to break the log-jam behind which building costs are mounting with consequent upward pressures on prices of export commodities.

The government, in effect, is taking itself out of the competition for scarce skills while the situation hopefully cools off. Time enough to award tenders for postponed works when the construction industry is in need of a stimulant rather than a tranquilizer.

It would be interesting to know just how soon after the budget's adoption in May that doubts began to set in at Ottawa. Undoubtedly the jump in the cost of living index by one full percentage point during June must have frightened even Mr. Gordon's syncophants.

Despite known facts about soaring unit prices in tenders, some B.C. contractors profess to be angry about the government's cutback in its own building plans. Other citizens will be more inclined to hope that the pause may enable the government to get more for the taxpayers' money. Some will recall, for example, that tenders for the dentistry building at the University of British Columbia came in so far above estimates that the board of governors had to cut facilities and reduce the original student enrolment by half.

Such experiences are probably inevitable while B.C.'s construction industry is running at a record rate of $1,100 million this year—up $85 million from 1964 and $283 million in 1963. The present pace is supposed to demand the services of 5,000 additional artisans but precious few of them are to be found.

As matters now stand, local ambitions for prompt completion of some federal works may have to go into moth-balls for awhile. To its credit, the government is willing to stand up to the squawks. This takes political courage.

But the consequences of the new policy will be beneficial to the country as a whole to the degree that the runaway building boom is held in check and prices are prevented from climbing beyond all reason.

Newsman's Epic Voyage

Ottawa Journal

We are all delighted that Robert Manry made it from Falmouth to Falmouth in his 13½ foot "Tinkerbelle." But his real triumph was in setting out.

"There comes a time," he had said to his wife, "that one must decide, of one's dreams, either to risk everything to achieve them, or sit for the rest of one's life in the back-yard."

Each of us has his dreams. For most of us they are just something to fondle now and again when we can catch a few spare minutes between compromises. We tell ourselves, sitting in the back yard, that one must be realistic; that life, after all, is one long series of compromises, of taking things as they are and making the best of them; that dreaming is for children and maturity consists of learning to take second-best gracefully.

Of course it's all true. But it's thin gruel that leaves a hunger. Here's where the poet and the preacher may come in, but their answers are in the realms of the imagination or of the next world, and we are in this world.

But now along comes a Robert Manry who chooses one dream; straight out of the legends of man's heroic age, clear and clean and simple. Then—he risks everything to achieve it.

One account of the voyage says "the reason for his odyssey is obscure." We doubt that he will try to make it clearer. For anyone who had to ask would never understand.

History is indeed little more than the register of the crimes follies, and misfortunes of mankind. — Gibbon in Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

A new type of aerial warfare, one of preservation rather than destruction, has captured the interest of the Canadian public. Armed with DDT, a recently developed and highly effective insecticide, Canadian and American entomologists are conducting extensive experiments on control of the bud worm, an insect which threatens to destroy Canada's fine spruce forests.

Alarmed at the menace to their own forests by this insect, which already had gained a hold on the heavily wooded areas in Eastern Canada, Washington entomologists enlisted the aid of the Canadian government, and Canadian and American scientists have established camps to study the problem.

Not yet available to the general public, DDT is a wartime discovery that has been used effectively by the armed forces to combat various types of insect life and plans for its post-war use are many and varied. While scientists of today use DDT to blast at the bud worm in spruce forests, the powerful insecticide will soon be available for housewives to fight the common house fly.

Upward Trend

Peterborough Examiner

The 1965 budget is clearly optimistic. Any claims that the Conservatives make for having a hand in the conditions which have made it possible can be discounted. And for that matter, the claims of the Liberal party are not as secure as they might be either. Obviously we are benefiting from a general North American recovery from the recession of 1958 and afterwards.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials made slight gains after two days of losses in light morning stock exchange trading today.

The speculative list was quiet—with one exception. Obaska traded 318,100 shares and fell 10½ and 38½ cents. The stock gained smartly last week.

The main list had few gains and they were small. Massey-Ferguson and Union Gas each gained ⅛ to 31 and 29¼ and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce ⅜ to 64½.

Canada Iron Foundries, Stelco and Union Carbide each tacked on ¼ at 52, 28¾ and 30, respectively, while Algoma Steel and Slater Steel each advanced ⅜ to 64 and 13⅞.

Senior base metals were quiet and lower. Hudson Bay fell ⅜ to 68⅜ and Denison and Cominco ⅛ apiece to 31¾ and 43⅞. Noranda rose ⅜ to 49⅛.

Dome dropped ½ to 43½ among golds.

Canadian Superior fell ¼ to 20 in slow-trading senior western oils.

On index, industrials rose .14 to 165.84 and the Toronto Stock Exchange index .07 to 155.81. Golds fell .78 to 168.32, base metals .47 to 78.86 and western oils .02 to 97.55. Volume at 11 a.m. was 926,000 shares compared with 1,069,000 shares traded at the same time Friday.

Astronauts Again Prove Man's Ability to Save Space Mission

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — By overcoming their power system problem, the Gemini 5 astronauts once again have proved man's ability to save a space mission.

L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr., taking instructions from the ground, took corrective measures which stabilized the fuel pressure problem in the system. If they had not done so, they would have been ordered back to earth during the sixth orbit.

Flight Director Christopher C. Kraft said that even without all the assistance from ground experts and computers "they probably could have worked the problem out by themselves."

"If it had been an unmanned vehicle, I doubt that we would have gotten it back."

Six of nine U.S. manned space flights have encountered troubles. On three of them, the pilots might not have returned safely to earth if they had not overcome their difficulties.

Virgil I. Grissom had to swim for his life when the door of his Liberty Bell 7 spacecraft suddenly blew out after landing and the capsule sank. That was after his suborbital flight in the Mercury program July 21, 1961.

CONTROL FAILED

The first orbiting American, John H. Glenn Jr., experienced a failure of a small control jet during his Friendship 7 flight Feb. 20, 1962. This forced him to partially take manual control of the craft, which was designed to operate automatically.

Later in the flight, ground controllers received an indication that the heat shield at the base of the capsule was loose. Glenn was told not to jettison his package of retro-rockets after they fired so that its straps could hold the shield in place. Without it, Glenn would burn up on re-entry. Later examination showed that the shield actually was not loose.

A short circuit in M. Scott Carpenter's Aurora 7 spacecraft fouled up the device which told him the angle his spacecraft nose was pointed. He aligned the capsule to what he thought was the correct position by looking at the horizon and was able to achieve the approximate re-entry angle, although he overshot the intended landing area by 250 miles. That was May 24, 1962.

Cooper's first space mission, the Faith 7 flight May 15-16, 1963, ran into trouble when a faulty tube allowed drinking water to leak into the cabin. During the 19th orbit, a panel light blinked on, indicating the pull of gravity and premature beginning of re-entry.

Ground stations calculated he was still in orbit. The flight continued its full 22 orbits, but because of fear that water might have short-circuited the automatic re-entry system, Cooper was directed to fly the capsule manually back to earth — the first U.S. spaceman to do so.

On the Gemini 4 flight of astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White last June, a computer failed, apparently because of electrical trouble. McDivitt and White had to abandon use of the computer for calculating re-entry manoeuvres and instead followed instructions radioed from the ground.

Thousand Delegates Gather For Municipal Convention

TORONTO (CP)—An installment system for paying fines and free dental care are among the proposals that will get the attention of 1,000 delegates attending the 67th annual convention of the Ontario Municipal Association.

The four-day convention opened Sunday, but the real business begins today with submissions of the 12-member resolutions committee, headed by Controller William Archer of Toronto.

The committee acted on 113 resolutions, submitted by member municipalities, in a day-long meeting Sunday.

York County Welfare Officers' Association submitted the resolution calling for a universal dental care program for Ontario.

Mr. Archer said a resolution submitted by Chatham will likely provide the most controversy. It objects to a proposal to lower the legal drinking age in Ontario to 18 from 21.

Other resolutions call for an end to the tax exemption on property used commercially by educational institutions, and stricter control of architectural design to provide better development of cities.

The federal and Ontario governments were urged to establish a system for installment payment of fines rather than jail sentences for "many types of offenders" in another resolution. Toronto wants the Ontario government to help municipalities pay for prescription drugs for relief cases. More hospital beds for chronically-ill persons not eligible for admission to homes for the aged was also urged.

Toronto also asked for a law barring the sale of guns to minors except with the written permission of parents.

Greek Premier Cracking Down On Parades

ATHENS (AP) — Premier Elias Tsirimokos is reported ready to crack down hard on any more demonstrations in Athens in support of fallen premier George Papandreou.

Sources said Tsirimokos' four-day-old government was prepared to ban all public demonstrations in downtown Athens and order police to move in fast whenever large crowds gathered.

So far only street marches have been banned while gatherings in stadiums and theatres were permitted. But more than 150 persons were injured in a six-hour riot Friday night when some 15,000 demonstrators tried to march on parliament following a pro-Papandreou rally in a downtown theatre.

A police official said it was the worst outbreak of violence in the Greek capital since the 1947-49 civil war.

More than 500 persons have been injured and a leftist student has been killed in street disorders since 25-year-old King Constantine fired Papandreou July 15. They disagreed on who should control the armed forces.

Tsirimokos, who last week broke with Papandreou's Centre Union party, was believed still a few votes short of the majority in parliament he needs to survive. He goes before parliament this week to ask for a vote of confidence.

Fiery Crosses Arouse Fears of Ku Klux Klan

By LAWRENCE MALKIN

LONDON (AP)—Fiery crosses have aroused fears of the Ku Klux Klan in Britain, but the substance of the Klan is small and elusive here. Some officials even refuse to admit it exists at all now although it did exist in Britain in 1957.

This time there is a difference. Racial friction is rising between Britain's 1,000,000 dark-skinned immigrants and the traditionally insular white population. The strength of the Klan may lie not in its numbers, but in the fear it has aroused in the immigrant ghettos. Some immigrants are forming self-protection societies.

Only about 40 people in all of Britain have identified themselves as Klansmen. No meeting reported by police or the newspapers has drawn more than 25 people.

Colin Jordan, British Nazi leader, dismisses the klan as "this childish organization." Klansmen talk of a Mr. X as backing them. But no such person has ever appeared either now or during the Klan's first British appearance in 1957, when it claimed no more than 300 members.

CLAIMS 500 WRITE

Robert Shelton, imperial wizard of the Klan in the United States, asserted in a television interview filmed in U.S. last April that 500 Britons had written him asking to join. He said he would start recruiting here this summer.

Home Secretary Sir Frank Soskice announced that Shelton would be barred from Britain if he tried to enter, and so would his lieutenants. This has been the only official move against the Klan as a group.

Maurice Foley, the minister responsible for integrating Britain's immigrants, called the fiery crosses that blossomed in London, Birmingham, Leeds and other cities with immigrant ghettos "the work of a small lunatic fringe."

Said the chief of the Birmingham police criminal investigation department: "I do not believe there is any such organization as the Ku Klux Klan in Birmingham."

KLAN TURNS OUT

The organization's unit there decided to hold its first open meeting to prove its existence and 13 men and three women turned out, at least half of them defectors from Jordan's Nazi party.

George Newey, head of the local cell, said the Klan wants Negroes sent home "so we can rid this country of fear of disease, lack of housing and lack of jobs."

Pat Webb, another member, said: "I am anti anything, as long as there are kicks to it. I'd join an anti-police party if somebody started one."

Robert Relf said he attended a KKK meeting in Birmingham June 5. They discussed activities on behalf of immigrant bus workers being led by Dharam Singh, a local Indian leader. Two days later a fiery cross appeared on the Indian's front door.

Relf soon lost his job as a warehouseman. Then he quit the Klan.

This is one of the few incidents that can be traced to the Klan with any certainty.

When we gave up steam we didn't lose it!

On the contrary. We actually picked up speed and streamlined our services. Improved freight hauling and handling; built Canada's most advanced automatic freight classification yards; brought in electronic computers, microwave transmitters and other modern equipment to speed up freight car tracing; emphasized the importance of service-minded people, and gained new friends. And we are still at it.

These changes and the resulting savings bring benefits to everybody: businessmen, traffic people, shipping executives of companies big or small. People who ship in parcels, bundles, crates, sacks, bales, drums, containers, cartons, boxes, cases—you name it—anything that's movable.

Here's your chance to profit by shipping CN. So remember our low, money-saving freight rates. And our 103,000 freight cars. Our big fleet of 'piggyback' flatcars which will be increased by another 50% in 1965. Too bad we don't still have steam whistles, because we sure have a lot to toot about!

Mr., Mrs. Harold Burtt Mark Golden Wedding

Anniversary congratulations were in order Sunday as family relatives and friends paid tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Burtt of Shannonville who were "at home" on their golden wedding day.

Actually Sunday wasn't the anniversary date but the Sunday celebration seemed more in order for the convenience of family members, most of whom live in St. Catharines.

The couple have lived in Shannonville on the banks of the Salmon River for all their married life, while the bridegroom of 50 years has lived there 74 of his 78 years and claims to be the oldest man in the village. Mrs. Burtt is the former Eva Howard and was born at Deseronto. Mr. Burtt was born at Trenton.

Both attended the same school at Shannonville, their school day acquaintanceship blossoming into romance and then marriage. The couple attend Shannonville United Church.

Mr. Burtt worked for a quarter of a century as a railway section hand, then worked as a carpenter on the Welland Canal for three years and is now retired after 21 years with ville Canners.

Putting his carpentry skills to good stead, Mr. Burtt built the house which they have lived in for much of their married

The couple's four children, two boys and two girls, all live in St. Catharines, an association which started during the father's three years on the Welland Canal.

They are Charles and Laurel Burtt, Mrs. James (Edna) Robson, and Mrs. Allan (Olive) Plato. There are 12 grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Throughout the afternoon tea was poured by Mrs. John Hosegrove of St. Catharines and Mrs. Ross Lewis, of Belleville.

Many cards and congratulatory telegrams were received with messages of congratulations received from Governor General Vanier, Prime Minister Lester Pearson and Leader of the Opposition John Diefenbaker, Premier J. Robarts and M.P. James McNulty, Lincoln County and Bob Welch, MLA for Lincoln County.

Successful Living

Belief in Her Pupils Teacher's Prime Asset

DEAR DORIS — I am an older teacher, who will be taking on the principal's job (though I am a woman) in a new school this September; having finished university courses two years ago.

I am very anxious not to be the kind of teacher mentioned by "Scared Stiff" in your column. Teen-agers are so often difficult to handle that I should like any advice or material you have on how to be the 'wise, kind, judicious parent' image that an older teacher needs to be. — B.A. BUT ANXIOUS.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR B.A. — You had what it took to go back to school after a quarter of a century as a farmer's wife. You'll get by!

To put it in a nutshell, the prime ingredient for a good teacher is belief in her pupils. Then comes the praise and patience which spurs the learners to keep trying. They know it when the teacher gives two hoots about them; and they'll bend over backwards to make good.

Creating a Scared Stiff Classroom merely paralyses the pupils and qualifies a so-called teacher for a part in a horror movie. (My leaflet on the vocation of teacher is on its way to you.)

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Could I obtain information from you re the compiling of a scrapbook or some form of souvenir for wedding anniversaries? — QUARTER CENTURY BRIDESMAID.

DEAR QUARTER — How about these:

1. Ask all guests to bring with them a rhyme, preferably original, to write into a speical autograph album marking the occasion. "John and Jane ten years were hitched, Glory be they haven't switched!")
2. Ask guests and the couple themselves to bring snapshots of past joys; babies, picnics, parties they've shared, to be pasted into a fancy be-ribboned scrapbook at the party.
3. Start from scratch, with old magazines, scissors, paste, and label the scrapbook pages: "Their first baby," "The first burned biscuits," "Before they stopped speaking," — and let your imagination go on from there.

The type of souvenir will have to be selected and prepared having some thought for the couple, their age, inclinations and sense of humor.

Confidential to GRAMPA D., VI and MRS. C. — If "Undecided", who asked for advice about choosing between her child or the man she loves, will write in again supplying her name and address, I'll pass on your messages.

(What's troubling you? Putting it on paper to Doris is the first step towards solving your problem.)

Pregnant Woman Gets High Marks

MARKHAM, Ont. (CP)—June was a long month for Mrs. John Forrest, 18, of Markham.

She studied by herself 10 hours a day, wrote nine Grade 13 exams, passed them all, earned four first-class and four second-class honors, and made an over-all average of 76 per cent.

A few weeks later, she gave birth to a daughter, Lyre.

Mrs. Forrest explained her studying schedule. She would start each day at 9 a.m. and work until noon. After lunch, she would study until 4:30 p.m. when she prepared dinner. Following dinner, it was back to the books again.

"My husband John went to the movies every night," she said.

Mrs. Forrest originally left school in 1964 to become a housewife.

Encouraged by her husband, she started to study again.

"After John and I were married, he hounded me to take Grade 13. When I became pregnant, I bought the school books . . . but still didn't study. By April I didn't feel like going out much and John was still after me to study so I really started in June."

FIND YACHTSMAN'S BODY

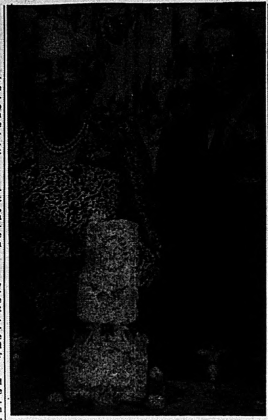
OWEN SOUND (CP)—An autopsy has revealed that Victor J. Conrad, 45, of Cleveland, may have died of a heart attack last July 23 when he disappeared from his yacht anchored off Hopkin's Point. The body was found Friday night in a shallow lagoon by a tourist, near where the yacht had been moored.

A REMINDER

Wedding forms for write-ups are available at The Intelligencer and should be completed and returned BEFORE the ceremony so a report can be published immediately after the wedding.

Pictures may be submitted by your photographer up to three days after the wedding. We cannot publish wedding write-ups submitted later than six days after the date of the ceremony.

Accounts of showers and entertainments in honor of the bride do not belong with the wedding write-up, but should be sent in immediately after they are held, for publication separately.



Mr., Mrs. Geo. Lough Wed for Half Century

An afternoon "at home", together with an evening anniversary dinner and open house at St. Albans' Church hall at Ameliasburg, marked the 50th wedding anniversary Saturday of Mr. and Mrs. George Lough, R.R. 7, Belleville, in Prince Edward county.

In the afternoon the couple were "at home" to friends at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Walter Skinkle, Sinclair Street, in Belleville. Later came the family dinner at Ameliasburg and the open house in the church hall.

Mr. Lough was born in Marmora township while Mrs. Lough, the former Victoria Barlow, was born at Bonarlaw. Mrs. Lough taught school prior to her marriage.

Following their marriage at St. Mark's Anglican Church at Bonarlaw, the couple drove to Prince Edward county by horse and buggy and have lived since on their farm on Huff's Island Road.

Both have enjoyed good health, with Mr. Lough being a hospital patient for the first time last year for an operation at the age of 82. Mrs. Lough also is still alert although a stroke in 1954 has left her with slurred speech.

The bridegroom of 50 years still drives his car and this summer drove to his son's cottage, 165 miles east of Belleville on highway 401. He is from a family of eight children, two of whom are now deceased. Mrs. Lough has three sisters and two brothers, all living in Hastings county.

The couple raised eight children, one of whom was killed in action in World War Two.

The children are Percy Lough; Mrs. Harold (Helen) Steele, of Brockville; Ross (killed in action); Howard Lough of Cornwall; Leslie Lough of Belleville; Mrs. Elgin (Doris) Oram of Bancroft; Mrs. Walter (Mary) Skinkle of Belleville and Ronald, who works the family farm. There are 31 grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Mother's Helper

OF COURSE you can buy paper cups already decorated for your child's party. But it will be more fun—and keep small hands busy—to let your young artist decorate her own. Supply her with plain white, non-waxed paper cups and indelible markers in several colors. She'll do the rest. Add each guest's name, and the custom-drawn cups will serve as place markers, too! (Idea from Mrs. Andrew Welewski, Meriden, Conn.)

Susanna's Family Fare

PLEASE DON'T EAT THE DAISIES!

Dear Susanna: Got a needle handy? Stitch yourself a delicate doily for under a small floral arrangement by sewing together a few green leaves into the shape of a star.

Wear it, place it in a vase or float it in a large low container along with half a dozen daisy heads.

You can further enhance your lovely cool-looking centrepiece by tinting the water with a little food coloring or by using part of the powder from one of those packages of flavored summer drinks.—K. H. (again)

Not only looks good, but tastes delicious too. In fact if you feel terribly continental and decide to use a mammoth brandy snifter for the container, you may be hosting the first dinner party on record where one of the guests got so carried away by the color and beauty of the centrepiece that he drank it. — SUSANNA

GIFT TIP

Dear Susanna: A rather nice, novel idea for a wedding gift — either from one person or from a group—is to present the bride with one cushion or an assortment of them.

I mean the large colorfully attractive ones that are meant to be scattered about the floor as extra "seats" Some are shaped so that they stack neatly in between usings, or, if a number of friends or a group from the office are going in together on the present, a cushion caddy for keeping them tidy could be included. — Mildred M.

(If you have any hints for running a successful household — or any problems — write to Susanna, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self - addressed envelope when requesting pamphlets.

Buying Spree In NWT Costs $500 a Shot

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Since moving to the Northwest Territories, Mrs. S. A. Roberts has learned to shop in quantity. And in her terms, quantity means $500 at a shot.

Mrs. Roberts moved from London to Fort Smith, N.W.T., when her husband became district municipal officer for the Mackenzie district.

She makes good use of her freezer and the big shopping bill isn't as much as it sounds. After filling the larder, she says, groceries might cost only $2 a week for the next six months.

Mrs. Roberts says parkas available back home aren't warm enough, and most families in Fort Smith have parkas made and embroidered by Indian women who hand - sew them.

Another difference between Fort Smith and London is the amount of baking she does.

"I have taken to baking all my own bread. At first I rushed down to the store when the plane came in, only to find the stock completely sold out. Also, bread is 35 cents a loaf and I can bake it for 17."

Rising Incomes Bringing Luxury Boom to Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Marlene Ann Argue, director and business manager of a new magazine being published especially for the city's affluent society, says she has found Toronto to be Canada's most sophisticated city.

After eight years in Vancouver, Mrs. Argue, who was born in Bulyea, Sask., describes Toronto's boutiques, theatres and arts centres as "absolutely exciting."

Mrs. Argue, who came here four months ago to join friends in launching The Townsman, Toronto's Luxury Magazine, says the people here are rich . . . and getting richer.

"Five solid years of rising incomes have brought a luxury boom to Toronto," she says.

These findings are based on information provided by the department of national revenue, city records and other official sources, which show a constant rise in incomes over the last five years.

"Since 1950, the number of people in Metropolitan Toronto with incomes of more than $10,000 has doubled," she says. "Only 10 per cent of Canada's population lives in Toronto, but 20 per cent of tax payers earning more than $10,000 a year live here."

Toronto's per capita income was 26 per cent higher than the national average. Mrs. Argue says the city is the richest consumer market in Canada and also the most cultured.

"In the North American continent Toronto is second only to New York in such fields as theatre, night clubs, cinema, discotheques, art exhibits, concerts, folk singing, jazz and concert music."

Post on Parole Board Given Wife of Judge

VANCOUVER (CP)—A nurse with a reputation for sympathetic understanding and years of experience helping people in various parts of the world is the first woman member of the British Columbia parole board.

Mrs. T. G. Norris, who takes up her new duties late in August, is the wife of Mr. Justice Norris of the B.C. Appeal Court.

As a member of the five-man board, she will review applications for parole from prisoners in B.C. penal institutions.

Her background would appear to suit her admirably for the difficult job. She has had experience with youthful offenders, having served on the borstal board and more recently on the family court committee in Haney, B.C.

Born in Bournemouth, England, she moved to Penticton, B.C., in 1922 when her father, a dental surgeon, retired. She went to school in Victoria, then travelled to Ceylon to stay with a brother.

She took a nursing course in London and worked as a public health officer for two years, an experience that was useful when she went to work for the UN relief association in Italy and Germany after the war.

She served in an international camp where about 5,000,000 displaced persons of 22 nationalities were assisted. They were people left homeless by the war and survivors of concentration camps.

She returned to England and worked in public health for a time before returning to Canada. After working with the provincial government as a public health nurse in Penticton, Chilliwack and other centres in the B.C. interior for 10 years, she married Mr. Justice Norris, whom she had met earlier in Kelowna.

She remained active after her marriage and her work with youths who had gone wrong strengthened a belief that young people are often the victims of false values that have been set for them by their elders.

"Kids today don't have enough to do," she says. "If people don't keep faith, if nations don't keep faith, how can we expect our children to do so."

She is a strong proponent of the idea of the half-way house to bridge the gap between institutions and normal living. Borstal boys are shy when they come out, she says, and she hopes Borstal's half-way house, to be known as the Dick Bell-Irving Hose, will help them adjust to freedom.

RUSSIAN VEGETABLE SOUP

The version of borscht, the famous Russian beet soup, which I have decided to describe is the result of wishful thinking. I made a big soup pot full of it and on the second day when I served it for lunch, it seemed better to me than when I served it as a first course for a guest dinner the night before. It won some heart-warming praise both times.

But it was made with a ham bone—not the traditional beef bone—because that was what I had.

There are a lot of ham bones left over in Canadian refrigerators this summer so I thought our thrifty cooks would like to follow my example.

Deep Meat Pie with Biscuit Crust; Green Peas with White Sauce; Relish Tray: Celery, Carrot Curls and Radish Roses; Cantaloupe Halves filled with Ice Cream; Iced Tea.

WISHBONE BORSCHT

(Russian vegetable soup — with one beet).

1 ham bone with a little meat left on, ½ cup dry white navy beans, 2 chicken bouillon cubes, 6 cups cold water, 1 green pepper, 2 cooking onions, 1 medium carrot, 1 peeled raw beet, ⅛ medium size cabbage, 1 large peeled chopped tomato (or 1 cup canned).

Into your soup pot put the ham bone, dry white beans, bouillon cubes and water to bring to boil. Reduce heat and cover and simmer. Now put all vegetables except tomatoes through medium-sized knife of food grinder and add to soup. Simmer until beans are tender—about 1½ to 2 hours. Remove from heat and chill and skim off and discard fat. Remove bones and cut meat into small pieces. Return meat to soup. Add tomato and reheat, boiling for 5 minutes to cook tomato a little, and serve in soup bowls with a dollop of fresh dairy sour cream. Note: The sour cream may be omitted by those who are not accustomed to it, for without it this is a lovely rich vegetable soup, with a faint rosy tinge.

The quality of this soup was enhanced because we served it with TRIPLE TREAT OPEN SANDWICHES (to serve 4).

4 slices white or whole wheat bread, about 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, 4 slices from a large peeled tomato, 3 large slices process cheese, 8 slices side bacon.

Toast the bread on one side only. Spread the untoasted sides with mayonnaise and cover each with a large tomato slice. Cover each tomato slice with a slice of cheese to nearly cover bread. Top each with 2 slices side bacon, placed criss-cross. Arrange on boiler pan. Place in oven of 350 deg. Fahr. with top element (broiler in some ovens) turned on but have broiler pan at least 6" below top burner. Cook until cheese begins to melt and bacon is sizzling and beginning to crispen. Serve at once with a knife and fork.

Philippine Girls Want To Be Nurses in Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—A flock of applications from nurses in the Philippines wanting to move to Ontario has been received here in the wake of a visit to the Pacific islands by a team of three senior nurses.

The team was sent to the Philippines two months ago by the Ontario government. They talked to 300 Filipino nurses. On their return they presented a report to Health Minister Matthew Dymond.

More than 50 applications have since been received by the College of Nurses of Ontario. The report says schools in the Philippines seem to meet Ontario standards. However, the girls will be admitted to the province as unregistered nurses until the college can review their qualifications.

"This was not a recruiting program," Dr. Dymond says. "We had heard through Canadian Pacific Airlines that a number of Filipino nurses were anxious to come here. We sent our team to interview these nurses and assess their qualifications according to Ontario standards.

"What we did was simply expedite applications of those interested in coming here, and our team was given every support and help by those concerned in Manila."

MOST IN 20S

Members of the team were Mildred F. Weir of the college, Jennie E. Ives, nursing consultant of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission, and Dorothy G. Riddell, director of the health department's nursing branch.

They reported that most of the 300 nurses they interviewed were in their early 20s and wanted to come to Canada for more money, better working opportunities and experience they could use later at home.

They said language should be no problem because Filipinos are taught English from Grade 1.

The report recommends that each employing hospital provide a program of orientation, and that a liaison officer should be appointed to work with employers, immigration and nursing organizations in both countries.

About 2,000 nurses graduate annually from the 37 nursing schools in the Philippines and they do private-duty nursing until they are registered.

An upgrading of nursing schools there has been under way since 1963. All instructors must have bachelor of science degrees and legislation is pending which will require all directors of nursing schools to have masters' degrees.

Family Reunions

SPRACKETT — POUND

The 4th annual reunion of the descendants of the late George Sprackett and Maria Pound was held at the summer residence of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Sprackett on Wadsworth Lake a week ago.

Eighty-eight relatives and friends were present from Ottawa, Toronto, Cannifton, Foxboro, Belleville, Corbyville, Kingston, Plainfield, Halloway, Bannockburn, Eldorado, Cardiff, Peterborough, Gilmour and Gunter.

Mr. James Sprackett welcomed everyone and invited the executive officers to hold the fifth gathering at the same place next year. A moment's silence was observed in memory of Miss Grace Pound, who passed on this past year.

After a bountiful picnic the afternoon was spent pleasantly, with the adults exchanging family news and getting re-acquainted. Mr. Donald Sprackett entertained all with selections on his Spanish electric guitar and later led the group in a singsong.

The young folk spent the afternoon boating, swimming and participating in organized games where everyone won a prize.

Winners in sports events were:

Races

Race, up to 4 years—Valerie Sprackett, Scott Wilson, and Tim Jenkins. 6-7-8 years, Gary Wilson, Steven Sprackett and Terry Wilson. 9-10-11 years, John Sprackett, Janet Wilson and Cheryl Pound. 12-13 years, Rickey Bruynson, Tony Sprackett and Carolyn Wilson.

Running Broad Jump

6-7-8 years, Steven Sprackett, 9-10-11 years, Danny Sprackett, John Sprackett and Janet Wilson. 12-13 years, Linda Lounsberry, Tony Sprackett and Rickey Bruynson.

Standing Broad Jump

Up to 14 years, Valerie Sprackett, Scott Wilson and Danny McKenzie. 6-7-8 years, Steven Sprackett. 9-10-11 years, John Sprackett, Janet Wilson and Barbara Wilson. 12-13 years, Dale Pound, Linda Lounsberry and Tony Sprackett.

Wheelbarrow race for teenage group—Bobby Lounsberry and Janet Downey; Austin Bartlett and Judy Olehsuk, Rickey Bruynson and Mary Wilson.

Prize for person coming the farthest distance awarded to Mr. Marmora Wellman of Ottawa; prize for oldest person in attendance awarded to Mr. Ernest Wilson of Belleville, age 79 years; prize for youngest in attendance awarded to Darren McKenzie, two-weeks-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ron McKenzie, of Cardiff.

The 5th annual reunion will be held the third Sunday in August, 1966, at the same location.

Executive officers elected for the year are: Mr. Harry Pound, president; Mr. Ted Sprackett, treasurer, and Mrs. Ted (Lois) Sprackett, secretary.

Amelia Earhart Fellowship Twice Won

CALGARY (CP) — The first Canadian woman to be awarded a $2,500 Amelia Earhart fellowship has now been given a second.

Donna Carr if Calgary received a fellowship in 1963 and used it to work toward a master's degree at the University of Toronto Institute for Aerospace Studies.

Now 25, she has been awarded her second fellowship and leaves for London in mid-September to join a research group studying the physics and chemistry of absorption at the Imperial College of Science and Technology.

The fellowships are awarded annually by Zonta International, a women's service organization of which Miss Earhart was a member.

They are given in honor of the noted American flyer who disappeared in 1937 during a flight across the Pacific.

The money is used for advanced study in aeronautical sciences.

Homemaid Haircuts Can Often Be Hair Raising

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a 13-year-old boy who needs your help as bad as any grownup who ever wrote to you.

My aunt used to be a beauty operator (around the time of King Arthur, I think). Anyway, Aunt Myrtle moved next door to us last month and it has changed my whole life. Mom has decided she isn't going to send my kid brother and me to the barber anymore because it costs too much money.

ANN LANDERS

Aunt Myrtle cuts her own kid's hair and Mom says her haircuts are good enough for anybody. So now Aunt Myrtle is cutting our hair, too, and it is just a crime what that woman can do with a pair of scissors. After yesterday's haircut a girl asked me when I was going to the electric chair.

Mom has a wild temper and doesn't take any mouth off us kids so please be on my side and put this letter in the paper. The advice will have to come from you not me.

Thanks for your help. — MISERABLE MICHAEL.

DEAR MIKE — No 13-year-old kid should be forced to walk around with a homemade haircut that embarrasses him. Tell your mom — excuse me. I'll tell her:

Give the boy a chance to earn some extra money by doing errands and chores around the house. Then he can buy his haircuts from a barber and things will be a lot quieter around your place.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our daughter Emily is 23 years old and employed in a large office. She lives at home and we know she is a pure, God-fearing young woman.

A divorced girl works alongside Emily and from what we have heard, she is an evil person. This divorcee comes to work late and leaves early. She gets her supervisor to doctor up her time card and collects full pay for part time work. She makes it up to the supervisor by joining him for drinks after office hours.

This woman talks to the younger girls in the office about things they shouldn't even be able to understand.

Although Emily makes good money and has been employed at this place two years I feel she should change jobs. I'd rather have her employed among decent people and make less. What do you say? — CONCERNED MOTHER.

DEAR CONCERNED — Leave Emily alone. The world is filled with all sorts of people. If you've raised your daughter properly, you don't need to worry.

The next office might have two "bad" women and maybe even a "bad" man.

P.S. — Mother, I can't imagine what it is that a 23-year-old "should not even be able to understand." The more she is able to understand, the better. The ones who don't understand get into trouble.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I was amused by the letter from the friend who wanted to know why a "handsome, respected, successful man would leave a beautiful, talented, accomplished woman for a crude, cheap, ignorant tramp."

Your reply was that "perhaps the crude, ignorant tramp filled a need in the man that the beautiful, talented, accomplished woman did not." It was a good answer, Ann, but I think I have a better one.

Maybe the "handsome, respected, successful man" was also a smart fellow who knew the difference between "dignified acquiescence and wholehearted co-operation." — J. A. H. of SEATTLE.

DEAR SEATTLE — You win. Your answer is better.

Boston Drug Supplier Killed

BOSTON (AP)—Wady David, 52, described by police as one of the area's "biggest supplier of heroin," was found slain early Sunday in an alley in Boston's south end. It apparently was the 23rd gangland slaying in greater Boston in 18 months, police said.

David was shot once through the head.

Police said David once made $200,000 a year from narcotics sales. He had $4.25 in his pockets when found.

After 30

Conrad's voice seemed affected too — a ground report said he sounded hoarse.

However, sleep finally came as the flight went on. Each man logged a solid 10 hours in the second 24 hours of flight.

Both men are heavy sleepers when they sleep. When astronaut co-ordinator Donald K. Slayton awoke them on the morning of blast off, he had to shake them up physically to bring them to consciousness.

Cooper set something of a record on his 34-hour space flight May 15-16, 1963. He took some 13 naps—some of them too brief to record. The longest was about an hour. Each time he would awake refreshed and happy—and then 30 to 45 minutes later, he would nod and doze off. Sometimes only the sleeping pattern of his heart rate and breathing would tell doctors on the ground that he had slipped off again.

This flight was different. There was crisis early—and both astronauts were concerned with the ability of the fuel cell system to provide power for the long flight.

Besides, Conrad was wearing on his thighs the inflatable cuffs that were designed to make it more difficult for his heart to pump blood and so circumvent some of the laziness that the heart tends to develop in weightlessness.

But the device which inflates two minutes out of every six, and tightens around the thighs, began to bother Conrad.

The device makes a noise as it inflates—and it was this that Conrad found objectionable.

Stranded

Once at Gatwick, however, the passengers were taken from the plane.

Airborne Aviation Services Ltd. of Gatwick, London agents for World Wide, had obtained a lien, seizing the plane until it received satisfaction for some pounds £12,000 ($36,000) which Managing Director Herbert Snowball said World Wide owed to Airborne Aviation and to Britain's aviation ministry for landing charges and aircraft servicing.

The passengers, at first angry and then resigned, were brought by bus to Brighton and spent most of Sunday seeking information on the return flight or sightseeing along Brighton's famed beaches.

Canadian government officials in London acted as intermediaries and, after hours of negotiating, passed on word to Airborne Aviation that Nordair would settle the bills.

Snowball immediately ordered the plane released and dropped a threat to impound the second plane, which arrived almost simultaneously and began preparing to take on the returning church group.

DELAY CAUSES PROBLEMS

The delay has created problems for many of the Canadians.

Kenneth Lomp, 35-year-old tour leader and employee of de Havilland Aircraft in Toronto, said one passenger had learned of illness in the family back in Canada.

Most serious of all was the position of those who had been scheduled to return to work this morning.

"There'll definitely be loss of wages for some, and for others it may mean the loss of their jobs," Lomp said. "We are sort of innocent people in the middle of all this."

MANRY WILL VISIT

TORONTO (CP)—Bert Powell, general manager of the Canadian National Exhibition, said Thursday that sailor Robert Manry who recently crossed the Atlantic in his 13-foot boat Tinkerbelle will visit the CNE in September.

Gemini

and a radar beacon on the Agena target.

Cooper and Conrad had hoped to make a rendezvous to within 20 feet of a satellite they ejected from the Gemini 5 spacecraft on Saturday. However, the power problem prevented this.

Their private satellite now has lost all its power and is several hundred miles away from Gemini 5.

Cooper and Conrad were told not to use their forward-firing thrusters for the phantom exercise because of the danger of reversing the position of liquid and gaseous hydrogen in a fuel tank in the worrisome power system.

The manoeuvring will provide a good test of the system because it will require maximum power of about 40 amps. This is about 10 amps greater than used thus far in the Gemini 5 mission.

The problem of sleep for the astronauts bothered space agency doctors Sunday. The astronauts got only about two hours of sleep during their first 30 hours in flight.

But, like the power trouble that kept the astronauts too busy to sleep, the problem appeared licked during the night. Both men reported extensive naps.

A shift in plans helped the astronauts doze off.

It happened this way:

Conrad, a navy lieutenant-commander jokingly remarked at one point that he'd like to sleep more, "but you guys keep giving us something to do."

Cooper, an air force lieutenant-colonel, elaborated: "The flight hasn't been arranged where one guy can sleep. It's where both of us have been having to do some of the tests."

Later, the Mission Control Centre scrapped one of the scheduled experiments — involving the firing of rocekt thrusters—because the noise might disturb the astronaut who was sleeping.

Cooper, 38, slept through a personal space flight record—34 hours and 20 minutes, exceeding the time he spent in orbit in a Mercury flight.

Other developments:

—The fuel cell seemed to get healthier as time went by. Oxygn pressure was reported to have risen to 90 pounds after a low of 62 pounds.

A duplicate satellite was mounted on a tower at Cape Kennedy, Fla., and the Gemini 5 spacecraft turned on its radar and tracked the satellite's beacon on the 17th orbit.

—U.S. space officials denied a Soviet claim that Gemini 5 was launched "in haste and definite risk."

—A kink in the lines of a blood pressure measuring device on the arm of Conrad, 35, was straightened out and the instrument resumed operation.

—Experimental photographing of typhoon Lucy over the Philippines was called off Sunday because an airplane couldn't take off to correlate the data. Cooper reported excellent pictures of the typhoon Saturday.

—Almost all of the experiments have been carried on in some form.

—The Gemini 5 spacecraft has been turned nose down so the earth's horizon is visible. The two astronauts have reported seeing Lima, Peru, Australian cities, Cape Kennedy launching pads and East Africa.

Thieves Enter Two West-end Businesses

Thieves entered Rollins Lumber and the adjoining Westgate Pharmacy on Dundas Street West over the weekend.

Police say small amounts of cash were believed missing in both cases.

An attempted burglary also was made on a nearby restaurant in the Westgate Plaza, but entry apparently was not gained to the premises.

Assoc. for Mentally Retarded Turns Down School Purchase

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford and District Association for the Mentally Retarded held a meeting in Merryvale School on Thursday evening to consider the purchase of property owned by the Campbellford Rotary Club.

The property, which was formerly a separate school, was purchased by the Rotary Club in 1961 primarily as a youth centre and was used by the Rotary - sponsored Boy Scouts and Cubs.

One room of the school was rented from the Catholic Diocese by the Association for the Mentally Retarded at the time of the Rotary purchase and has continued to be rented from the Rotary Club ever since.

The Rotary Club has approached the Association and offered them the building and the lot on which it stands at a price of $12,000. The government grant on the purchase, if the price were approved, would be 50 per cent of the purchase price.

The Rotary Cub has stated it would be willing to accept the $6,000 government grant as value for the building, write off the other half of the purchase price and donate the building to the Association. The Rotary Club would retain the other five lots included in their original purchase of the property.

After much discussion and a letter of advice from Mr. K. Clarke of Special Schools and Services of the Department of Education, the Association felt it was not in a position at the present time to buy the property. It asked the Rotary Club to give a rental agreement for another year in order to give the Association time to stabilize finances, establish a more secure enrollment, and await further government legislation in regard to Special Schools.

A good representation of Association members were present, as well as public school inspector G. G. Rikely and Rotary Club representatives Mr. C. Johnson and Mr. Clarence Stephens, president and secretary of Campbellford Rotary Club respectively.

Two Tenders For Community Centre Given

CAMPBELLFORD — The Municipal Council and Seymour Township Council held a joint meeting on Friday evening to consider tenders for proposed community centre.

All members of Campbellford Council were present except Councillor R. Bennett. As Councillor Bennett does not now live in Campbellford and is employed in Kingston he was not present although still retaining his seat in Council. Seymour Township Council was represented by Reeve M. McMillan, Deputy Reeve M. Wright and Councillors C. Rowe and M. Brunton.

Ten letters were opened, three for electrical contracts, one for plumbing, two for excavation and four for general construction.

As F. G. Carroll, Electric, had the lowest tender, his tender was accepted at $9,000.

Other electrical tenders received were Joice Sweanor, Port Hope at $11,894 and LaBelle Electric, Belleville, two quotations, one at $9,400 if wiring done to LaBelle's specification not subject to Hydro inspection and the second $11,000 if done according to plan as specified.

Only one plumbing tender was received, that of James Jacobs, Campbellford at $3,747.

For excavation two tenders were received, Thompson Bros., Campbellford, complete excavation details for $6,598, the other tender, W. J. McDougall, Sunderland at $6,000. The Thompson tender was accepted.

No tenders were received for heating, a former tender of W. J. Donald at $6,786 was considered an approximate cost.

FOUR RECEIVED

Four general contracts were received. W. Spencer & Son, Campbellford, $115,980; Fred Fry and T. L. Fry, $103,070, less $1,000 if metal roof used, a Peterborough firm at $119,170, and Tweed Construction at $101,358.

All factors taken into consideration the general contract was awarded to Fred Fry and T. L. Fry with council having option to decide what type of roof to be used.

The total cost was estimated at approximately $130,000, and as the Community Centre committee have on hand about $65,000, considerable discussion took place whether the councils involved would issue debentures, it would mean about $40,000 for Campbellford and $30,000 for Seymour township. Some councillors were in favor, others opposed. To ratepayers in Campbellford this debenture would raise the mill rate about 1.5 mills. The decision was left to the September meeting, September 3rd.

The joint meeting was adjourned and Campbellford council went into session of their own.

Reeve Brown, who had previously been authorized to attend the O.M.A. conference in Toronto asked to be excused and deputy reeve R. J. Locke was appointed.

A letter was read by clerk E. M. Ibey, from Ontario Water Resources, stating the OWR will not consider a lagoon type of sewage disposal in the municipality. The letter also stated the capital cost of building an activated sludge plant and operating cost will be paid by the Ontario government and will be repaid by a levy of the cost to users.

OBJECTS TO LETTER

Reeve Brown objected to the letter most vehemently and stated no report has been received on survey of lagoon sites and that the writer of the letter, Mr. Ken Sharpe of the OWR be asked to attend the next meeting of council to explain why such a dictum had been written.

Council decided to ask Mr. Sharpe to attend.

A ratepayer present, having asked permission stated he had looked at property in Richmond Hill, one and a half blocks from Yonge St., which is the main street through the centre of Richmond Hill, fifteen miles north of Toronto and all property in the area inspected, including a new secondary school in the process of being built, is on septic tanks, no sewers had been built and hence no sewage disposal involver, just about fifteen miles from Toronto, one and one-half blocks from Yonge Street and asked why the small town of Campbellford with 1,590 property owners be asked to assume a half million dollar debt for sewage disposal.

Some ratepayers and also press reports state house building is being hindered because OWR will not permti more sewers until the sewage disposal issue has been decided. There are few building lots left in Campbellford until more land is being annexed but houses should be able to use septic tanks if this system is being used in larger centres such as Peterborough and Port Perry, the home town of Dr. Dymond, Minister of Health. It is understood Port Perry with a summer population of 11,000 has no sewers.

Pearson

B. Wilson said it was to be used for fishing.

The mayor said that Mr. Pearson seems to be here for more than one kind of fishing, an oblique reference to reports that he is in the West to assess the Liberal party's support before calling a federal election.

Mr. Pearson, in thanking the City of Victoria for the sweater, said he planned to do only one kind of fishing—from a boat.

On Saturday, with the exception of a sit down by 40 young peace demonstrators during the PNE parade—which halted Mr. Pearson's car for about five minutes—and a few scattered boos at Exhibition Park Race track, Mr. Pearson was greeted with enthusiasm by thousands of Vancouverites.

The prime minister brushed off the demonstration as meaning little.

Melrose

MELROSE — Miss Barbara Weese spent last weekend in Oakville and was present at the trousseau tea of a college friend.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Milne, Mrs. Sorrell and Mrs. Wrigley of Toronto, were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Milligan.

Mr. and Mrs. Alec Embury of Toronto spent part of last week with Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Embury.

Miss Cathy Embury was the guest of her sister Mary in Toronto last week.

Mrs. William McMechan, as program leader spoke on Brazil, and accompanied her talk with pictures at the meeting of the U-C.W. at the home of Mrs. Grant McLaren on Thursday evening.

HOLD FAMILY PICNIC

Members of the McMechan family gathered for their annual picnic at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Macfarlane, on Sunday. More than fifty guests were present for the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken McMechan and family visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Kimmett in Napanee recently. Miss Gail remained for a holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Scarlett of Don Mills spent the weekend with Mrs. A. English.

A party was held in the Township Hall on Friday evening in honor of the newly married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Sherman (nee Beth Boyd). A gift of money from the community was presented, following a complimentary address. Both recipients expressed their sincere appreciation and invited all to visit them in their home near Cannifton. The McAvoy orchestra furnished music for dancing.

Rev. Douglas Steven, his wife and family of Belmore, Ontario, called on a number of friends here during the past week. Mr. Stevens spent three years in the community as a student minister.

Mrs. Ralph Stewart and family of London, Ont., who spent last week among relatives here, returned home on Sunday with Mr. Stewart when he visited the district and attended the McMechan picnic.

Bright Tomorrow Almost Here For 'Land of Morning Calm'

By ROBERT EUNSON

SEOUL (AP)—Tomorrow is almost here, in the Land of the Morning Calm.

After nearly 40 years of occupation by Japan, five years of fighting off a Communist invasion and a decade of scrambling up out of the rubble, the Korean people are on the move.

"I feel our economy now is in the take-off stage," says President Chung Hee Park.

"Korea is now being reborn, taking its place in the modern world," states U.S. aid director, Joel Bernstein.

"I am optimistic," declares U.S. Ambassador Charles Brown.

"Don't look around you and say this is Korea today," grinned Deputy Premier Chang Key Young. "This is Korea tomorrow."

Chang, like so many other Korean leaders, has seen his country occupied, invaded and bloodied so many times that he admits he is a little amazed as well as happy about the sudden change in atmosphere, economically.

PROGRESS OBVIOUS

Indicators of progress, over the past 10 years, are: The gross national product is up 62 per cent; industrial production up 251 per cent; hydro-electric power up 46 per cent; thermal power up 1,341 per cent; exports up 391 per cent; national budget up 431 per cent; and the national wholesale price index up 491 per cent.

In matters directly affecting the man in the street, there are now 5,243 hospitals compared to 2,585 in 1955; 5,929,000 students to 3,386,000 in 1965, and 6,984 schools compared to 5,425 in 1955.

There are 179,574 telephones to answer now, making a 45 per cent better chance of dialing the wrong number than in 1955.

Pedestrians must dodge 5,474 taxis on the streets of Seoul, instead of the mere 1,989 in 1955.

A long period of drought which threatened disaster for farmers ended last month with downpours that brought floods to large parts of the country. As a result, the forecast for this year is an "average" rice harvest, or about 15 per cent less than the 1965 target.

RECEIVED AID

U.S. aid to Korea during the last 15 years totals about $4,500,000,000.

Korea was divided along the 38th parallel at the end of the Secord World War. The Communists were alloted the north.

Little had been accomplished economically when, on a June morning in 1950, North Korean divisions smashed across the 38th parallel.

During the next three years the country was a battleground between the Chinese and North Korean Communists and the United Nations, led by the United States.

The armistice was signed 12 years ago, bringing an end to the fighting, but not the war.

Though there is still an undercurrent of desire for unification with North Korea, Park believes his country must succeed alone.

He will not agree to reunification other than on the basis of free elections, supervised by the United Nations. The Communists won't buy this. There are 11,000,000 residents in the North and 25,000,000 in South Korea.

Korea is being studied by 35 large American firms who are considering taking advantage of the labor market.

"The Koreans present a most valuable commodity, competent labor," U.S. aid director Bernstein declares.

Japanese and Korean manufacturers already know this.

The biggest exporter in Korea last year was Samho, a textile firm that sent more than $5,000,000 worth of Korean-made garments to the United States.

Last year's exports from Korea totalled $120,000,000 and this year the goal is $170,000,000.

CLEAN
EXTRAORDINARILY! OIL HEAT

Fuel oil is a champagne-coloured liquid.
Surprised it isn't thick and black? Then here's another eye-opener—oil heat cannot cause household "dirt" or window "film".

Dark streaks above vents and radiators occur with all types of modern heating systems—oil, gas, and electricity—but are not caused by the heating fuel. They occur because this is where air circulates most, and air carries dust, dirt and grime, brought indoors on shoes, through open windows etc. As to "film" on windows and mirrors, analysis has proved that 90% comes from cooking fumes, cigar or cigarette smoke. Oil heat is clean heat, and it also saves you money.

Less cost—continuously! Depending on where you live, you can save $50 or more every year on fuel bills by choosing oil instead of gas—and save much, much more by choosing oil instead of electricity.

Safe—unquestionably! Oil is non-explosive. You could safely extinguish a lighted match in it. Of course, all fuels are safe—if handled and consumed with proper care. Oil, however, is safe under all conditions.

The oil supplier of your choice is on the job 24-hours a day to give you personalized, no-cost, dependable service.

U.S. Coast Guard's Mercy Mission Thaws Cold War in Alaskan Waters

By WARD T. SIMS
Associated Press Staff Writer

KODIAK, Alaska (AP)—Alex J: Babanin could have been any young seaman, sick and in need of immediate medical attention.

But he wasn't.

He was a seaman aboard the Soviet fisheries factory ship Churgin, in international waters far from his Communist homeland.

As a man in need of a doctor, Babanin played a key role this spring in one of the periodic thaws in the cold war common to this far corner of the globe, where fish is king.

Through the 18-month period ending June 30, ships and men of the U.S Coast Guard evacuated 26 foreign seamen, mostly fishermen, for medical treatment in U.S facilities ashore.

Babanin was among three Russians, including one woman, helped by U.S Coast Guard mercy missions in the north Pacific Ocean and Bering Sea during this period.

The list also includes 21 Japanese and two Indians.

REACT SPEEDILY

The Churgin was operating in the windswept north Pacific May 2 when Babanin was felled by acute appendicitis.

Reacting quickly to the Churgin's radioed plea for help, the coast guard ordered the cutter Citrus to meet the Churgin at Chiniak Bay, Kodiak Island.

The Citrus sped the youth to Kodiak, where he was whisked aboard a coast guard plane for a flight to Anchorage and an operation. Babanin later was returned to another ship of the Soviet fishing fleet off Seward.

The two other Russians who were the central figures in coast guard mercy evacuations were Urey Pavlo, 23, and the woman, Fira Codner, 35.

Pavlo was taken from the 278-foot Soviet trawler Sakhalin southwest of the Shumagin Islands on April 25. He was suffering from a perforated ulcer.

Fira Codner was aboard the 125-foot Russian trawler Altair in the Gulf of Alaska, off Yakutat, when taken ill last Nov. 7. Both were returned to ships of the Soviet fishing fleet after their recovery.

CHECK HOSPITAL

The coast guard first contacts the U.S naval hospital here for advice on what treatment should be administered. Hospital personnel also decide whether evacuation should take place.

Once in a while, a call for assistance forewarns of tragedy.

Such was the case on Jan. 28 when the naval communications station at Adak intercepted a distress call on the international distress frequency, 2181 kilocycles.

Contact was lost almost immediately, but two navy aircraft were launched from Adak after radio bearings placed the origin of the distress call at approximately 200 miles north of Adak. The search proved negative.

The following day, the coast guard radio station at Ketchikan received inquiries from three Soviet vessels, all of which refused to identify themselves, about a Soviet ship in distress. Another air search from Adak was fruitless.

On Jan. 20, the coast guard made repeated efforts, using an interpreter, to establish contact with the Soviet fishing fleet, to no avail.

The next day, the Soviet embassy in Washington provided the first concrete information in the case, requesting aid through the state department in locating the missing Soviet trawlers Sevsk, Sebech and Nabichevan.

The Soviets said a fourth trawler, the Voksitogorsk, was known to have gone down in a Bering Sea storm.

Navy aircraft took to the air again on Jan. 21 and Jan. 22, but no sign was seen of the three missing trawlers. The search was called off Feb. 5

To this date, not a trace of the Soviet vessels has been found.

The Soviets were grateful for the American search efforts. In a note date Feb. 18 they said: 'The embassy expresses its gratitude to the department of state for its assistance in this matter and also for the condolences conveyed to the families of the Soviet sailors who were lost."

Stirling

STIRLING — Mr. J. B. Belshaw observed his 87th birthday on Friday, August 20th.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pitcher of Montreal have been holidaying with her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Foster.

FLYING CLUB ENTERTA

Oak Hills Flying Club entertained 21 flying groups on Sunday when they served breakfast to about 70 people. The prizes awarded went to the first airplane, which arrived at 6.20 a.m. and was piloted by Douglast Stapley of Campbellford, and to W. Reissner of Oakville, who came from the greatest distance.

Wor. Bro. Fred Bateman and Mrs. Bateman of Stirling and Wor. Bro. Lorne Hagerman and Mrs. Hagerman of Rawdon attended the dedication ceremony of the new Orange hall at Cobden, Ontario. Both men are Past Grand Masters of Ontario East Orange lodges.

Mrs. S. Roblin of Toronto and Paul Rollins of Oshawa spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rollins.

Mr. John L. Good returned home from the Kingtson General Hospital on Wednesday. He had been a patient there for the past ten days.

Mrs. John B. Thompson recently entertained Mrs. Charles Banks of Moosejaw, Saskatchewan, and Mrs. E. R. Duval of Hanover.

HOLDS GARDEN TOUR

On Monday the Stirling Horticultural Society sponsored a potluck dinner at Coronation Park, Stirling, with 21 in attendance. The president, Mrs. Floyd Armstrong, conducted a tour of the village gardens with several members providing the transportation.

The gardens visited were those of Mrs. Percy Craighead, Mrs. L. Waterfall, Mrs. James Chambers, Douglas Achers, Ernest Munro, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Houchin, Mrs. Lawrence Munro, Mr. and Mrs. Iva Caldwell, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Armstrong and Mr. and Mrs. William Ashby at River Valley.

FOUR CHICKS SURVIVE

EDMONTON (CP)—At least four whooping crane chicks born in northern Alberta this year are believed to be still alive, the Canadian Wildlife Service said Friday. Six chicks were hatched at the nesting site of the cranes. Last fall, 42 of the rare birds flew north. Whooping cranes have been close to extinction for many years.

Three Minor Accidents Are Reported

PICTON — Three minor accidents were reported by Ontario Provincial Police here yesterday. All three accidents involved only one car and the drivers suffered only minor cuts and bruises.

A car driven by Carol Closson of Picton ended up in a ditch on County Road 1—the town line road from Wellington to Rednersville. In the second accident, a car driven by Brian McCrudden of Napanee rolled over on County Road 18, near the Outlet, and in the third, Gerry Paine of Wheatley rolled his car on the South Bay Road, four miles south of Milford.

Antique Cars Tour County

PICTON — Almost before they were fully recovered from Loyalist Days, residents here delved into the past again over the weekend.

Some 30 polished-up and working-order classic and antique cars left from Vince's Farmers Market Saturday to start a weekend of activity with a parade down the main street.

Over the weekend, the collection of classics visited Bloomfield, Salmon Point, Cherry Valley, Milford, Black Creek, the Sand Banks and the Outlet and the drivers and passengers enjoyed a lengthy stopover and dinner at the new Marysburg museum.

CAR COMES BACK

The $45,000 trick sports car driven by James Bond in Goldfinger will reappear in the next 007 movie, Thunderball.

Govt. Grant Will Be Made To Provide Trade Centre At Vancouver Says P.M.

VICTORIA (CP) — Question: When is an arena not an arena?

Answer: When it is a trade centre.

The definition of a building to be constructed with federal government help at Vancouver's Pacific National Exhibition was brought up by reporters during a brief meeting with Prime Minister Pearson Sunday.

The reporters noted than an announcement in Ottawa last week said the government will grant the PNE $2,000,000 toward the $6,000,000 cost of a trade centre.

They said that when Mr. Pearson opened the PNE Saturday all the talk was of an arena to house a National Hockey League team.

One reporter suggested the government is simply providing an arena for a privately-owned hockey team.

The NHL has said it will expand to Vancouver if there are suitable facilities for large crowds.

AS TRADE CENTRE

Mr. Pearson, interviewed on board HMCS Saskatchewan between Vancouver and Victoria, emphasized the federal contribution because the building will be used as a trade centre.

The federal government is interested in Pacific trade devlopment, he said. A Pacific trade fair has been held three times at the PNE.

He conceded that "certain people" in Vancouver are more concerned with expanding the NHL than with trade with Japan.

But he saw no difference between this federal grant and one toward the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto or perhaps a convention hall in Ottawa.

Both the CNE and PNE would have either hockey or football facilities. But a grant to the CNE would be on the basis of its international trade characteristics. One to Ottawa would be because the city needed convention facilities.

On the question of private enterprise there is always the risk of helping a particular group when a contribution is made "to any particular activity associated with another," he said.

He could not direct the interest of the people to one matter.

NOTES SLOWDOWN

Meanwhile, he said he will talk to the PNE about the start of construction of the building. He noted the federal government is slowing down construction as a temporary measure.

It already has delayed construction of an airport terminal in Vancouver. The prime minister did not say whether he will specify a construction date.

The slowdown was ordered because the federal government felt the construction industry was working beyond its capacity and prices were going too high. Mr. Pearson said Vancouver was a particularly bad example of this.

Smile and Good Humor Make Conrad Favorite

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Friends of Charles (Pete) Conrad Jr. have described the astronaut as "instant congeniality."

"Pete has never met a stranger," says fellow astronaut Lt.-Col. Frank Borman. "He treats people he meets the first time as if they were long, lost friends. He treats his friends the same way."

The five-foot, six-inch, 138-pound Conrad—the smallest of the astronaut group — has a smile and a good humor that makes him a favorite everywhere.

There were some astonished looks last February when the U.S. Navy lieutenant-commander was teamed with L. Gordon Cooper Jr. to fly the eight-day Gemini mission.

Cooper is a man known to be stingy with words.

"It looks as if Gordon isn't going to say as much in eight days as he did on his 34-hour Mercury flight," a reporter said.

The remark prompted this reply from Conrad:

"That's why he is taking me along—to do all the talking."

The nickname Pete fits the happy-go-lucky Conrad, 35.

PARENTS COMPROMISED

"My mother wanted a son named Peter," Conrad said. "My father wanted me to be named after him. My father won out but my mother didn't want me to be called junior, so I ended up Pete as a compromise."

Now he is Pete to everybody.

Conrad was born in Philadelphia, June 2, 1930. His parents since have been divorced. His mother, Mrs. Frances V. Sergent, lives in Havenford, Pa. His father, Charles Conrad Sr., lives in Sarasota, Fla.

The younger Conrad was graduated from Princeton University in 1953 with a degree in aeronautical engineering. He met his wife, the former Jane DeBose of Uvalde, Tex., while she was attending school at Bryn Mawr.

They were married the day after he was graduated. They have four boys.

The boys are Peter, 10, Thomas, 8, Andrew, 6, and Christopher, 4.

54 Fatalities Across Canada Over Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 54 persons died accidentally across Canada during the weekend—43 of them in traffic mishaps, including a head-on collision near Wingham, Ont., which took five lives.

Eight persons drowned, two died in fires and one in a miscellaneous death.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday, local times, showed that Ontario led the toll with 19 deaths—15 on the highways and four drownings.

In addition to the five-person fatality near Wingham, two persons drowned when a car overturned and fell into a bog.

Quebec had 12 highway deaths, two drownings and one death in which a man accidentally slashed a wrist.

Manitoba had seven road deaths, one drowning and two deaths by fire. Alberta had two road deaths and a drowning. British Columbia had five highway fatalities and New Brunswick and Saskatchewan one each.

Discuss Making Latin America 'Nuclear-free'

MEXICO CITY (Reuters) — Delegates from 18 Latin American countries and at least 10 observer nations, including the United States and Canada, gathered here today to discuss making Latin America the world's first nuclear-free zone.

The possibility of creating such an immense nuclear-free area—extending from Mexico's northern Rio Grande border to the southernmost tip of South America in Argentina's Tierra del Fuego, has attracted world-wide attention.

It was not thought likely, however, that the 10-day conference would actually see a treaty signed. Conferences said it was still unclear whether Cuba and Guatemala, who hitherto shunned preliminary steps toward establishing a nuclear-free zone, would attend as members or observers.

Delegates will hear progress reports from three working committees set up in March to investigate the possibilities of a nuclear free zone.

CREDITISTES START

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP)—Le Ralliement des Creditistes named Laurent Legault its first Quebec political chieftain Sunday and started preparations to contest the next provincial election. More than 500 delegates attended the convention in this city 30 miles north of Montreal. Present was Real Caouette, federal leader of the Creditistes, who said he intends to remain in Ottawa.

Dilemma in Los Angeles Only Brought to Light Bubble Burning in U.S.

The Negro riot which took 36 lives erupted in Los Angeles, but seeds of the same sort of violence exist in other U.S. cities. How will the City of the Angels mend its horribly torn social fabric and what lessons does its week of wildness offer? Here is a look at Los Angeles' dilemma.

By JULES LOH
AP Newsfeatures Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Six days after the simmering Negro cauldron called Watts finally let go, a National Guard vehicle crunched through the broken and burned souvenirs of "ghetto" fury which littered the silent streets.

"What's gonna happen when you cats leave?" jeered a Negro from a fire-blackened doorway at the military vehicle's sullen driver.

What does Los Angeles do now to put together its convulsed community after the worst racial eruption in recent U.S. memory? How does a city official or civil rights leader or anybody reach the youth, who raged through the night crying, "Burn, baby, burn" and now sits frowning in "the white man's jail?" How is his mother, widowed by a white policeman's bullet, reached? How can such deep-seated tension and bitterness be put to rest and by whom?

The dilemma is not Los Angeles' alone. What happened here merely brought into the open once again, though at greater cost than last summer's racial disorders, many of the problems which bubble beneath the hot asphalt of northern cities across the United States.

REALITY NOT ACCEPTED

Said Hebert Carter, a consultant to Los Angeles' human relations commission:

"Plainly put, the problem has been a refusal to accept the reality of racial discrimination outside the U.S. south.

"We often hear the old song about 'they're better off here than any place else', as if that were an answer. It's simply begging the question. The fact is the civil rights movement in northern and western states has been for the benefit of middle-class Negroes; the poor have been let drop through the cracks.

For 15 years Negroes have been arriving, mostly from the deep South, at the rate of 2,000 a month—though Los Angeles still has the lowest percentage of Negroes of the country's 10 largest cities. Many were lured by exaggerated reports of a racial utopia.

Unwelcome in many parts of town, and to a large extent reluctant to settle where they were unwanted or insecure, the immigrants began swelling the population of the central section of the city where incomes are low, crime rates are high, three of every 10 children are from broken homes and where the Watts district is the dreary core.

For the last three years the human relations commission has switched its emphasis from the suburban house hunter to the urban ghetto dweller. On consultant Carter's desk is a three-inch thick report on the Watts area, outlining the residents' grievances, suggested solutions.

SEEK CAUSES

"Everybody has been looking for the causes of the Watts riot," Carter said, drumming a forefinger on the volume. "It's all right in there. I have to believe one of two things: Either we weren't getting through, or people didn't care. Our staff was amazed the place didn't explode sooner than it did."

Many in Los Angeles have, as Carter observed, been looking for the cause of the five days of anguish which took 36 lives, left 209 buildings and homes destroyed, another 787 damaged. California Governor Edmund G. Brown has appointed a commission to study the causes and try to find cures.

Psychiatrists and sociologists in the Los Angeles area point to the smothering isolation of the ghetto, the feeling of being trapped in an inexorable vise, the resulting tendency to exaggerate prejudicial treatment, even at times to imagine it because the pattern is there. Frustrations become all the more intense as Negroes elsewhere are seen to make progress through civil rights legislation. The distortions mount . . . the frustrations smolder . . . the weather turns intolerably hot . . . the ghetto becomes a seething limbo of despair and all that's needed to ignite it is a small spark. In this case it was a routine drunken-driving arrest.

VIOLENCE APPROVED

Socologist Carter, who was there, said that while it was true only a small percentage of the Watts inhabitants participated and that apparently many youths flocked in from outside areas just to get in on the hell-raising, "the others were sitting back and applauding silently."

"They were saying, in effect," said Carter, "'now you will know and recognize our presence, now you will know we are not invisible.'"

Some did more than applaud silently. Women, many of them domestics in white homes and exposed to tantalizingly brief glimpses of the better life, stood on the porches and leaned from the windows and shouted encouragement to their rampaging men.

Questioned afterward about their grievances, the Negroes of Watts invariably included the complaint that has become a cliche in U.S. civil rights disputes. Police brutality. Los Angeles police, from the chief down, deny it.

"The first night of the riot not even Negro policemen were safe," said the human rights commission's Carter. "His uniform represented the system, and the system was white."

Carter said that early in the riot he and others tried to halt the roving mobs of youths by appealing to teen-age gang contacts they had made through the probation department. The gang leaders agreed to help, he said, "on the condition we get the cops out of there—all the cops, Negro and white."

CONTACT NEEDED

"There's no doubt about the value of programs that bring representatives of the community and the police together on a regular and informal basis so they can get to know each other better," said Carter.

Carter and others also feel a concentration of social workers on the scene is sorely needed.

"These people need direct help, not promises of a sweet by and by," he said. "That's what they've been told all their lives. They need quick solutions to immediate problems — help in finding a job, or finding a place for a working mother's baby, or tutoring a potential (school) drop-out. Only street workers can give that kind of help."

Carter agrees. "Sure it would cost money," he said. "But the National Guard spent $250,000 a day putting down that riot. When I think of how that kind of money could have been spent before the riot it makes my mouth water."

High-wire Act Drew Large Crowd

QUEBEC (CP) — A young man's impromptu high-wire act in suburban Boischatel drew a large crowd of spectators, but police didn't think much of the performance. It was too hard to keep Sunday traffic moving.

Theproblem was the acrobat had chosen to perform on a new high-tension cable that Hydro - Quebec has installed across the main highway, but hasn't put into service yet.

He scaled a 450-foot tower and worked his way along the sagging cable. Traffic was jammed up solidly as he stopped in the middle of the span, some 150 feet above the highway, to light a cigarette before moving on to the next tower.

Police booked Robert Gelly, 20, a Boischatel student, on charges of disturbing the peace and held him in cells overnight to await a court appearance today.

New Inquiry Ordered in Old Murder Case

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—The decision of Home Secretary Sir Frank Soskice to launch a second government inquiry into the hanging of Timothy John Evans in 1950 reopens one of the most controversial murder stories of the century.

Several commentators have long maintained that a dreadful miscarriage of justice took place and that Evans was executed for a crime committed by mass-murderer John Christie, who lived in the same house and who was hanged in 1953. Soskice has said the new inquiry will try to establish Evans' innocence or guilt.

The new investigation, announced last Friday and scheduled to start in October under High Court Judge Sir Daniel Brabin, comes after months of pressure by prominent Labor politicians and private campaigners. Among those urging Soskice to reopen the case was Lord Chuter-Ede, who as Labor's home secretary in 1950 refused a reprieve for Evans.

FIND BODIES

Evans, an illiterate and mentally-retarded Welsh truck-driver of 25, was executed for the murder of his baby daughter Geraldine. He was also strongly suspected of killing his 19-year-old wife Beryl, although the prosecution did not proceed with this. Both strangled bodies were found in the wash-house of 10 Rillington Place, a seedy house in the Notting Hill district of west London where the Evanses lived on the floor above Christie and his wife Ethel.

Evans at first confessed to killing his wife and child, but at his trial retracted, saying he had feared the police would beat him up unless he said what they wanted. He maintained Christie was the murderer. His memory has haunted British justice since June, 1953, when Christie was convicted of killing Ethel Christie and five other women whose bodies were found in Rillington Place.

Christie then confessed to the murder of Beryl Evans, though he denied killing the baby.

The Evening Standard says in an editorial on the new inquiry: "There can be no doubt now that a jury with Christie's later evidence before them would never have convicted Evans."

BLAMED CHRISTIE

At his trial, Evans reverted to an earlier story he had told the Welsh police, that Christie had performed an abortion on Beryl Evans which he said had gone wrong and that he would have to dispose of the body. As for the baby, Evans said Christie had promised to have a couple look after her. He had seen nothing more of her until police found the two bodies in the wash-house.

Christie, chief prosecution witness at the Evans trial, denied the abortion story and his evidence was virtually a case of his word against that of Evans. There was a good deal of sympathy and respect in the court for Christie, a meek-looking, bespectacled man who had served four years in the war reserve police and claimed he was chronically ill with various ailments.

Nobody suspected there were already two bodies buried in his backyard—of women he had murdered in 1943 and 1944—or that, as subsequently transpired, he was a necrophiliac.

Author Ludovic Kennedy, who has long campaigned for the clearing of Evans's name, claimed in his 1961 book Ten Rillington Place that the confessions that dammed Evans at his trial were extracted by police and were not the statements of a man with the brain of a 10½-year-old.

He further claimed the judge, who was gravely ill and died a few days after the trial, distorted the evidence in his summing-up.

WARRIORS PARADE

TORONTO (CP)—The largest military assembly since the years immediately after the Second World War marched in the Warriors' Day parade at the Canadian National Exhibition Saturday. About 8,000 veterans and 50 bands participated while more than 20,000 spectators watched from the grandstand. The official attendance figure at the CNE Saturday was 249,000, an increase of 23,000 over the same day in 1964.

Electricity-producing Fuel Cell in Space Craft Is Now Working Perfectly

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—For the men who watch the hourly fortunes of Gemini 5, it was an unexplainable but pleasant surprise Sunday.

Less than 24 hours before, the spacecraft was limping along on reduced electrical power—its bid for a world-record eight days in space in danger of an early end.

But now the electricity-producing fuel cell—operating with less than one-tenth the fuel pressure it was built for—was generating at near capacity. No one could guess why.

The fuel cell blends atomic hydrogen and oxygen, forming water and harvesting electrons to produce a current. But, shortly after blast-off Saturday, the oxygen pressure fell, and the fuel cell seemed doomed to starve for its vital fuel.

But suddenly the pressure stabilized and through the night began to build slowly.

By Sunday morning, the oxygen pressure was back up to just over 80 pounds a square inch—but more remarkable was that the fuel cell's electrical production was way up, too.

PUZZLES EXPERTS

Assistant Flight Director John Hodge from the overnight shift at Gemini control said the engineers were frankly puzzled by the tolerance the fuel cell showed for a wide range in fuel pressures.

With the oxygen pressure at about a tenth of normal, it was still cooking out about 20 amps of power—nearly as much as an average household might draw at an average time of day, with lights, television, refrigerator and other small appliances running.

It was enough to reinstate most of the normal flight plan and aim for eight days in orbit.

Meanwhile, the great fuel cell mystery was still under investigation. On the ground, duplicate fuel cells were being run through duplicate conditions to see why the fuel cell was operating so well on a lean diet of oxygen.

The two fuels for the power system are oxygen and hydrogen which the fuel cells turn into charged gases and blend producing water. At the same time, the fuel cell reaps the extra electrons yielded by the process, and sends these out as current.

It is a neat and efficient idea. The problem is making it work.

To carry enough oxygen and hydrogen, space scientists went to very low temperatures, storing the gases in their most dense form, a sort of snowy slush, to get the most possible into the storage tanks.

The hydrogen was stored at 423 degrees below zero, the oxygen at 297 below.

This provided problems too. The temperature throughout the tanks must be homogenous or uniform, or else a temperature stratification would occur that could block usage of some of the gas.

The tanks are well insulated—an outer shell of titanium, a vacuum, a layer of plastic and an inner shell of stainless steel. Around the inner shell is a winding of wire that provides heat much as an electric blanket does.

As the frozen gases warm up, they effervesce, boil off as gas at high pressures—up to 800 pounds a square inch. This gas is then released by valves into the fuel cell itself.

In the fuel cell, the oxygen and hydrogen as charged or hungry atoms search for partners. Two hydrogen and one oxygen atom combine to produce one molecule of water—and in the process release electrons which are captured and put to work as electricity.

The idea of fuel cells was born in 1895—and has thwarted scientists until the last decade or two. Several fuels have been used, to reap electrons from chemical reactions.

If scientists can't deduce for sure the cause of Saturday's trouble—they may never know for certain. The hydrogen and oxygen tanks were in the adapter section which is jettisoned before re-entry.

Backlash of Public Anger Over Postal Strike Feared

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A backlash of adverse public reaction about the postal workers strike could hurt civil servants in the long run and offset any immediate benefits won in the walkout, Claude A. Edwards, president of the Civil Service Federation of Canada, said today.

He told the opening session of the 24th triennial conference of the 80,000 member government employees' body that it is essential for civil servants and the government to develop "a sense of mutual respect and co-operation" to solve their mutual problems.

His remarks were contained in a text given to the press before delivery.

"I am concerned that a strike can harm the public much more than it may harm the government and; as a consequence, may cause a complete reversal of public sympathy for public servants despite the justness of their reasons for taking militant action," Mr. Edwards said.

Mr. Edwards told the delegates, opening a week-long conference, that while a militant attitude may be necessary sometimes "it is not the sole or even the most important requirement in the day-to-day relationships of employee organizations and management.

"You cannot expect responsible attitudes on one side without being prepared to have responsible attitudes on both sides."

Mr. Edwards told the delegates he was not suggesting a strike by civil servants would never be justified — "but we must make sure at all times that extreme action really is called for."

'A SORRY DAY'

"It would be a sorry day indeed if improvements in working conditions could only be obtained by strike action."

Bottle of Vitamins Aids Man Survive 130 Days Adrift

PAGO PAGO, American Samao (AP)—David Meigs, 24-year-old Californian who weathered 130 days on a storm-battered boat, says he may owe his life to a chance discovery of a bottle of vitamins.

He told a chilling story of survival in the South Pacific.

Meigs, long given up for lost on a planned 40-day trip alone in the three-hulled craft, Extended Adolescence, sailed into Pago Pago late last Friday.

He said the vitamin pills had been left on the 35-foot boat by a former crew member. He was certain they helped him through his ordeal of more than four months. It started last April 12.

He was bearded dirty and had long hair. His shoes were falling apart but he was in good spirits and amazingly good health despite loss of 25 pounds.

The Atherton, Calif., man said he abandoned hope of reaching Hawaii on July 13 when he became acutely ill.

"The slightest effort left me completely exhausted. I wanted to live so I decided to head back for Samoa."

Meigs said he discovered he had been sailing in circles near Palmyra Island 1,000 miles from Hawaii for more than a month.

After 10 days his health began to improve. Having turned back, Meigs found the going easy as he sailed south before the steady northeast trade winds. But he was suddenly hit by two fierce storms which left his mainsail and jib in shreds.

Meigs left Pago Pago well provisioned, but was on relatively short rations while trying to get back.

Pinch Hitting

What could be one of the hardest-fought Belleville and District Softball League finals in some years is slated to get under way at the Fairgrounds tonight, at 8.30.

The Prince Edward hardrocks from Bloomfield way clash head on with Belleville's beardless wonders, Ellis Juniors.

Up for grabs is the coveted Bill Ott Trophy and the winner must win four-of-seven games to take home the bacon.

Both Ellis' and Bloomfield have tucked away one OASA series and face other tough competition in the near future. But right now they are zeroing in on each other. Stand well back, the explosion should make the recent chuckwagon or motorcycle races seem tame.

In a serious note, the series does have all the earmarks of a good one. Both sides were extended the limit, by Tweed Lombanks and Trudeau Motors, before reaching the finals so should be primed for the titular set.

Ellis' will send their strikeout king, Bobby Ethier, to the mound while Bloomfield is expected to select ace Ken DeMille from a pitching staff that includes Carl Stacey and Bob Hunter.

With the three-to-one pitchers' situation, Bloomfield must be considered the favorite. Ethier will have to put everything he has, and get an all-around effort from his mates every game to cop the honors. The Juniors are hoping Ethier can continue at his hot pace of a short while back when he struck out 28 men in 13 innings one night and added 23 more in nine frames the next.

There's a lot of ifs, ands and buts connected when trying to select a series winner but one thing is sure, both clubs will be going all out to win and it should be a real battle.

Second game of the set is scheduled for the Picton diamond on Wednesday night, at eight o'clock sharp, and big crowds are anticipated for these two tilts. No other games have been set since OASA playdown dates will be coming up shortly for both teams.

* * *

Meanwhile, the league executive has a most urgent meeting on tap prior to tonight's game. It will be held under the Fairgrounds grandstand, at 7.30 sharp, and all executive members have been urged to attend by President Frank Insley.

We understand Al Kelleher, one of the umpires inivolved in the recent blowup at the Fairgrounds during the Tweed-Ellis semi-finals, has asked and been given permission to attend the meeting.

Getting back to the Bloomfield-Ellis series for a moment, it is to be hoped that it is strictly a "ball series," not a tanglement of petty arguments, or games marred by misconduct, either by team members or officials in charge of games.

The fans turned out in fine style during semi-finals but we have had at least a half dozen remark during the past week that "we won't be back after that mess in the final Tweed-Ellis Junior game." They were not talking about the style of play either since it was a 3-2 ball game in 13 innings, in favor of Ellis, and those talking were Belleville fans.

Usually when fans complain about umpires, it is when the visiting club wins or appears to be getting the best of the calls but one chap said Thursday, "There were a number of us, all rooting for Belleville, in one section, but we like to see our boys win it on their own, and before the game was over we were pulling for Tweed."

Fans numbered over 500 for that game, according to reports, and we sincerely hope they do not desert the teams because of the alleged poor officiating, were it accidental or otherwise.

* * *

Another of this city's softball squads gets back into serious action tomorrow night, after a couple of weeks on the sidelines when Trudeau Motors open the OASA Senior "B" playdowns against Kingtson.

Trudeaus travel to the Limestone City to meet the pennant-winning Prince George Indians, at McGaffin Stadium, Tuesday, with the return tilt slated for Belleville on Thursday.

The Indians are a strong club with top-notchers such as Don Senior, Haven Ferguson and pitcher Ron Brown spicing the lineup. Trudeaus will have to be "up" for this series or call it an early fall. "Shaker" Baker's crew is determined to give Kingston a run for their money, so it should be an interesting series.

Driver Scores Upset Victory

WEST ALLIS, Wis. (AP)—Gordon Johncock, of Hastings, Mich., scored an upset victory Sunday as he drove his rear engine Offenhauser to victory in the Tony Bettenhausen 200 big car race. A. J. Foyt, Houston, Tex., winner of Saturday's 100-mile event at Springfield, Ill., placed second in his Lotus-Ford.

CRACKS SWIM RECORD

LEIDEN, The Netherlands (AP)—Ada Kok, an 18-year-old Dutch girl, bettered the world record for the 200-metre butterfly for women Saturday.

Ticats Outclass Riders In 27-1 Win

All Even

Point Anne Trounces Westwood

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

Taking the lead with a six-run outburst in the second frame, Point Anne Cementmen outslugged Westwood 13-7 at the Point Saturday night to even their OASA Junior "D" playdown set at one game apiece.

Third and deciding game of the series will be played at Stirling on Wednesday, at 5.45 p.m.

Westwood, first-game winners by an 8-3 count, jumped into a 2-0 lead in the opening heat, then fell apart when the Ox-Pointers started to roll in the second. A walk, hits by G. Maher, E. Maher and Maracle, misplayed fielder's choices and an error made it 6-2.

The winners never looked back thereafter. Whenever Westwood collected for a run, the Cementmen came right back to score. Hull and G. Maher drove in runs in the fourth, Cook knocked one in in the fifth, D. Maher clouted a two-run homer in the seventh and Rosebush, E. Maher and Fraser hit safely for two in the eighth. That made it 13-5 before the visitors added a pair in the ninth. Loose fielding by the winners helped most Westwood scoring plays although third baseman Gerry Maher turned in a strong fielding effort.

Ron Maracle pitched the win, giving up 11 hits, striking out a half dozen and walking four, two of them in the final inning.

Starter Charlie Godden was the loser, replaced by Hartwick in the fifth who in turn gave way to McGee in the seventh. They were tagged for 13 hits, whiffed two and passed seven.

Dennis Maher hit his homer and a single to lead an attack that included at least one hit by every Point Anne player. Gerry Maher, Eric Maher and Larry Fraser each got two singles and Ron Maracle a double. Mike Cook, Tom MacDonald, Dennis Hull and Rick Rosebush split the others.

Barry Patterson boomed two triples and a single for Westwood, aided by Barry Brown and Larry Simpson with two hits each. Hartwick doubled, Jack Flagler, Fred Pulfer and Ken McMillan hit singles.

City Boys In CNE Judo Meet

Two Belleville boys, John and Tony TerHaar, aged 19 and 17 respectively, were entered in the Green Belt Division of the Fourth Annual Canadian National Exhibition Judo Championships, at the C.N.E. on Friday and Saturday.

Well into the tournament John TerHaar was eliminated, but brother Tony went on to the final match, when he was defeated. In spite of his loss in the finals, he received a beautiful trophy for his second place finish.

Aside from this, both brothers were promoted on the spot to Blue Belt, the next advancement from Green Belt, by Frank Hatashita, President of the Canadian Kodokan Black Belt Association.

This tournament is the biggest over all judo competition in Canada on an International scale, and is sponsored by the before-mentioned Association, in conjunction with the C.N.E.

Mexico City — Hermenegildo Mondragon, 124¾, Mexico, stopped Rogelio Huitron, 126½, Mexico, 9.

HAMILTON (CP) — Coach Frank Clair, who has made a career of proving the experts wrong when they rate his team as outsiders, was reported unhappy this season when his Ottawa Rough Riders were installed as favorites to win the Eastern Football Conference title.

The experts were equally unhappy Saturday night. The Riders were well on their way to proving them wrong again.

"That's the best running I've seen by an eastern club in years," Said Clair ruefully after Hamilton Tiger-Cats outclassed Ottawa 27-1 in a battle that decisively established the defending champions in first place.

It wasn't so much the score that frustrated Clair as the way Hamilton compiled it, scoring two touchdowns on pass interceptions and allowing Ottawa to reach midfield only once.

Ottawa plays the Ticats twice in Hamilton and once at home this season, and Clair said before Saturday's game that his Rough Riders would have to win at least once in Hamilton.

Ottawa could still do it, but such a victory is something Clair has been seeking for four years — Ottawa last won in Hamilton Oct. 9, 1961.

The win dropped Ottawa into second with two wins in three starts. Hamilton is undefeated in three starts, Montreal Alouettes are 1-2, and Toronto Argonauts are winless in three tries.

Dick Cohee ran 36 yards for one Hamilton touchdown and Ted Page raced 25 yards for another, both on interceptions.

Quarterback Frank Cosentino hit Tommy Grant with an 11-yard pass on the goal line for Hamilton's only offensive touchdown.

Don Sutherin converted two Hamilton touchdowns and added a single on a missed field goal attempt. Joe Zuger kicked four singles and the Ticats added a two-point safety touch when linebacker Zeno Karcz broke into the Ottawa backfield and hauled down Bo Scott behind the goal line.

The Rough Riders counted their only point on Bill Cline's 40-yard punt on which Garney Henley conceded. It was the only time Ottawa managed to cross the centre line all night.

The Ticats gained 165 yards rushing with Bethea and Baker gaining 62 and 57 yards respectively. Ottawa managed only 108 yards on the ground.

Hamilton also outshone the Rough Riders 85 yards to 60 yards in the air.

Oshawa Ousts Ellis Bantams In Playdowns

Oshawa Legionnaires ended Belleville Ellis Bantam journey into the EOBA playgrounds by defeating them 3-1 at Park Dale on Sunday. The win gave Oshawa the section finals in two straight games.

The winners used all the breaks handed to them, as they stole bases and scored a run on a wild pitch.

Belleville managed seven hits off Oshawa hurler Wayne Blanchard. He struck out 17 and walked a pair.

Ted Shaw gave up eight hits on the losers' mound, while whiffing eight and walking three.

Peter McNamee spearheaded the Oshawa defence with a triple and single. Bern McGuire slammed a pair of singles, while with lone base hits were John Alexander, Scott Wilson, Larry Shrigley and Wayne Blanchard. Blanchard helped his own cause by scoring two of the three runs.

Mike Healey lined three singles for Belleville and drove in their lone run, to lead them at the plate. Ron Jury smashed a triple, and Steve Moore, Brian Coughlin and Joe Lumsdon stroked base hits.

LOSES SECOND GAME

STRATFORD, Conn. (AP)—Toronto's entry in the women's world softball tournament Sunday lost its second consecutive game, bowing 2-1 in 11 innings to Phoenix, Ariz. Saturday, Toronto lost a 15-inning, 1-0 thriller to Pekin, Ill.

Hungaria Slips Past Parsons

Kingston Hungaria, leaders of the Kingston and District Soccer League standings, edged Belleville Parsons 4-3 here Saturday night in one of the best games of the season, at Zwick's Island.

Both sides played fast-passing soccer with play sweeping from one end of the field to the other, keeping the goalies busy throughout.

Hungaria led 2-0 at half time on goals by Joe Weit and Andre Kovacs. Parsons were unable to beat Alajtner in the Kingston net.

Parsons pressed for the first 30 minutes of the second half and finally took the lead with three consecutive goals. Joe Iasenza notched the first after Bryce's corner kick. A three-way effort tied it when Bob Rutherford completed a play with Alan Brown and Bob Main.

Belleville's lead goal came when Rutherford and Iasenza combined to put Brown in the clear, where he beat the goalie with a clean drive.

Hungaria ripped back to get the victory, however, on a pair of quick goals. Andre Kovacs scored both on excellent individual efforts for the final 4-3 score.

Parsons travel to Kingston next Saturday to play the Crusaders in a 6.30 contest.

Read Rallies To Defeat Latta 8-4

Scoring five times in the seventh inning, Read came from behind to defeat Latta 8-4 yesterday in South Hastings Baseball League playoffs.

Read took a 1-0 lead in the four-of-seven semi-finals with the victory.

Ted Abrams was the winning pitcher, with a nine-hitter, and also won his own game with a bases-loaded triple off reliever Stan Reid. Carm Milligan belted a home run to help the Read attack.

Lohn Cronkright gave way to Reid in the seventh for Latta. They also allowed nine hits.

Larry Mavety slammed a home run on Latta's behalf.

No other details were available.

SUTTON, Mass. (CP)—Tony Lema and rookie Homero Blancas were anxiously looking over their shoulders Sunday in the windup of the rain-plagued world $200,000 golf tournament.

Lema, who said he seriously considered skipping the world classic because of recent poor play, shot a 67 Sunday to tie with second-round leader Blancas at 209 after 54 holes.

They had a two-stroke lead on Jim Ferree, while bunched at 212 were Arnold Palmer, Gary Player, Mike Souchak and Joe Campbell.

Blancas said he had to fight the cold as well as the rain to retain his front-running position with a par effort on the 6,713-yard par 36-35—71 Pleasant Valley Country Club course.

Blancas also was troubled by the recurrence of an old back ailment, though he declined to discuss it.

SHOOTS 67

Canadian PGA champion Wilf Homenuik, a 29-year-old Winnipeger who was asked to leave the U.S. PGA tour last year because of inconsistent play, shot a brilliant four-under par 67 for a 215 total.

Homenuik, who at 148 was the last man to make the 36-hole cutoff, put together four birdies and 14 pars as he hit 17 greens in regulation figures.

Toronto's George Knudson, considered by many Canada's finest touring professional, fired an even par 71 to tie Homenuik and five others.

Nick Weslock of Toronto, three-time Canadian amateur champion, the only other Canadian to survive the cutoff, soared to 75 after a 69 Saturday and a 220 total.

For today's round, Blancas was paired with Palmer, who climbed back into contention with a one-under-par 70 and Souchak, who had a third-round 73.

Lema was assigned to a threesome with Ferree and Campbell, who shot a 73.

The year's leading money winner, Jack Nicklaus, dropped out of contention with a 74 that left him at 221.

Four Canadians failed to make the cutoff. Moe Norman of Barrie and Bob Panasiuk of Windsor had 151s, while Adrien Bigras of Ste. Dorothee, Que., had 158. Len Collett of Vancouver had 159.

WIN GRAND PRIX

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP)—Eppie Wietzes and Craig Fisher of Toronto in the Comstock racing team's Mustang won the six-hour Sundown Grand Prix of endurance here Saturday. They completed 196 laps over the twisting 2.45 mile circuit in six hours 58.58 seconds. Al Pease of Toronto and Don Kindree of Burlington, Ont., placed second in an Austin Healey 3000—only 11 seconds behind the winners. They were last year's winners.

City Minor Softballers Eliminated

Belleville Minor teams bowed out of the OASA playdown picture over the weekend.

Belch & Son Construction lost the third and deciding game of their OASA Peewee series to Kingston by an 11-1 count. The game was played in Napanee on Saturday.

Belleville Midgets were also eliminated on Saturday evening by dropping a game played at the CNRA Park here.

Meanwhile dates have been announced for games in the Belleville Minor Softball Association's tyke, peewee and squirt playoffs.

In tyke, Wings and Bobcats clash in the West Hill finals at ueen Mary School while the Bruins and Canadiens meet in the East Hill finals at Pine St. school tonight. Both games are at 6.15.

Phillies and Yankees tangle in the city peewee finals tomorrow (Tuesday) evening. That game is slated for Pine St. school, at 6.15.

In squirt, Cubs and Cardinals meet for the West Hill crown, at Queen Mary School, with Redskins and Dodgers clashing for the East Hill title, at Pine St. school. Both games are scheduled for Wednesday night, at 6.15.

Giants' Bats Crush Dodger Battery

Roseboro Attacked

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was a hard day for Los Angeles Dodgers' battery.

Catcher John Roseboro was hit by Juan Marichal's bat and had to leave the game, and Willy Mays hit pitcher Sandy Koufax to give San Francisco Giants a 4-3 win over the Dodgers.

Just minutes after helping break up a bitter battle between Marichal and Roseboro, Mays judged a Koufax pitch just right and slammed it for a three-run homer that broke up Sunday's game between the second-place Giants and National League leading Los Angeles.

The homer was Mays' sixth in six games, 14th this month and 38th of the season—and brought the Giants to only one percentage point behind the front-running Dodgers. But Mays got his biggest applause for his peace-making efforts.

"I thought Mays used the best judgment," said Los Angeles manager Walt Alston. "He grabbed Roseboro and told him he was hurt. I was worried about Roseboro—I thought he lost an eye. But it was just blood in the eye."

Marichal, the Giants' 19-game winner, precipitated a wild melee that emptied both benches in the third inning of the pressure-filled game when he came to bat after knocking down Maury Wills and Ron Fairly of the Dodgers with pitches close to their heads.

STARTED SWINGING

On the second pitch from Koufax, Roseboro returned the ball close to Marichal's head and the Giants' pitcher immediately began swinging his bat at the Dodger catcher.

Before order was restored, players from both teams were trying to restrain the combatants, Marichal had swung his bat several times and Roseboro, blood trickling onto his chest protector from a cut over his left eye, pumped a right hand that seemed to clip Marichal in the face.

Marichal eventually was subdued by plate umpire Shag Crawford, who wrestled him to the ground and then ejected him. Roseboro was forced to leave. Neither was available for comment after the game.

The day's action, meanwhile, left the three top teams separated by only two percentage points with Milwaukee Braves losing to Pittsburgh Pirates 5-4 in 11 innings and dropping into third place by one point.

Elsewhere, Philadelphia Phillies edged Cincinnati Reds 6-5, Chicago Cubs defeated Houston Astros 3-1 and New York Mets swept St. Louis Cardinals 7-5 and 4-2.

Saturday, Cincinnati edged Philadelphia 2-1, Pittsburgh shut out Milwaukee 3-0, New York defeated St. Louis 6-2, Los Angeles edged San Francisco 6-4 in 11 innings and Houston walloped Chicago 9-2.

FIFTH LOST

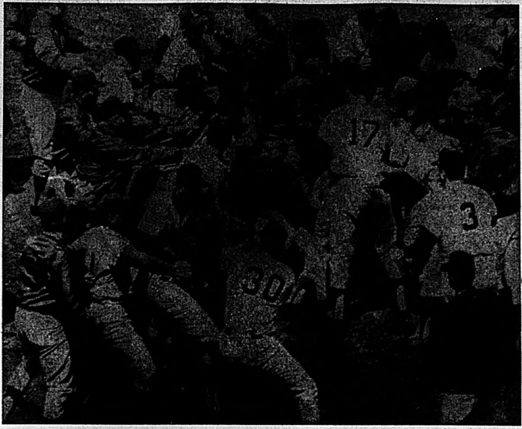
Koufax, who lost his fifth game against 21 victories, allowed only four hits but also was tagged for a homer by Cap Peterson.

The Braves and the Pirates played see-saw until Pittsburgh pushed across the clincher in the 11th when Bill Virdon drew a walk off Dan Osinski after three singles loaded the bases. The Braves, who built an early 3-1 lead, had to come from behind to tie in the ninth on Eddie Mathews' single and a double by Mack Jones.

Dick Stuart, who failed to come up with a ground single by Art Shamsky that brought the Reds a tie in the sixth inning, brought the Phillies and Jim Bunning the victory in the eighth when he led off with his 21st homer.

Billy Hoeft, making his first start in three years, scattered seven hits while Ron Santo and Billy Williams hit homers in the Cubs' victory over the Astros.

Jim Hickman's three-run eight-inning homer brought the Mets the opening game victory before Tug McGraw subdued the Cardinals on seven hits in the nightcap for his first major-league victory.



THIRD INNING FREE-FOR-ALL—Everybody gets into the act after slugging match between San Francisco's Juan Marichal and Los Angeles catcher John Roseboro, centre. Marichal slugged Roseboro with bat after the Dodger threw a return too close to Marichal's head. Players and umpires wrestle Marichal to the ground, right centre, as Roseboro, fists clenched, tries to get through crowd at Marichal. In foreground Giants Orland Cepeda (30) and another player hold back a Dodger. Other Giants are Cap Peterson (17) and Manager Herman Franks (3). (AP Wirephoto)

Warner Win Forces 3-Way Tie

Stewart Warner assured themselves of third place in the Commercial Softball League last night and left three other clubs to fight it out for the fourth and final playoff spot by blanking the Point Anne Cementmen 2-0.

A large crowd took in the game, at Point Anne, the final one of the regular schedule.

The Cementmen, Black Diamond Cheese and RCAF Cosmos will now play a round-robin to determine fourth place. RCAF and the Cheesemen open at Zwick's Island tonight, at 6.30.

Shortstop Garry Gee was Stewart Warner's hero last night, slamming a solo homer in the first frame and driving in the clincher with a fly ball in the fifth. An error put Turner on, Mott hit an infield single and the lead man reached third when it was bobbled to set up the second run.

The losers threatened in the last frame, getting two on with a walk and the winners' lone error, before the side was retired.

Len Masters hurled three-hit ball to earn the Stewart Warner victory. He struck out six and walked three.

Vern Whalen also pitched well in defeat. He allowed five hits, got a pair of strikeouts and passed but one.

Garry Gee had the home run and a single with Rod Turner, Mott and Chuck Rowbotham splitting the other winners' safeties.

Ray Summers rapped a single while Eric Maher and Gerry Maher got infield hits to account for the losers' attack.

SETS JUNIOR RECORD

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask. (CP)—Joe Kellf, 12, of Calgary set a Canadian record Saturday at the Saskatchewan junior swimming championships. Kellf set a new mark in the 100-yard freestyle event for boys 11 and 12 by covering the distance in 59 seconds. The previous record was 59.2.

Brampton Ousts St. Catherines To Reach Finals

BRAMPTON (CP) — Brampton Excelsiors defeated St. Catharines Athletics 13-3 to win the Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior A best-of-seven semi-finals 4-3 Saturday.

Brampton now will meet Brooklin Merchants, last year's Mann Cup finalists in the OLA finals. The first game in the best-of-seven series starts Wednesday in Brooklin.

John Spicer, Don Arthurs, and Jim Richardson each scored three goals for Brampton. Bill Dastator, John McAuley, Gord Cop and Bruce Wanless scored the other goals.

Wally Thorne scored twice for St. Catharines and Ted Howe added the other.

Harness Racing

Three Double Winners

Three double winners and a dead heat for second featured the Quinte Riding and Driving Club's regular Saturday night harness meet at the Fairgrounds.

Due to the Black Diamond Stakes being held here on Thursday, a shorter card attracted only 543 fans on Saturday. The handle was $7,838.

Luella Scott swept to twin victories in the featured fourth and eighth races, besting Direct Dillard and Jacken. Dillard was second in the fourth and third in the eighth with Jacken running just the opposite.

Alotta Grattan also collected twin victories, in the second and sixth races. Ace Hy copped the place spot in the second and faded to fifth in the sixth, with Mighty Lass C coming up to second place. Capital R finished third in both heats.

In the first and fifth races, Brian Wann copped the first place with Betty Chief second and Admiral Jr. third.

Admiral Jr. roared back to win the fifth, with Betty Chief again second and Brian Wann dropping to third.

Dorann Grattan waltzed off with victories in both the third and seventh races, paying the top price of the night, $18.90, for the third-heat win. Atomic Selka was second and Double Star third in the dash.

Over the mile, Atomic Selka and Miss Cheer Grattan battled to a dead heat behind Dorann Brattan.

With a Quinella on the seventh, the Grattan horse paid $9.40, while Atomic Selka paid $3.90. A Quinella on the fourth paid $7.30.

The daily double was run on the first and second races and turned back $14.40.

Complete prices and times were not available.

Stoney Creek Advances To 'World Series'

DUNDAS, Ont. (CP)—Stoney Creek, Ont. defeated East Trail (B.C.) 4-0 Saturday to capture the Canadian Little League championship and win the right to compete in the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Penn., this week.

The Stoney Creek crew now are in Williamsport preparing for Wednesday's game against the team from Spain.

Foxboro Edges Shannonville By 2-1 Score

Pushing across the winning run in the bottom of the seventh inning, Foxboro nipped Shannonville 2-1 Saturday night to grab a 1-0 lead in their South Hastings Baseball League semi-finals.

Yesterday, Read moved out front in the other semi-finals by scoring an 8-4 victory over Latta.

Both series are four-of-seven and first games in each set ended in ties. Foxboro visits Shannonville tonight and Read goes to Latta on Tuesday.

Playing at home, Foxboro scored once in the second frame, on four free passes, for a 1-0 lead. Shannonville knotted it in the fifth on Barberstock's single, an error and L. Lewis' base knock.

In the Foxboro seventh, two hit batsmen, hits by Carr and Dickey and a passed ball combined to get the winning run home, despite one man being cut down at the plate.

Gary Little started for the winners but gave way to Gerry Mann in the fifth after being hit on the leg by a line drive. They combined for a six-hitter, striking out eight and walking but one.

Bill Barberstock, Larry Lewis and Bill Hill shared the losers' mound chore. They gave up just four hits but walked seven while whiffing ten.

Claude Carr, Gerry Mann, Pete Young and Keith Dickey divided the Foxboro singles.

Larry Lewis and Gerry Hill each singled twice, Mike Brant and Bill Barberstock one apiece for Shannonville.

ENTERS WORLD CUP

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP)—Argentina qualified for the World Cup soccer championship round in London next year as Bolivia defeated previously unbeaten Paraguay 2-1 here Sunday. Argentina remains the only one of the three still undefeated.

Trap and Gun Results

Lloyd Blue turned in a perfect 25 for 25 performance at the Quinte Trap and Gun Club's Sunday shoot.

Following him with scores of 23 were George Roberts and Dick Rosatte, while shooting 22 were Doug Johnston, Bob Yome, Garn Skinkle and Duff Folkard.

Gary Gorr, Cy Gardner, Paul Henry and Bill Kemp recorded scores of 21, and Lynn Reynolds, Jack Dodson and G. Rodgers had 20.

The Club's annual shoot will be held on Sunday, September 12.

Harvey Wins Tourney

KINGSTON (CP) — Gail Harvey of Toronto won her second eastern provinces women's golf tournament Sunday, defeating Doonie Hamilton 8 and 7 in the 18-hole final.

Mrs. Hamilton, also of Toronto, reached the final by defeating Nancy Stoddart of Toronto 3 and 1 in the semi-final. Ninety-two golfers competed in the qualifying round Friday, led by Miss Harvey with a 78 on the par-76 Kingston course. Sixteen qualified for match play.

Miss Harvey, 22 - year - old physical education teacher, won the tournament in 1963. She did not compete last year.

Her closest of four matches was a 4-and-2 victory Saturday in the second round over Pat Grooms of the host club. She defeated Mildred Robinson of Napanee 9 and 8 in the semi-final.

ATTENDANCE UP

TORONTO (CP) —Friday's opening day attendance at the Canadian National Exhibition was 110,500 an increase of 19,000 from the 1964 figure for the same day, CNE Treasurer C. S. Walter announced.

Canadian Junior Tennis

Pair Prevent U.S. Sweep

OTTAWA (CP) — United States tennis players captured 10 of 13 titles during the week-long Canadian junior open tennis championships here which ended Saturday.

Andree Martin of Montreal and Nancy Green of Toronto prevented a complete whitewash Saturday of the tournament's silverware by Americans, taking three trophies between themselves.

The 17-year-old Miss Martin captured the girls 18-and-under singles title and became the first Canadian girl to win the award since the open started.

She defeated 14-year-old Marjorie Gengler of Locust Valley, N.Y., 2-6, 6-3, 6-1.

Miss Martin teamed with 17-year-old Miss Green to capture the girls 18-and-under doubles title. They defeated 14-year-olds Emily Fisher of Hamtramck, Mich., and Nancy Ornstein of Washington, 6-2, 6-2.

Miss Green and George Taylor, 15, of Houston, Tex., combined to win the mixed doubles title over Theodora Booker, 17, of Victoria and Vic Rollins, 15, of Vancouver 11-4.

The highlight of Saturday's play was Dan Bleckinger's see-saw battle to win the boys' 18-and-under singles title against Chuck Brainard of Hamtramck, 5-7, 7-5, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Bleckinger, of Oshkosh, Wis., combined with 18-year-old John Pryor of Tulsa, Okla., to win the boys' 18-and-under doubles crown. They defeated Brainard and Taylor 6-4, 1-6, 8-6.

Student Games

U.S. Swimmers Win Gold

BUDAPEST (CP) — The United States dominated the swimming and diving and Japan the gymnastics, as expected, as the World Student Games got into full swing here during the weekend.

After two days of competition the United States had taken five of the 11 gold medals awarded in swimming and diving.

The U.S. team won the men's 400 - metre freestyle relay in 3:38.4 and individual winners were Carl Roble in the 200-metre butterfly in 2:09.3, Gary Dilley in the 200-metre backstroke in 2:13.7, Dick Roth in the 400-metre individual medley in 4:53 and Rick Gilbert in the springboard diving.

Hungary grabbed two gold medals in swimming, to a great extent the work of Csilla Madarasz. She won the women's 100-metre freestyle in 1:03.7 and swam the anchor leg as Hungary took the 400 - metre medley relay in 4:49.6.

The Soviet Union got its first gold medal in the 400-metre freestyle, won by Semen Belits-Gueiman in 4:15.6.

In gymnastics, Akinori Nakayama of Japan won the individual gold medal in a close contest with Miroslav Cerar of Yugoslavia. Makoto Sakamoto, an American of Japanese descent, was third.

Canada's small team of 10 men and one woman has seen little action. Eight of the team are in track and field, which does not start until Wednesday. The only Canadian entered in the weekend swimming events, Undo Buechner of Montreal, failed to qualify for the finals in the 200-metre butterfly.

Maccabian Games Begin

TEL AVIV (CP) — President Zalman Shazar of Israel formally opens the seventh Maccabiah Games today in an Olympic-type ceremony with a crowd of 50,000 expected for the late afternoon program.

The United States, with the biggest foreign squad—200 including Olympic medallists and national champions—figures to dominate the "Jewish Olympics," as it has done in previous years.

As before, chief opposition is expected to come from Britain, Canada, South Africa, Australia and the host country's team, 300 strong. Altogether some 1,300 athletes are entered.

Canada, with 27 male and five female athletes, is taking part in 11 of the 20 sports events on the program.

Other countries competing are Argentina, Austria, Belgium, Brazil, Chile, Denmark, Finland, France, Iran, India, Italy, Ireland, Jamaica, Mexico, The Netherlands, Panama, Peru, Rhodesia, Sweden, Switzerland, Uruguay and Venezuela.

Competition in eight of the sports opens Tuesday with swimming the premier attraction. Track and field events start Thursday.

The Maccabiah flame today will be lighted by Debra Turner, a British native and track gold medallist in 1957 and 1961 who married a South African engineer and settled here.

Canada will provide the youngest competitor in Karen Ann James, 12, of Vancouver, who will compete in free-style, butterfly and backstroke swimming events.

The basketball tournament is expected to be one of the main attractions of the games. Israel and an experienced Canadian team are counted on to give the favored Americans a battle. Basketball games will be played in a 5,000-seat gymnasium considered one of the finest in the world.

The Maccabiah Games celebrate the victory of Hebrew warrior Judah Maccabeus and his followers over Assyrian King Antiochus Ephiphanes in a fight for religious freedom in the second century before Christ.

Central Wins First Dual Track Meet

TORONTO (CP)—The central branch of the Ontario Track and Field Association trounced the southwestern branch 171-79 Saturday, winning 22 of the 25 events in the first dual meet between the two branches for the Donald K. Summerville Memorial Trophy.

Judy Dallimore of Ottawa Uplands Track club, running for the central branch, was the only multiple winner, capturing the 100 and 220-yard dashes and participating in the winning 440-yard relay team.

In the absence of Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., the Olympic silver medallist, southwestern's Ray Tucker of Hamilton was the 880-yard winner. Crothers had a strained hamstring muscle.

Ingrid Gotzsch of Oakville won the discus with a heave of 12 ft. 11½ in.

Wins Senior Decathlon Title

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—Gerry Moro of Trail, B.C., posted a convincing win Saturday in the Canadian senior men's decathlon championships.

More completed the combined 10 track and field events with an aggregate score of 6,706 with his opponent Derek McCune of the Edmonton Olympic Club scoring 5,836 points.

Jennifer Wingerson of Toronto scored a 33-point victory over her nearest opponent, 15-year-old Jana Lundy of Vancouver. Miss Wingerson, who was after a Canadian record, fell short of the required 4,718-point mark, finishing the five events with a total of 4,662 points.

Miss Lundy finished with 4,230 points.

SHORTSTOP INJURED

BOSTON (AP)—Detroit shortstop Dick McAuliffe will be out of the Tiger lineup for at least a month with a broken bone in his left hand. McAuliffe, American League baseball's all-star shortstop, suffered the injury Friday night when he collided with Boston Red Sox pitcher Earl Wilson at first base.

Lombanks Rally To Win 4-3

MADOC — Erupting for all their runs in the fifth inning, Tweed Lombanks shaded Sunbury 4-3 here Saturday night in the first game of their OASA Intermediate "C" playdown set.

Second game in the two-of-three series will be played at Sydenham tonight at 8.30.

Sunbury scored two runs in the first and made it 3-0 in the third while holding the Lombanks at bay with a couple of hits.

In the fifth, Tweed hit for six singles to score four runs and it stayed that way over the remainder.

Joe Barrons pitched seven-hit ball over the route for Tweed. He struck out seven and issued but one free ticket.

Phil Litchfield was the losing hurler, knocked out in favor of John Ball in the fifth-frame uprising. They allowed eight hits in all, none after the fifth, struck out 11 and walked a pair.

Eldon Gray belted a double and single with mate Terry LeSage adding two singles on the winners' behalf. Other base hits went to Don LeSage, Joe Barrons, Bert Sherry and Don Cotton.

Garfield Ball had a double and single for Sunbury and Sands collected two singles. Chuck Convery and John Ball hit doubles, Phil Litchfield a single.

Death Mars Sports Car Road Race

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) The Glen 500-mile sports car road race Sunday, won by the Pennsylvania team of Harold Keck and Oscar Hellertown, was marred by the death of a driver, the second fatal accident here since the track opened in 1962.

Witnesses said that the car, driven by Harold C. Woods Jr., 34, of Rivertown, N.J., went into a spin on the west leg of the Glen international track and whirled over and over after hitting a track-side ditch.

The winning team completed the 501.4 miles in five hours, 20 minutes, 20.9 seconds, averaging 93.91 m.p.h.

Wayne Kelly of Trenton, Ont., and Dennis Brown of Snyder, N.Y., racing in a newly-imported Italian Abarth Dumila, finished fifth, covering 206 laps.

Booth Tykes Split With Peterboro

Belleville Booth T.V. Tykes are the only Belleville minor baseballers left in the E.O.B.A. playdowns after weekend action, as they split their two contests with Peterborough. On Saturday the Peewee Merchants bowed out of their series with Peterborough when they lost by a 9-5 score. Belleville Ellis Bantams were knocked out by an Oshawa team on Saturday.

In the Saturday Peewee contest, Peterborough managed to win in spite of being out-hit by a 8-6 margin. The winners now go on to meet Guelph.

Six Belleville errors and 10 walks helped the home-towners immensely.

Danny Sullivan and Jeff Gilmour hurled for Peterborough.

Glen Carleton, Moe Thompson and Paul Hall handled the loser's chore.

John Toms led the winners with a triple and two singles.

Paul Hall, Terry Meagher, Moe Thompson and Brian Cousins hit a variety of safeties for Belleville.

Peterborough slapped the Belleville Tykes with a 9-3 jjolt on Saturday, but Belleville roared back to take the Sunday contest 11-10.

In the first game John Hughey hurled the victory, while Ron McHaggart took the loss.

Jerry Wasson, Steve Winslow, John Hughey and Mark Vitarelle stroked hits for the winners.

For Belleville, Allan Wood, John Mulvihill, Wayne Andrews, David Rutherford, Mike Bell, Jed Forster and Ron McTaggart slammed safeties.

Danny Lupenette led Belleville to its close Sunday decision with a pair of singles and doubles. He drove in five runs and scored three himself.

Ron McTaggart hurled the win with relief help from John Mulvihill.

Besides Lupenette's big bat, Allan Wood, Ron McTaggart, John Mulvihill, Mike Bell and David Rutherford had hits.

Miss Jelinek Injured In Fall

ATLANTIC CITY (AP)—Maria Jelinek of the Canadian brother and sister professional figure skating team, is reported in fair condition in hospital here following a fall Friday night during a performance of the Ice Capades skating show.

The 22-year-old Miss Jelinek and her Brother Otto, both of Oakville, Ont., fell when Otto tripped as he was lifting her during their act.

She was carried from the ice and taken to hospital where it was reported she was suffering from contusions and abrasions of the pelvis.

Doctors would not confirm Sunday a report that she had suffered a fractured pelvis.

In 1961, the Jelineks won the world amateur figure skating championships at Prague, Czechoslovakia.

Their hitters still travel light and their pitchers rarely finish but Chicago White Sox are back on the high road in the American League pennant chase.

The Sox completed a triumphant swing Sunday with an 8-3, 2-1 doubleheader sweep over the last-place Kansas City Athletics that stretched their winning string to 10 games.

In a nine-day drive from fifth to second place, the White Sox took three games from the ninth-place Boston Red Sox, three from the eighth-place Washington Senators and four and four from the Athletics while making up five lengths—from 11½ to 6½—on the leading Minnesota Twins.

Al Lopez used six starting pitchers during the streak and each one picked up at least one victory — but John Buzhardt's four-hitter in the Kansas City finale was only the second complete game on the trip. Buzhardt, Gary Peters, Tommy John, Juan Pizarro, Bruce Howard and Joe Horlen have finished a total of 16 games all year.

The team batting average, meanwhile, is an unimpressive .248, with Moose Skowron's .921 mark the top figure.

The Sox, however, have outscored the opposition 57-21 during their current surge while the bullpen, paced by knuckleballer Eddie Fisher, has been virtually untouchable.

Dean Chance stalled the Twins at Los Angeles, scattering six hits and driving in two runs in a 4-1 victory that earned the Angels a split of the four-game series.

The third-place Detroit Tigers also gained ground on Minnesota with a 2-1 victory over Boston in a game halted by rain in the sixth inning. Cleveland Indians trimmed Washington 8-5 in 10 innings and a doubleheader between New York Yankees and Baltimore Orioles was rained out.

Saturday, Washington defeated Cleveland 4-2, Chicago edged Kansas City 7-6 in 11 innings, Boston beat Detroit 13-10, Minnesota defeated Los Angeles 4-2, and the game between Baltimore and New York was rained out.

DRIVES IN FOUR

Floyd Robinson drove in four runs with his 12th homer and a sacrifice fly, to pace the White Sox' attack in the opener.

Don Buford's sacrifice fly snapped a 1-1 tie in the second inning of the nightcap after Buzhardt struck out but reached base when the third strike got by catcher Bill Bryan.

Chance, 10-9, knocked in the Angels' last two runs with a bases-loaded single off loser Jim Kaat in the sixth. The hit was Chance's fifth in 55 at-bats this season.

Tony Oliva singled home the Twins' run in the first inning but was forced out of the game a moment later when Chance's attempted pickoff throw struck him on the back of the head. He was sent to hospital for precautionary x-rays.

Don Demeter's two-run homer off Dennis Bennett in the second inning carried Detroit past Boston and helped pitcher Joe Sparma boost his record to 10-5.

The Indians snapped a 5-5 tie in the 10th on a sacrifice fly by pinch hitter Fred Whitfield, then pulled away on Larry Brown's run-scoring single, a double by Vic Davalillo and an infield out. Davalillo paced the Cleveland attack with five hits, including three doubles.

Cleveland Wins 21-19

Jim Brown At His Best

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Fullback Jimmy Brown is at his plunging best for Cleveland Browns these days.

Brown's hard running has led the National Football League champions to three straight exhibition victories, including one over the college All-Stars, and indicates he will be among the NFL individual rushing leaders again this season. He has led the league in this department in seven of his eight years in the NFL, including a record 1,863 yards in 1963.

Brown demonstrated his specialty Sunday as he led the Browns to a 21-19 victory over Los Angeles Rams in one of three professional football exhibitions. He ripped off successive runs of 28, 10 and two yards to put Cleveland ahead 14-9 and set up the clinching touchdown with a 16-yard burst in the last quarter.

Chuck Mercein's 45-yard field goal in the third period broke a 7-7 tie and paced New York Giants to a 16-7 victory over Pittsburgh Steelers in the other NFL game Sunday. Gene Mingo's three field goals, one a 47-yarder, helped Oakland Raiders defeat Kansas City Chiefs 23-6 in the American Football League.

DELIGHTS CROWD

Mercein delighted a partisan crowd of 35,381 with his field goal. That made the score 10-7 and the Giants wrapped it with a last quarter touchdown on a 19-yard pass from rookie quarterback Bob Timberlake to John Adams.

A crowd of 13,962 saw Mingo boot his three field goals from 36, 19 and 47 yards out for sufficient Oakland points to defeat the Chiefs.

The Raiders added insurance with two second period touchdowns. One came on a 33-yard dash by Davey Grayson with an intercepted pass and the other on a 23-yard aerial, Tom Flores to Art Powell.

Leafs Chop Jet Lead To Game

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs rallied to capture both ends of an International League doubleheader over Syracuse Chiefs Sunday and moved within one game of league-leading Columbus Jets.

In other Sunday action Atlanta Crackers defeated the Jets 3-1, Rochester Red Wings shaded Buffalo Bisons 3-2 and Toledo Mud Hens downed Jacksonville Suns 9-1.

In games played Saturday the Chiefs dumped the Leafs 4-2, the Bisons whipped the Wings 7-2, the Suns scored a double triumph, 3-1 and 3-2 over Toledo and the Crackers nipped the Jets 1-0 in 13 innings.

Roman Mejias paced the Leafs Sunday by hitting a two-run homer and driving in three runs in the opener and scored the winning run when Syracuse hurler Jack Hamilton walked Mike Ryan with the bases-loaded in the first extra-inning of the seven-inning nightcap.

The Crackers picked up runs on a sacrifice fly, a wild pitch and a single to threaten Columbus' seven-week hold on first place.

Bob Saverine scored the game-winning run on an error at Buffalo. Saverine scored from second when second baseman Jack Tracy threw wildly on a double play attempt. Bill Short picked up his 12th win of the season.

Fails Bid To Swim Channel

DOVER, England (AP) — Greta Anderson of Los Alamitos, Calif., was beaten by cramps Monday on her bid to swim the English Channel to France and back non-stop.

She was taken from the water eight miles from France on the first leg after swimming seven hours. Until the cramp struck—mainly in her arms—she was swimming powerfully in ideal conditions.

Miss Andersen, 37, said she still hopes to become the first woman two-way channel swimmer. The feat has been accomplished only once before—by Antonio Abertondo of Argentina in September, 1961.

Andy Williams Startles Crew With Colorful Garb

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Andy Williams, who picked up where Perry Como left off as a style-setter, turned up for a TV taping session the other day wearing a red sweater, red slacks, red socks and red boots.

This blaze of color stunned not only the audience but the crew, because last year the singing star stuck to conservative colors on his weekly NBC show. His favorite costume was a navy blue slip-over sweater over a white turtleneck, and snug white slacks.

Television has had little impact on fashions, men's or women's. This has been due largely to the fact that most shows have been in black and white and much detail was lost.

Como has been credited with popularizing comfortable, colorful sweaters and Williams has made a hit with his show uniform of sweaters, slacks, and soft, colorful suede boots. He apparently likes clothes, wears them with flair and—obviously—is not afraid of exotic plumage.

His personal wardrobe, he insists, is not large: Just six suits, a couple of sports jackets—and about 100 sweaters and 50 pairs of slacks.

The clothes he wears on his show, however, are not his, even though he picks them. They are owned by the producers of the program, are worn only on the show and hence are tax-deductible. Williams never sees the bills, but his producer estimates the bill between $18,000 and $20,000.

Williams' wardrobe draws considerable fan mail—a lot of it from people who think it would be nice if he gave them his cast-offs. Some even offer to buy some at half price. But since the clothes aren't his, the requests are a waste of effort and stamps.

Andy is one of the TV stars who starts shooting the next season's shows very early to be free for night club and fair engagements during the summer. He has just finished a four-day date at the Wisconsin state fair, and opens at the Iowa state fair in Des Moines Tuesday.

Eastern Scoring Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Tiger-Cats managed to keep Ottawa's Ted Watkins off the score sheet in their 27-1 win over the Rough Riders Saturday, but the lanky end continues to head Eastern Football Conference scoring.

Watkins has 18 points for three touchdowns and is six points ahead of Dave Thelen of Toronto Argonauts.

Don Sutherin, Hamilton's place-kicking specialist kicked two converts and a single in Saturday's game to give him 11 points for the season and a one-point edge on Ottawa's Moe Racine.

The leaders:

Max von Sydow Is Taking Physical Beating in Film

By BOB THOMAS

HONOLULU (AP) — As the most prestigious import from Sweden since Ingrid Bergman, actor Max von Sydow may well be the envy of fellow players in his homeland.

Von Sydow himself would be the first to admit his good fortune. And yet . . .

In his first American film, The Greatest Story Ever Told, he labored for nine months, much of it in freezing locations.

His next Hollywood effort, The Reward, was filmed in the intense heat of Death Valley, Calif., in midsummer.

And now Hawaii. While the production troubled of the island epic haven't reached Cleopatra proportions, they have been wearing down the crew.

What von Sydow did not anticipate was the physical stuff. Until his American career opened up, his film work was limited to Ingmar Bergman dramas. In Hawaii he has been slugged, dragged and dowsed. When I visited the set, the scene called for him to be thrown into the Pacific and menaced by a shark (actually a skin diver with a fin on his back).

"It started before I came out here, when we were shooting the shipboard scenes in Hollywood," the actor said.

"Day after day we sat on the boat as we were rocked back and forth and splashed with hundreds of thousands of gallons of water. Sometimes I could stand it no more and I would have to change into dry clothes.

"I thought perhaps the technicians were overdoing the ship movement. But then I spent two days on the real boats out here, and I realized it was no exaggeration."

Don't get the idea that von Sydow is complaining. His coworkers report that it is impo sible to ruffle the toweri Swede. Of the Death Vall heat, he said: "How many su less winters have I known Sweden! I felt it my duty my countrymen to get as mu sunshine as I could."

Admittedly, Max has co pensations for his Hawaii bors. He and his family live a house with an ocean fr and salt-water swimming po

Flin Flon Trout Festival Draws Numerous Tourists

By IRA DRYSDALE

FLIN FLON, Man (CP)—The people of this northern Manitoba mining town are a plucky breed who work hard, play hard and give a firm handshake.

If they were anything else they probably wouldn't be here, wresting a wage from the rock they live on far from the mainstream of Canadian civilization.

Because of this remoteness, people here have developed ways of making their own fun and making strangers welcome at the same time. This friendliness, plus an abundance of natural resources around the town, is the basis of the annual Flin Flon Trout Festival.

Although financially the fesival keeps teetering in and out of the red, in scope it keeps on growing bigger and bigger year after year.

"If it ever starts growing smaller we might as well fold up," says Bob Ash, treasurer of the festival association.

The name of the affair is deceiving. There are plenty of trout — the $1,000 first prize usually goes to a 30 or 40 pounder—but the five-day festival also includes canoe races, Indian skill competitions, dances, dinners and other activities that keeps the program going practically around the clock.

You can watch the fish filleting competition, and see a young Indian of the area with razor-sharp knife slice the meat from the backbone of a big northern pike so fast the eye can hardly follow.

These Indians, the carefree Cree, come into Flin Flon from homes in the surrounding forest, from both Saskatchewan and Manitoba. It's a big time for celebration and competition.

They play the fiddle and do the Red River Jig, a dance that had almost died out among the Indians before the festival started 15 years ago.

FLOUR OF STRENGTH

Tea-boiling and bannock-baking competitions recreate some of the aspects of trapline life before hundreds or thousands of milling spectators.

The flour-packing test, a bull-strength contest in which the winner gets all the flour he can carry, is lifted straight from days of canoe travel in the vast northwest. It's not uncommon for someone to pack close to 700 pounds.

And the Gold Rush Canoe Derby, for the Canadian open championship, provides proof each year that the brawny arms and back that opened the west have not all-gone soft.

This year, 11 teams of two each, in regulation canoes of the old birch bark Indian type, entered the 81-mile race. They were off fast and over the first portage, Indians and whites, some laughing with glee in the excitement of the competition.

Three days later, sunburned and sore but grim with determination, 10 teams finished the race before a lake-shore throng of more than 1,000.

For those interested in other kinds of natural resources there are beauty queen contests with girls from Thompson, The Pas, Swan Valley and Yorkton bidding for the title of Queen Mermaid.

FISHY DANCE

You can play golf during the festival on the Flin Flon course, where often a nicely-placed shot will bounce crazily astray on some of the abundant rocks that dot the fairways.

At night there are fish fries—big community dances where fish is served but the emphasis is mainly on dancing.

All these activities fit naturally into the Flin Flon setting. It's a town almost surrounded by lakes and connecting streams—part of the 25,000,000 acres of water that Manitoba boasts. Most of the lakes are in the north.

These waters have lake trout, northern pike, pickerel and perch and residents say there is no indication the lakes will ever be fished out.

Founded in 1928 because of base-metal claims, Flin Flon's reputation as a tourist resort grew by leaps and bounds after 1950 when the first road was opened to the community 385 miles north of Winnipeg. The festivals, always around July 1, started the next year.

Throughout the summer fishermen arrive to try their luck but the biggest concentration of tourists always comes around festival time—placing a severe strain on the town's two hotels and three motels.

Tourist officials estimate the annual affair brings nearly $100,000 into the area. But it's still a nip-and-tuck battle to keep the festival afloat financially and sometimes it loses money.

COMMUNITY EFFORT

What keeps it going is community effort, voluntary work that begins for the next festival almost as soon as the last one is over.

There are about 75 directors, 30 executive officers and about 25 supporting organizations. There are monthly meetings all year around plus a hectic month of work before festival time.

The festival budget is about $30,000, but treasurer Ash says it would be nearly twice that if everything that is given were to go on the books.

The work is almost all volntary with less than $1,000 a year going to pay office help.

But with all this, the workers are the first to admit they could never provide a festival alone.

Their first assets, and still their best, are the lakes and streams with their fabulous fish and the natural beauty that's all around them.

FESTIVAL HIGHLIGHT — Gib MacEachern (front) and Norm Crerar of Flin Flon, Man., carry their canoe over the first portage of the Gold Rush Canoe Derby, a highlight of the annual Flin Flon Trout Festival. This year 11 teams in canoes of the old birch bark type entered the 81-mile race through the network of waterways surrounding the Northern Manitoba community. Ten teams finished three days later. Income Tax Explained

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax office.

By C. A. MILLER

Retired Supervising Assessor, Income Tax Department

CHARITABLE DONATIONS

A taxpayer may claim as a deduction from income the total of his charitable donations up to but not exceeding 10 percent of his income for that year. Each donation must be verified by a receipt, and be a gift, the nature of which benefits the public as a whole. Any donation that is limited to one person or a select group of persons is not acceptable as a deduction for income tax purposes.

Charitable gifts to organizations or institutions outside of Canada are not allowable. Acceptable donation receipts are those from non-taxable organizations located in Canada. Any organization outside of Canada that maintains an office in Canada for the sole purpose of receiving donations is not acceptable as a Canadian charitable institution.

Acceptable receipts are those from Canadian organizations whose purpose is religion, education or the betterment of the community. Many taxpayers will make a gift, which to them is pure charity but such gift does not qualify as a deduction for income tax purposes on account of it being for the use of one person or family. These include gifts to a needy person or family, paying a brilliant child's educational costs or a gift of useful articles to persons who can use them.

Persons who reside in Canada and commute daily to their employment in the U.S.A. and make donations in the U.S.A. for charitable purposes, may use their receipts on the Canadian Income Tax return, providing such organization in the U.S.A. is one that would be acceptable if located in Canada. Such acceptable receipts would be from the Red Cross, Community Chests, etc. When in doubt, contact your nearest income tax office or a letter to me will bring correct information.

For a personal reply, enclose a self - addressed, five cent stamped envelope, plus 25 cents for each question.

QUESTION 1: I paid a needy family's heating bills last winter. Can I claim these are charitable donations if I attach the bills and a note saying I paid them?

ANSWER: No.

QUESTION 2: I escaped from behind the "Iron Curtain" a few years ago. I send money to the U.S.A. to assist the "Radio Free Europe." Can I claim it as a deduction for charity?

ANSWER: No.

Workers Under Pension Plan Must Have Card

OTTAWA (CP) — A cabinet order-in-council making it compulsory for every worker who will be covered by the Canada Pension Plan to apply for a federal social insurance number by Sept. 2 was published Saturday in the Canada Gazette.

It provides that all persons who were 18 years of age or over at Aug. 3 this year and "employed in pensionable employment" must apply for social insurance registration. Most working Canadians already are registered but an estimated 600,000 still haven't applied.

The order-in-council, signed Aug. 3 but made public for the first time today, brings into force a clause of the Canada Pension Plan legislation passed by Parliament earlier this year.

This clause says social insurance numbers become mandatory for pensionable employed persons—just about every working Canadian—at a date to be set by the cabinet.

GIVEN LEEWAY

Persons have 30 days after the date to apply. That brings the deadline to Sept. 2.

In addition, the legislation provides that pensionable employed persons who become 18 after that date must apply for a number within 30 days.

Plane Crashes Into Hong Kong Harbor, 58 Die

HONG KONG (AP) — Fifty-eight U.S. servicemen, most of them marines flying back to Viet Nam after leave, were feared dead today after their transport plane crashed into Hong Kong harbor just after taking off.

"Except for 13 known survivors it now appears all others aboard the flight are dead," said an American official on the scene.

Divers pulled two bodies from the torn and twisted wreckage and said they believed there were at least 20 still inside the fuselage.

Eyewitnesses said a 29-year-old Chinese barge foreman, NG Kam-singh, and two other workers made two trips through burning oil in a small sampan to pull seven of the survivors from the water.

An operations officer at Hong Kong's Kaitak Airport said there were 71 persons aboard —six crew and 65 passengers— when the C-130 Hercules took off for Da Nang and Saigon. He said the manifest indicated two were navy men and the rest marines.

VEERED SUDDENLY

Witnesses said the four-engine Hercules veered suddenly to the left after taking off and plunged into the water about 40 feet off an industrial suburb on Hong Kong island.

"To me it looked as if it was either control failure or the pilot lost his No. 1 engine and possibly both his No. 1 and No. 2 engines," said C. J. Davis, secretary of the Hong Kong Aero Club who saw the crash.

The Chinese sampan boatman, who pulled two survivors from the water, said "There were two explosions and the plane caught fire and sank."

The boatman said the plane rose about 500 feet, made a sharp left turn, plunged nose first into the end of the shore and then somersaulted backward into the air.

Federal Treasury Assists

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Though the provinces have traditionally been jealous of their full constitutional rights in the field of education, the federal treasury puts up $15 or more of every [illegible] spent on education in Canada.

The latest statistics on federal, provincial and municipal expenditures on formal education at the elementary, secondary and advanced levels show a national educational budget of $2,280,810,000. Of this, the federal treasury paid $339,698,000.

The figures are for 1962. Preliminary estimates of more recent figures now being compiled are expected to show an even larger share of the country's educational budget being paid by Ottawa.

The federal government's payments have mounted rapidly in recent years, particularly stepped - up interest in vocational schools and job re-training programs.

Ten years ago, the federal contribution to vocational education and training ran to about $4,500,000 a year. This rose gradually to $10,794,000 in the 1959-60 fiscal year, then jumped to $30,500,000 in 1961-62, and to $80,206,000 in 1962-63.

Since then federal appropriations have continued to grow. But because of the parliamentary budgeting system, it is hard to trace every dollar spent by Ottawa on education through the hundreds of appropriation votes.

The bureau of statistics has a section devoted to educational statistics, breaking down and compiling federal, provincial and municipal figures. It has just completed the 1962 task.

The 1962 report lists expenditures by governments, feeding students and others on night schools and adult education, fine arts, handicrafts, libraries, archives, museums, art galleries, educational films, and grants to cultural societies—all in the broad field of education.

It also shows that in the 10 years to 1962 the per capita expenditure on education rose from $40 to $123. In 1962 7½ per cent of national income went to education, compared with just over three per cent 10 years earlier.

But you have to go to another of the bureau's publications to find that Canada's education bill has topped personal expenditure on tobacco and liquor in the years since 1960.

Britain Bids For Accord With Arabs

LONDON (Reuters)—George Thomson, Britain's senior minister of state in the foreign office, will start a two-stage diplomatic mission to six Middle Eastern nations Wednesday.

Between then and Sept. 8 Thomson, whose specialty is Middle Eastern affairs, will visit Lebanon, Syria, Jordan and Iran.

On a second trip between Sept. 25 and 30 he will visit Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

On both trips Thomson's mission will be to improve Britain's relations with the Arab world, while at the same time not altering London's attitude to the Arab-Israeli dispute.

Since coming into office last October Britain's Labor government has repeatedly said it wanted to improve relations with Egypt, which have never recovered from the 1956 Anglo-French military intervention at Suez. Thomson will be the first foreign office minister since then to go to Cairo.

Leaving lock no. 1 of the Trent Canal at Trenton yesterday, one of the two Alberta canoes involved in the centennial canoe trip speeds on to Belleville, where the modern voyageurs spent the night.

Alberta Canoes Reach Quinte Two Days Ahead of Rivals

TRENTON — The proudest man in Canada yesterday was John Nikel, the commodore of the Alberta canoe team, the 16 men who are leading the Centennial Voyageur Canoe Pageant practice run by two days.

Mr. Nikel waved his stalwarts across the portage of No. One Lock, the last portage on the Trent, wiped his brow and said, "Well, that's it. The others won't be down for another two days."

"The others," are canoes with eight-man teams of paddlers from North West Territories, Yukon Territory, New Brunswick and Ontario. These teams stopped over night at Serpent Mounds Provincial Park. The Alberta crews stopped at Belleville.

The 65 men started Aug. 9th in North Bay on a 20-day practice run to Gananoque, camping along the way, and the Alberta teams are well ahead of schedule. They started out from Hastings at 6 a.m. yesterday and were in Campbellford by 9.30 a.m., 45 minutes ahead of schedule.

"Speed is important in this practice run," said Mr. Nikel. "We'll pick one team out of these two to represent the province in the Centennial Year Pageant."

The Alberta teams left early Tuesday morning for Montreal. The other teams will go only as far as Gananoque.

In 1967, the canoeists will take off from Rocky Mountain House in Alberta and follow the old fur trading route, touching Edmonton, Saskatoon, Prince Albert, Le Pas, Winnipeg, Fort William, Sault Ste. Marie, Georgian Bay, and down the French River to Ottawa and beyond to Montreal—a 100 days' trip.

Mr. Nikel was one of a three man committee to approach John Fisher with the idea of a canoe pageant. The committee felt that many communities were planning to erect public buildings or form parks to honor Canada in her Centennial Year and wanted to sponsor a "different" project. Mr. Fisher was enthusiastic, so a call for expert paddlers went out.

"We have 300 paddlers in Alberta alone who are anxious to take part in the pageant," said Mr. Nikel yesterday.

The commodore explained that the men on the practice run camp out overnight in a special type of tent and buy provisions as they go along. If they are going to be "out of touch" with settled communities along the route for a few days they take along enough food to last until they get back to where they can buy provisions.

"But we're working against time all the time," Mr. Nikel told a reporter. "We've cut the time it takes to get up and breakfast and pack from two hours to an hour and our team has learned to take a number of "short cuts" which were not laid down in our original planning."

Mr. Nikel and three other Alberta supporters follow the canoe in a station wagon, towing a trailer with provisions along the land route. Aboard the station wagon are blazers with special Alberta crests on the pockets for the team members. These were the gift of the Alberta government.

After Mr. Nikel waved "farewell" to the second Alberta canoe at Lock No. 1 yeserday, he drove down into Trenton to pick up waterways charts from Darling's Stationery, and to illustrate the speed of the paddlers, as he parked the station wagon in the municipal parking lot on Front Street, those in the second canoe dipped their paddles in greeting as they literally "flew" by in the Trent River.

Sign Now, Talk Later Burns Plea

From AP-Reuters

GENEVA (CP)—Gen. E. L. M. Burns, chief Canadian delegate to the disarmament conference, said today the issues preventing the spread of nuclear weapons must be settled by the United States, Britain and Russia.

And he added that the West is ready to consider changes in its proposed draft treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons.

Addressing the 17 - country conference, Burns assured the Soviet Union that the West will never create a nuclear force which could constitute an "increased danger" to Russian security.

The Soviet Union has rejected the treaty on the grounds that it would leave the door open to the possibility of West German control of the proposed Western Atlantic Nuclear Force.

"We shall, and I think I can speak for all NATO states here on this, be ready to consider any amendments which may be suggested which will make the treaty generally more acceptable, so long as they do not affect the central purpose of the treaty, or impair its effectiveness in achieving what is desired—to arrest the spread of nuclear weapons," Burns said.

HAS ESCAPE CLAUSE

Burns invited the Russians to sign the draft and then negotiate this issue later. He reminded the Soviet Union that the treaty contains an escape clause enabling any signatory to back out if it can produce evidence that the principle of non-proliferation is being violated.

Republicans Want Ceiling On Migrants From Canada

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republicans open a fight in the House of Representatives today to place a ceiling on immigration from Canada, Mexico and other Western Hemisphere countries.

They want the limit to be included in a bill which would make major changes in U.S. immigration policy A final vote is expected Wednesday.

The bill, a key measure of the Johnson administration, would wipe out the 41-year-old national origins quota system that now applies to countries outside the Western Hemisphere. It bases immigration on the national origins of the U.S. population in 1920.

Under it, Western Europe gets most of the 158,161 visas authorized, with the other quota nations severely limited. The large quota countries rarely use all their numbers, while the low quota countries have long waiting lists for visas.

The bill would replace the quota system with an over-all ceiling of 170,000, under which the present quota countries would be treated equally. Each would be allowed a maximum of 20,000 visas a year, to be granted on a preference basis favoring close relatives of U.S. citizens.

While they go along with scrapping the quota system, most House Republicans say a consistent immigration policy requires a ceiling on Western Hemisphere immigration, too.

The amendment, which has the solid backing of Republican leaders, would limit hemisphere immigration to 115,000 a year. It totalled 139,000 last year, and 147,000 the year before.

State Secretary Dean Rusk made a strong stand against such action, saying it damages relations with hemisphere countries.

However, Republicans agree that Latin America is experiencing a rapid population increase that will be reflected in sharply increased emigration to the United States if no limits are imposed.

'Sealab' Ready For Long Dive

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — After more than a week of technical delays the U.S. Navy said it was ready today to lower its Sealab 2 to the ocean floor, where teams of divers will spend up to 45 days working, eating and sleeping at a depth of 210 feet.

The first team of 10 divers, including astronaut M. Scott Carpenter, 39, is expected to go down Wednesday after the underwater base is checked for leaks and for reliability of communications with the surface.

Navy Commander Carpenter, an expert in diving techniques, may stay down as long as 30 days in an attempt to set an underwater record Four men lived 13 days at a depth of 760 feet in the smaller Sealab 1 off Bermuda last year.

The other divers will rotate on 15-day tours of duty in Sealab 2, which has facilities for 10 at a time within its 12-by-58-foot steel cylinder.

Lowering of the pressurized steel chamber to its site 1,000 yards offshore from this San Diego County resort has been delayed since Aug. 15 by numerous technical problems.

Goal of the project is to determine how long and how well men can function deep in the ocean at a pressure six times that of the surface.

This capability, officials said, would enable the navy to expand rescue and salvage operations.

Spacemen's Suits Chilled To Beat Heat

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The two Gemini 5 space pilots shivered in their chill space suits part of the night, but warmed up by this morning to search for some open fires in Texas. They got a go-ahead today for the fourth day of their scheduled world - record eight - day mission.

About the same time, comand pilot L. Gordon Cooper Jr. logged an American astronaut record of 98 hours in space, 34 of them on his last flight two years ago in the one-man Mercury capsule.

At 9:35 a.m. (EDT) today the Gemini 5 spacecraft had completed 45 orbits.

The fires — ordered lighted near Laredo, Tex. — were to help the astronauts spot some 2,000 - foot dark and white squares in a giant eye chart on the ground.

Pilot Charles Conrad Jr. said he spotted three airplanes flying near Jacksonville, Fla., and the skies were so clear he could see the streets of the city and Florida as far south as Miami. "It's really pretty up here today," Conrad said.

The space suits were provided with extra cooling because the Gemini 4 pilots had complained of a heat gain in their four - day mission two months ago. It led to Monday night's chilly sleeping for the Gemini 5 astronauts.

COOLED DOWN

"Boy, putting those two coolant loops in the circuit really cooled it down," Cooper reported today. "We have been sitting here shivering for the last few hours."

As they awakened and received adjustment instructions from the earth, the cooling situation was corrected by changing a valve.

More than 1,000,000 miles along on their 3,120,000 - mile journey, the astronauts aimed at five world space flight records.

Monday night — working to fix a gunsight-like reticle—Cooper had a peculiar space problem. He would put the screws and bolts down, but in the weightless cabin they would just float around. Despite this, he managed to fix the viewing-orientation device.

Flight officials considered a mock manoeuvre for today's plan, but then said they would not perform it. It would have been a manoeuvre on paper only—with no firing of the jet thrusters.

There was still the possibility of some manoeuvring later in the mission.

DID IT WELL

The astronauts got a "well done" from earth Monday for their 40,000-mile chase after a satellite that didn't exist.

Afterwards, flight officials reported that if the satellite had not been merely a ghost, the spacecraft would have been within 17 miles of it—or, to a point where it would be up to the crew's judgement and ability, rather than computers, to dock with it.

A rendezvous with a 76-pound radar-equipped pod was ditched earlier in the Gemini 5 flight after a power failure on the spacecraft.

Chipper and rested, the spacemen ate well and showed no signs of ill effects from their global trips, medical officers reported.

After using an exercise cord aboard the craft to help them keep in shape, their heart rates were almost identical to the rates after similar exercise on earth.

"There's no apparent change in their response to work," Dr. Duane Catterson, night flight surgeon, said.

And this is a major purpose of the flight: To test man's ability to exist in a space environment on long journeys.

Postmen Accept Offer

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's postal workers have voted to accept pay increases agreed to by the federal government and by a 4-to-1 margin rejected any strike action.

A referendum conducted by the Postal Workers Brotherhood showed 8,624 workers in favor of the $510-$550 annual pay increases proposed by Judge J. C. Anderson and 2.675 against.

The referendum made public today at a press conference, showed 2,113 in favor of a strike and 8,608 against.

Montreal's postal workers, who continued a wildcat strike even after Judge Anderson, the government - appointed mediator, indicated increases would be coming, did not participate in the national referendum.

However, they were among the more than 19,000 postmen who received ballots from the brotherhood.

Les Hood, president of the Canadian Postal Employees Association, said that although the vote accepted the pay proposals, the government's action was not regarded as a solution to the question of salaries.

REVIEW TO COME

He said the Anderson report placed postal workers in a favorable position to make strong representations at the time of the next salary review, scheduled to begin not later than Oct. 1, 1966.

The ballots were sent out by the brotherhood about two weeks ago after the government accepted the Anderson report on postal employees and said its pay decision was final for the time being.

Mr. Hood said the heavy majority favoring acceptance was an endorsation of the position taken by the brotherhood to accept the government's award.

He said it had been hoped a higher percentage of the workers would exercise their franchise and it was assumed many who did not return ballots were indicating acceptance.

The brotherhood will make strong representations to the independent consultant who will investigate postmen's grievances against work rules and conditions, Mr. Hood said.

He hoped the government and the brotherhood will be able to reach agreement today on the choice of a consultant. Both sides were having difficulty finding a suitable man not busy at this time.

JUDGE CALLED IN

Judge Anderson was brought in after walkouts by postal workers in the pay dispute cut off mail service in wide areas of Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia.

The walkouts started after the government first approved increases ranging between $300 and $360 annually, retroactive to Oct. 1, 1964, for the postal workers. They were asking for a flat $660 increase.

Rusk Says China Talks Tough But Is Careful To Keep Out Of War

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dean Rusk says Red China talks tough about Viet Nam but is taking care not to get into the war.

"There is a comment going around in the Communist world these days that Peking is prepared to fight to the last Vietnamese," Rusk said Monday night. He added:

"There is a certain caution and prudence in their action, more so than in their words . . .

"It is my impression that the Communist world does not want a general war over Southeast Asia . . ."

And President Johnson, too, is acting with prudence to keep the Viet Nam fighting from spiraling into a big war, says McGeorge Bundy, the president's adviser on national security affairs.

Bundy said "that is the meaning of the insistent direct surveillance which the president maintains over major military decision and specifically over decisions which affect military action against North Viet Nam."

Rusk, Bundy and UN Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg discussed Viet Nam on a television program.

The U.S. foreign policy leaders said the principal ingredient for peace in South Viet Nam must be North Viet Nam's withdrawal of her guerrilla infiltrators—but Hanoi has still shown no interest in talking peace.

The United States is still interested in a peace along the lines of the 1954 Geneva agreements and maintains its offer of unconditional peace negotiations even though the fighting is going against the Reds, they said.

"We are not the ones that are talking about a war that lasts 10 or 20 years," Goldberg said. "(North Vietnamese chief) Ho Chi Minh has been talking about that. We are talking about a peace that should be negotiated here and now."

Meanwhile, the state department declined comment as to whether any Russians have been killed by U.S. air action in North Viet Nam. This strengthened indications that neither the United States nor the Soviet Union wants to make any issue of American fire possibly hitting Russian personnel. Soviet nationals are assumed to be either manning the surface-to-air rockets used in North Viet Nam or training North Vietnamese to fire them. U.S planes have been attacking the missile sites.

Two Bookmaking Charges Bring $6,000 in Fines

Donald A. Thomas, Front Street owner, today was fined $5,000 for bookmaking.

A woman clerk in the same store, Mrs. Mary Ann Reid, was fined $1,000 on the same charge.

The stiff fines were handed down by Magistrate R. B. Baxter of Brighton, specially appointed to hear the case in Belleville. The magistrate turned down the prosecution's request that imprisonment should accompany any fine against Mr. Thomas.

Both Mr. Thomas and Mrs. Reid pleaded guilty to the charges, laid after a raid June 30 by the OPP anti-gambling squad.

A count of permitting bookmaking against Paul Haggis, owner of Paul's Motel, Dundas Street East, was adjourned to September 21.

Both the magistrate and Crown Attorney John Samson of Kingston directly referred to present Ontario anti-gambling legislation when summing up the case.

Said Magistrate Baxter: "There are certain people who think bookmaking should be legalized and should not be treated as it is.

"So long as this law is on the statute books it must be upheld and persons who contravene it must be punished."

TELLS OF RAIDS

Earlier, Mr. Samson noted to the magistrate: "You have a crime that is on the books. Yet obviously it is a crime that is not wholly supported as such by the public."

He said "dozens and dozens" of people around the province "have engaged in the crime as seriously as this accused has."

The background to today's hearing was given by anti-gambling squad constable Richard Crowley, who told of simultaneous raids on Paul's Motel and Mr. Thomas' store.

Mr. Thomas was in one of the motel units when the squad arrived — or as the officer put it: "I found the premises locked and I entered the premises using a sledgehammer."

Officers seized betting records, two transistor radios and a tape recorder used to record race results broadcast from a Toronto station.

The betting records showed some $10,088 owing to Mr. Thomas although Constable Crowley could not say how much was actually collectable by him. Some $286 were owed by Mr. Thomas, according to the same records.

A telephone in the motel room registered to a fictitious Arthur Evans was answered several times by the officer and proved to be bettors, he said.

A notebook found on Mrs. Reid at the store corresponded with entries found at the motel.

Constable Crowley also revealed the June raids were preceded by himself "working in an undercover capacity" in January when he visited the store.

REFERS TO SERVICE

Asked his opinion of the operation he answered, "I would say in my experience it was a substantial bookmaking operation."

Defence counsel recalled Mr. Thomas' community service, both on city council and as a leader in many community groups, as factors to be considered by the magistrate. Mrs. Reid played a "relatively unimportant part" in the operation and could be described "as a clerk rather than a participant."

Magistrate Baxter extended the time-limit on payment of the fines to a month. Failure to pay would bring sentences of six months for Mr. Thomas and three months for Mrs. Reid.

Child Severely Burned in Barn Fire at Home

A 3½-year-old girl was rushed to Toronto's Sick Children's Hospital yesterday after she was severely burned in a barn fire at her Massassaga home.

Lenora Bradley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Bradley, was reported in fairly serious condition with burns to two-thirds of her body.

Full details of the accident were still being investigated today. However, firemen said the girl apparently was playing around the barn with her nine-year-old brother Larry when the fire broke out.

They said the boy pulled the burning clothing from his sister's body and suffered a leg burn himself.

She was rushed to Belleville General Hospital and later transferred to Toronto.

Three Still In Hospital After Accident

Three persons were still hospitalized today after the headon crash of a light airforce van and an automobile outside Mountain View RCAF base.

LAC William Mason, 26, suffered a broken leg and possible head injuries when he was thrown from the truck. Injured in the car was Mrs. Alfred Cairns and her 2½-year-old son, John, of Mountain View.

Mrs. Cairns was driving her father-in-law John Cairns, home to lunch from farming a field, when the crash occurred.

John Sheridan, Stirling, Has Grand Champ

TORONTO (CP)—John Sheridan's entry of Golden Riddel from Stirling, Ont., won this year's grand champion stallion award for standard breds at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Reserve grand champion was Moray, owned by J. G. Galbraith of Wingham, which also took reserve honors in the senior stallion class behind Golden Riddel.

Junior champion stallion honors went to Lee Bomb Sight, owned by Ken Stokes of Nashville, Ont., and Llomar Billy Bee, owned by Lloyd Davison of Georgetown, Ont., took the reserve junior honors.

Rotarians See Movie on Golf

Belleville Rotarians yesterday watched a film shot at last year's Carling World Championship of Golf. Elmer Hardy, Carling's local representative, brought the movie of the event held at the Oakland Hill's Country Club in Birmingham, Michigan. Golfers will remember the outcome of the tournament was in doubt right up until Arnold Palmer and Bobby Nichols faced each other on the 18th green of the final round. Nichols snatched the victory from Palmer by one stroke.

Rotarian Jack Yanover introduced Mr. Hardy and he was thanked by Past President Ron Cass.

SET STRIKE DATE

TORONTO (CP)—About 4,800 employees of the de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd. plant in suburban Malton say they will go on strike at midnight Friday. The members of Local 112, United Auto Workers (CLC) set the strike deadline Monday after 45 meetings with the company since May 11 failed to produce a new contract.

Four of Six Members Of 2 Sudbury Families Drown in Lake Huron

KAGAWONG, Ont. (CP) — Two Sudbury families — four adults and two small children—went on a cruise on the North Channel of Lake Huron last weekend. Only two members came back.

The terrible memory of what happened—from the time the cruise began Saturday afternoon to the moment the ordeal was over at 6:30 a.m. Monday—will remain forever with the two survivors, James Huffman, 30, and Bonnie Rhydwen, 43.

Mr. Huffman's wife Shirley, 31, his two daughters, Katherine, 4, and Karen, 3, and Mrs. Rhydwen's husband, Aldwyn C. (Wyn) Rhydwen, 50, died as the six floated in the storm-swept waters in lifejackets roped together.

Mrs. Huffman was a niece of Marjorie McCaw, of Belleville, deputy - registrar and deputy court clerk for Hastings County.

They had taken to the water at 5 p.m. Sunday after their 30-foot cabin cruiser began to break up in heavy waves while aground on a rock off the north shore of Manitoulin Island.

The survivors were buffeted by 10-foot high waves for 14 hours before they reached the safety of a small fly-infested island were picked up Monday by two Indians in a small boat.

Mr. Rhydwen was financial editor of the Sudbury Star and had worked previously with newspapers in Toronto and Halifax.

EXPERIENCED SAILORS

The four adults were experienced sailors. Mr. Huffman is commodore of the Sudbury Power Squadron. Mr. Rhydwen, a Royal Canadian Navy veteran, was a navigation instructor.

The two men purchased the cruiser Rhu this year and had sailed it often during the summer with their families.

Bonnie Rhydwen and Mr. Huffman recounted the experience from the nearby lodge where they recoverd from shock, exposure and exhaustion.

They had set out on the cruise from Little Current, across West Bay from here. Toward evening, the cruiser missed a red-and-white marker buoy entering Gore Bay, 10 miles west of here. Bonnie was at the wheel when the boat crunched against a rock, and went aground.

Unable to free the boat, they spent 16 hours aboard. By Sunday afternoon, the wind was blowing with a 50-mile-an-hour velocity, heavy rain was falling, and the boat was rapidly shipping water.

At 5 p.m. roped together with the lifejackets, the two families plunged into the swirling waves.

Mr. Rhydwen developed cramps almost as soon as he entered the water and had to be supported by his wife. The party tried to swim ashore, two miles away, but high winds and the waves drove them farther out.

CHILDREN DIE

Mr. Huffman held Katherine, while his wife carried Karen. After one hour, Karen died. When Katherine died one hour later, her mother became hysterical.

"Shirley clutched me and sobbed 'I'll never see my Sudbury again. My two babies are gone . . .'," Mr. Huffman said. Wyn Rhydwen died after three hours in the water and Mrs. Huffman shortly after.

"We tried to tread water and we drifted around the headland toward Kagawong. We could see the Kagawong light, but we couldn't attract attention because of the storm," Mr. Huffman recalled.

They struggled in the cold water through the night. When they saw the island in the morning, they cut the bodies loose in order to be able to swim the three miles to shore.

The bodies were spotted Monday by aircraft but no effort was made to recover them because of the weather.

JOINED AS EDITOR

Mr. Rhydwen joined the staff of the Sudbury Star in February, 1964, as an editor. Born in Toronto, he received his early education in London, Ont., and Scarborough, and graduated from Scarborough Vocational Collegiate.

During the Second World War, he served with the RCN from January, 1942, to December, 1945, based at Halifax.

In June, 1944, he married Bernadine (Bonnie) Carmichael, who was born in Halifax, where the couple met. She is a cashier at the Sudbury Star. Shirley Huffman, formerly a public school teacher, was an auxiliary member of the Power Squadron with the rank of honorary-lieutenant.

Shy Lynda Bird Johnson Attends Stratford Festival

STRATFORD (CP) — A camera-shy, close-mouthed Lynda Bird Johnson sipped cocktails and chatted with stage personalities after a performance of Anton Chekhov's The Cherry Orchard Monday night.

The 21-year-old daughter of United States President Lyndon Johnson refused to pose for pictures or talk to reporters as she continued to maintain her self-imposed status as a private theatre-goer.

It was thought earlier that Miss Johnson was too tired to attend a cast party, because of the long trip from New York early Monday morning.

But a spokesman said later, the party was being held at her request.

As U.S. Secret Service men mingled with the guests, Miss Johnson, wearing a white, sleeveless, A-line dress with scooped neck, a matching quilted coat and black shoes, talked with leading members of the cast, among them Bruno Gerrussi, Frances Hyland and Douglas Campbell.

She was accompanied by 26-year - old Patrick Curlley, a teacher at D'Youville College, Buffalo. Others in the 10-member party were Dr. and Mrs. Allen Isen of Buffalo, friends of the Johnsons, Congressman and Mrs. Richard D. McCarthy, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Gauthn and Mr. and Mrs. M. Poumitt.

THINK TOO SECRET

A group of actors from the Queen's Men Drama Group of Cincinnati said Miss Johnson could have been more open, permitting pictures and a brief interview.

One woman, also from the U.S., said of the secret service men:

"They're so smooth those boys — so smooth — they keep smiling, smiling."

The Johnson party sat about eight rows from the front in a packed house.

Miss Johnson requested that her arrival be kept secret because she said she wanted to attend the performance as a private person. To maintain secrecy, the party travelled on a back highway five miles longer than the usual route, to Stratford.

The party flew in three aircraft to London, Ont. from Buffalo, N.Y. where Miss Johnson had appeared at a state fair. The airport terminal was locked and no one was allowed on the ramps as the group entered waiting cars.

They are staying at an inn across the river from the theatre and are expected to leave sometime today.

MARTIN CORNELIUS HILL

Rev. A. F. Dowdell conducted funeral services on Sunday, August 22, from the White and Morris Funeral Home, Deseronto, to All Saints Church for Martin Cornelius Hill of R.R. 1, Deseronto. The Loyal Orange Lodge, Branch 99, held a memorial service Sunday and all bearers were members of the lodge.

Honorary bearers were James Maracle and Frank Maracle, while active bearers were Francis John, Albert A. Maracle, Victor Brant, Vernon Claus, Jerry Maracle and Cornelius Maracle.

Interment was at All Saints cemetery.

Mr. Hill died in the Belleville General Hospital Friday, August 20, after a lengthy illness. He was in his 75th year. Born and educated on the Tyendinaga Reserve, the son of the late Simon D. Hill and the late Jemima Maracle, he was a farmer and resided in Picton and Point Anne before moving to Deseronto. He was a member of All Saints Church and the Loyal Orange Lodge, Branch 99.

Mr. Hill is survived by his wife, the former Elisha Mae Green; two sons, Clarence of Acton and David of Burlington, and five daughters, Mrs. John (Violet) Maracle of Tweed; Mrs. John (Betty) Turkey of Buffalo; Mrs. Howard (Ada) Simmons of Carrying Place; Mrs. James (Elizabeth) Turner of Buffalo and Mrs. Charles (Madeline) Wellman of Trenton.

MRS. ETTA LEOLA BRONSON

(Madoc)

The funeral of Mrs. Etta Leola Bronson, R.R. 4, Madoc, was held on Sunday afternoon, August 22nd with service conducted in the MacKenzie Funeral Home, Madoc by Rev. W. A. Smith assisted by Rev. E. Jerry. The funeral home was filled to overflowing by the many sorrowing relatives and friends in attendance and there was a profusion of beautiful floral tributes attesting to the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

Bearers were four sons, Melverne, Verle, Donlon and Grant Bronson and two grandsons, Wayne and Ted Bronson.

Interment took place in Lakeview Cemetery, Madoc.

DR. E. EARLE SHOULDICE

(Toronto)

Funeral services for Dr. E. Earle Shouldice, founder of the world - famous Shouldice hernia clinic in Toronto were held Monday.

Dr. Shouldice, 74, died of a heart attack last Friday.

Widely recognized as an expert on herniology, Dr. Shouldice lectured throughout the world on the techniques developed at the Toronto clinic he founded in 1945.

A native of Chesley, Ont., he taught clinical surgery at the University of Toronto for 25 years before founding the clinic. In 1964, 3,700 hernia operations were performed by the clinic's six surgeons.

Dr. Shouldice demonstrated his technique overseas, performing hernia operations in England, Scotland, the Scandinavian countries and the Far East. In 1958 he was in Moscow.

Seven years ago 17 physicians from the Soviet Union, attending a medical convention in Montreal, visited the clinic. One of the doctors was so impressed he had the head surgeon operate on him.

In 1953 Dr. Shouldice converted the former home of the late George McCullagh on Bayview Avenue into a 45-bed hospital which became the Thornhill division.

MRS. ROBERT ANDERSON

TRENTON — On Saturday, Rev. H. M. Beach of Frankford conducted a service in the United Church at Codrington for Mrs. Annie Amelia Anderson of R.R. 2, Codrington, who died at Trenton Memorial Hospital last Thursday. She was 69.

Mayor Served With Writ For Damages

TRENTON — Mayor James MacDonald of Trenton yesterday was served by Herb Colliver, Picton lawyer, with a writ from the Quinte Realty Co., one of whose principals is ex-councillor Gerald A. Weaver. The writ claims $15,000 in damages from the town for "non-compliance with the building by-laws" by reason of the fact that Council took no action to permit the company to build a west wall to its building on Dundas Street West. Mr. Weaver on several occasions asked Council to pass a by - law giving the company the right to enter onto property owned by D. R. Fraser and Hugh O'Neil for the purpose of building the wall in question. Council declined to pass such a by - law.

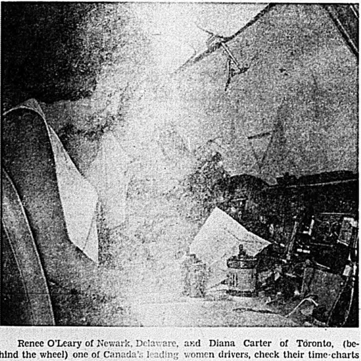
In CNE Car Rally at Plaza

Two Belleville contestants in the CNE car rally, Jack McDonald, kneeling, the driver, and Gord Smith, navigator, make last-minute checks of their car before leaving the plaza last night. Norm Storms and Dr. Robert Allore of Belleville also participated in the rally.

John Wilson, left, and Paul MacLennan, winners of the Shell 4000 Car Rally prepare for the last leg of the CNE International Car Rally from Belleville through Orillia to Toronto. Wilson and MacLennan were two of the heavy favorites to win top honors in the CNE event.



Renee O'Leary of Newark, Delaware, and Diana Carter of Toronto, (behind the wheel) one of Canada's leading women drivers, check their time-charts after arriving at the Belleville Plaza last night.

Sixty-four cars left three terminal points yesterday at 6 a.m.—Toronto, Montreal and Rochester—and all ended up in Belleville. All but one, that is.

Then at 10 p.m. last night, 62 of them left the Belleville Plaza and headed for Orillia on the final and most treacherous leg of the Canadian National Exhibition International Marathon Car Rally.

About 50 of the cars were estimated to be still in contention for the top award after Monday's 340 miles over qualifying routes.

Rally master Ian McAlpine said the second leg, a twisting 360-mile jaunt to Orillia, "would separate the novices from more experienced rally drivers.

"The check-out or easy routes were designed to allow as many cars as possible to meet in Belleville at the required times, but from here on they're going to have a dandy time."

The cars began arriving at the Western Tire Store in the Belleville Plaza at 7 p.m. After gassing up at the pumps there and turning in their time cards, the rally drivers and navigators were guests of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce for coffee at the Shopette. Later they had dinner at Johnny's Restaurant.

The rally cars started at three different terminals and drove for ten hours before arriving in Belleville. Those starting in Rochester drove to Belleville via Buffalo and Hamilton; cars from Montreal got here via a winding route through Ottawa, and cars from Toronto went to Kitchener, then through the Bancroft area and on down to Belleville.

TWO FORCED OUT

Two cars didn't make the final leg from Belleville through Orillia and down to Toronto. The first, a Volvo 1228, driven by Roland Joyal and navigated by Charles L. Milot, blew a rod near Toronto, on Sideroad 10 just east of Highway 25. A Valient VVI, driven by Charles Tummende and navigated by G. Rosegger, made it to Belleville but a cracked distributor cap forced it out of the rally.

The rally is an international motoring event organized and sponsored by the C.N.E. with the co-operation of the Canadian Automobile Sports Clubs and Motorsport Clubs in New York State, Ontario and Quebec.

It is a test of skill on both the part of the drivers and navigators, and a test of reliability on the part of the cars. The rally is not a race, but a test of the crew to maintain an exact average speed, well below legal limits, from point to point.

The length of the rally is 850 miles, 30 per cent of which is over paved roads, and 70 per cent over gravel or dirt roads.

All competing cars must pass a rigorous safety scrutineering to ensure that they comply with provincial and state highway codes.

Some of the many safety features the cars must have are lap type seat belts for both occupants; at least six self-igniting highway flares; a fire extinguisher; and a first aid kit to include a minimum of elastic bandages, antiseptic, surgical gauze, adhesive tape, pressure bandages and an arm sling.

The cars are not allowed to have a radio telephone or radio transmitter.

CONTROLS ESTABLISHED

The competitors start with zero points and are assessed penalty points for lateness or earliness at a control point and for faulty or damaged equipment or parts. The driver with the fowest points at the end of the rally is the winner.

Controls are established at various points along the route for recording time of arrival and observing whether the correct route is being maintained. Each car must check in at each control on the route.

The Quinte Auto Sport Club looked after the Belleville proceedings for the rally. The Belleville Plaza acted as the rally's parc ferme, during which time the participants were allowed to rest but were not allowed to work on their cars. Any necessary work on the cars had to be taken care of after the drivers had received their starting notice for the last leg of the rally.

The cars were placed in two classes, class I for cars up to 2000 cc and class II for cars with 2001 cc and over.

Besides the individual categories, there were teams — three-car teams composed of cars of the same make and model; a novice category for crews where neither member has placed in the first six places in a regional or national championship during the past three years and special ladies' awards.

Ham radio enthusiasts helping relay results at the rally last night were Len Coward, Ross Dryden, G. Stevens, Howard Fralick and Roy White.

The rally included some of North America's finest drivers including the Shell 4000 champions Paul MacLennan and John Wilson driving their Ford Mustang V8, and top lady drivers Diana Carter and Mrs. Rene O'Leary in a Sunbeam Imp. There were two Belleville cars in the rally, one a Corvair Corsa driven by Jack MacDonald and navigated by Gord Smith, and two, a Volkswagen 1200 driven by Norman Storms and navigated by Dr. Bob Allore.

The final 140-mile leg of the rally, from Orillia to the CNE grounds, is scheduled for completion early this afternoon. Winners will be declared later tonight at the CNE.

The Mayor of Picton, H. J. McFarland and Deputy Mayor, Ald. Ben Corke greeted the drivers at the Plaza.

Big Power Veto Of UN Missions

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Britain and Ireland submitted major proposals Monday dealing with the United Nations' role in international crises.

Lord Caeadon, the British delegate, urged a broad re-examination of the UN machinery for handling threats to peace. His item titled Peaceful Settlement of Disputes was submitted for the agenda of the General Assembly, which opens its 20th session in New York Sept. 21.

Ireland proposed a change in the General Assembly's rules allowing any three big powers to veto peacekeeping projects sponsored by the 114-nation assembly.

This would be a radical change in assembly procedures, since under the UN charter each of the five designated big powers can use the veto only in the Security Council. The five are the United States, Soviet Union, Britain, France and Nationalist China.

The Irish proposal seeks to unsnarl the lingering dispute among the big powers over UN peace forces.

SAC Bombers Hit Viet Cong South of Base

SAIGON (AP)—B-52 bombers of the U.S. Strategic Air Command made another raid on South Viet Nam today, attacking a Viet Cong installation 55 miles south of the big Da Nang air base, a U.S. military announcement said.

The brief announcement said "a number" of B-52s made the early-morning strike in Quang Tin Province. Thirty planes made up the attack force on most previous B-52 raids, but under new security restrictions the number is no longer announced nor is the type and amount of bombs dropped.

The Viet Cong shelled and mortared the Bien Hoa air base rear Saigon early today, damaging 45 U.S. and Vietnamese Air Force planes and four U.S. Army helicopters, a U.S. military spokesman said. He said one of the aircraft was seriously damaged and all would be repaired within three days.

Dief. Attacks Opting-out Formula

PIERREVILLE, Que. (CP)—Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker said Monday night that a major reason for Quebec unrest is that it is not linked with the rest of Canada "on a reasonable degree of equality."

As the Progressive Conservative leader wound up the first day of a tour of Quebec's Eastern Townships in nearby St. Hyacinthe, he said the trip has already convinced him the people of Quebec want to stay as part of Canada.

"I can't see Quebec outside of Canada, nor can I see the Canada I dream of without Quebec."

He attacked the opting - out formula negotiated between federal and provincial governments, saying it made possible "something I don't want to see —the potential weakening of our national structure."

At a later press conference attended by about 200 persons, Mr. Diefenbaker declined to express his personal views on the question of the extension of the right to use the French language outside of Quebec and Parliament.

He argued that this was a question which should go before a constitutional conference where it would be determined on the basis of what Canadians realizing the need to preserve Confederation, "are prepared to accept and to do."

In these circumstances, it would be the height of presumption for him to take a personal view, he said.

He said he does not agree with the government's actions in submitting to the Supreme Court of Canada the question of jurisdiction over offshore mineral rights on the West Coast.

"I say this matter should be negotiated between the provinces and the federal government."

He did not comment on the question of mineral rights in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, a thorny issue between the Quebec and federal governments.

The Tory chieftain let loose a tirade against the Liberals Monday, speaking of a frightened prime minister and a banana-spined government hiding behind a general election rather than answer to Parliament for their misdeeds.

He said the findings of the Dorion inquiry into charges of attempted bribery and coercion by federal ministerial aides are one reason Mr. Pearson may be planning a fall election.

"When you have a government that tries to turn a banana into a backbone, you can understand some of the uncertainties of the past two years," he said.

"And all the time, national unity has been undermined to a degree that has brought suspicion between our people unequaled in my time."

Centennial Canoe Crews Spend Night in City

After an arm-straining day paddling down the Trent River and Bay of Quinte, two Centennial Voyageur crews stretched their legs in Belleville last night.

The teams ended a 62-mile jaunt that started 12 hours earlier at the village of Hastings.

Today they were scheduled to push off with hopes of reaching Kingston before nightfall.

Their camp in Victoria Park, just north of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, attracted small crowds of sightseers until the crews finally dossed down in their three tents after a hearty meal.

The voyaguers were the advance party of a canoe expedition tracing a 600-mile voyage from North Bay to Gananoque. The other six crews are expected here later.

From the eight canoes teams will be selected to help mark the 1967 Centennial year with a 3.500-mile voyage across Canada.

The advance party said they left Peterborough well ahead of their companions because they decided to push up the St. Lawrence to Montreal. They must arrive by Sunday — the official date for terminating the trip.

Gemini 5 Mission

Such is the publicity surrounding the United States space program and the actual launching of astronauts into orbit that the Russians can easily capitalize on any difficulties the Americans encounter.

Thus the Soviet News Agency Tass has blamed Gemini 5's problems on the haste of U.S. scientists to "beat the Soviet Union at any price" in sending up the longest-manned orbital mission.

This is a spurious argument from a rival whose own space achievements are still largely surrounded in mystery because of the secrecy with which they have been conducted. So far as we are aware no pictures have ever been released of the launching of Soviet cosmonauts and certainly there have been none of the spacemen immediately following their return to earth. Nobody doubts for a moment that the Russians have made their several orbital missions. However, any failures they may have experienced will never be known because of the curtain of secrecy.

It would appear the American spacemen were in no real danger, even when the fuel cells were not functioning properly, and could have descended for an ocean pickup in the usual manner.

Meanwhile, the administrator of the U.S. space program, James E. Webb, said that "very great success" in ground-testing programs means the U.S. could send a man to the moon by late 1968.

This prediction should put the Russians on their mettle. There have been no reports of Soviet space missions for some time and unless they come up with something even more spectacular than in the past, it would appear that the United States may well make it to the moon before its rival.

Space Dialogue

Space flight dialogue has changed from the early days. In their first orbital missions it was fashionable for U.S. astronauts to say that "All Systems Are 'Go'."

However, with each succeeding mission and an increase in the duties the spacemen must perform inside their capsules it is not enough to say that everything is going fine and that the view is wonderful.

Some of the dialogue falls into the modern idiom so beloved of university and scientific staffs.

Here is an example from the Gemini 5 mission. It relates to the sleep patterns of astronauts Cooper and Conrad: Carnavon, Australia, Control: "Houston surgeon is a little concerned about your lack of sleep. We'd like a status report on each of you at this time concerning your fatigue level."

Translated, the request was, "How much sleep are you getting?" When Conrad replied that they had been catnapping, the Australian Control came on again recommending that they "try to sleep during your programmed sleep period if you can so as not to get behind on the sleep curves."

Said Conrad: "I try to, but you guys keep giving us something to do." And that apparently was the last word on the matter of "fatigue levels and sleep curves."

Nurses From Philippines

Nurses from the Philippines are helping to overcome the perennial shortage of nurses in Ontario. And Canadian Pacific Airlines may take some of the credit for recruiting them.

Globe and Mail writer Mary James says three Ontario nurses have returned from a two-month visit to the Philippines where they interviewed girls wishing to nurse in Canada, and have presented a report to Health Minister Matthew Dymond.

"This was not a recruiting program," Dr. Dymond was quoted as saying. "We had heard through Canadian Pacific Airlines that many Philippine nurses were anxious to come here. We sent our team to interview these nurses and assess their qualifications according to Ontario standards. What we did was simply expedite applications of those interested in coming here, and our team was given every support and help by those concerned in Manila."

Some 300 nurses were interviewed and since the team's return more than 50 further applications have been received by the College of Nurses in Toronto.

It is not fluke, it is just not force of habit, that he is always in command of the situation; that he rolls off information with the predictable polish of a computer; that his interjections fit precisely into the action. No one does his homework more thoroughly before a performance . . . And the odd thing is that throughout the BBC, where the knife has been known to slide into the turned back as smoothly as anywhere else, no one will hear a word against him.—Geoffrey Moorhouse, in an article on top BBC commentator Richard Dimbleby, written for The Ottawa Journal.

To Your Good Health

May Lose if You Gamble With Biological Facts

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My roommate and I have many questions about pregnancy and hope you can help us. We are in our 20's. — Miss Q. Q. (Also answering Mrs. R.I.M. and others.)

I'll take the questions one at a time, from your letters.

"First of all, we have heard that after a while, such as several years, an immunity to birth control pills develops. Is this true?"

No.

"When is the fertile period in a female?"

Usually from the 12th to the 16th day after onset of a menstrual period.

"When are the so-called 'safe days'?"

Just after and just before a period, but there can be considerable variation because of irregularities in the cycle. Somebody once said that death and taxes are the only certain things. It's not a bad idea to keep in mind.

"Does the male have to enter completely to cause pregnancy? Sometimes there is a slight secretion from the male. Is it possible to get pregnant from this?

To the first question: No. To the second one: Yes. The vital problem is whether the male sperm — just one active cell — reaches and unites with the female ovum.

"Is it possible for a girl to become pregnant without going all the way?" I recently said yes to this question and I was beseiged with other inquiries, demanding, upbraiding, disbelieving, or what have you. This is the answer: If the sperm reaches the ovum, pregnancy is possible. (As in the case of artificial insemination, for one example.)

"Is it possible for the female to become pregnant during her menstrual period?

No. Or to be totally accurate, I'll word it this way: It's most unlikely.

I'll add some comments on the subject.

Mother Nature, obsessed with perpetuating the race, is subtle and uses such guiles as temptation, affection, passion, carelessness, etc.

At risk of being called an old fogey, I've read with interest and heartbreak some of the items printed by "advice" columnists about the touching problems of unmarried girls who have to decide whether to keep or give up a baby born out of wedlock.

My conclusion, at age of 50-plus, is that there's much to be said for chastity. Or to put it in less puritanical terms, don't gamble with biological facts.

Don't expect that you'll always win. Frequently somebody loses.

Dear Dr. Molner: In an article concerning Vitamin B complex, you said it can turn the urine deep yellow because of riboflavin being filtered through the kidneys.

Does this mean good, bad or neither ?— R. H. D.

Neither. The system will absorb just so much. The rest is harmlessly excreted.

Dear Dr. Molner: Are internal sanitary napkins harmful? — D. H. L.

No. Tampons are perfectly safe.

A Question of Morality

Kingston Whig-Standard

It has always seemed to us that, in studying the terrible traffic accident situation which faces this country, something more than the surface facts must be reckoned with. In the past we have suggested more than once that what we are really faced with, in this growing attitude which seems to accept accidents as something one must learn to live with, to take for granted, is a question of morality. Magistrate J. C. Dunlap of Sarnia expanded on this theme in a recent appeal to clergymen in which he sought their support in attacking the great problem of our time.

As he put it, increased enforcement by the police and increased penalties imposed by the courts do not seem to deter those who use our highways in a foolish and often dangerous manner. "The matter of safe driving on our highways appears to be a moral one. Fine young men and women who are model citizens in every respect, seem to change the minute they get behind a wheel of a car and lose all respect for the rights of others." One need only look about him to see exactly what Magistrate Dunlap is talking about: the speeders, the short-cutters, the joy-riders, the fool-hardy — endangering their own lives and the lives of others on the streets and highways almost as if they had a God-given right to do so.

Strangely enough a person who stands on a street-corner and shouts profanely at passers-by is usually thought of as an immoral individual. But the man who drives in a careless and dangerous manner or who is responsible for the deaths of or injuries to others; how often is he considered immoral? And yet, as Magistrate Dunlap maintains, the use to which such people put our highways is one of the great moral issues of the day. We worry a great deal about the so-called sex explosion in our society and many people claim that there has been a decline in morals comparable to that which caused the collapse of the Roman Empire. And yet how many of us would think of the dreadful toll on our highways as being largely due to a decline in morality? It is a factor in this problem which has received all too little attention.

I would never dream of saying I can drive a railway train or make a steel girder but for some reason everyone thinks they can be a writer. — Author Nicholas Monsarratt.

Danger is nothing like as terrifying as the awarness of what human beings can do to one another. — British journalist Anne Sharpley.

Strictly Personal

Children Compete With Adults

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When one of my daughters returned from camp, she asked me, in a tone of puzzled sadness why I had not printed in my column some of the poems she had written and mailed to me during the summer.

I mumbled some embarrassed evasion about their length and the problem of deadlines, but she was not fooled. She knew I did not intend to use them, and, as I had sincerely complimented her on their quality, she could not comprehend my refusal to put them in the paper.

What we frequently fail to recognize as parents is that children cannot understand the real difference between the world of the adult and the world of the child. It would be useless to say to her: "These are fine poems for a girl of your age, but they don't yet meet adult requirements."

To a child, if a poem is good, it is good, no matter at what age it is written; if parents praise a drawing of a dog or a flower, the child expects the drawing to be exhibited along with the other masters of the graphic arts.

A child's poetry or story-writing or piano-playing are the spontaneous outlets of imagination, but they are also something more. They say to the parents, in effect, "I can do what you can do, and I demand to be judged on the same basis, not just as a child."

Every mother is quickly aware of her young daughter's imitation — but she is not generally aware that this is a form of competition. When the daughter plays with dolls and dresses up in mama's old clothes she is making a bid for recognition and responsibility that is much more serious and profound than merely "make-believe."

We have come to learn, in recent years, that our feelings even toward those dearest to us are a mixture of affection and resentment; but we still resist acknowledging that our children possess the same mixed feelings toward us; that such feelings are quite natural, and that the child must not be made to feel guilty for having them.

This is one of the hardest tasks of being a parent: to accept the fact that we are not always loved. And when the child insists that its poetry, or its pretensions of any kind, be given mature respect and status we can only answer with a transparent tact which seems the most appalling hypocrisy to the child's clear and candid mind.

At times like these, one is tempted to agree with Plato that distressingly few of us are genuinely equipped for the most important and demanding job in the world: making our offspring better than we are.

Ottawa Offbeat

'Disenchanted' Phase May Force General Election

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—So maybe we NEED the election, mused Senator Alexander Boyd Baird of St. John's the other hot and steamy noon as he scorched an even richly deeper tone of mahogany-tan in the August sun beneath the Peace Tower.

For, added this crusty, clear-sighted — and politically keen-nosed old curmudgeon from Newfoundland — let us not kid ourselves: THIS particular Parliament just hasn't been smelling so sweet.

But has it been stinking so highly that now there must be a complete change of atmosphere in the Commons?

Well let's be objective, as the Senator likes to suggest, let's look at the record.

Listed in the Hansard index just before this not-so-sweetly-smelling Commons recessed for this most unusual three-month Summer holiday, under the separate and distinct heading — "Parliament: unfavorable image of" — were 44 different references.

And next in line in this word-by-word catalogue of what the Commons says from day to political day the heading — "Parliament: waste of time in" — with 34 references.

But that's not all.

In the Hansard index of the last Session, the one that ran on and on and on, finally running into this one, there were 71 references under the "Parliament: unfavorable image of" heading.

And under the "Parliament: waste of time in" heading, another 63.

Add it all up and you get a grand total of 212 unflattering references to the Commons, all of them coming, in various moods of alarm, confession and warning from the MPs themselves.

Not surprisingly, these knocks enormously out-numbered any other reference in Hansard to Parliament itself.

The next most numerous reference — a mere 15 compared to the monumental 212 of self-criticism — was under the heading: "Parliament: rights, privileges, procedures, responsibilities of."

Odd, isn't it — or IS it — that this critical soul-searching should so monopolize Parliament's discussion of itself?

And what really bothered the MPs was that all these 212 unflattering blasts reflected not really Parliament's opinion of itself but much more dangerous and damning the public's.

What the MPs seemed to be saying in speaking of these hundreds of references to Parliament's "unflattering image," as they so gently put it, was that the taxpayer appeared to have had more than enough of them.

This disenchantment with "Ottawa" — a broadly sweeping term that takes in not only the Government and the Civil Service but Parliament which has the responsibility for both — has been dramatically expressed by just such a disaffected taxpayer and a very prominent one indeed.

She is Mrs. R. W. Stedman of Montreal, daughter of the late great C.D. "Trader" Howe, Minister of Trade and Commerce, Munitions and Supply and Defence Production and a sort of handy Cabinet-Jack-of-Departments for both former Prime Ministers Mackenzie King and Louis St. Laurent.

All of a sudden, just at the end of the recent postal strike, Mrs. Stedman publicity proclaimed that she was "fed up to here with Ottawa and all its works" — or, as it then was happening, its non-works — and was going to hit back with what she described as "the most potent weapon a Canadian taxpayer possibly can have" — a tax strike.

"I've had it," said Mrs. Stedman, giving Ottawa fair warning, "I'm paying for Federal services I've not been getting. And this is madness. So I'm deciding now that next Spring I won't pay my income taxes and that's that."

Here "that's that" has a magnificent ring of feminine finality to it.

They heard it all the way down at the Sessex Drive headquarters offices here of the Income Tax Division of the National Revenue Department.

And it shook them a bit.

"Hope she thinks better of it," said one of Revenue Minister Ben Benson's top taxmen. "Thing like that just might be catching."

But if she doesn't, and it is?

So, like Senator Alexander Boyd Baird says, maybe we need an election.

Canada's Northern 'Colonies'

The Norther, Fort Smith, NWT

There is a song they sing in Ottawa to the accompaniment of Canadian apathy, called "He who pays the Piper Calls The Tune."

It is sung by bureaucrats whenever Canada is accused of running a colonial empire in the North. It is supposed to answer the question of why Canadian money spent in the North cannot be spent by a Northern legislature in a manner comparable to that of the provinces.

The federal government supplies the money, argue the bureaucrats, therefore the North must remain enslaved.

There is more red tape connected with federal expenditures in the North of Canada than with federal expenditures on foreign aid.

There are more than 20,000 Canadians in the North. Not many, but without them, the North certainly would not be Canada's problem at all.

These Northern Canadians make a laughing stock of most of the principles which our federal government claims to espouse in international circles.

It is simply and hypocritically a case of putting up a good front for outsiders and hiding the garbage in the Northern backyard.

* * *

At this late date, the federal government, under considerable pressure, is taking its jolly good time about extending the right to vote to a large part of the North. It continues to make and break promises as if they were assembly-line eggs from a mechanical chicken.

Unfortunately, most Canadians know little or nothing of the Canadian North. The result of this lack of knowledge is the soup of apathy in which our politicians bask while their principles hang from a hickory limb.

The Advisory Commission now studying the development of government in the Territories is seen in the North as a chance for political salvation by the colonies of the Canadian North.

If its report is as ruthlessly frank and painstakingly complete as it could be, there always is the chance that it never will be published.

If it is published, there is more than a chance that there will be no rush to implement its recommendations.

The North, however, is so pleased to have someone interested and listening who is not representing politics or bureaucracy, that it is placing its hope in the Advisory Commission.

Above all, perhaps, the hope that the Commission will tell Canadians that we, too, are Canadians. We, too, pay taxes (for fewer benefits) and understand exactly where the money comes from to pay the Piper. If that money can be had only by refusing us any vestige of the voice democracy given all other Canadians in their affairs, we will leave, or we will stay, rebellious.

We hope the Commission will tell bureaucracy where the money comes from, and that it isn't theirs, before they pay the piper, call the tune, and find no one to dance.

A Nation of Spectators

St. Catharines Standard

"Now is the time for thoughtful charting of the future course of Canadian sport," according to Canada's minister of health and welfare, Miss Judy LaMarsh. Many Canadians have excelled in sports, bringing glory to themselves and honor to their country through competition, but the need today is that the people be sportsminded, not as spectators, but as participants.

The Fitness and Amateur Sports Program of the federal government includes grants provided to the provinces to assist, develop and promote local training and competition. In one particular field, that of swimming, the Canada Amateur Association is receiving $64,000 this year and has received $123,000 since the program commenced. This money is being used for instructional clinics, for national and international competitions.

Physical fitness through sports is a timely operation, aimed at assisting all Canadians to enjoy to the fullest measure the great advantages and opportunities offered through participation in all forms of athletics. The need is urgent, for we have become a nation of spectators, whereas, for health's sake, we should be a nation of participants.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

August 24th, 1945

Attendance at the Y.M.C.A. Summer Fun Cub has increased during the past week, officials stated today. The program of games and swimming proves attractive to the children in this kind of weather and a number of non-swimmers have already learned the elementary technique of the sport. A test revealed satisfactory progress on the part of all concerned.

Hikes were held during the week with grand weather and water adding to the general enjoyment. Games in the Y.M.C.A., swimming in the filtered water of the pool, hikes and other forms of exercise and entertainment are adding to the general enjoyment of those attending the club's meetings.

The following from this city will leave early Tuesday morning for Montreal on the palatial steamer 'Rapids Queen' which calls here every Tuesday morning from Toronto to the 1000 Islands and Montreal: Mr. and Mrs. H. Belsey of Dundas St. east, Miss Pearl Campbell and Mrs. Campbell of George Street, Miss L. A. Black, and Miss M. Black of Hillside Street, and Mrs. Holgate of Highland Avenue.

Mrs. Wesley Reid and Miss Aletha Chapman have left on a motor car trip to Montreal and Quebec City.

Mr. J. E. Savage and Miss Hilda Savage have returned to Toronto after visiting their mother, Mrs. E. Savage, Wellington Street.

40 YEARS AGO

Lacrosse was a popular game here years ago, and the following from our file copy at this time in 1895 will be of interest to old timers:

"In a lacrosse match here yesterday at the Agricultural Park between Belleville and Stirling, the latter team won the score being 4 to 0. For Belleville, "Ab" Overill was referee, Frank Wolever, umpire and Jack Gordinier field captain. It was a very rough game; the Stirling men were giants compared with the Belleville boys. Dr. Harry Burdett, an old Belleville boy who is home from St. Paul, Minn., on a visit and who was a star player with the old Oakes lacrosse team here, was present and was much interested in the game.

A small mouth bass, weighing 5 pounds, 14 ounces, was caught last week in Belmont Lake by S. T. Wilson. It measured 22¼ inches in length and 17¾ inches in girth.

Amid waving of flags and handkerchiefs and a chorus of farewells from a large number of citizens, the members of the Daily Ontario Panama-Pacific party took their departure from the Grand Trunk Railway Station today to cross the American continent and visit a great exposition. Mr. and Mrs. D. V. Sinclair entertained the members of the party at luncheon at their home prior to their departure for the train. In addition to the members of the party, the following were present at the luncheon at the Sinclair home: Mr. George N. Simmons, Mr. W. H. Morton, and Mr. J. Owen Herity.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

August 24, 1965 . . .

The Massacre of St. Bartholomew began 393 years ago today—in 1572 — and about 50,000 French Protestants were killed by their Roman Catholic countrymen during the next few weeks. The massacre stemmed from the jealousy of Catherine de Medici, the mother of the French king, of the rising influence of Admiral Coligny and other Huguenots. She secured the king's permission to kill the leading Protestants and, once the killings had started, they swept through most of France. Pope Gregory XIII ordered a medal to be struck to celebrate the event.

1954 — President Eisenhower outlawed the U.S. Communist party.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1915 — Major-General Sir Sam Hughes, Canadian minister of militia, was made Knight Commander of the Order of the Bath; Allied airmen bombed Tergnier and Noyon railway stations.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1940—Dover, Portsmouth and the English south coast were bombed the RAF claiming 50 victories for 19 British aircraft shot down and seven pilots killed; HMCS St. Laurent was identified as the vessel which saved 850 survivors of the torpedoed liner Arandora Star; J. W. McConnell, publisher of the Montreal Star, gave $1,000,000 to buy aircraft for the Allied cause.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—Industrials declined for the fourth successive session in light to moderate morning stock exchange dealings today.

Losses were mostly fractional and speculative trading was quiet. Price swings were narrow.

In the main list, Massey-Ferguson and Rothmans each fell ½ to 30⅝ and 26⅛.

In speculative trading, Obaska fell 5 to 28 cents and traded 129,200 shares.

Senior base metals moved higher. Hudson Bay and Falconbridge each gained ¼ to 68¼ and 100¾ while Denison advanced ⅝ to 32¾.

Dome lost ⅜ to 44¼ among golds.

On index, industrials fell .04 to 165.13 while the Toronto Stock Exchange index rose .01 to 155.23, golds .46 to 169.82, base metals .35 to 79.02 and western oils .14 to 97.58. Volume at 11 a.m. was 830,000 shares compared with 926,000 shares traded at the same time Monday.

Losses Tuesday, third day of the decline in industrials, were fractional.

United Buffadison dropped 32 cents to $1.82 and traded 319,095 shares while United Comstock Lode gained 1½ to 27 cents on volume of 231,700 shares. Obaska, a heavy trader last week, fell 16 to 33 cents and traded 894,385 shares.

Gunnar Mining, active and lower last week after substantial losses were reported for the firm's construction subsidiaries in the first six months of 1965, gained 40 cents to $2.50 on 53,475 shares. A company statement Monday said the firm's bankers and management are nearing agreement.

In the main list, Bell Telephone declined ⅛ to 58⅛ and Dofasco and Moore Corp. fell ¾ apiece to 27⅝ and 72¼. Among senior base metals Hudson Bay fell ¾ to 68 and Inco ½ to 94½. Cominco dropped ¼ to 43¾ but Noranda advanced ¾ to 49¼.

Dome gained ⅛ to 44⅝ among golds.

On index, industrials fell .53 to 165.17, the Toronto Stock Exchange Index .52 to 155.22, base metals .66 to 78.67 and western oils .13 to 97.44. Golds rose .26 to 169.36. Volume was 3,831,000 shares compared with 4,312,000 Friday.

VANDAL VICTIM Pat O'Halloran (left) surveys damage at his plant yesterday with workman. Mr. O'Halloran figures his loss might be over $2,000 in similar incidents this year.

Business Briefs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

NEAR OPENING

The new General Motors assembly plant in Ste. Therese de Blainville, Que., 20 miles north of Montreal, will begin operations at the end of this month, a company spokesman said Monday. He said about 200 workers will be on the job at the beginning but in one year's time, the plant will employ 1,100 workers. The plant will turn out 1966-model Chevrolets and Pontiacs in its initial run.

EARNINGS DROP

Massey-Ferguson Ltd. reports net income of $23,500,000 or 1.56 a common share in the nine months ended July 31, compared with $35,900,000 or $2.57 a share in the same period last year. Shares outstanding this year totalled 15,059,025 against 13,975,767 last year. Sales were $566,300,000, or 3.6 per cent lower than the record $587,100,000 in the same period last year.

Give Wounded Priest Chance Of Survival

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—A young Roman Catholic priest wounded in a burst of shotgun fire in Haynesville, Ala., was off the critical list at a Montgomery hospital today, while at a New Hampshire church, mourners gathered for the funeral of a slain companion.

Rev. Richard Morrisroe, 26, of Chicago, was reported rallying somewhat by Baptist Hospital authorities, who changed their description of his condition from critical to serious and said he has "a good chance for survival."

In Keene, N.H., meanwhile, funeral services were scheduled for 27-year-old Jonathan Daniels, an Episcopal seminary student fatally wounded by shotgun slugs in the same incident.

Thomas L. Coleman, 55, a prominent Haynesville resident and special deputy sheriff, was charged with murder and assault with intent to murder in connection with the shootings and is free under $12,500 bond pending action by the county grand jury.

Ku Klux Klan leaders delivered angry replies Monday to charges by Alabama Attorney-General Richard Flowers that Daniels death was "another Klan murder."

Robert M. Shelton, imperial wizard of the United Klans of America Inc., said that if Coleman is a Klan member, "I have no knowledge of it."

At Jackson, Miss., meanwhile, police said Rev. Donald Thompson, 59 - year - old white minister in serious condition from wounds suffered in a shotgun ambush at his apartment, apparently was shot because of his civil rights activities.

Police and federal agents joined in an investigation into the shooting which felled Thomson Sunday night as he walked from the parking lot of his apartment building.

Police said Thompson reported he saw a car enter the lot with a white man driving and two others in the rear seat. He heard one shot, then took full charge of buckshot in the back of the left shoulder from a distance of about 25 feet.

Cement Block Stockpile Target of Juvenile Vandals And Charges May Be Laid

There's a new kind of blockbuster in Belleville that's dynamite to at least one businessman.

The businessman is Pat O'Halloran who operates the Belleville Brick Company on the city's Cannifton Road.

The company now mainly manufactures cement blocks neatly stockpiled at the rear of the premises as they are turned out.

The stockpile has been the target for juvenile vandals three times this year. The latest incident occurred last weekend.

Favorite trick of the blockbusters is to scramble aloft on the pile and kick off the top layer of the blocks. On the way down they richochet off other layers before smashing to the ground.

The end result has been costly—in damaged goods, time and labor.

"So far it's cost me between $2,000 and $3,000," estimates Mr. O'Halloran. "I can't afford much more of this."

Both police and Mr. O'Halloran believe the vandals to be pre-teenagers. And after this last escapade identities have been learned.

"We know who's doing it now," said Mr. O'Halloran, as he surveyed the weekend wreckage.

He hopes to obtain some satisfaction from parents and says his main hope is that parents "will keep the youngsters in line."

Police, however, intimate they take a sterner view of the matter and may press charges.

The first incident occurred during school holidays last Christmas.

"This summer I hoped it wouldn't start up again— but it did and I'm just sick and tired of it."

Mr. O'Halloran said there were enough broken blocks from the first two incidents to use as fill for the entire vacant lot he uses for stockpiling. Removal of damaged blocks is a costly part of salvage since many crash down between the stacked piles.

The destruction at the rear is in contrast to the facade of the brick works which Mr. O'Halloran has lately been remodelling.

"Look at that," he pointed out ruefully. "While I'm up front fixing the place up, they're down back knocking me towards the poor house."

Police said they hoped the situation would be resolved immediately.

Claremont Housewife 'Princess' Contender

TORONTO (CP) —Donna Barkey Rose, a Claremont, Ont. farm housewife, won the preliminary competition for the Ontario Dairy Princess title at the Canadian National Exhibition Monday.

Mrs. Rose, who is also a schoolteacher in nearby Markham, represents Ontario County in the competition.

Ontario semi - finals will be held Sept. 1, and the Canadian finals Sept. 2.

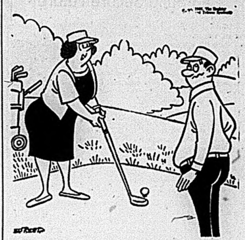
OFF THE RECORD By Ed Reed



"What's the number I'm supposed to yell?"

According to Hoy

By

Claire Hoy

Under the Influence

Miss Pauline Jewett, illustrious Member of Parliament for Northumberland, while speaking to the Belleville Kiwanis Club recently, told a true-life incident ("honest, it really hapened," she said) which is worth passing along.

It seems that during the two-week parliamentary break, Miss Jewett came home to catch up on her local work. A lot of catching up of course means re-establishing local contacts to let the local people know that they haven't been forgotten in Ottawa.

"I was coming home from one official function and headed for another one," she said, fighting hard to keep from laughing.

"There I was, driving along by myself on this country road when suddenly a man was standing in the middle of the road waving madly at me. I don't normally pick up hitch-hikers—except in Northumberland," she added jokingly—"but it was a case of either picking him up or running him down.

"So I stopped the car and he got in the front seat beside me."

"Hello," he slurped. "Shwere we going?"

("Great!" Miss Jewett thought to herself. "This is all I need.")

"I'm going to a barbecue," she replied to his pertinent question.

"Sshgood. Sshfine wissh me," he drooled.

Nothing was said for a long time as Miss Jewett drove nervously along the lonely dirt road with her inebriated passenger. He seemed content to be going to the barbecue.

Finally, he pulled himself up on the seat, shook his head to clear the cobwebs and said, "Shay, who are you anyway?"

"I'm your M.P.," she replied.

"Shwaht's that?"

"I'm your Member of Parliament."

"Shyur not Pauline?"

"Yes, I am."

"Well, Ishn't that funny?"

"What is?"

"Ish've been wanting to shee yu for two years now about something and here yu are."

"What did you want to see me about?"

"I'm drunk."

"Yes, but what did you want to see me about?" she repeated.

"I'm too drunk. I jish can't remember."

And for the rest of the trip, Miss Jewett's intoxicated passenger didn't say a word. He just sat there and strained his brain trying to think of what it was he wanted to tell her.

He never did remember.

Good Bookeepers Scarce, Can Build Secure Future

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I am an accurate bookkeeper. My problem is: why do bosses like the loafing kind? As long as they give them the eye and compliments they don't care to see what kind of work they do.

Last year I left a job because of this. My books were in balance. They called me back this year saying things were different. I came back to a big mess and after almost two months am still finding errors.

What makes me feel sick is they called back the girl that was part of this carelessness and is working with the auditor. I feel that because I only went to grade 9 and night school they don't want to give me credit. The lady in charge told someone, right in front of me, that the books were in a mess for two years (which is when I worked there). — BLAMELESS.

DEAR BLAMELESS — If your books were balanced, your lady-in-charge has her facts wrong. Tell her about the mess you are finding.

But keep your temper. Good bookkeepers are hard to find. Why not look to the future, get further education, and let this incident spur you to showing everybody just what a good head for figures can do?

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I am married to an Old Country man who considers himself something special. Before we were married everything here was lovely — now all is wrong; the blasted Canadians have not given him a square deal!

His every look and act shows he has no love for me. We have two children whom he treats cruelly. He hates all my people, my parents most of all; and they have been so good to him! He scolds and abuses me and the children. All the neighbors hear, and I am so ashamed.

Now he has made all arrangements for us to move to the Old Country, where he will no doubt sit on the "Dole" as he is lazy and just does not have the gumption to go to work. My money bought all the furniture and gave him his start here.

It is hard to live with him here, but I dread the thought of a life overseas with him. Should I refuse to go? Can I make him support me and the children? — I HAVE HAD IT.

DEAR HAD IT — When a man's work takes him to a new location, the family is expected to go along. If he has no such reason, and you have a good argument for staying rooted to the spot. Weren't you even consulted?

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I need a passport and I am supposed to fill in the date when I was married. I wonder if I can fill in the date of my first marriage? It is about 25 years ago and nobody knows anything about it. But if I fill in the second date it would all come out.

My oldest son is from the first husband and he does know it. But my other two sons don't. All are grown and married. But I don't like them to know that I was married twice or for my neighbors either — SECOND MARRIAGE.

DEAR SECOND — Since the passport is for identification, you'd better give the proper date, the second one, at which time you took your present married name.

This fact appears only on the application; not on the passport itself. And the application gets filed away at Ottawa away from prying eyes. So relax.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — How would I go about convincing my father that it is more suitable to take a girl to a dance in a car than a truck? Every time I ask for the car he asks me why I don't take the truck and I don't have anything to say to him.

I have been told many times that she would rather go in a car but my father has a different version of this. It seems that he doesn't trust me with the car, but I have been complimented on my driving by many teachers. — CANNON BALL MARTIN.

DEAR CANNON BALL—Well, compared with a bumpy ride on a motorcycle or walking her to the bus, a truck ride is luxury. Does she like you or the car?

Some boys would give their eyeteeth for a nice scenoramic truck to drive, probably gas-provided. And you can't laugh off the fact that the highest rate of accidents is among teen-age drivers. Would you foot the bill for insurance coverage on a teen-driven car?

I know you want to look good to your girl, but where is her sense of humor? Better accept what gives. Show care with the truck and other responsibilities will be placed in your hands soon enough.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Is it true that there are many scholarships available to students, and that they are unknown to schools, thus they are never applied for?

If this is so, where could one find out about them? — VERY INTERESTED.

DEAR VERY — Not generally true. Schools are well informed about what's available. There are both scholarships and bursaries. Bursaries are outright gifts to industrious but needy students and at times a bursary does go unclaimed.

Government of Canada Student Loans are another kind of help for full-time university (or nursing, teaching or trade school) students. As much as $1,000 may be borrowed in any one year, with a maximum of $5,000 in loans, supplied interest-free, during college years, to any one student.

Repayment of the loan begins six months after graduation, with interest — which only applies from then on — of 5¾%. With financial need established, and approval obtained from the Provincial Authority, this type of loan is arranged by the student's own bank. All school principals have this information.

DEAR DORIS:

1. How soon before the wedding is a trousseau tea given?
2. Who proposes the toast to the bride?
3. I attended a wedding recently and noticed at the reception that they had a master of ceremonies who introduced the wedding party. Is this customary?—WEDDING GUEST.

DEAR GUEST:

1. A few days ahead — maybe a week.
2. A close family friend, preferably someone who "knew her when" and can tell an amusing incident about earlier years. Sometimes the clergyman is the old, assured friend who can do this best.
3. Since all guests have already been received by the bridal party, one assumes that such introductions are superfluous.

(Are you in doubt about the proper etiquette to use for your special occasion? Ask Doris, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for her reply).

PORK LOIN AND ROASTED POTATOES

A letter signed with initials only contained this one bare sentence: "I will be watching the paper for your way of roasting pork loin and pan-roasted potatoes.—B. A. N.

Thanks to B.A.N., I interrupted my planned program and we had a roast pork and pan-roasted potato dinner and it was wonderful.

Savory Picnic Ham (bone-in) with Raisin Sauce; Glazed Whole Carrots; Buttered Spinach and Mushrooms; Finely Shredded Cabbage Salad with Pimiento Dressing; New Applesauce; Fresh Spice Cake; Coffee.

ROAST LOIN OF PORK

From the meat counter I selected a 4-lb. loin of pork from the tenderloin end, and asked my friend the butcher to break the backbone (chine) at short intervals with his cleaver to make carving easier. When the time arrived to put it in the oven I mixed together ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon paprika, 1 teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon cinnamon and rubbed these well into all of the surfaces of the meat. I placed it on a trivet in the roasting pan and roasted it at 325 deg. Fahr. for 2¼ hours. The meat thermometer registered 185 deg. Fahr. Remember pork should be well done. If your roast is larger, the rule is to allow 35 minutes to the pound at 325 deg. Fahr.

Since our enquiring reader wants to know how to pan roast potatoes, I scrubbed 6 medium-size new potatoes until they were perfectly clean and boiled them, covered, in salted water for 15 minutes (not quite tender) and drained them. I cut them in halves and one hour before roast was done I added them to the pan and sprinkled with salt and paprika. I turned them over to coat them on both sides with the fat in the pan and roasted them one hour, turning once again at half time. They were gold and crisp all over.

The roasted pork loin was transferred to hot platter and pan-roasted potatoes arranged in border around it.

For those whose families like and expect gravy here is the method that is the general favorite: Tip all excess fat from pan except about ¼ to ⅓ cup which should include the brown sediment. (Some cooks like to make gravy in the roasting pan. If you do not, scrape all into saucepan). Add 4 tablespoons flour to fat and sediment, mix well, then stir in gradually 1½ to 1¾ cups milk until thick. Amount of milk depends on gravy consistency you desire. Taste gravy. If it needs salt add it. Serve it in preheated gravy boat.

New Zealand Housewives Seeking Standard Ruling

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (CP)—A disillusioning experience which befalls every New Zealand housewife sooner or later is to prepare a simply gorgeous cake, cookie, or other delicacy from a North American recipe —and produce an utter disaster.

One reason is the drastically different character of the ingredients. Flour, for instance, varies in texture, quality and cooking characteristics. Butter and sugar differ in some respects. Flavorings are often unlike the American counterparts and presented in different form.

Another major reason North American recipes go astray is the difference in measures. And on this point at least New Zealand is seeking to get a standard ruling.

Difference in measures disturbs the school of home science, the Plunket Society (which caters for the welfare of infants), manufacturers, hospitals, government departments and other agencies as well as housewives.

The department of agriculture, which publishes many recipes in its advice to farmers, housewives and the general public, has asked the standards institute to give a ruling on how much a cupful is.

SIZES DIFFER

The British imperial pint is 20 fluid ounces, the American pint 16 ounces. Cups made to hold half a pint might be based on either the American standard or the British one. Tests show that many kitchen cups do not conform to either basis.

The New Zealand Weights and Measures Act defines a pint as 20 ounces, but makes no mention of the volume of a cup. Most housewives tend to take a cup as half a British pint.

But the school of home science and cookery instructors of the department of agriculture calculates a cup as holding eight ounces, conforming to American measure.

The Standards Institute has been asked to sort out the confusion.

And when it has done so, another little job lies ahead. In both British and American measure, 16 tablespoons go to the cup. But as cups are of different size, tablespoons must be also. So the logical next step is to give a ruling on how large is a tablespoon.

New Big Dipper Jumpers Latest Kiddie Fashion

By MARGARET NESS

NEW YORK (CP)—The jumper is the top favorite among fall fashions for little girls this year, whether for school, playtime or parties.

But the 1965 version of the jumper is imaginatively styled and bears little resemblance to the plain everyday school costumes of the past.

Joseph Love of New York, with a manufacturing branch in Montreal, ranks as the trend-setter in children's clothes. He has introduced what he call the Big Dipper jumper—in keeping with the popularity of outer-space names for fall fashions generally.

In Love's version the suspender straps run into a deep scooped-out front and back. Contrast binding is added, such as red braid on a white cotton-leather jumper.

And intead of the uual blouse, Love prefers a dress to be worn under all his scooped jumpers providing a third color and also making it a two-way costume.

One combination he showed was a gold orlon-and-rayon Big Dipper over a navy-and-gold pin-dot dress.

High-waisted jumpers include a grey gored skirt with gold insert pleats worn over a gold bloues, and empire-high yoked jumper in cranberry red over a pale pink blouse.

The cranberry-and-pink combination also appears in a skirt and tucked-top dress.

MOVIE INFLUENCE

The movie Sound of Music has influenced fall fashions just as Mary Poppins did in the spring collections. The Austrian motif shows up in jumpers, too, as in an alpine blue version with Tyrolean smocking.

Other children's fashions include a red checked fisherman's smock over a navy pleated skirt for school or play, and a cherry velveteen dress with a square lace collar for parties.

The over-all impression is that styles for little girls have lost the emphasis on cuteness that not so many years ago was felt to be essential, even for plump youngsters.

Also gone is the craze for mother - and - daughter identicals which had the unfortunate effect of transferring the cute look to adult clothes.

Today children's clothes are being designed with the youngsters' own lives in mind even though in many cases the fabrics and general silhouette are the same as for grown-ups.

The children's field is becoming such big business that many designers specializing in this area are even becoming well known to the public.

Elen Henderson started several years ago with a small clientele of Toronto mothers and now sells to several top department stores in New York. She has also won a string of Canadian fashion awards for her originality and custom-looking clothes.

What's more, the children themselves seem pleased, as indicated by the reaction of young models to several collections in recent New York showings.

And if film star Joan Crawford is correct in her assessment, the long-term effect will be to give the fashionably dresed youngsters an early start toward learning good taste.

Miss Crawford was official hostess to 150 fashion editors at a New York Couture Group show in the Bahamas and declared flatly that no woman has real fashion sense until she is 30—unles she has grown up in an atmosphere of good fashions.

CALIFORNIA HAS MOST

California has more types of plant life than any other of the United States, about a sixth of the total of 30,000 varieties.

Sick Children Like Mothers With Them

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Unrestricted visiting hours are the rule at Angada Children's Hospital where authorities encourage parents to take an active part in caring for their young children.

The result of a recommendation made by a committee set up a year ago to study children's emotional requirements, it's working "wonderfully well," says Dr. A. M. Bryans, head of the department of pediatrics.

He explains that all children like to have their parents with them in the strange surroundings. Older children can adapt and infants haven't yet reached the stage where they miss their mother. But at the age of two the child has a great sense of belonging and taking him away from his parents can have serious emotional results.

"Emotional deprivation impedes healing of physical illness," the doctor adds.

Most parents leave the hospital when their children go to sleep at night, but some, especially in cases where the youngsters are seriously ill, prefer to stay. The staff has no objection and Dr. Bryans says he hopes some day the hospital will be able to provide cots which can be placed in the rooms for parents.

One study showed that where parents visited once weekly for two hours and did not participate in ward care, 92 per cent of children under five showed significant disturbances in behavior. These continued after return home.

But in cases where parents visited daily and took part in their care the number experiencing disturbances was reduced to 68 per cent.

Playground Activities

CNR PLAYGROUND

On August 19th a Miniature Penny Carnival was held, despite the bad weather and the absence of the supervisor Pam Murray. The children did a very good job in organizing it on their own. Marianne O'Hara and Nancy McKenna and Keith Little were in charge of the booths and Keith Little gave out prizes. Everyone had a good time and almost all those participating won prizes. This Friday is the last day of the playground. Friday morning, a tabloid meet will be held, with all types of races and prizes. At 12.00 o'clock, all the children are invited to bring their lunches to the playground.

Ann Landers

No Pictures Needed To Draw Conclusions

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm a respectable, self-supporting career girl over 25 (and under 30) who lives alone in a cozy apartment.

ANN LANDERS

I have a friend (male) who lives two blocks from me. He shares an apartment with a buddy. Billy is an amateur chef and loves to whip up exotic dishes. He doesn't have adequate facilities at his place so he comes to my apartment and fixes breakfast for me about three or four mornings a week. Since we work in the same building we ride downtown together.

I've been getting some chilly looks from the neighbors lately. Obviously they've gotten the wrong impression from seeing us leave the apartment together in the morning. When I mentioned this to Billy he said they are evil-minded and so long as they haven't any pictures they can't prove anything. What is your opinion? — MADALEINE.

DEAR MAD — Pictures they should have yet? Sorry, but that's not the way life works. People don't need pictures to draw conclusions.

It's your reputation that's on the block, not Billy's. If you are concerned about what your neighbors think you'd better cook your own breakfast, Toots.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I've been going with a very fine young man for several months. I'll call him Gilbert although that is not his real name. I'd like your opinion on whether my mother is right or wrong in her criticism of him.

Gilbert had dinner with our family last night and we all got along well, as usual.

After he left my mother said, "Gilbert is such a fine boy, it's too bad he doesn't have better manners." I asked her what she meant by that. Mother answered, "When you sneezed he didn't say 'God bless you'."

I had never thought of it as a matter of manners. My mother insists that people who are well brought up never fail to say "God bless you" when someone dear to them sneezes. Is she right or wrong? — IN DOUBT.

DEAR IN — She's wrong. The practice of blessing sneezers reaches far back into history, its origins lie in superstitutions. Whether or not a person says "Gesundheit" has nothing to do with manners—it's a habit usually picked up at an early age.

If you'd like Gilbert to acquire the habit, simply tell him. I'm an old Gesundheiter from way back because that's the way it was in our family.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband has a niece who will be 14 years old in November. Rita is our godchild and since we have no children of our own we feel especially close to her.

We remember Rita with a birthday gift every year. We also send her a Christmas gift and something for Easter. When she was confirmed we gave her a cheque for her college fund.

The girl has yet to drop us a line or make a telephone call to say "Thank you." When we come to her house her mother gives her a poke in the ribs and Rita blurts out, "Thanks for the present." I've told my husband I think it's terrible. He says she is too young to know better. What do you say? — AUNT A.

DEAR AUNT A — Rita's mother is nudging her several years too late. Children should be taught to acknowledge gifts as soon as they learn to speak and write.

If you want to do Rita a favor sit down with her and tell her what her mother should have told her years ago.

What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits — the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Sex — Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Susanna's Family Fare

MORE THAN SEVERAL

Want to revel in a revelation? Here's one from Mrs. Rodgers. She discloses the secret of certain gracious hostesses and how they are always able to produce a tempting assortment of goodies to serve with tea or coffee no matter who pops in, on short notice:

Dear Susanna: Each time one does a baking — cake, cookies, bars, squares, brownies — remove two or three pieces from each batch, wrap well, mark contents and date clearly, and tuck them away in the freezing compartment. When company calls you will always have a delicious variety to fill a plate. — Mrs. H. A. Rodgers.

WHACKING METHOD

Dear Susanna: Don't mark the edges of the pages of the books in your library by smearing the dust on them with a cloth. Try using my whacking method.

With a closed book in each hand, go whack, whack together and watch the dust fly. I'm really serious. — K. Benton, Librarian

MILKY WAY

Dear Susanna: Another reason I prefer adding whole milk instead of water to my cake mixes is that the finished product has a bit of a tender, fine, "crust" all over the top and sides. I assume this is the result of the milk cooking at the surface.'

The advantage here is, if you merely wish to eat it plain or with butter, this "crust" acts like a "skin" and keeps the cake fairly well intact.

If one is icing the cake as usual, this fine thin coating resists crumbling so that the icing spreads smoothly without pulling away small hunks of cake onto the knife as you go. — Mrs. T. Watson

Pinch Hitting

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Probably the most pleasant surprise this agent received during a recent two-week holiday was the story announcing that a five-team Junior "B" Hockey League had been organized in this area.

The new grouping, which includes Belleville, Kingston, Peterborough, Trenton and Oshawa, could be the answer to more than one problem.

Most certainly the district's "C" clubs, such as Gananoque, Napanee, Picton and likely Cobourg will be happy to hear that they do not have to face the usually-more powerful "B" squads all winter long. Gananoque, for sure, will jump for joy, at least if the club has the same management as in recent years.

Kingston and Peterborough should have little trouble in securing contending clubs and although Oshawa will be back in Junior "B" hockey for the first time in some years, the same goes for there.

Trenton has been talking "B" hockey for several seasons and with their strong Junior "C", Juvenile and Midget clubs to begin with, that centre is also capable of icing a good representative.

Here in the Quinte city, Gordie Bell and his fellow junior workers hope to pick up where they left off last spring, with a young but fast-improving club that ousted Peterborough and showed well against Kingston.

Bench strength would appear to be the problem, although we are merely guessing at this point in the season. The "B's" could put six men on the ice as strong as any other club in the district last year—but from there on they were outclassed.

Desire and co-operation towards a strong team effort, plus a few new faces in key spots, can give Belleville a contending junior hockey team once again.

And the fans showed they were ready for just that during the loop playoffs last spring.

Most of the players from the 1964-65 squad are still in the junior age bracket and this will give the locals a good start. There is a question as to how much help will be available from the minor system since a number of last year's juniors were then the pick of the minors.

However, minor hockey improved greatly here last winter and barring offers from the pros, Junior "A", or U.S. colleges which would skim away the cream of the crop, Belleville junior teams can look forward to strong local talent in the not-too-distant future.

Having not yet approached Bell on the subject, we do not know for sure whether plans call for any import help or not this season. However we doubt it.

The Juniors may wind up looking around for another strong goalkeeper if a report from Napanee proves true. Wayne Brant, the Deseronto youngster who did such a tremendous job for Belleville when picked up part-way through the season last year, has been invited to the Niagara Falls Flyers' Junior "A" camp.

Coach Bell was hoping to have Brant back here this winter but the odds now are against it. A good all-round athlete, with a personality to match, Brant could easily catch a spot with the Flyers or at least one of their farm teams. However, if he stays in "B" hockey, the locals are hoping to see him in a Belleville uniform.

Bob Moon is another strong candidate for net-minding honors here, if he can lick himself and come up with an all-out effort for the team. He most certainly has the ability but like a couple of his mates, must concentrate on what's best for the club as a whole—at all times—to do the job.

As we said, it's pretty early yet to start guessing but we look for an improved team in this city and a better group overall in which to play.

* * *

A little late in coming perhaps, since the team accomplished the feat some weeks back, but none-the-less sincere, is our congratulations to the City Hotel squad of the Commercial Softball League.

City took command of the eight-team Commercial league lead right from the start and clinched the pennant in classy fashion. They compiled a sparkling record of 26 wins against a lonely pair of defeats.

The club, strong in every department, may get plenty of competition during post-season playoffs, but no one can erase that excellent regular-season record.

Congratulations boys.

Lema Scores 279 * * * * * * * * * * Palmer Charge Fails

Champagne Tony Pops Victory Cork

SUTTON, Mass. (AP)—Champagne Tony Lema gave himself a little lecture as he stood on the 16th green Monday. Today he valued the speech at $35,000 for it helped him capture first prize in the $200,800 Carling World Golf championship.

Lema withstood a patented charge by Arnold Palmer Monday to win the world's richest golf tournament, fashioning a 34-36-70 over the par 36-35-71 Pleasant Valley Country Club course.

Palmer, who had tied Lema as late as the 69th hole, blew the lead himself going one over par on the 16th and 17th greens to wind up with a 34-35—69 and a second place total of 281.

Joe Campbell holed a 12-foot birdie putt on the 18th green, taking third place with a 282, slipping past 53-year-old Sam Snead and U.S. Open champion Gary Player who had 283 totals.

Dave Marr, the Professional Golfers' Association champion, was a stroke further back with Homero Blancas, the third round co - leader with Lema. Blancas, bothered by a bad back, ballooned to a 39-36-75.

Nick Weslock of Toronto fired a final-round 76 to finish as low amateur with a 72-hole total of 296.

George Knudson of Toronto carded a 78 for 293, good enough for $840, while Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg picked up $795 for his 294. Homenuik, who tied the course record of 67 Sunday, shot a 79 Monday.

Lema indicated he was feeling the pressure of Palmer's charge.

"I was loose enough 'till I hit the greens," he said, "then I could feel the pressure."

He said he was concerned until he heard that Palmer, playing in a threesome just ahead of him, went one over on the 17th hole.

"I told myself then, 'You're a fool if you blow it now.'"

Playing it cautiously, Lema used two putts to get down from 25 feet and register a par on the 183-yard hole. He got a lucky break on the next hole when his second shot was too long, but hit the gallery and bounced back on the green about 30 feet from the cup.

The victory raised Lema's 1956 earnings to $98,016. Palmer earned $17,000 for second place, giving golf's all-time top winner $44,712 this year.

Pre-tournament favorite Jack Nicklaus shot his best round on the final day, a 70, but he finished in an eight-way tie for 38th place at 291. He earned $945, leaving him with $786 to go to break Palmer's 1963 record earnings of $128,230.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Ten-Inning Duel

Bloomfield Nips Juniors 2-1

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

An error, walk and a bloop single scored a lone run in the tenth inning and gave Bloomfield a nip and tuck 2 - 1 win over Ellis Juniors, before a good crowd, in the first of the B. and D. Softball League finals here last night.

Second game in the four-of-seven titular set will be played at Picton on Wednesday night, at eight o'clock.

Pitchers Ken DeMille and Bob Ethier hooked up in a tight duel throughout, featured by several close plays at the plate, in which errors played a key roll in every scoring play.

Bloomfield broke a scoreless tie with one in the sixth. Weese hit a one-out double to set up the play. Stacey slammed a long ball to left centre which Soule chased a mile to pull down. Weese tried to score from second after the catch. The relay in reached Muirhead, covering home, in time to get the man but the ball got loose and it was 1 - 0 on the bobble.

Ellis' tied it in the eighth. Gardiner lashed a double to left and wound up on third when the throw in got through Weese. He scored, after one was out, on a passed ball.

In the tenth, Lockwood reached base on Ethier's misplay and MacDonald drew a walk with one out. St. Denis popped a ball down the first base line, just out of reach, and Lockwood raced in from second with the winning run.

Back in the first, Moon was called out at home in a close inning-ending double play started by a dropped third strike. The same player was out at third in the fourth when he overran third after stealing the base. The Juniors did not get too many other good scoring chances.

Leo St. Denis of Bloomfield was also cut down at home in a bang-bang play in the eighth.

DeMille gave up only four hits over the route and blazed third strikes past 17. He did not walk a batter.

Ethier allowed just five hits and issued two free tickets. He got 15 strikeout victims.

No player in the game had more than one hit. For Bloomfield, Ron Weese had a double, Keith MacDonald, Leo St. Denis, Ken DeMille and Dave Lockwood a single apiece.

Don Gardiner rapped a two-bagger for Ellis'. Bob Moon, Stu Muirhead and Bob Ethier collected the other base knocks.

Plate umpire Les Barton tossed Belleville's Wayne Woods out of the game in the bottom of the third. Woods appeared to swing at a pitch that struck him on the arm, started for first, was called back by the official and was ejected during an exchange of words that followed.

Bloomfield — MacDonald 1b; L. St. Denis ss; Weese 3b; C. Stacey cf; DeMille p; Carson rf; K. Stacey 2b; Guernsey c; Lockwood lf.

Ellis Jrs.—Moon c; J. St. Denis cf, ss; Chatland 3b; Muirhead 1b; Ethier p; Gardiner 2b; Rutherford rf; Woods ss; Soule lf; Boyle cf.

Umpires—Les Barton (P); Austin Watkin (1b) and Bruce Nickle (3b). Time: 1.41.

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP)—Robert Puddicombe of Vancouver and Donald McCormick of Victoria extended Americans Ted Russell and Steve Wilkinson before losing 7-5, 11-13, 6-2, 8-6 Monday in the first round of the U.S. national doubles tennis championships.

Lightfoots Top Trudeaus In Exhibition

A five run outburst in the sixth inning gave Lightfoot Construction a convincing 5-1 win over Trudeau Motors in an exhibition contest played at Prince Charles School last night.

The winners had been shut out for the first five frames by Trudeau pitcher Bill Baldwin, but Trudeaus had managed only a single tally off George Young to compensate. Baldwin fanned ten and walked none, Young whiffed three and walked two.

Jack Gilbey and Don Smith led Lightfoot's offence with a double and two singles respectively. The rest of the hits were singles, with Rusty Garvin, Don Wood, Doug Rose, and George Young sharing them. Four of the hits came in the sixth.

Rickey Locke led the losers at the plate with a pair of doubles, and Paul Zakos and Bill Baldwin added base - hits.

Batteries: Baldwin and Baker; Young and Wood.

Trudeaus: 001 000 0 1-4-1

Marichal Gets Eight Games, Big Fine

Clubs Unhappy

By ED SCHUYLER JR

PITTSBURGH (AP) — An apologetic Juan Marichal, ace of the San Francisco Giants' pitching staff, is out of action until Sept. 1 and out of pocket $1,750 for hitting Los Angeles catcher John Roseboro over the head with a bat.

And the Giants might be out of a pennant.

The fine—highest ever levied by either major league — and an eight-day suspension were announced Monday.

National League president Warren Giles called Marichal's action in Sunday's game at San Francisco "unprovoked," "obnoxious" and "repugnant."

"It was the toughest decision I've had to make in the 14 years I've been league president, because the pennant is at stake," Giles said.

Marichal said in the dressing room before the Giants' 6-2 loss to Pittsburgh Monday night: "I'm sorry I hit him with the bat and I want to apologize for that."

Giant manager Herman Franks said he thought the league's action against his 19-game winner "was a little too quick."

WOULD 'MURDER' CLUB

Before the suspension was announced, Franks had said the loss of Marichal for any period "would murder the club" in its fight for the pennant. Marichal will miss at least two turns and his loss will disrupt the Giants' pitching rotation.

In telling his side of the story for the first time, Marichal said:

"The second pitch from Sandy Koufax was in tight. Roseboro dropped it on purpose so he could get close to me. He threw it back to the pitcher faster than I've ever seen a catcher throw it back. His throw nicked me on the ear.

"I turned around and looked down at him and asked: 'Why did you do that?'"

"He took his mask off, held it in his hand and started toward me.

"I thought he was going to get me. I didn't want to get hit with the mask and that's when I hit him with the bat."

'I DON'T CARE'

Earlier, Roseboro, who suffered a two-inch cut on the top of his scalp, said "I don't care what they do to him. I don't have any feelings about it at all. As far as I'm concerned it's all over and done with."

As to whether he threw the pitch close to Marichal's head intentionally, Roseboro said:

"That could be. It might have come close to him. But I didn't think it did. Actually I took one step toward him and then he hit me with the bat."

Giles, who was in New York, instructed his office in Cincinnati to send a telegram to Marichal which said in part:

"Such actions are harmful to the game, have no place in sports and must be dealt with drastically. For your actions you are suspended for eight scheduled dates, Aug. 23 through Aug. 31, and fined the sum of $1,750, payable by you and not your club prior to game time Sept. 1.

"If advanced by the club, it is to be deducted from your salary. . . ."

The Los Angeles Dodgers, to a man, bitterly denounced Giles' ruling, charging the punishment was "much too lenient."

"Marichal should have been suspended at least for the rest of the season," said outfielder Wally Moon, the Dodgers' player representative.

"Marichal should have been barred from baseball for life," declared outfielder Ron Fairly.

Grab Second Place

Stampeders Whip Eskimos 20-4

By JOHN SHORT

EDMONTON (CP)—A casual visitor to both dressing rooms after Calgary Stampeders defeated Edmonton Eskimos Monday night might have had trouble determining which coach was the winner.

Jerry Williams of the Stampeders was unhappy over the number of chances his club missed, although their 20-4 triumph pushed them one point ahead of Saskatchewan Roughriders for second place in the Western Football Conference.

Undefeated Winnipeg Blue Bombers are first.

Neill Armstrong of the Eskimos was pleased with the improvement of his club's defence, although Edmonton now has lost five games in a row and apparently is headed for elimination from the race for a playoff spot.

"People will be telling us we're out of the playoffs," Armstrong said.

"I don't believe we're eliminated yet, because we're only three points behind British Columbia (Lions) and I'm sure B.C. isn't out of it.

DEFENCE IMPROVING

"We have to start winning though. Our defence is improving so maybe we can start winning. If our offence starts to come along, we can be close."

Calgary fullback Lovell Coleman scored two touchdowns and gained 156 yards on the ground, Larry Robinson added a field goal and a convert and Jim Furlong booted two singles. A fourth - quarter safety - touch provided the other Calgary points.

Tommy-Joe Coffey kicked a field goal and a single for Edmonton.

The Stampeders led 4-0 after the first quarter, 11-3 at the half and 12-4 after three quarters.

An apparent Calgary touchdown by Ted Woods early in the first quarter was nullified by a holding penalty.

OPTIMISM BORNE OUT

Armstrong's optimism over his defensive corps was borne out by Calgary's 16 first downs and 344 yards in total offence.

Coleman accounted for the majority of 232 yards rushing and quarterback Eagle Day was good on eight of 15 passes for 112 yards.

Edmonton settled for 10 first downs, six rushing and four passing. Three quarterbacks—starter Jon Anabo, Randy Kerbow and Bill Redell—managed 12 pass completions in 24 attempts for 126 yards.

An interception of Anabo's pass by Furlong led to Coleman's first touchdown. The Stampeder linebacker carried to the Edmonton 42 and five plays later Coleman barged across from the 10.

Coleman's final touchdown came on a one-yard burst late in the game, after Calgary linebacker Don Stephenson had dumped Kerbow for a safety touch to give Stamps a 14-4 lead.

Former Stampeder Jesse Branch made his Edmonton debut. A defensive specialist, he played in the offensive backfield because of injuries to other players and caught three passes in three attempts for 39 yards.

Bowl-O-Drome Bruins took the Tyke East Hill Championship by defeating the Canadians 21-14, in the B.M.S.A. playoffs. The Bruins will now go on to play for the city finals, against the winners on the West Hill.

Last night the Kinsmen Bobcats trounced the Wings 18-6 to take a 1-0 lead in the best-of-three West Hill finals.

Next Monday the same two teams will meet at Queen Mary, at 6.15 p.m.

TEAM GETS NAME

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Houston's new hockey club will be known as the Apollos, general manager Jerry Delise announced Monday. The club is a farm team of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League and a member of the Central Hockey League. The season will run from Oct. 21 to March 31.

Lombanks Beaten 3-2 In Eleven

Winning pitcher Phil Litchfield tripled in the winning run in the 11th inning as Sunbury nipped Tweed Lombanks 3 - 2 at Sydenham last night.

Sunbury's victory knotted the two-of-three OASA Intermediate "C" playdowns series at one game each.

Deciding game of the series will be played on Wednesday night, likely at Napanee.

Lombanks twice came from behind to tie the score and force extra innings in the low-hitting, tight contest.

Sunbury scored one in the third but Tweed tied it in the top of the fourth on Gray's double and an error. The visitors came back for another in their half of the frame for a 2 - 1 lead. That lasted until Eldon Gray came to the plate for Tweed again, in the sixth, and smashed a home run.

An error in the 11th frame put Thompson on base and Litchfield clouted his triple to end the game.

Litchfield fired five-hit ball over the distance, all of them extra base hits, while striking out 11 and walking three.

Blaine Healey made his first start since being released from the hospital on the Tweed mound. He left in the third in favor of Joe Barrons who completed the job. They allowed just four hits between them, fanning ten. Healey gave up seven of the nine free passes.

Errors were costly with Tweed committing three and Sunbury one.

Phil Litchfield had a single to go with his winning triple and the only other Sunbury hits were one-baggers by R. Clark.

Eldon Gray homered and doubled for Tweed, Paul Meraw hit a triple and Terry and Ray LeSage each added a two-bagger.

CNR FIREMEN 3 — LION'S CLUB 2

C.N.R. Firemen met head-on with the defending champion Lion's Club last night and emerged with a narrow 3-2 win and the Tyke West Hill championship. The winners now go on to meet DeMille Construction to decide the city championship.

John Mulvihill bested Ron McTaggart in last night's pitching battle.

Mulvihill whiffed 18 and walked one, giving up three singles.

McTaggart struck out 12 while walking three and giving up five hits.

Terry Ray paced the winners at the plate with three singles. Mulvihill and Danny Lupenette got the other hits.

Don and Ron McTaggart took care of all the hitting for the losers, with Don slamming a pair of singles.

PARK DALE 8 — BARRIAGE LANDSCAPERS 4

Park Dale Ratepayers advanced into the finals in the Bantam division last night as a result of their 8 - 4 win over Barriage Landscapers. They took the series in two straight, and will meet the winner of the Mead Johnston - Jaycee series, which opens tonight.

Jim Wood and Ted Shaw combined to hurl a three-hit victory. They whiffed eight and walked six.

Wayne Farrell, Hubert Hicks and Brian Coughlin shared the loser's chore, and were tagged for 11 hits, while striking out 11 and walking seven.

Jim Wood, Kevin Allen, Damon Richardson and Barry Burnette rapped out a pair of safeties each for the Ratepayers. Ted Shaw, Ed Christopher and Pope slapped singles.

Dwayne Edgar stroked a pair of base hits, and Hubert Hicks added another for the losers.

BODY MOVEMENT MOTIVATES ARMS

I firmly believe that most golfers would improve immensely if they would apply the following truth to their swings:

"The movement of the body motivates the action of the arms, and the hands do no more than grip the club firmly."

To put this maxim into practice, practice the following drill daily for one week.

First, address an imaginary ball with your upper arms and elbows "glued" to your sides, as in No. 1.

Second, with your arms stiff, allow your body to backswing so that your hands reach about one-half their normal backswing height (No. 2). Note that the upper arms are still tight against your body.

Three, swing through to about one-half of your normal follow-through — still with upper arms close to your body.

Repeat this swing back and forth about 10 times.

This drill will give you the idea of how your body influences your swing. You will soon develop a "one-piece" swing in which arms and body and legs work as a unit. You will learn to better utilize the big power-producing muscles of your legs and body.

Letter to the Sports Editor

During the past week there has been considerable controversy over incidents that have taken place in the Belleville and District Softball League. In particular, there has been much discussion over the fifth game of the Belleville Ellis Juniors - Tweed Lombanks series.

Regardless of reports or statements that have been made in the past few days, the action taken by the secretary of the Belleville and District Softball League was in the best interest of the league and all parties concerned.

The league executive will support any and all of its officials if it is in the best interest of our game of softball.

At an executive meeting of our league last evening, the league secretary, Mr. Belch, received the full support of the executive members present in regards to action taken to discontinue the services of umpires A. Kelleher and H. Bawden for the remainder of the 1965 season.

Yours in softball,
Frank Insley,
Belleville and District Softball Leauge President,
10 Bobcage Street,
Trenton.

(Editor's note) — Mr. Bawden and Mr. Kelleher attended part of the meeting last evening. Mr. Bawden said at the conclusion of the meeeting that he was handing in his resignation as vice - president of the Belleville and District Softball League. All members of the league executive attended the meeting.

Indian Pitchers Fight

Birds End Sox Streak; Twins Top Yanks

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The left side of Jack Kralick's face is swollen from a two-punch fist fight with team-mate Gary Bell, but the Cleveland Indians' left-hander salvaged a day's pay by starting Monday night's game against Los Angeles Angels just hours after his cheek was stitched together.

Once on the mound, however, Kralick came apart at the seams.

Before three innings were over, Kralick was gone, charged with six hits, six runs, a wild pitch and a throwing error as the Angels romped to an 8-2 victory.

The fight took place in a Washington hotel room Sunday after the two pitchers, who are room-mates, returned from dinner. Both admitted they were joking around and kidding each other.

"One word was said and bam — Jack jumped up and swung," Bell said. "So I swung, too."

Cleveland manager Birdie Tebbetts said there would be no fines unless the two pitchers were unable to work when he called on them. If they were unable to pitch he said he would dock them a day's pay until they could.

Then he went ahead and started Kralick against the Angels.

Meanwhile, Minnesota Twins stretched their American League lead to 7½ games by edging New York Yankees 4-3 in 10 innings, while Baltimore Orioles nipped second - place Chicago 2-1 in 12 innings and ended the White Sox' 10-game winning streak.

Kansas City Athletics defeated Detroit Tigers 4-3 in the only other scheduled game.

Jimmy Piersall did enough damage to win it for the Angels, driving in three runs with two doubles and a single in support of rookie Marcelino Lopez, who won his 14th.

The Twins, trailing 3-2 after Clete Boyer's two-run homer in the seventh, tied the score in the ninth on a single by Zollo Versalles and Tony Oliva's double. They won it in the 10th against reliever Jim Bouton on two walks and a single by Jerry Kindall.

The Orioles and White Sox were locked in a duel until the 12th when Brooks Robinson drew a walk off Hoyt Wilhelm and scored on Curt Blefary's triple. Baltimore starter Steve Barber left for a pinch hitter in the ninth after allowing just four hits and Chicago starter Juan Pizarro left in the 11th after surrendering only seven hits.

Ken Harrelson's solo homer in the sixth inning brought the Athletics their victory. The Athletics scored three runs in the first two innings but the Tigers came back to tie the score in the third on a three-run homer by Gates Brown.

Law Bests Spahn

Giants Beaten; Dodgers, Braves Win

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Vern Law, Pittsburgh Pirates' hard-throwing pitcher, tumbled San Francisco Giants into third place in the tight National League pennant race Monday night by taming them 6-2 with a six-hitter.

The Giants barely had begun to miss pitcher Juan Marichal, slapped with a $1,750 fine and eight - game suspension by league president Warren Giles for his bat-swinging tantrum in San Francisco the day before, when Law collared them for the fourth time in four tries this year.

Law, with a 15-9 record to date, could match his 1960 high of 20 victories this year.

The Pirates handed Warren Spahn his 15th loss as Roberto Clemente and Gene Alley each rapped four hits, Clemente boosting his league-leading batting figure to .340.

San Francisco Giants dropped 1½ games behind first - place Los Angeles Dodgers, who whipped New York Mets 8-4, and one game behind Milwaukee Braves, who regained second spot with a 7-6 victory over Cincinnati Reds. In the other game scheduled, St. Louis Cardinals trounced Chicago Cubs 10-2.

Clemente drove in the two runs with a first-inning triple and fifth-inning single before the Pirates broke it open with a four-run seventh, Manny Mota singling across the lead run.

Ron Fairly capped a five-run rally in the fifth inning with a three-run homer and singled another run home in the seventh as the Dodgers overpowered the Mets behind a shaky Don Drysdale. Drysdale gave up 11 hits and needed help from Bob Mil-17th victory of the season.

Milwaukee scored four runs in the fifth, two on Gene Oliver's 17th homer and two on a single by Felipe Alou, for a 7-1 lead over the Reds. Cincinnati rallied for five in the seventh, knocking out winner Ken Johnson, as Pete Rose hit a two-run triple and John Edwards a two-run homer.

Curt Flood drove in four runs with two singles and a double and Bill White lashed a single, double and triple good for three runs batted in as the Cardinals battered ex - teammate Larry Jackson and the Cubs. Cur Simmons picked up his ninth victory against 11 losses by spacing 10 hits, including a ninth-inning homer by Chris Krug.

PONDERS COMEBACK—Middleweight Wilf Greaves cocks his fist in anticipation of a comeback as he studies boxing photos and records during a visit with his parents in Edmonton. Greaves, 29, retired two years ago but says he is planning a comeback. He won the British Empire and Canadian middleweight championships during his eight-year pro career. (CP Photo)

Scarred, Perhaps Wiser Boxer Wilf Greaves Plans Comeback

By JOHN SHORT

EDMONTON (CP) — Ten years ago Wilf Greaves of Edmonton carried unlimited ambition and a British Empire Games boxing championship into a ring at Syracuse, N.Y., for his first professional bout.

Today he carries scars around both eyes, a disfigured nose, puffed lips, and a hope that the middleweight division is less rugged than when he retired two years ago.

"I want a few tuneup fights," he said in an interview while in Edmonton to visit his parents.

"Then I want to fight Blair Richardson in the Maritimes to get my middleweight title back.

"When I get the title again, I'll take a few fights just to make money; then I'll retire for good. I don't really need the money, although I have some debts. I just want to fight again. I like to fight."

Greaves, 29, retired after he stopped Ronnie Jones of Montreal in the 10th round at Montreal Sept. 5, 1963.

He stepped out of the ring with a record of having been hit by all the leading punchers in the middleweight division. His assailants include former champions Ray Robinson, Dick Tiger and Gene Fullmer and current champion Joey Giardello.

Since retiring, Greaves has held several jobs. He now is employed in a machine-shop in Detroit.

Greaves won 36 fights, lost 25 and had two draws. He won by knockout 20 time and was stopped on even occasions. He drew few big purses and lost much of his savings through investments that went bad.

His record is dotted mainly with persistence. He lost to Robinson and Fullmer twice each and was beaten three times by Giardello. He split two matches with Tiger in Edmonton for the British Empire middleweight title in 1960.

"I never ducked anybody," Greaves said, "and I never backed away from anybody."

Some boxing observers say Greaves entered professional boxing with the potential of a champion. Many, including Greaves, regret he received little time to develop his skills.

"If I had it to do again, I'd take it slower.

"I think my manager (the late Jake Mintz, who managed Ezzard Charles to a world heavyweight crown) figured I was unbeatable. He thought I was a middleweight Charles.

"He had a few blind spots, I guess."

Greaves' first downward step occurred in 1956 in his 13th pro bout. He lost to Ralph (Tiger) Jones in his first crack at a ranking middleweight.

After that, Greaves fought almost every middleweight in the business. He was knocked out for the first time by Eduardo Lausse in 1960 and later by Tiger, Giardello, Robinson, Rocky Rivero, Richardson and Italian middleweight ace Sandro Mazzinghi.

The knockout by Tiger came four months after Greaves captured the British Empire championship in 1960. The fight, a thriller, was marred by an officiating mixup in which two officials presented their cards several times each before Greaves was awarded a split decision.

He lasted to the ninth round in the rematch.

Greaves won the vacant Canadian championship from Cobey McCluskey in Windsor, Ont., in 1958 and defended it against Leroy Flamond in Calgary the next year before running into Richardson.

A solid body attack carried Greaves to a victory in their first of three fights but Richardson won the next two.

Greaves, whose wife and two children were home in Warren, Mich., near Detroit, said he has received many suggetions that he would be wise to remain retired.

"Even my manager (C. W. Smith of Detroit) has made me promise to quit if he gives the word.

"But I feel good and I'd like to prove I can fight. I got knocked out a few times and cut a few times, but I haven't taken any bad beatings.

"I wouldn't have quit the first time except everybody told me I should."

Kingston Whips Belleville Tennis Team

Kingston scored an impressive 13-2 victory over Belleville in the opening round of the two-game series for the Doug Grant Trophy, at the Kingston Tennis Club, over the weekend.

Return play is slated for the Belleville courts next weekend.

Belleville's ony two victories were registered by Bill Redquest and David Hurst.

Redquest scored a well-earned decision over one of Kingston's top players in a hard-fought three-setter.

Hurst showed much of his old form with a fast attack at the net to win in straight sets.

James Hurst and Donald Desaulniers were other Quinte players who came close to winning over the more active Kingston players.

Other members of the Belleville team are Mike Black, Tim Cook, Tom Woodley, Doug Grant, Bill Moffat and Bill Latchford.

Peterborough Peewees Win In CNE Tourney

TORONTO (CP) — Larry Gould handcuffed North Toronto with a four-hitter and provided all the needed manpower at the plate Monday in pitching Newmarket to a 9-2 win to kick off the 1965 Canadian National Exhibition's annual peewee baseball tournament.

Gould struck out 20 and hit a double and a home run to drive in three runs.

In other play, Welland edged Brantford 7-6, Peterborough downed Owen Sound 6-4 and Niagara Falls defeated Penetanguishene 9-3.

Bill Nagy, tagged for 10 hits, got the win over Gene Neziol in the Welland - Brantford game. Roger Toutin homered and doubled for the winners and Mark Stables connected for a two-run Brantford homer.

Doug McFadden's two hits sparked Peterborough and Jeff Gillmore's clutch pitching in relief of Danny Sullivan saved the game. Terry Keely, of Owen Sound was the game's top hitter with four singles.

Jets, Leafs Suffer Setbacks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was a tough night for the International League pennant contenders Monday as the first-place Columbus Jets dropped a 4-1 decision to Atlanta Crackers and the runner-up Toronto Maple Leafs lost 5-1 to Rochester Red Wings.

In other league action, Buffalo Bisons, currently in last place, jolted Syracuse Chiefs' playoff hopes by sweeping a doubleheader 10-5 and 7-5 from the fourth-place club. The game between Toledo Mud Hens and Jacksonville Suns was postponed because of wet grounds.

Dick Kelley limited the Jets to four hits and struck out 12 to move Atlanta within 3½ games of the league lead.

The Jets maintained their one-game advantage over Toronto as Frank Bertaina threw a five-hitter at the Leafs. Steve Demeter raised his league-leading rbi total to 85 by driving in two Rochester runs. Mike Ryan spoiled Bertaina's shutout attempt with a ninth-inning homer.

The Chiefs had their margin over fifth-place Jacksonville cut to two games as the lowly Bisons struck for two four-run innings in the first game and had home runs from Bob Taylor and Choo Choo Coleman in the nightcap.

Vancouver Bowlers Undefeated

EDMONTON (CP)—Two of the leading names in Canadian lawn bowling, Sandy Houston and Dickie Williams of Vancouver, remained undefeated Monday after the first day of the 1965 Canadian championships.

Houston, British Columbia singles champ, posted triumphs over Nova Scotia, Saskatchewan and Alberta to capture first place after three draws in the three-day round-robin competition.

Williams and his fours entry drew a second-round bye but earned a first-place tie with Quebec on the strength of victories over Saskatchewan and Ontario.

Leader of the pairs competition after the first day was the Manitoba tandem skipped by Tom Griffith of St. Boniface. Griffith and mate Ed Brown downed Ontario, Saskatchewan and B.C. for a perfect record.

Williams took a 23-13 victory over the Ontario four led by Don Beaupit of Niagara Falls.

BEATS MANITOBAN

In one first-round singles match, Ontario champ John Sciamonte of St. Catharines defeated Manitoba ace Stan Townsend of Winnipeg 21-7.

Sciamonte took a 21-13 defeat from Quebec representative Bill Groves of Verdun in the second round.

In second-round doubles, the Ontario pair was battered 30-13 by British Columbia. Ontario edged Saskatchewan 22-13 in the third round.

CHISOX BUY FREESE

CHICAGO (AP) — Infielder Gene Freese was bought from the National League Pittsburgh Pirates Monday by Chicago White Sox of the American League for a price in excess of the $20,000 waiver tag. Freese, 31, appeared in 43 games this season for the Pirates, batting .263 and driving in eight runs in 80 times at the plate.

Coach Voices Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Track coach William J. Bill Bowerman of the University of Oregon has told investigating senators that one United States amateur athlete secretly received an "airplane bag full" of money to compete in a track meet in Ireland. He did not estimate how much the money totalled.

Bowerman said "one of our own Oregon athletes" was offered an automobile as an inducement to compete in a meet sponsored by the Amateur Athletic Union but turned down the gift.

Such payments and gifts are strictly forbidden by amateur rules.

At the committee's request, Bowerman gave no names in this or later testimony. But he agreed to give the committee in confidence names, dates and other data.

He made the allegations Monday to bolster his assertion that the National Collegiate Athletic Association is justified in demanding the right to give or withhold its sanction for college athletes to compete in AAU meets. The NCAA has been boycotting AAU competition as a device to force agreement to its demands for co-sanctioning rights for meets in which college and non-college stars compete.

AAU RECIPROCATES

The AAU, on the other hand, reportedly is boycotting meets staged by NCAA's U.S. Track and Field Federation.

The rival boycotts are backed by threats to bar from competition athletes who defy the orders.

Bowerman testified at the start of the second week of hearings in which the Senate commerce committee is trying to determine whether the careers of young amateurs may be hurt by the ju[illegible]tional battle, whether it impairs U.S. hopes in the 1968 Olympic Ga[illegible] and whether legislation is [illegible]d to restore the peace.

AAU officials get their chance to testify today, with NCAA officials scheduled to follow Wednesday.

O.K. Crackerby Will Be First Series for Ives

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Walter Brennan, playing the richest man in California in an ABC comedy series last season, ordered an assistant to buy the airline when he was unable to get a plane reservation.

Burle Ives, playing the richest man in the world in a new ABC comedy series this season, will order an assistant to buy a hotel when he is unable to get the accommodations he wants.

Brennan's Tycoon, unfortunately, lived but a single season. The lovable, foxy hillbilly of all those seasons of The Real McCoys just didn't identify with the lovable, foxy millionaire.

Ives, ABC's new model of the lovable, foxy millionaire, is under no such handicap. He first achieved fame as a folk singer, then moved on to a stellar Broadway and motion picture career as an actor with a range from tragedy to comedy. Most important, O.K. Crackerby will be his first television series.

While Brennan's diamond-in-the-rough tycoon spent the season hankering for the good old days when he was poor, anonymous and struggling, Ives' will be concentrating on social climbing and culture. The idea of the series belongs to Cleveland Amory, a proper Bostonian whose writing specialty is the surgical dissection of high and pseudo - high society. The first script was put together by Abe Burrows, who wrote the book for How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying.

LITTLE MAN APPEAL

"But the execution of the series," Ives explained, "was turned over to the Hollywood professionals."

This may forbode the usual tired format of a series, but Ives believes that his character will strike the Walter Mitty chord in the average person, cowed and helplessly angered when encountering arrogance.

"He puts snobs in their place," the bearded, round - faced actor said. "You know how people are treated by maitre d'hotels, head waiters, petty officials, clerks in snitzy stores —any of these cats who like to push people around."

Faloney Passing Leader

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Veteran quarterback Bernie Faloney has taken over the leadership in the Eastern Football Conference passing department from Ottawa Rough Rider quarterback Russ Jackson after a pair of games last week.

Faloney, who engineered Montreal Alouettes to a 20-0 victory over Toronto Argonauts last Wednesday, has the worst record for pass interceptions with six, but leads in completions with 22, yards gained with 328 and average gain with 7.3 yards. He is second in percentage of passes completed with 49.0.

Jackson, a victim of Hamilton Tiger-Cats' 27-1 triumph over Ottawa last Saturday night, leads in touchdown passes with four and is second in the three departments led by Faloney. Jackson has had five passes intercepted.

The Argonauts' Dave Thelen advanced to fifth place in rushing with 124 yards in 27 carries. The former Ottawa star now has rushed for 7,040 yards in his career, more than any other active EFC player. Toronto teammate Dick Shatto is his closest rival with 6,637 yards.

SCOTT HIGH RUSHER

Bo Scott of Ottawa continued to hold the rushing lead last week with 197 yards in 34 carries, but Hamilton's Willie Bethea has carried 29 times for 148 yards while Black has 147 yards in 24 carries. The Ticats' Art Baker is fourth with 37 carries for 128 yards.

Stan Crisson of Hamilton increased his pass-catching lead, snaring nine passes for 115 yards. Thelen is second with seven catches for 97 yards.

Four players, Dick Cohee and Zeno Karcz of Hamilton, John Wydareny of Toronto and Larry DeGraw of Ottawa, lead in pass interceptions with two each.

The Argos' Jim Rountree held his lead in kickoff returns with 120 yards on four runbacks, Ed Learn of Montreal continued to lead in punt returns with 115 yards on 16 runbacks and Ted Watkins of Ottawa held onto his scoring lead with 18 points on three touchdowns.

Joe Zuger of the Ticats retained his punting lead, increasing his average to 47.1 yards while Dave Mann of Toronto, sporting a 44.6 average, moved into second place.

World Student Games

Swim Honors Divided

From Reuters-AP

BUDAPEST (CP) — Swimming honors were well divided Monday at the World Student Games. Gold medals were decided in five events and went to five different countries.

Hilda Zeier of Yugoslavia won the women's 400 - metre freestyle in a tremendous finish with Bep Weeteling of The Netherlands.

Marta Egervari of Hungary led from start to finish, but never by much, to win the women's 100-metre butterfly.

The men's 200-metre breaststroke was won by Japan's Osamu Tsurumine.

Britain got an unexpected gold medal in the women's platform diving, in which Joy Newman narrowly beat Poland's Boguslawa Marcinskowska.

The United States got its only gold medal of the day—but its sixth of the Games — in the men's 800-metre freestyle relay, a race in which the Japanese team faded and finished third behind the Soviet Union.

AMERICANS LEAD

The U.S. team was in the over-all lead after four days of competition with six gold medals, all in swimming and diving. Hungary had four, three in swimming and one in fencing, and Japan had three, two in gymnastics and one in swimming.

France also had three gold medals, two of them captured in fencing competition Monday. The other came in swimming.

The Russians have collected only one gold medal—in swimming. They were weaker than expected in gymnastics, in which the Japanese took both the team and individual titles.

Most of Canada's 11 athletes here are on the track and field squad, and won't see any action before Wednesday. Two Canadian swimmers, Ando Buechner and Marvin Chase of Montreal, failed to qualify for the finals in the men's 200-metre breaststroke.

CONDITION STILL CRITICAL

TORONTO (CP)—Race car driver Sam Burd of Hamilton was reported still in critical condition in hospital here Monday night following a crash at Mosport Race Track 15 miles east of Oshawa Saturday. Burd's car crashed on the 140th lap of the Sundown Grand Prix, an event he won in 1961. He suffered head and back injuries.

Old Firm Gets Wrist Slapped For Allowing Newspaper Story

TORONTO (CP)—Among Ontario's chartered accountants "publicity" is a dirty word.

And even when one of the most dignified of its members permits itself to be publicized in print it's likely to get its wrist slapped.

Clarkson, Gordon and Co., a 101 - year - old Toronto firm called "the Eton of Canadian commerce," has been solemnly reprimanded by the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Ontario.

It resulted from a lighthearted article in The Globe Magazine, a Saturday supplement of the Toronto Globe and Mail. Written by Barbara Moon, it described Clarkson, Gordon as "the unofficial but effective finishing school . . . for young men of the upper class."

It went on to mention some of the firm's famous alumni, including Finance Minister Gordon, grandson of Col. H. D. L. Gordon, a dignified, stiff-upper-lip Royal Military College graduate who, Miss Moon wrote, gave the company the tone that persists to this day.

The institute conceded that the article was initiated independently by the magazine. When approached, officers of the firm concluded the story would be written with or without their help, so they agreed to co-operate, asking that the article emphasize the accounting profession rather than Clarkson, Gordon.

It didn't turn out that way, however, and the 82-year-old institute found the firm guilty of conduct tending "to lower the standard of dignity of the profession" in failing to be guided by the "institute's general position that personal or firm publicity is to be avoided."

The institute's 20-man council imposed no penalty but urged that in future firms should decline to co - operate with the press in such cases.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Certain pleasures, desires may require special expenditures But remember resolutions concerning budget, savings program. Best to maintain program of moderation.

• • •

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you tend to be introspective. Many fail to see the "real you." Strive to be yourself. . . not an imitation of someone else.

• • •

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for Leo, Virgo, Libra. Special word to Taurus: get down to business on standing obligations. Build solid foundation for efforts.

THANK YOU . . .
FOR PAYING YOUR CARRIER PROMPTLY

Collections by your Ontario Intelligencer carrier are timed to provide you convenient service and best meet his school and study schedules. He may begin collections Thursday and complete his collections on Friday, so that he can pay for his papers on Saturday morning.

Your thoughtfulness in paying him the first time he calls to collect will encourage him in giving you prompt service. It will save him extra work for which he would receive no additional profit.
It will give him more time for school and other activities . . .

Captures Economy Run Win

MONTREAL (CP) — Charlie Mullen of suburban Chateauguay drove across more than 725 miles of Quebec and Ontario countryside to an over-all victory in an economy run for standard automobiles.

Mullen with navigator Benn Patti topped a field of 24 cars. He was in class three—cars of 2,001-to-4,000 cc—and took home laurels for private entries. He drove a 1963 Corvair Monza.

The route took in Dorion, Que., Kingston and Hull and St. Jovite, Que.

Two cars tied for runner-up laurels in the over-all picture in results announced Monday. Guy Vanden Abeele and navigator Richard Vanden Abeele brought in their 1965 Mustang in a deadlock with Pierre Lesauteur and Jow Schormann, driving a 1965 Peugeot.

Class one—for cars up to 1,300 cc—went to J. R. Peters and John Langstone, who piloted a 1965 Sunbeam.

WOMEN WIN

In the 1,301-to-2,000 cc competition, a female team turned back all opposition from the males. Nicolle Martin of Montreal teamed with Ann Coombs of Toronto for a victory in their 1965 Isuzu.

Among drivers with cars of 4,001 cc and over, the Abeeles won with their Mustang.

Run on a rally style, the junket involved conservation of fuel as the major factor in the complex formula for declaring positions.

Elaborate gasoline measurements were taken and the four replenishing points were carefully controlled.

All starters finished the run.

Green Gaels Eliminate Hastings 22-4

OSHAWA (CP) — Oshawa Green Gaels qualified for the Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A final by defeating Hastings Legionnaires 22-4 to win their best-of-five semi-final 3-0.

Oshawa opens a best-of-seven final against Mimico Mounties here Thursday night. Dates for the balance of the series will be determined by Wednesday.

Brian Thompson and Gaylord Powless each scored four goals for Oshawa Monday. John Davis, who was cut on the face by a high stick and needed eight stitches to close the wound, scored three. Ken Thompson, Ross Jones, Dwight Davies and Don Stinson added two apiece. Jim Higgs, Neil Armstrong and Larry Lloyd got the others.

Jim Grady, Ken Henderson, Bill Armour and Dan Hopcraft scored for Hastings.

Jewish Olympics

Expect U.S. Big Winner

TEL AVIV, Israel (CP-AP)—The seventh World Maccabiah Games here swing into action in earnest today with activity in 16 of the 20 programmed sports.

The United States, with a huge squad of 202 athletes, probably will start collecting gold medals in bunches as it did four years ago in these Jewish Olympics.

With the track and field not due to start until Thursday, swimming holds the spotlight. Heats and finals will be held in seven events.

Finals also will be held in four divisions of weightlifting.

Also on the program are tennis, fencing, shooting, golf, table tennis, wrestling, lawn bowling, rowing, soccer, football, cycling, basketball, volleyball, water polo and field handball.

In swimming, Canada has only two entries, both inexperienced. They are Karen Ann James, 12, of Vancouver and Paul Lottman, 17, of Toronto.

HAVE FIVE VETERANS

Canada's basketball team is well regarded here, although not considered a big threat to the favored Americans and Israelis. The Canadian team includes five veterans of past Maccabiah Games. They are Steve Rogin of Windsor, Ont., Gary Ulrich of Montreal and playing coach Ruby Richman, Mal Chessler and Marv Cohen of Toronto.

Medal chances are seen for Canada in table tennis, with Howard Grossman of Toronto, the country's third-ranked player, and in lawn tennis, where Canada is represented by Vicki Berner of Vancouver and Harry Freedhoff of Toronto. Miss Berner, with considerable international experience behind her at 21, is Canada's second-ranked woman player.

Chamber Will Sponsor Course In Accounting

PICTON (Staff) — The Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a special management accounting course this fall.

The decision was made Thursday at a special directors meeting after J. Ross Dean, representing the technological and trades training branch of the department of education, outlined the course to directors.

Mr. Dean said his department is trying to make such a course, and later other courses, available to small business men across Ontario.

While the small businessman is a most important part of our economy, he said, many go bankrupt evey year and poor management has been established as the cause in most cases.

May Place Restrictions On Stands

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County Warden, Bernard Hepburn, told Chamber of Commerce Directors here that he is going to bring up the matter of roadside stands to County Council. He said he has nothing against farmers who are selling their own produce, but a number of incidents have come to his attention where farm roadside stands are buying fruits and vegetables wholesale and then re-selling them.

"These people pay no licence fees of any kind," he said, "and they hurt properly established merchants."

Still another complaint the warden has received is some of the stands are selling produce at higher prices than the stores in town.

"This leaves a bad taste in the mouths of tourists," he said. "They stop in the country to buy fresh corn or eggs, then when they come into town they find they could have bought the same thing five or ten cents cheaper."

He said it is likely that some definite restrictions will be placed on roadside stand operations by the county council.

Former Picton Principal Gets Ottawa Office

OTTAWA (CP) — Appointment of John Andoff, former director of career and placement services at McMaster University in Hamilton, as chief of occupational research in the labor department was announced Monday. Praises Pearson For Readiness To Compromise

DOMINION CITY, Man. (CP) Prime Minister Pearson's attitude of compromise is a "tremendous asset" because compromise is Canada's greatest hope for maintaining unity, Jean-Luc Pepin, minister without portfolio in the federal cabinet, said Monday.

It is regrettable that compromise is condemned by the opposition parties as a sign of weakness, Mr. Pepin said, because the federal government must rule by compromise due to the diversified nature of the country.

Speaking to a Liberal nominating convention, the member of Parliament for Drummond-Arthabaska said "some people have the crazy idea that compromise is evil, neglecting the fact that we spend all our lives compromising."

Porky's Migration to City Cut Short by One Shot

A porcupine may not be worth much more than two bits. But get it up a tree and it becomes as impregnable as the nation's Mint.

Coaxing it back down again would defy the talents of a carload of the Corps Diplomatique.

There seems only one alternative — as police and city animal pound officers discovered yesterday on Elmer Street: shoot it.

The alternative is not so brutal as it seems. Porcupines in city boundaries are given priority rating as dangerous menaces. The rule is generally to dispose of them as expeditiously as possible.

Yesterday's porcupine was up a tree behind the home of Mrs. Gertrude Oddy, 38 Elmer. (It was the latest in what city dog catcher Charles Thorn believes a minor migration of small animals to the city this year.

So far he has been called out to catch five porcupines and an increased number of skunks in recent weeks he says.

A quick survey spotted the porcupine about 40 feet up the tree. Shots from a .22-calibre rifle brought it to the ground where it was quickly despatched by a constable's service pistol.

Former Member for Yukon Dies

VANCOUVER (CP)—George Black, sourdough and lawyer who represented the Yukon in the House of Commons for 23 years and became Speaker of the House, died in hospital Monday. He was 92.

Mr. Black was one of the Klondike's favorite people from gold-rush days through his careers as militant barrister, soldier and politician.

He retired as an MP 16 years ago and was predeceased by his wife Martha Louise in 1956. Mr. Black married Susan King in 1957.

He was often called the Yukon's No. 1 Sourdough and many of his gold-rush friends were on hand last April 10 for his 92nd birthday party here.

Hellyer Rejected Advice

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Hellyer rejected the recommendation of most of his senior military advisers when he decided on purchase of the American Northrop CF-5 fighter - bomber, informed sources said Tuesday.

However, the sources added, the senior officers did not resent rejection of their advice nor did Mr. Hellyer question their ability in making it. Such decisions were up to the government and the military accepted them.

Air Chief Marshal Frank Miller, chief of the defence staff, issued a statement Tuesday denying a Canadian Press report from here Monday that Air Vice - Marshal Wilfred Bean was transferred to Europe because he opposed purchase of the CF-5.

The statement did not deny that Air Vice - Marshal Bean had opposed acquisition of the CF-5. It described his posting overseas to 4th Allied Tactical Air Force as routine. He had been assistant chief of defence staff.

Informants said Air Chief Marshal Miller and Air Marshal Clare Annis, chief of logistics, as well as Air Vice-Marshal Bean, favored purchase of the American McDonnell Phantom jet fighter - bomber on strictly military grounds.

DIDN'T ATTEND

They noted that Air Chief Marshal Miller did not attend the press conference at which Mr. Hellyer announced choice of the CF-5 though he had attended a similar press briefing in December when selection of other defence equipment was announced by the minister.

Informants said Mr. Hellyer simply found the Phantom too expensive. Its purchase would have thrown his entire defence program out of kilter.

STE. PERPETUE, Que. (CP) Opposition Leader Diefenbaker unveiled a new campaigning talent Tuesday night, speaking almost entirely in French with an improved command of pronunciation.

More than 1,200 persons crowded the dance hall of this tiny rural community and an undetermined audience estimated at several hundred more stood outside to hear Mr. Diefenbaker's 12 - minute address over loudspeakers.

Except for one sentence in English, the Progressive Conservative leader spoke entirely in French, outlining points of his party's agricultural platform for the next election, as he has done in other stops in his tour of Quebec's Eastern Townships.

He promised that a Progressive Conservative government would assure dairy farmers of prices as close as possible to $4 a hundredweight for milk.

During a day spent chatting with or adressing groups of farmers in this part of the Eastern Townships, Mr. Diefenbaker promised:

1. Removal of the 11-per-cent federal sales tax on building materials and farm and production machinery.
2. Prices for dairy farmers as close as possible to $4 per hundredweight for milk.
3. An eastern feed grain agency to buy feed from the western producer and sell it at "reasonable" prices to eastern farmers.
4. A program of federal grants to build agricultural schools similar to the grants towards construction of industrial technical schools launched by his administration.
5. Acreage payments to Ontario and Quebec farmers similar to those paid western grain producers who suffer crop losses.

Gemini Pair Set Record

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Their beards itchy and their space cabin cluttered, the Gemini 5 astronauts today sailed past the mid-point in their marathon space voyage and were given a "go" for a fith day in space.

They passed a U.S. space-endurance record and were near the Soviet-held world record for a single flight of 54 minutes short of five days.

The Gemini 5 flight became the longest U.S. space mission at 11.59 a.m. today when it passed the Gemini 4 mark of 97 hours, 57 minutes. The world record held by the Russians remained 21 hours eight minutes away.

Command Pilot L. Gordon Cooper Jr. long before had logged enough hours in space to claim the world record in that department. His wife, Trudy, relayed her congratulations to him in space.

He and Charles Conrad Jr. lost a little sleep Tuesday night dealing with housekeeping chores—and had to pass up a star check to catch up on nap time.

At 9:59 a.m. EDT the Gemini 5 passed the mid-way mark of the scheduled eight-day trip.

The world record for a single flight is held by Soviet cosmonaut Valery Bykovsky who orbited the earth for 119 hours and six minutes beginning June 14, 1963.

The Gemini 5 astronauts plan to pass that mark Thursday morning.

Cooper and Conrad planned to turn their eyes to the Atlantic Ocean during their 62nd orbit in hopes of catching a glimpse of 16 visual sighting panels spread over the flight deck of the Lake Champlain, the primary recovery ship.

They saw the ship's wake, but not the panels, as the vessel churned through the ocean southwest of Bermuda Tuesday.

The Intelligencer Begins New Era

Today, The Ontario Intelligencer makes its appearance under a new name. From now on the newspaper will be known as The Intelligencer.

The decision to adopt the abbreviated form of name was taken by the publisher in the light of the newspaper's history. In 1930, Belleville ceased to be a two-newspaper city and The Ontario, founded in 1870, merged with the older publication, The Intelligencer, founded in 1834.

The merger took effect when W. H. Morton, then publisher of The Ontario, purchased from the shareholders The Intelligencer Printing and Publishing Business and acquired the premises at 187 Front Street where The Intelligencer was published.

The newspaper has come to be known popularly as "The Intell". This was another factor influencing the change in the name to The Intelligencer as being more appropriate to the day. The newspaper is already identified by this name on the outside of the building, along with CJBQ Radio.

* * *

Today's issue of the newspaper is the second to come from our new Bridge Street building. Pending installation of the new equipment here, publication had been maintained in the old 166 Front Street building.

All other phases of the business, including editorial, advertising and commercial printing, have been carried out in the new building since May.

* * *

A brief history of journalism in Belleville is appropriate to this occasion.

In a paper presented to the annual meeting of The Ontario Historical Society in Belleville in 1930, J. Owen Herity, manager of The Chamber of Commerce, who was editor of The Daily Ontario from 1910 to 1920, recalled that journalism in Belleville had its beginnings in 1831, more than 40 years after the arrival of the first settlers.

In 1834, after several earlier newspaper ventures had failed, George Benjamin founded The Weekly Intelligencer. Thirteen years later, Mackenzie Bowell, who had served an apprenticeship with Mr. Benjamin, became a partner in the business. In 1848 Messrs. Bowell and Moore became proprietors. Three years later Mr. Moore retired and Mr. Bowell became sole proprietor.

In 1875 The Intelligencer Printing and Publishing Company acquired the paper, Mr. Bowell being the principal stockholder. In 1867 The Daily Intelligencer began publication and appeared continuously until April 1, 1930. Mr. Bowell was more familiarly known as Sir Mackenzie Bowell when he was knighted at the time he was appointed to the office of Prime Minister of Canada, December 21, 1894. He remained in office until April 27, 1896.

* * *

The direct progenitor of The Weekly Ontario was The Victoria Chronicle, established in 1841 by Washburn and Sutton. It was published in the Victoria Buildings on the north-east corner of Victoria Avenue and Front Street. The name "Victoria" was used because Belleville was then situated in the Victoria parliamentary division.

In 1849 The Victoria Chronicle was acquired by Elisha Miles and he ran it successfully until 1873 when it was amalgamated with The Weekly Ontario. More than 20 years before (in 1850) Mr. Miles changed the name of the paper to The Hastings Chronicle and it continued to be known by this name.

* * *

In 1870 J. W. Carman and Jacob Yeomans formed a joint-stock company, known as The Ontario Publishing Company. On Saturday, March 26, 1870, they issued the first number of The Daily Ontario. The following week the first number of The Weekly Ontario appeared. Mr. Carman became editor and Mr. Yeomans acted as business manager.

Plan Fall Talks Looking To New Long-term Pact

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal trade officials have high hopes for another big wheat sale to China, informants said Tuesday.

China has indicated it is ready to talk business this fall with the Canadian wheat board on a long-term agreement.

The current three-year agreement expires July 31 next year. Under it China agreed to purchase a minimum of 112,000,000 bushels and a maximum of 187,000,000.

China has already ordered a shade less than the maximum. Canadian officials anticipate a new deal with China on the same pattern as the current agreement, which is the second three-year deal between the two countries. The amounts in the first deal were identical.

Sources said there is no reason to believe that China will contract for less than she did in the first two long-term agreements.

Hit by crop failures, China first came into the Canadian market in 1961 and took 53,858,313 bushels in that calendar year as part of the three-year agreement. The 1961 sales were worth $94,412,000.

Sales for the next three calendar years were all worth more than $1,000,000,000 with 1962 the highest at $134,253,668 for 66,361,415 bushels.

COULD SET RECORD

The Chinese agreed to buy more than 83,000,000 bushels last May to fill out the current agreement. Some of this will be shipped next year, but 1965 could still set a record.

Canadian officials negotiated the May sale in Hong Kong. After the deal was made, the Canadians suggested talks on a new long-term agreement and found a receptive audience.

The Chinese were invited to discuss the new deal in Canada. However the site and precise timing of the talks have

Aircraft Plants Shut By Walkout

TORONTO (CP) — Manufacturing stopped at de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd. plants in suburban Malton and Downsview shortly after 4,800 hourly-rated workers walked off their jobs Tuesday protesting what they called company strike preparation.

A company spokesman said the union announced the strike had officially started at 5 p.m. Tuesday, three days before a scheduled deadline Friday.

"This has brought all manufacturing to a halt," the company spokesman said.

The workers, members of Local 112 of the United Auto Workers (CLC), started a walkout without union sanction Tuesday afternoon at the Malton plant. The walkout spread but union officials declined to

Spain Buying Cattle

TORONTO (CP)—Four Spanish government veterinarians are buying cattle in Canada and Manuel Alberro, a federal agriculture department veterinarian, said Tuesday their purchase will be the largest of dairy cattle ever made by a foreign country in Canada.

The group, headed by Dr. Benito Garcia Fierro and Dr. Candida del Poza, have been buying 50 to 70 Holsteins daily in the Kitchener, Stratford, London, Woodstock, Guelph and Brampton areas.

Dr. Alberro said that 700 animals have already been bought at an average cost of $300.

The Spanish government plans to spend $1,800,000 this year to buy 6,000 animals to refurbish the country's herds, he said.

This is only the first step in the Spanish program, Dr. Alberro added. The Spaniards have indicated they will buy 5,000 to 6,000 animals annually for several years.

The visitors attended the Canadian National Exhibition here Tuesday to see many of Canada's championship stock and are considering buying their offspring.

"They are mainly interested in a good type of Holstein-bred heifer," said Dr. G. H. Collacut of Toronto, Ontario district veterinarian for the agriculture department. He added that his department will ensure that the animals are healthy and meet Spain's importing requirements.

Jodoin Invites Civil Servants To Join With Labor Congress

WINDSOR. Ont. (CP)—President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress issued a formal invitation today to the 80,000 - member Civil Service Federation of Canada to affiliate with the 1,200,000 - man CLC.

He told the triennial conference of the federation he was there to deliver the message that "there is a place for the Civil Service Federation of Canada in the CLC."

The question of possible affiliation will be coming up during the next three days as the 200 delegates open discussions of proposed resolutions. Several deal with affiliation

Federation spokesmen said there is no clear indication of how the delegates feel about the question, although CSF President Claude Edwards indicated in his opening address Monday that he supports the idea.

The two groups have worked together on occasion in the past, and there have been informal discussions on the possibility of affiliation but the issue was not spelled out before.

Under the federation's present constitution, each association in the civil service organization would have to affiliate individually with the CLC.

Mr. Jodoin emphasized the advantages which he said affiliation would give the federation.

The CLC's support of the NDP had been criticized by some association officials.

"We fully recognize that political neutrality is essential in the government service and we would be the first to fight to preserve that right for you," Mr. Jodoin said.

"I might add that we now have affiliated unions which adopt the position we would consider the proper one for civil servants to take."

He said the CLC has fought over the years for civil servants to have collective bargaining rights — something now promised them by the government—and added the CLC could help them in this field, too. The federation could draw on the CLC's experience in bargaining and its research department to bolster its arguments.

Mr. Jodoin's remarks were taken from a text given the press before delivery.

On Tuesday, the CSF voted itself authority to negotiate and enter into collective bargaining agreements with the government on behalf of employees within its ranks.

The move, however, depends on two things: The government passing legislation giving civil servants the right to collective bargaining and settlement of an internal squabble on whether the vote is legal.

Postal Workers' Referendum Termed 'Vast Farce' By Montreal Strike Leader

MONTREAL (CP)—The recent referendum of Canada's postal workers was termed a "vast farce" Tuesday night by William Houle, Montreal president of the Canadian Postal Employees' Association.

He was referring to a referendum distributed by the Postal Workers' Brotherhood in which 11,000 of the 19,000 postal employees voted. They accepted government pay increases and rejected strike action.

The Montreal union leader said "you don't hold a strike vote after having had a strike and won your point, yet these imbeciles come out with a strike vote."

A wildcat postal strike which began July 22 at Montreal and Vancouver and spread to centres in Ontario and Quebec was settled some two weeks later when the federal government upped a pay increase to $510 and $550 from previously proposed $300 and $360.

Montreal postal workers refused to participate in the referendum which Mr Houle said was a farcical gesture "by those who played a pitiful role in the strike and tried by all means to smash it.'

Mr. Houle said that at the next annual meeting of the association there will be a strong move to replace the present heads of the association at Ottawa. The meeting will be held Sept. 22-24 in Toronto.

The Montrealer said postal workers were betrayed by their leaders during the recent strike which, he added, would have ended in six days if it had been supported by the national executive.

Because they did not receive this support, the separate locals had to carry on the fight alone and thus caused more harm to the postal system than they would have if it had been a short, decisive national strike.

Rather than let the executive remain at Ottawa, where "they pick up the city's typical fearful attitude," there will also be an attempt to set up a system featuring regional directors who will work full time and represent Quebec, Ontario, the Maritimes, the Prairies and British Columbia.

Two Gunmen Face Charges Of Robbery, Kidnapping

FERNLEY, Nev. (AP)—Two gunmen of a modern saga of the old west have been charged with robbing a California tavern at bayonet-point, kidnapping a couple on a 250-mile chase and holding 11 hostages before 100 officers surrounded them in a lonely Nevada farmhouse.

Mrs. Alice Clements, 40, one of the hostages, commented after the 13-hour drama ended Tuesday that the two men were "just a couple of scared kids."

Charged with kidnapping and robbery were James. R. Gourlay, 21, of Detroit, and John D. Colvan, 20, Hudson Falls, N.Y. Both told officers they are army enlisted men.

The two had planned to try to escape across the Nevada desert on horseback, but apparently changed their mind after saddled horses were brought to the farmhouse for them by a Lyon County deputy sheriff.

The men had threatened to harm the hostages if the horses weren't made ready.

Some shots were fired by officers during the three hours Gourlay and Colvan held off 100 men from inside the Fernley farmhouse of Gill Clements.

TAVERN ROBBED

Held in the home were the Clements, their six children, Deputy Sheriff Austin Lucas of Lyon County and Mr. and Mrs. Omar D. Ponders, a San Jose, Calif., couple kidnapped at the start of the episode.

The Ponders were taken late Monday night when Gourlay and Colvan robbed the Guys and Dolls Tavern in San Jose with a bayonet and a .32 calibre pistol.

Gourlay and Colvan had been house guests of the Ponders. Gourlay and Ponders knew each other previously.

Police said the pair kidnapped their hosts at gunpoint, apparently after Ponders, a 19-year-old private, accused them of using his home as a cover for a series of San Jose robberies.

A highway chase began early Tuesday after one of the Ponders scribbled a note on toilet paper and left it at a Sparks, Nev., restaurant, just east of Reno. A waitress found the note for help and told authorities.

Hopes High For Solution Of Civil War

SANTO DOMINGO (Reuters)—Hopes ran high today for a solution to the civil war in the ravaged Dominican Republic.

Observers here said an end to the crisis was nearer than it had ever been since the start of the revolution four months ago which killed 2,850 persons according to the latest Dominican Red Cross figures.

The Organization of American States has won support from Col. Francisco Caamano's "constitutionalist" government for the signing of an act of reconciliation.

The OAS still needed approval by Gen. Antonio Imbert's "national reconstruction" junta for the formation of a provisional government headed by a moderate lawyer - diplomat, Dr. Hector Garcia Godoy.

Observers said Imbert's government has to pay its troops' August wages, and there are few funds available. It may lose the support of the armed forces if it fails to pay and this could force its hand to sign the act of reconciliation, the observers added.

COUNTRY CRIPPLED

But Garcia Godoy's government would take over a badly crippled country.

The cost in human lives so far has been six times the toll of the Cuban revolution. There are also 3,000 wounded to be cared for.

Widespread damage in Santo Domingo itself will have to be repaired. Unemployment will cause trouble. Food shortages and lack of medical supplies are other problems.

Belleville Man Chose Jail for Bail-jumping

PERTH, Ont. (CP)—An Illinois man who returned to Canada two weeks ago for the funeral of his nephew and niece was sentenced to three months in jail or $500 Tuesday for bail-jumping.

Roy Polmanter of Chicago chose the jail term.

Polmanter was arrested in Ontario four years ago on a charge of breaking and entering and was released on $500 bail which was estreated when he did not show up for trial.

The charge was subsequently dropped but a warrant for his arrest on a charge of bail-jumping stayed in effect. He was arrested when recognized by a policeman on a street in Belleville, 76 miles southwest of here.

Polmanter had come to Belleville to be a pallbearer at the funeral of Dawn Gail Polmanter, 6, and her brother Dennis, 3, who were killed when lightning struck their tent at Canoe Lake near Westport on Aug. 7.

Burned Child Reported in Fair Condition

The presence of mind of the mother and the quick action of a Hydro employee will likely save the life of Lenor Bradley, 3½ year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Bradley, resident on the Picton Highway just south of Rossmore. The child suffered second and third degree burns over 50 per cent of her body while playing with her brother, Larry Bradley near a barn on the property on Monday last. In some manner the barn caught fire and it was fortunate the mother heard the screams of the children. A Hydro meterman, Jack Jones who was at the home at the time reading the meter, also rushed out and wrapped a blanket around the child after the mother had pulled part of her clothes from her body. He rushed her to the Hospital in the Hydro truck. The child was later transferred to the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto.

The child is reported in "fair" condition. The mother and her son also suffered burns but both are in satisfactory condition.

Dr. Edith Peterkin and Dr. Donald Scott attended the child before being taken to Toronto.

New England's Apple Crops In Danger

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pleas for Canadian and other help in harvesting New England's apple crop were made Tuesday.

Representatives F. Bradford F. Morse (Rep. Mass.) and Stanley R. Tupper (Rep. Me.) asked presidential intervention to permit the importation of Canadian labor.

Representative James C. Cleveland (Rep. N.Y.) made this appeal in verse to Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz for reversal of his stand against use of foreign workers:

"An apple a day keeps the doctor away
"But there'll be no apples unless you say
"Okay and right away!
"The nation's health needs apples, and so do you, say I
"For a healthy, wholesome, filler for that pie up in the sky.
"But we need Canadian pickers to help us pick the crop.
"New Hampshire sources tell me your recruitment drive's a flop.
"Canadians have been friendly. Why do you slam the door?
"Is this the Great Society that you are striving for?
"So come on, Willard, won't you please, sir, Mr. Wirtz,
"Before we lose our apples and our farmers lose their shirts."

Tupper and Morse wrote President Johnson that despite recruitment efforts by New England growers an adequate labor force has not come forward.

'SHARE CONCERN'

"We share the concern of the administration in lowering U.S. unemployment," their letter said, "But the very real efforts to do so in this circumstance have proved unsuccessful.

"Unless something is done soon, we fear that much of the crop may be lost. We hope you will intervene to expedite the resolution of this grave problem before it is too late."

Earlier pleas to Wirtz had been made by New England Senate and House of Representative members. The secretary has replied he is confident that domestic labor can be found to harvest the crop.

Senator Leverett Saltonstall (Rep. Mass.) announced that New England members of Congress and apple growers from the region will meet Wednesday with officials of the labor department in an effort to resolve the problem.

Wirtz has been invited to the meeting. Saltonstall aides said that if Wirtz is unable to attend he has promised to send top assistants.

Connecticut growers normally import harvest hands from the British West Indies. Other New England states have used workers from Nova Scotia.

Three Given Trillium Awards

The Intelligencer

published the paper for five years when Mr. T. S. Carman, founder of the Napanee Express, came to Belleville and acquired the property. For a time he retained the services of his brother as editor. Mr. Carman held control until 1910 when W. H. Morton and his brother-in-law, J. O. Herity, purchased the business.

J. O. Herity retired from active editorial work in 1920 and was appointed secretary-manager of Belleville Chamber of Commerce and industrial commissioner for the city.

In 1922 W. H. Morton acquired full control of The Ontario, and F. W. Rathman became editor-in-chief, with A. G. Davie as advertising manager.

* * *

At the beginning of 1930 Belleville ceased to be a two-paper city when Mr. Morton purchased from the shareholders The Intelligencer Printing and Publishing Business and acquired the premises where the newspaper was published. He also purchased the Ontario block where the united papers were published. The merger was completed on April 1, 1930, when the first issue of The Ontario Intelligencer was published.

The Intelligencer, as it is now styled, is one of the oldest papers in Ontario, having maintained continuous publication since 1834. The Kingston Whig-Standard has been in existence since 1810, The Brockville Recorder and Times since 1820 and The Picton Gazette since 1830. These four are Ontario's oldest newspapers.

The officers of The Intelligencer are Dr. Gerald A. Morton, publisher and H. Myles Morton, business manager.

W. J. Henderson, Kingston, Named to High Court

OTTAWA (CP)—Elevation of three lawyers to the Ontario bench, including Professor Bora Laskin of Toronto, was announced Tuesday by Justice Minister Cardin.

In a fourth appointment, Mr. Justice Gregory Thomas Evans, a member of the High Court of Justice since 1963, was transferred to the Court of Appeal. He formerly practised law in Timmins.

Prof. Laskin, a member of the law faculty at the University of Toronto, also was named to the Court of Appeal. He was admitted to the bar in 1937 and was appointed a Queen's Counsel in 1957.

William Anthony Donohue of Sarnia and William J. Henderson of Kingston were appointed to the High Court of Justice.

All appointments are effective immediately except for that of Prof. Laskin, who will replace Mr. Justice C. W. G. Gibson when the latter retires Sept. 1.

Mr. Henderson, Liberal member of the Commons for Kingston City from 1949 to 1953 and for Kingston from 1953 to 1958, replaces Mr. Justice Evans on the High Court and he in turn replaces Mr. Justice W. D. Roach who retired recently from the Appeal Court. Mr. Henderson, 48, a graduate of Queen's University and Osgoode Hall law school, was called to the bar in 1942 and was made a Queen's Counsel in 1961.

Mr. Justice Donohue, a graduate of the University of Toronto (St. Michael's) and Osgoode Hall, was called to the bar in 1930 and appointed a Queen's Counsel in 1956. He replaces Mr. Justice P. E. F. Smiley who retired recently.

Miss Johnson Enjoys Theatre At Festival

STRATFORD (CP) — A relaxed Lynda Bird Johnson attended a performance of Shakespeare's Julius Caesar here Tuesday night and later left for Buffalo.

Everything was easy - going as she left the motel where she was staying and strolled across the park surrounding Stratford Festival Theatre.

Miss Johnson, the 21-year-old daughter of United States President Lyndon Johnson, was unhurried and smiling. Security precautions were eased as only two secret service men accompanied her to the theatre and the crowd of theatregoers restricted their curiosity to whispers and subtle neck-craning.

She still refused to talk to reporters, however.

After the performance, she got into one of three cars loaded and waiting to take her and the group who came with her back to London, Ont., airport 45 miles away, where she had landed early Monday evening.

Earlier in the day, Miss Johnson wrote a note to officials at Stratford General Hospital asking that flowers she had received during her stay be accepted for the children's wards in the hospital.

She visited the Stratford Exhibition Hall where more than 2,000 books are on display.

A secret service man bought two books for Miss Johnson, Captain Boldheart by Charles Dickens and Tales of the Hodja by Charles Downing.

"I never saw so many books as I have here," she was overheard to say. "I'd just love to spend all my money."

Rotarians Will Recognize Labor

The Rotary Club will hold their annual recognition of labor at their meeting on Monday next as the club does not meet on Labor Day.

The speaker will be Charles Millard, former secretary of the International Labor Organization and personnel active in the labor movement in the district will be special guests at the luncheon.

The speaker will be introduced by Judge J. C. Anderson and the thanks of the club expressed by Ron Cass.

NOTICE

In order to comply with the City by-law, Moira Furniture will have to remain closed Wednesday Night, August 25th, and will hold their open house Thursday night, August 26th between 6 p.m. and 9 p.m. Coffee and donuts will be served and the Free Prizes will be given away as advertised.

Drunk Driving Charge Brings Seven Days

TRENTON — Dennis Gannon, R.R. 4, Trenton, pleaded guilty to having a vehicle under control while intoxicated, before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in Trenton court westerday and was sentenced to seven days in jail, dating back to Aug. 19.

The court was told that Gannon had been picked up by police after he was found slumped at the wheel of his vehicle in an Edwards Street driveway.

REFUTES EVIDENCE

"The defence rests."

In a rebuttal worthy of a Perry Mason courtroom scene, Albert Edward Williams of 1 Mercia Street, Trenton, refuted police evidence that he had stagggered, slurred his speech and taken an overlong time to locate his driver's licence in his wallet when picked up by police and charged with drunk driving.

While pleading guilty to a reduced charge of driving while impaired, William said, "I have no upper teeth—my speech is always slurred."

He laid the staggering noted by the police officer to non-coordination of his senses owing to his being hard of hearing and also said he had not immediately heard the officer's request for his licence.

After evidence had been heard by the officer, Mr. Williams said he "hadn't heard a word of the evidence," and the constable's statement was read again by the court reporter.

Williams was brought to the Trenton police station on Aug. 5 after a provincial police officer had observed him swerve his car three times from one side of the road to the other.

"I've driven 35 years with no convictions," said Williams.

"Well, you've established one now by the operation of this vehicle," said Crown Attorney John A. Pringle.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills fined Williams $75 and ordered him to pay $4 court costs.

Three Admit Taking Gas From Truck

TRENTON — In magistrate's court at Trenton yesterday, Marcel Sauvageau, 17, Joseph Douglas Bilodeau, 18, and Joseph Alfred Daigle, 18, of the RCAF pleaded guilty to a charge of theft of gasoline from a Riverside Dairy truck on August 23, and were fined $25 and ordered to pay court costs of $3 by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

The men admitted taking a five gallon can and a length of hose from a cupboard at the RCAF station and siphoning gas from the dairy truck.

Paul Turcotte, charged with the same offence, pleaded not guilty and will appear in court September 14.

IN MEMORIAM

MOSSMAN — In loving memory of a dear husband, Earl Mossman who passed away Aug. 25, 1964.

God saw you getting weary,
So did what He thought best,
He came and stood beside you,
And whispered come and rest.
You wished no one a last farewell,
Not even a goodbye,
You had gone before we knew
And only God knows why.

—Always remembered and sadly missed by, your loving wife Sally.

MOSSMAN — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Earl Mossman, who passed away August 25, 1964.

We watched you suffer, we heard you sigh,
But all we could do was just stand by,
For when the time came, we suffered too,
For you never deserved what you went through,
God took your hand and we had to part,
He eased your pain, but broke our hearts,
Although we smile and seem carefree,
Nobody misses you Dad, more than we.

—Always remembered by daughter Kathy and son-in-law Howard Thompson, son Fred and daughter-in-law Verna, son John and daughter-in-law Rosie and grandchildren.

MOSSMAN — In loving memory of a dear brother-in-law who left us so suddenly, August 25, 1964.

It seems so strange that those need,
And those we love the best,
Are just the ones God calls away,
And takes them home to rest,
But every time we think of Earl,
We seem to hear God say,
Have faith and trust my promise,
You'll meet again some day.

—Lovingly remembered by Alice and Jordan.

LEVERTON — In loving memory of a dear wife and loving mother Emma Frances Leverton, who passed away suddenly in Toronto, Aug. 25th, 1963.

Time speeds on, two years are gone,
Since death its gloomy shadow cast,
Upon our home, where all was bright,
And took from us a shining light,
We miss that light and ever will,
Her vacant place none can fill,
Her we mourn but not in vain,
For in Heaven we will meet again.

—Sadly missed by husband Jim and daughter Nora.

CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to sincerely thank our friends, neighbors and relatives for the kindness and assistance shown to us during our recent fire. A very sincere thank you to Mr. Jack Jones of the Ontario Hydro, Dr. Peterkin, Dr. D. Scott, Mrs. Duchane, City Ambulance, The Belleville Fire Dept., Mr. and Mrs. Flower, Mr. Bert Waters of the Northern Electric.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Bradley.

We would like to express our sincere thanks to all our wonderful neighbors, relatives, and friends who donated to Canadian Cancer Society for the flowers, cards, Bibles and many acts of kindness and sympathy in the loss of a dear wife, mother and grandmother. Deepest appreciation to Rev. Allan Lauder and special thanks to Dr. Hartt, Dr. Manderville, Dr. Donald Scott and all the nursing staff at Belleville General Hospital; also the Thompson Funeral Home.

Clinton H. Rushnell and family.

The family of the late Harold McGee wish to express their gratitude to all friends, neighbors and relatives for their many acts of kindness and sympathy during the illness and loss of a dear husband and father. A special thank you to Mr. Dodds, Dr. Briggs and Mrs. G. H. Hogle of Duffin's Funeral Home.

Mother Earth Will Have These Scientific Gentlemen Under Her Skin

OTTAWA (CP) — The space race has been drawing most of the headlines but scientists seeking the secrets of the universe are looking down as well as up.

Although man has been able to drill only five miles into the crust of his own planet, science has used a sense of touch to find out the earth's composition.

Worldwide studies of seismic waves from earthquakes and man-made explosions have provided the information to date.

The results of recent studies and plans for projects to probe deeper into the earth will be discussed here next month when scientists from more than 20 nations attend a 10-day meeting of the International Upper Mantle Committee.

The committee, first proposed in 1960 by its present chairman, Prof. V. V. Beloussov of Russia, had set a three-year program that was to be completed by the end of 1964.

Canada finished a $3,000,000 program on schedule but slow international planning and delays in some countries have forced an extension for the worldwide program, possibly to 1967.

Generally speaking, the earth is divided into three sections: the crust, the mantle and the core.

The crust is a relatively thin covering, averaging 22 miles in depth although it is much thicker under continents and much thinner under the oceans.

The mantle under the crust is about 2,000 miles thick and the rest is considered the core.

Gold mines in Canada and South Africa have taken men about two miles down into the crust and drills searching for oil have penetrated three miles deeper. But this still is a long way from reaching the mantle, which holds the key to earthquakes and volcanic action, forces that helped mould the crust to its present form.

Scientists also are convinced most of the metals now mined in the earth's crust came originally from the mantle and they have found some places where material from the mantle has been pushed up to surface.

While deep drilling seems to offer the best chance for exploring the crust and reaching the mantle, most of the drilling so far has been of a commercial nature (searching for oil) rather than scientific.

The problems and possibilities of scientific drilling through to the mantle will be discussed at a two-day symposium at the start of the Sept. 2-11 meeting.

Two more two-day symposia will follow: one on the world rift system, a series of connected faults in the earth's crust accompanied by earthquake and volcanic activity; the other on continental margins, the edges of the continental land masses where the crust thins out as the ocean deepens.

As chairman of the international committee, Beloussov will lead a four-man delegation of Russian scientists at the conference.

Dr. J. M. Harrison, assistant deputy minister in charge of research for the mines and technical surveys department, is Canada's representative on the seven - man international committee. Dr. Charles H. Smith, chief of Canada's upper mantle project, is assisting in the organization of the conference.

Other countries with representatives on the committee are Sweden, Britain, Japan, Australia and the United States. Other scientists are expected from Denmark, Iceland, France, Israel, Mexico, Switzerland, South Africa, Czechoslovakia and Italy.

PC Claims Car Companies Make Safety Changes 'Only When Forced To'

MONTREAL (CP) — Heward Grafftey, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Brome Missisquoi, said Tuesday that automobile companies make safety changes "only when forced to."

Mr. Grafftey made the statement while demonstrating a survival car to hundreds of curious persons at Place Ville Marie in downtown Montreal.

The survival car, designed to protect passengers from road mishaps, has 14 major safety devices built into it, including ing lap belts and shoulder harnesses, capsule chairs, neck-injury prevention devices on all seats, flexible steering shaft, a rectangular steering wheel and tires that provide increased traction.

Mr. Grafftey said statistics show that 35,031 persons have been killed in automobile accidents in Canada during the last 10 years.

HAS PLAN

He said he has a three-point plan the government should carry out:

1. Establishment of a research and development unit that would seek to develop a prototype safety car giving passengers the maximum protection against injury in the event of accident, and would have the highest possible standards of braking, stability and such features as would mitigate against the occurrence of accidents.

2. Establishment of a committee, made up in substantial part of scientists, engineers and doctors, to keep abreast of research and advances affecting automobile safety.

3. Steps by the federal government to establish a national accident - prevention research centre, staffed with scientists who would carry on extensive research as to all types of accidents, establish a central information centre, promote and coordinate research in other places and make recommendations to industry, the public and governments at all levels.

A member of the Royal Automobile Club of Canada said that if manufacturers built in, on a mass basis, all the features on the survival car, it would raise the cost of cars by $150.

Learns Hubby Is Posted To Viet Nam

DELHI, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Russell Keck, 32, who has been fighting possible deportation for herself and her daughter and is seeking a visa to join her soldier - husband in the United States, learned Tuesday that he has been posted to South Viet Nam.

A hearing on the deportation order was scheduled in Ottawa for Monday but Mrs. Keck said she has heard no word of the outcome. She said she was not informed the meeting was to be held.

"I have no letter but maybe it will come tomorrow," she said. "My husband was here on Monday, but he is gone back—he is going to Viet Nam."

Keck, a private in the U.S. Army, met his wife, a native of Hungary, in Germany but the army refused him permission to marry and returned him to the U.S.

Mrs. Keck then obtained a temporary visa to come to Canada under the sponsorship of her aunt, Mrs. Steve Szarvas, of this town 10 miles east of Simcoe. She married Keck in Simcoe last Dec .19.

But her visa expired in July and immigration officials ordered her deported to Germany.

Canadian authorities have been pressing U.S. consulate officials to speed up her application for a visa to the United States. Jack Roxburgh the Liberal member of Parliament for Norfolk, said she will not be deported while a U.S. visa is pending.

'White Paper' Assails LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Republican "white paper" charged Tuesday that President Johnson's campaign oratory was aimed at making Barry Goldwater appear "trigger happy," and this may have caused Communists to miscalculate and accelerate the Viet Nam war.

Second Ottawa Police Officer Resigns Post

OTTAWA (CP) — A second city police officer resigned from the force Tuesday after a closed hearing by Chief Reginald Axcell.

In accepting the resignation of Sgt. Leo Prevost, 40, the chief said he agreed with Prevost's lawyer and Const. James Hansen, 33, who resigned Monday, that the two officers were not involved in an alleged traffic ticket fixing racket.

Chief Axcell postponed a third hearing involving S. Sgt. Rene Lacroix, 46, until next Tuesday to obtain legal advice on his jurisdiction in the case.

Hydro Chairman Warns Against Amalgamation

KINGSTON (CP) — W. Ross Strike, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission, warned the provincial government Tuesday night against amalgamating public utilities with city governments.

"Those concerned . . . had better look the problem square in the eye before taking the retrograde step of throwing it all in one pot where it often gets nothing but cursory examination," he said.

He was critical of a select committee set up by the provincial government last year which recommended that Public Utilities Commissions and municipal councils be united. In most areas, the two bodies now are elected separately.

NDP Accused Of Seeking Kickbacks

TORONTO (CP)—The New Democratic Party was accused Tuesday night of seeking financial kickback from persons it recommends for election jobs.

The accusation was made in an interview by George Ben, Liberal candidate in the Sept. 15 provincial byelection in Toronto Bracondale.

Premier Lands 14-pound Pike

ORILLIA (CP) — Premier John Robarts officiated at three ceremonies here and landed a 14-pound pike in the middle of this resort town.

Mr. Robarts, an angler when he gets a spare minute, made the catch Tuesday during opening of the Chamber of Commerce Building.

An official handed him a fishing rod and told him to reel in the line which had been fed out into a pool in front of the building. The pike was on the other end and gave Mr. Robarts a bit of a struggle when it headed for cover behind the fountain in the pool.

Earlier, Mr. Robarts unveiled a plaque marking the location of Indian fishing weirs at the Atherley Narrows just east of here between Lake Couchiching and Lake Simcoe when Champlain visited the area in 1615.

The other ceremony opened the $796,000 Atherley Narrows Bridge.

The 905-foot-long span will be known as the Jake Gaudaur Memorial Bridge, commemorating the world rowing champion, who achieved success in the early 1900s. He was the father of Jake Gaudaur, general manager of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference.

Gas Turbines May Be Used In Destroyers

OTTAWA (CP) — The navy will make a revolutionary switch to gas turbine from steam engines in its new destroyers, informed sources said today.

The gas turbines will provide higher maximum speed in the four destroyers scheduled for construction between 1967 and 1970, and for much faster attainment of high speed in submarine chases.

Sources said the change will add about $5,000,000 to the capital cost of the $142,000,000 four-ship program but that this increase will be more than offset in the long run by lower operational and manpower costs.

The gas turbines are smaller and lighter than steam plants and thus will allow more space for fuel and, consequently, for more sea time without refuelling. Working conditions will improve — there will be no steam boilers to clean — and there will be less heat and noise.

The switch to gas turbines will mean a delay of about six months in the start of construction of the first destroyer—to about mid-1967—but there will be no delay with the other three.

Latin America Seeking First Nuclear-free Military Zone

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Latin America's initiative in trying to make itself the world's first nuclear-free military zone is regarded in Ottawa as a promising concept in helping to limit or prevent the spread of nuclear weapons.

Eighteen Latin American countries have, since 1962, been discussing how to create a denuclearized region and now are meeting in Mexico City to review progress and plan the next step.

Canadian interest in the proposals is shown by the fact that D. W. Fulford, first secretary of the Canadian embassy in Mexico City, is an observer at the meeting. At the current Geneva disarmament conference, Canada has been pressing for an international treaty designed to halt the spread of nuclear weapons.

CANADIAN CRITERIA

Canada would not be included in any Latin American nuclear-free zone treaty. But if one is arranged it would no doubt be asked to respect it, a request which the Canadian government doubtless would welcome.

In June, 1963, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons that any treaty for a denuclearized zone should meet at least three criteria:

1. It should obviously be acceptable to all countries of the geographical area in which the zone would be located.

2. It should include some arrangement for verifying that treaty commitments were being carried out.

3. It should be consistent with the principle that no disarmament measure should create a unilateral advantage for any state or group of states.

Canadian officials said Monday this Canadian policy has not changed since that time.

WOULD CUBA JOIN?

At the 1963 United Nations General Assembly, Canada voted for a resolution presented by Brazil and 10 other countries seeking discussion by the Latin American states on a nuclear-free zone.

Since then, the Latin Americans have been working on a definition of the geographical limits of the proposed zone, a system of inspection and seeking the acceptance of other countries of Latin America as a nuclear-free zone.

There are problems, of course. Would it be possible to include Cuba, which so far has stayed out of the discussions? Would the U.S. agree to ban the shipment of nuclear weapons through the Panama Canal? Would the U.S. agree to remove all nuclear weapons from its base at Guantanamo, Cuba?

South Korea Schools May Be Closed

SEOUL (AP) — President Chung Hee Park threatened tonight to shut down South Korea's schools "semi-permanently" unless students immediately stop thir demonstrations against his government and its friendship treaty with Japan.

Violence increased in Seoul as troops and police battled more than 11,000 students. It was the fifth day of demonstrations.

About 500 soldiers hurled tear gas bombs at one group of about 2,000 rock-throwing students who repeatedly tried to march downtown from their campus in northeastern Seoul.

More than 20 students were arrested in a clash between riot police and some 5,000 students from two universities in eastern Seoul.

Six other student groups, totalling about 4,000, fought riot police.

The chief Seoul prosecutor said he may file sedition charges against demonstration leaders. The maximum penalty for sedition is death.

The students' main charge is that the government sold out South Korean interest when it negotiated the treaty normalizing relations with Japan, Korea's prewar colonial ruler.

Ottawa Hotel Workers Plan Wildcat Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — Employees of the Chateau Laurier here are planning to launch a wildcat walkout on Labor Day unless the CNR hotel system agrees to adopt the $1.25 hourly federal minimum wage in time for end-of-August pay cheques, informants said Tuesday.

The strike, if it comes, would cripple the capital's prestige hotel at the opening of the interparliamentary conference Sept. 6-17.

Many of the 800 international delegates are due to stay at the Chateau.

Contract negotiations between the CNR-owned hotel and Local 270 of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC) have been deadlocked for six months over the issue of the minimum wage, part of the new federal Labor Code that became law July 1.

The CNR insists that its hotel does not come under federal law. This stand has twice been rejected by Labor Minister MacEachen.

ARE OUTSIDE LAW

All other hotels in the country are outside federal labor law.

They have provincial charters and are under provincial wage regulations, none of which exceeds $1 an hour for hotel workers.

The CNR contends that its hotel wage rates are already the highest in the industry and a further increase will price it out of competition.

Charges Discrimination

Canadian National Railways has acted wisely in ordering an investigation into charges by a Roman Catholic missionary from the Northwest Territories that the government-owned railroad practises racial discrimination on its mainline trains between Toronto and North Bay.

Rev. Bernard Brown, oblate missionary from Colville Lake inside the Arctic Circle, is coach and commodore for the Indian and Eskimo teams from the territories that are participating in a canoe race from North Bay to Gananoque.

During a television interview, Father Brown said that when he boarded a train at Toronto for North Bay, the conductor and brakeman told him to "take your Indians to the rear car and kindly keep them there." The priest added that the teams were travelling on first-class tickets.

A CNR spokesman said in Toronto that no racial or any other form of discrimination was knowingly practised on the company's trains. However, he said the matter would be investigated.

While Father Brown's allegation has yet to be substantiated, it may be said that examples of racial discrimination in Canada are not uncommon.

Canadians may look askance at what is happening in the United States and at the apartheid policies of South Africa. Yet there is ample evidence of discriminatory practices against Indians and Eskimos, not to mention Negroes, right here in Canada.

O.P.P.'s Air Patrol

The Ontario Provincial Police have introduced air patrols of busy stretches of highway in an effort to reduce traffic accidents.

The aircraft, carrying a pilot and an observer equipped with a stop watch, are currently operating over marked stretches of highway and spot checking speeders. Information is radioed to patrol cars for interception of the vehicles concerned.

Twenty speeding charges were laid as a result of the initial aerial patrol over Highway 69 near Sudbury last week. Busy Highway 400 was the target of a later patrol.

Other highways in the province will be marked and patrolled from the air as the Highways Department furnishes the OPP with information on danger areas. Computers are being used to speed dissemination of such information.

Highway 401 is an almost certain choice for future patrols, particularly on two-lane stretches like the one between Gananoque and Brockville.

If the air patrols can bring about an improvement in driving habits and a reduction in accidents they will have been justified.

Cricket in St. Louis

Every now and then sports fans—and sometimes sports writers—succumb to bouts of midsummer madness.

That is how they came to be playing cricket of all things, and in St. Louis, Missouri, of all places, last week. A photograph from the midwestern city showed a vacationing Englishman, Eddie Phillips, of Brighton, Sussex, batting during an exhibition on a downtown St. Louis street.

Keeping wicket was Tom Alford, of St. Louis, and presumably most of the other players were from that city. The one-hour match was part of the city's bi-centennial celebrations and a soft rubber ball was used to save windows from damage.

To switch for a moment to tennis, Globe and Mail sports writer Dick Beddoes has suggested the game might enjoy greater popularity in Canada if spectators were permitted to shout their encouragement (or displeasure) in the same way as they do at football games.

Clearly this would be impossible, for tennis demands complete concentration and precision in the execution of shots. One heards of partisan crowds, like the Spaniards who cheered on their team to victory over the United States in Barcelona last week, but even they confine their applause to the periods between shots.

Modern man is a civilized animal, but the proportions are roughly 3 per cent civilized, 97 per cent animal, and that's the case whether he is in Los Angeles, or Leningrad or London. Civilization is as thin as an eggshell, and as easily cracked. The respect for law built up by centuries of statesmen, clergymen, judges, police, teachers and the rest can go like a puff of smoke; and very often in history has done so.—Richard J. Needham in The Globe and Mail.

The truth, of course, is that it is not in China's' national interests to disturb the Portuguese occupation of Macao which provides an excellent outlet for Chinese trade and currency operations. It enables them to overcome to some extent the American ban on the exports of certain types of goods to China. The Portuguese in Macao and the Chinese revolutionaries get on remarkably well in protecting their mutual interests.—British columnist Colin Legum.

Fibroid Tumors Do Not Necessarily Mean Surgery

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: If the doctor tells a woman, after a vaginal examination, that she has a large fibroid, does the diagnosis mean surgery? He didn't say fibroid tumor. Just fibroid. Can this become cancerous? He did not sound much concerned. — Mrs. W. E.

A fibroid is a fibroid tumor—one which happens to consist of excessive fibrous tissue mixed in with other type of tissue.

The presence of a fibroid does not necessarily indicate surgery. A substantial number of women have fibroids without experiencing any trouble from them.

The uterus is a combination of muscle and special tissue which is peculiarly under control of glandural action. Because of this, it is more likely to develop tumors.

When the strong fibre portion grows more than normal, then you have a fibroid tumor, some large. Occasionally there some large. Occasionally there can be quite a number of fibroids.

When such a tumor has been discovered, it is always wise to check periodically on its progress, if any. Sometimes a fibroid will remain the same size indefinitely for many years. If it is not causing trouble, and is not changing, there is no need for removal. And fibroids sometimes eventually subside or grow smaller at and after menopause.

If a fibroid becomes unduly large, is painful, or causes menstrual problems, then removal may well be considered. Sometimes fibroids can interfere with pregnancy, and that's a reason for removal. Some can become malignant. That's another reason.

Fibroids do not, as a rule, become malignant. However, periodic checking is prudent to guard against such instances, as well as to be on guard against the other possibilities.

In short, don't become automatically alarmed on learning that you have a fibroid. It is quite possible that you may never have a problem with it.

Dear Doctor: Is a baby born with hydrocephalus or can it develop after birth? What is the treatment, and the outlook? — M.M.

Hydrocephalus (enlargement of the head because of pressure of fluid inside) is usually due to a developmental defect. Hence it is usually present from birth. Occasionally it occurs as the result of a tumor or of inflammation which obstructs the flow of spinal fluid. The fluid accumulates inside the skull, and cannot flow out again normally. This type of hydrocephalus usually is apparent by the first year of life.

The outlook for treatment, frankly is not good. If one of the later obstructions can be found and corrected, the chances are better. Fairly recently there has been work with a special valve, inserted surgically, to relieve the pressure but this is a complicated procedure.

You cannot prevent hydrocephalus.

Dear Dr. Molner: How should a family select a good physician surgeon in a strange city? — A. R. S.

If you had one where you lived before, ask him. He may not be able to recommend one for you, but usually he does know physicians in other cities, and perhaps in the city to which you have moved.

You can always phone or write the county medical society in the city and obtain reliable information. If you have a strong preference for a particualr hospital, perhaps of a certain religious affiliation, specify that, so you can choose a doctor who treats patients at that hospital.

Family Life in Quebec

Brantford Expositor

The discovery of a Quebec social sciences professor that family life in that province is undergoing a big change comes as no surprise. Is there any part of Canada where it is not changing? Even the Eskimo way of life is feeling the impact of closer and more frequent contact with the white man.

In recent years statistics have shown that people in Quebec are marrying earlier and having fewer children than their parents did. This year the birthrate is nearly ten per cent below that of last year. This is a greater drop than the national average shows, though Quebec's marriage rate increase is nearly double that of the national average.

Fewer children from more marriages must be the result of a deliberate choice. The reason is fairly obvious. Faced with deciding whether to have the higher modern standard of living or a large family, young Quebec couples, like so many elsewhere, opt for fewer children and fuller living.

More young Quebecers live in towns and cities than formerly. There they see the affluent life around them, earn more and can acquire material things financially beyond rural dwellers. The ferment in Quebec has turned thinking to the need for young people to have a wider and more modern education if they are to be equipped to hold their own in the working world and gain more rewarding jobs.

To educate a large family to the new standard would be beyond the resources of most parents. The solution is to have only a small family. Thus the children are given a better start in life and the parents do not have to make an undue sacrifice of the good things they have come to enjoy.

Devotees of former ways will call them selfish. Others will think them sensible. The choice is rightly for each couple to make, and they are making it, free from the old pressure to produce children as the main end of marriage.

ELECTION QUANDRY

Fort William Times-Journal

If the decision is to dissolve Parliament and have an election, huge numbers of Canadians will be in a quandry. Dislike for the leadership given to the Conservatives by John Diefenbaker persists in several quarters of the country. Growing disaffection for the leadership of L. B. Pearson can be detected, spurred by the government's handling of scandals in high places, its failure to come to grips quickly with the postal workers problem, its legislation to control advertising in the daily newspapers, its launching of a medicare plan without the courtesy of consulting the medical men, and forcing of the flag issue.

Strictly Personal

Prevalence Of People Big Problem

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I have been re-reading Marston Bates' book of 10 years ago, "The Prevalence of People," in a recent paperback edition; and everything that has been happening in the decade since the book was first published tends to reinforce his argument that "the prevalence of people" creates more knotty problems in the modern world than we recognize.

The human population, as all of us know, has grown at an astounding rate during the last two centuries. But is is not the rate of growth alone that is significant: it is also the increase in density of population. The smaller communities are shrinking, while the cities and their suburban dormitories are expanding in gigantic convulsions.

Whatever the drawbacks of a small community, there are certain advantages in personal relations which have all but vanished in dense centres of population.

In the small town where I spend my summer it is extremely difficult to cheat or be cheated in the economic life of the community. Everyone is known to everyone else, and the "business is business" philosophy can be pushed only so far before it kicks back.

The doors of the houses are never locked at night. Car keys are left in the ignition, and packages in the back seat. The local grocer will honor anyone's personal cheque and has not been stuck with a bad one in 30 years. And by "anyone," he means resorters and transients as well as local citizens.

None of this is possible in a dense centre of population. Not because the people are worse but because there are so many of them; because the personal feeling is almost absent in an undifferentiated mass; because the economic competition is necessarily fiercer, and the social position fluctuates wildly.

There is still a kind of medieval stability in a village. On the bad side, this makes for rigidity and narrowness of outlook; but on the good side, it makes for mutual trust, for acceptance of one's status, and for a regard for the rights of others — all of which are painfully lacking in the huge, faceless machinery of the city.

This is not a nostalgic plea for a return of the small, agrarian, Jeffersonian type of society, which no force on earth can ever bring back. But it is a reminder that we cannot easily blame the woes of modern living on any alien philosophy or economic perversion of the ideas of our Founding Fathers.

It is foolish to blame any "ism" for what has been happening to the quality of American life in the 20th century — for most of the minuses, as well as the pluses, have come from industrialism itself. The alarming changes in our society spring more from the swollen size of our body than from the perverted shape of our mind.

AUTO TRADE

Vancouver Sun

The Canada - United States automotive deal is in deep trouble at Washington. Congress hesitates to approve it — oddly enough, because it is unfair to the Canadian people. If free trade in automobiles and their parts is to mean anything the result should be a fall in retail prices. But prices in Canada have not fallen, and show no early sign of falling, even though the manufacturers can now import their American components without paying the former tariff. They are saving $50 million a year and not handing any of these gains on the buyer.

U.S. Studies Service Merger

Stratford Beacon-Herald

The June issue of a semi-official United States military journal, "Armed Forces Management," devotes a good deal of space to reporting on the great Canadian experiment in the merging of the three armed services.

This is typical of what is happening as the result of Canada's initiative in proceeding to combine soldiers, sailors and airmen in one defensive force. The great shakeup has incited all the obvious jokes and cartoons, but it has also attracted a lot of attention from the defence chiefs and governments of other countries.

About a month ago, a small note in the daily run of the news reported that France was sending a special military mission to study the Canadian unification program. France was then not the first, but the 12th friendly nation to send experts to Ottawa to take notes on what is happening in the unification of the three formerly separate, Canadian defence services.

The United States journal referred to above is telling its readers that in Canada, morale appears to be strengthened rather than weakened by the unification of command, and that Canadian enlistments (all voluntary, because there is no Canadian equivalent of the selective service system enforced in the United States as a limited kind of conscription) are up nine per cent in 1965, as compared with the same period in the early part of 1964.

In the opinion of the Amererican reporters who have looked at the Canadian experiment, and written for "Armed Forces Management":

"The notion that an infantryman will wear into combat the same work clothes as pilot is silly. The color and splash of the different dress uniforms will be retained. Only discussion then is over walking-out uniform, and, 'If the United States Marines can maintain morale with fliers, troops and missilemen all in one uniform, why can't we'? In fact, as Hellyer speculated they might a year ago, troops are already pressuring him, not he them, to set up a common rank and grade structure, a common walking-out uniform. They will have one, probably on or before July, 1967."

The finding of the American report is that unification is working well in Canada, and that it would probably work well in other countries, including the United States.

That's only one opinion, of course, but it illustrated the point that outside Canada, quite a few high-ranking people are paying attention to the possibility that Canada may be a jump ahead, in the right direction.

Love in a Cold Climate

Brantford Expositor

A Norwegian professor, Johan Vogt, believes that a cold climate may produce bachelors. He deduces this from the fact that Norway, Sweden and Finland have unusually large numbers of unmarried males of mature years. Norway has four times as many bachelors as southern European countries.

We suspect that other factors than frost make men adroit in avoiding Cupid's dart, states the Toronto Star. Canada is a northern country, too. Yet in 1963 there were only 247,000 bachelors aged 45 and over in the entire country. And men are marrying younger than formerly. Their median age at the altar was 23.8 years; the median age of their brides 21.2.

Nor is religion the telling factor. Norway is mainly Protestant. Yet in Roman Catholic Ireland the average marrying age is about 35 for men and nearly 30 for women, and a quarter of Ireland's men and women are still bachelors and spinsters at the age of 45.

The government of Eire has been shaking its head over this marital shyness and trying to find out why Irish males are the most prudent playboys of the Western world. Dublin newspapers opine that the reason is economic: Most farms can support only one family at a time. But city Irishmen resist colleens too. They prefer the pint at the pub to taking a girl to a movie.

The climatic condition Norway and Ireland share is rain. Maybe it's the wetness that dampens the urge to matrimony.

Drunken Driving Menace

St. Thomas Times-Journal

In 1965, 24,000 Americans will die at the hands of drunk drivers. These deaths are "inevitabilities," not "accidents," says Dr. Melvin L. Selzer, psychiatrist at the University of Michigan Medical Centre, who bases his grim estimate on an investigation of 72 persons judged responsible for fatal motor vehicle accidents.

Over a three-year period, the 72 killed a total of 87 persons, including, in 59 cases, themselves. Thirty-six of the 72 were alcoholics or developing alcoholics. All but one, plus 31% of the non-alcoholics, had been drinking immediately before the accident.

Sixty-four of them were men, and 42 had recognizable psychiatric problems other than alcoholism, the most common symptom being the extreme form of suspicion and distrust called "paranoid thinking."

Most ominous was the fact that eight of the alcoholics had accumulated 17 precious convictions for drunk driving and two had been responsible for a previous traffic death while driving in an intoxicated state. Ten had been covicted for drunk and disorderly behavior.

"It is clear," says Dr. Selzer, "that arrests and penalties for drunk driving or drunk and disorderly offences do not protect the driving public . . . Three of the 72 drivers were driving without a licence."

Any conviction based on the abuse of alcohol, he says, should alert authorities to the possibility they are dealing with an emotionally ill individual whose psychiatric problems have immunized him against legal threats and educational appeals. The alcoholic driver today, even when repeatedly apprehended, goes on until he removes himself by way of a fatal injury.

"This places other drivers," Dr. Selzer sums up, "in positions much like ducks in a shooting gallery."

Assurance that the survey of the Moira River Valley would be made, possibly next year, and that guaging of the river and aerial photography as a prelude to the survey would definitely be made in the near future, was given a joint City of Belleville-County of Hastings special committee by the Ontario Minister of Planning and Development at Queen's Park the other day. With the minister were the Director of Planning and an engineer of the department.

The department engineer told the committee that due to the fact that trained personnel were not immediately available, the survey of the Moira could not be undertaken until the summer of 1946. He pointed out that the survey only reveals what is to be done. After that is is up the community.

Ivan the Terrible, czar of Muscovy, was born 435 years ago today—in 1530—and succeeded his father at the age of three. During his teens he seized control from a council of noblemen and became the first Russian ruler to claim the title of czar. Ivan laid the foundations of the modern Russian empire in a decade of impressive conquest but from 1560 onwards his morbid fears of treachery opened the door to mass murder and destruction. He razed Great Novgorod, the second city of the kingdom, on the accusation of one councillor. At the age of 50 Ivan killed his own son and heir in a fit of rage and the throne passed to the Romanov family at his death in 1584.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — A firm group of bank stocks and some activity in a handful of speculative mining issues featured an otherwise dull morning session on the Toronto stock market today.

Bank of Nova Scotia and Royal gained ¼ each to 73 and 76 as industrials were steady. Bank of Montreal and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce gained ⅛ each to 62⅝ and 64.

Among speculatives, White Star Copper fell 9 to a 1965 low of 39 cents after the company announced no commercial mineralization had been encountered on the first two drill holes on its property in the Timmins area.

Gunnar dipped five cents to $2.20. The company's construction division, McNamara Corp., is having financial troubles and the company has said it will report to shareholders within 10 days.

On index, industrials were up .01 to 164.78, base metals .14 to 78.52 and the TSE index .02 to 154.87. Golds fell .16 to 170.72 and western oils .17 to 96.86. Volume at 11 a.m. was 758,000 shares compared with 830,000 traded at the same time Tuesday.

In Tuesday's trading, Gunnar shares fell 25 cents to $2.25.

The stock traded 32,675 shares, sold as low as $2.20 and as high as $2.54. The company told the exchange it would make a complete financial report to shareholders within 10 days.

This information was furnished in reply to a stock exchange demand that the company give a satisfactory explanation for the recent fall of the stock from better than the $4 mark.

The stock fell when it was rumored that McNamara Corp., Gunnar's construction division, was in serious financial trouble. The company said the rumor was true but that the company would continue to operate.

Gunnar's bankers now are looking at the situation with a view to finding a solution to the problems.

A speculative issue, United Buffadison, traded 455,300 shares and was unchanged at $1.82. Its high for the year—recorded earlier this month—was $2.40 and its low 48 cents.

The company, which is drilling for molybdenite in Endako, B.C., issued assay results Tuesday from the first drill hole. The stock fell to $1.64, but rallied later in the session.

On index, golds were up 1.52 to 170.88 while base metals fell .29 to 78.38, western oils .41 to 97.03 and the TSE index .37 to 154.85. Volume for the session was 3,519,000 shares compared with 3,831,000 Monday.

Irish Journey

Donegal--The Land Of the Big Sky

By BARRY McCULLAGH

County Donegal in Ireland's remote northwest is the land of the big sky, often filled with scudding clouds and the prospect of rain.

The climate of this region is one of movement and variety. The clouds coast along like Roman legions, to part now and again and admit a burst of sunshine that drives the shadows from mountain slopes and valleys.

It is rugged country that does not encourage large-scale farming as in other parts of Ireland, but fishing is carried on extensively along the coast.

It was in this exotic (and exhausting) setting that I experienced my first (and last) vacation by bicycle. It was some years ago and was more of a hike than anything else. Once I resorted to a glass of a celebrated Irish stout to replace the energy I lost on Donegal's tortuous mountain roads!

Still there was time to absorb the grandeur of this lonely region, where some people still live in tiny whitewashed cottages with thatched roofs, where Gaelic may still be heard and where legends and tales of the "wee folk" are still part of the fabric of a society far removed from the din of towns and cities.

As a vacation land Donegal has few rivals, with its fractured landscapes and massive coastal vistas where the Atlantic surf breaks on great stretches of golden sand. Donegal is popular with fishermen and golfers and for long it has been a mecca for artists—like Maurice Wilks and in an earlier time, Paul Henry and Humbert Craig, whose canvases have captured something of the region's haunting beauty.

NAVAL BASE

From Belfast I had set out by rail for Londonderry, Ulster's second city, known to many Canadians on wartime convoy duty. Here is the spacious harbor that was home to many of the escort vessels on Atlantic patrols between 1939 and 1945 and where many of what remained of the Nazi submarine fleet tied up following the German surrender.

Here are the famous walls of Derry, the cannon "Roaring Meg" and other relics of the siege by the Jacobite armies in 1689. Ulster's rallying cry "No Surrender" had its origin here.

And here I crossed the border into Donegal and the Irish Republic, travelling through Letterkenny and heading south toward the coast and the fishing village of Killybegs. Not many miles from this area, on the Ulster side of the border, is the village of Belleek and the famous pottery operation whose products are exported all over the world.

At first the terrain was flat and the going easy. After a stop in Glenties, however, I was faced with a long haul over a mountain pass to Ardara.

Now the road was far from smooth and I walked most of the way to the top of the pass. At last I made it and was rewarded with a great sweep of mountain and moorland and far away a glimpse of the Atlantic.

I could freewheel now and soon I was in Ardara. Stopping in a fine country mansion converted into a vacation home I discovered I was also at a centre of the weaving industry where fine Irish tweed is woven for home and overseas markets, with the home product finding its way into the stylings of such well-known Irish designers as Sybil Connolly of Dublin.

OCEAN VISTA

Through more rugged terrain that passed close to the ocean shore I reached Mulroy Bay, where fields of yellow buttercup carpeted the surrounding landscape, and the resort town of Dunfanaghy.

Strange how one associates certain periods of one's life with books read at the time. At overnight stops on this trip I recall reading Thor Heyerdahl's Kon-Tiki Expedition and a volume called Diary of a Disappointed Man.

The name of the author of the latter work escapes me but its contents are fresh in my memory. It was the daily chronicle of a man who had only a short time to live and whose courageous spirit absorbed everything of beauty and value in life. A naturalist, he would look upon a scene like Mulroy Bay with the wild flowers by the oceanside and the memory of the scene would stay with him to the end of his days.

At Dunfanaghy I had come almost full circle round the county and Londonderry was only about 50 miles away. So I decided to complete the journey the easy way and boarded a bus for Derry and home. Cycling can be hard work as I found out in Donegal!

ENGLISH CLAIM FRENCH

LONDON (CP) — There will be no simultaneous translation system when Montreal's Theatre du Nouveau Monde performs in French here during the Commonwealth Arts Festival. At earlier international seasons at the Aldwych Theatre it was found only 25 per cent of the audience said they could not understand French.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP) — Trading was active and prices were firm on light receipts of dry-fed slaughter cattle at the Ontario public stockyards today.

Slaughter cattle 2,520: Choice steers 25.50-26.50 with sales to 27.55; good 24 - 25; mediums 20-23; commons 14-19; choice heifers 22.50-23.50 with one load at 25; good 21-22; mediums 17-20; commons 14-16.50; choice fed yearlings 24-26; good 21-23; good cows 15-15.50 with sales to 16; medium 14-15; canners and cutters 10-13.50; good heavy bologna bulls 17.50-18.50 with sales to 19; common and mediums 14-17.

ROBT. N. LAUGHLEN

LEO J. HOLLAND

Two highly important appointments to this year's United Appeal campaign organization, as announced by Chairman John D. O'Flynn, are those of Robert N. Laughlen as chairman of the educational division and Leo J. Holland as speakers panel chairman. Both appointees are members of the local teaching profession, with Mr. Laughlen on the staff at Quinte Secondary School and Mr. Holland on that of Moira Secondary School.

STRIP CITIES

Strip cities are extending everywhere.
The inclination of home buyers to build along established highways is creating a vast outspreading, which it is predicted, will give the average size city a width of 25 miles or more.

Someday, for instance, every lot with well water between Belleville and Shannonville will be occupied by a new home.

Where will these new home owners shop? Where else but along the same highway on their way home from work!

If you are planning a new venture aimed at tourists, established east enders and new No. 2 highway home owners why not look over our Dundas St. E. commercial or industrial site just east of Farley on the south side of the highway.

Assets making this the finest site available on this No. 2 east-west artery are: 1. Unmatched width of 600 ft. highway frontage. 2. Access from both Dundas and Farley Ave. 3. CPR railway facility. 4. Future through roadway from Haig to 401. 5. Trade from 200-home Haig Road subdivision now under development. 6. Competitive Price. 7. Fully serviced. 8. Waterfront site for Boat - Motel.

This highway land is zoned for almost any kind of commercial or industrial enterprise. It can be bought in whole or part.

B.C. Red Ensign Club Fighting Maple Leaf

By JACK MORRIS

ABBOTSFORD, B.C (CP) — "Down with the maple leaf" has become the rallying cry of a band of British Columbians determined to restore the red ensign as Canada's flag.

Their ranks include a widow who claims to be a direct descendant of Lord Nelson and an outspoken 75 year old former British infantry sergeant.

Their objectives: The red ensign as the national flag and inclusion of the ensign in every provincial flag including Quebec's.

Registered as the Red Ensign Club of British Columbia, the fledgling group already claims support from as far east as Ontario and Manitoba.

It is hopeful of eventual support from all the Prairie provinces, much of Ontario and the Maritimes and of "some" from English-speaking Quebecers.

Club members say they don't trust "politicians" after the debate in Parliament which resulted in the maple leaf becoming the national flag.

"The time is past in Canada when we can take our institutions for granted and certainly long past when we can depend on our politicians to protect and maintain our heritage," said a recent press release.

The Red Ensign Club was born four months ago in this quiet Fraser Valley farming community 40 miles southeast of Vancouver. Its founder was George Burnham, who lives in retirement here.

"The people who did up this flag didn't know what they were doing," he declares. "They've thrown our heritage away, in a garbage can."

Mr. Burnham was born in London, served in the First World War with the British infantry as a sergeant, came to Canada in 1920, joined the Canadian army as a cook and served overseas 2½ years.

When he heard of impending plans to make the maple leaf the national flag, he wrote to the Queen, Governor - General Vanier and Prime Minister Pearson. The replies were polite and non-committal.

Twice he travelled to Ottawa, vainly seeking an interview with Mr. Pearson.

"When I saw that Pearson was adamant, I knew something had to be done."

He joined with Douglas Taylor, a 41 - year - old insurance salesman here who was an air force officer in the Second World War, to promote a club.

With the support of others, they applied for a charter for the Red Ensign Club of Canada.

REFUSED BY OTTAWA

"This was denied by the secretary of state for Canada," says Canadian-born Mr. Taylor, an articulate man who is president of the club.

"We were forced to change our name to the Red Ensign Club of British Columbia, and we were registered without hesitation under the provincial Societies Act."

Interest in the club spread swiftly, they said, particularly in the Victoria area, known for its large group of red ensign and Union Jack supporters.

Margaret Derbyshire took over in Victoria and began forming a branch of the club there. She claims to trace her lineage back to Lord Nelson, the English naval hero who destroyed the combined French and Spanish invasion fleets in 1805.

"We shall fight this new flag to the last ditch," she declares.

"My husband, my son and my two brothers all fought and died under the red ensign. I'm not going to give up without a fight."

Disagreement is evident among some club members over tactics to be employed. Mr. Burnham vows the club will go to the Supreme Court of Canada to get rid of the maple leaf; Mr. Taylor denies such a move is contemplated.

But there is no difference of opinion on the aims of the club.

"The ensign, which of course contains the Union Jack, symbolizes our constitutional monarchy and parliamentary democracy," says Mr. Taylor. "Canadians have fought and died for it."

He wants a national plebiscite to determine which flag Canadians want. But he believes a vote would have to come soon.

"If we are fed this propaganda (about the maple leaf) long enough certainly we'll come to accept it and forget the red ensign."

Most club members—"several hundred at the moment and we're growing fast and getting letters from as far as Ontario and Manitoba" — are over 40 and are veterans or have had some connection with the world wars.

Mr. Taylor agrees that probably many young people "couldn't care less" about the ensign or the Union Jack and that there "is also an element in the country that has no respect for either flag."

"But basically most young people haven't really made a final decision on a long-term basis. After all, many of them have never faced a real crisis.

"These things don't mean much — and freedom doesn't either—unless in many cases you literally have to fight for it.

"Many of us did. And we did it under the ensign."

sanction it until they had examined the workers' complaints.

BLAMES COMPANY

However, Leonard Woodcock, union vice - president, later issued a statement declaring the walkout official. In it he said:

"The strike was brought about by the provocative action of de Havilland in shipping out incomplete components to Douglas Aircraft Co., Los Angeles, in obvious preparation for a strike."

The union claimed that wages at de Havilland were 70 cents an hour less than those in U.S. aircraft plants. The average wage for workers producing tail and wing sections in the Douglas plant is $3.40 an hour.

A company statement said the firm had made an offer of 53 cents an hour, including an estimated cost of living bonus and other benefits in a three-year contract.

"Rates and benefits thus offered are some 20 to 30 per cent higher than competitive Canadian companies in the aircraft industry," the statement said.

"It is understood that the present union position calls for a package, the value of which is estimated to be 92 cents per hour including an estimated cost of living bonus over a three-year contract."

REMAINS A HOT SPOT

NANTES, France (AP)—The French Navy sold off two of the last Sunderland flying boats—British - designed seaplane bombers of 1933 vintage. One goes to a museum and the other may become a floating night club. The buyer plans to put a bandstand on the wings and fill the roomy interior with tables.

New Appeals For Federal Intervention

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The machinery of rebuilding the city's riot-torn south - central area creaked into motion Tuesday, following renewed verbal sniping and new appeals for federal intervention.

Help for the riot area was forming on various fronts and a commission appointed by Governor Edmund G. Brown planned to begin its probe of causes, with Governor Brown as one of the first witnesses.

On the eve of the state hearing, labor officials called on President Johnson to appoint a presidential commission to investigate the riots.

William Pollard of the AFL-CIO civil rights department—here to work with local union leaders—said national action is needed to prevent recurring riots in Los Angeles and elsewhere.

MORE PREDICTED

A prediction that "riots will happen again in this country" was made Monday by former senator Barry Goldwater.

Goldwater, 1964 Republican presidential candidate, said on a nationally televised news program that he thought disrespect for law and yack of economic opportunity were twin causes of the riots.

"I think we'd better get on with the job of providing training, providing incentive, and providing integration," Goldwater said.

The way was cleared Monday for a $20,900,000 anti-poverty program for Los Angeles. Disagreement over makeup of the group to administer the federal-local program had deadlocked it.

Meanwhile, demonstrators staged a sit-down in Mayor Samuel Yorty's office to demand the resignation of Police Chief William H. Parken.

Yorty didn't meet the demonstrators and they left without commotion when city hall closed at 5 p.m.

tabs on them from earthly stations around the world are pleased with their condition. But the astronauts don't seem to be getting as much sleep as some flight officials would like.

Dr. Duane Catterson, night flight surgeon, indicated no cause for concern over the short sleep cycles and said: "Everything is looking satisfactory. The crew is feeling fine."

And the astronauts are getting an ample amount of water—close to the national earthly average of six pounds a man a day.

Cooper became the champion of outer space at 10:47 p.m. EDT Tuesday when the craft whirled over the Atlantic on the 54th orbit.

He surpassed Russian cosmonaut Valery Bykovsky's mark of 119 hours and six minutes by including the logged time on this flight with the 34 hours and 20 minutes of his Faith 7 mercury mission in 1963.

Cooper and Conrad seem to be progressing well in the various experiments on the flight plan, having completed several photographic and communications exercises.

Crews of two ships spotted the spacecraft Tuesday as it glittered in the sunlight.

Crew members on the McKenzie in the Pacific Ocean recovery area said it had the magnitude of a planet and travelled fast.

"Gordo," called a communicator from the coastal sentry Quebec in the Indian Ocean, "we saw you on this last pass."

"Great," Cooper said. "Did it look very bright in the sunlight?"

There was no reply.

not been settled.

With Russia back as a big wheat buyer (222,000,000 bushels in the crop year that began Aug. 1) and China ready to plunge again, everybody is smiling from Trade Minister Sharp down.

The carryover at the end of the 1964-65 crop year that ended July 31 totalled 514,892,000 bushels—too much to have around with another Prairie bumper crop in the offing.

But the Russian and Chinese purchases could go a long way in keeping Canadian wheat stockpiles down to manageable proportions.

RED TAPE NOT WANTED

BERLIN (AP) — Bureaucracy hampers East Germany's efforts to stop people from fleeing to the West, complains 1st Lieut. Jakubetz in an army magazine. He said green tripwires were delivered to the border during the snowy winter and white wires arrived in summertime.

MIXES TWO MUSICS

TOKYO (AP)—Reports of a new transistorized electric organ produced in Shanghai, Communist China, say it includes special devices to imitate Western string and woodwind instruments, as well as traditional Chinese intonations. The organ has two keyboards of 3½ octaves each and 13 base foot pedals.

CLOSE LOCK OCT. 17

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Trent Canal officials said Monday the hydraulic lift lock here will close Oct. 17. However long distance traffic through the canal system connecting Lake Ontario with Lake Simcoe will end Sept. 12 with the closing of the lock at Kirkfield, Ont., for repairs.

Ann Landers

Emotional Well-being No Cancer Cure

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You seem to believe in psychiatry, which is nothing more than talking people out of mental illness. If this can be done successfully, why can't people be talked out of cancer?

Before you say it's impossible, may I tell you I've known for a long time that all illness begins in the mind. If the mind is healthy, the body is healthy. Even psychiatrists say a sick mind can make a well person sick. So why can't a well mind make a sick person well?

There seems to be a lot of foundation money around for research. Can you help me obtain a grant for this project? It could save millions of lives. Thank you.—TRUE BELIEVER.

DEAR BELIEVER: Sorry, I have no influence over foundation money. You are correct when you say a sick mind can make a well person sick. A prominent Minnesota physician estimates that over 60% of the patients in hospital beds today are there because of illness which began with an emotional problem.

Cancer, however, is defined as the uncontrolled multiplication of cells. Many cancers, when discovered early, have been destroyed or removed and the patients' lives are saved. Psychiatry, which has to do with the exploration and ventilation of emotional problems, cannot stop cancerous cells from multiplying.

Some cancers have been known to "disappear". Such cancers were "self-limiting" which means the body had set up its own immune reactions. (The quacks have a ball with these cases.) Such phenomena have been explained by medical science and are not "out of the blue miracles", so please don't write and tell me about Aunt Matilda who was cured of cancer by hocus pocus.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several days ago my husband and I had dinner in the home of a friend.

For dessert this woman served a delicious banana pie. When I asked her for the recipe she replied: "I'm sorry but it took me a lifetime to collect my recipes and I don't give them out."

I felt as if I had been slapped across the face. I have not spoken to this woman since and I'm not inviting her to a party we are giving next month. My husband says I'm behaving like a child. We want your opinion.—N.J.

DEAR N.J.: The woman is not depriving you of something to which you are entitled. The recipe is hers and she told you she didn't wish to share it.

She is a better friend than the babes who don't want to share their recipes but don't have the nerve to admit it and then double an ingredient here and there or leave something out.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is a prominent business man and I work as his secretary. His son by a former marriage comes to the office at least twice a week and walks by me without even speaking. It is apparent that his mother has done a thorough job of poisoning his mind against me.

The boy's father has taken care of all his college expenses, bought him clothes and a car. I feel that I have contributed, too, since I work in my husband's business.

This whole ugly situation has come to a head because the boy is being married next month. My husband has been invited to the wedding. I have not.

Some of my friends say I should go to the wedding with my husband as a matter of principle. What do you say?—NUMBER TWO.

DEAR NUMBER: No principle is served if you show up at an affair to which you have not been invited. The "friends" who are urging you to crash the wedding are looking for a little excitement at your expense. Stay home.

* * *

Do you lean on cigarettes as a social crutch? You may regret it later. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Smoking", enclosing with your request 10c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You seem to believe in phychiatry,

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

P.C. Women Honor Vice-President

At a recent executive meeting of the Belleville Progressive Conservative Women's Association held at the home of the president, Mrs. Stuart Howell a presentation was made to Mrs. C. W. Coleman, who has been a vice-president of this association for the last few years and is now leaving Belleville with her husband the Rev. C. W. Coleman, to take up residence in Cannington.

Mrs. Harry Yorke made the presentation to Mrs. Coleman and expressed the good wishes of this association. Mrs. E. Sandercock joined the ladies to add the good wishes of Mr. Sandercock and herself. A busy fall program has been planned for the association.

The first meeting of the coming season will be held on the third Tuesday of September at which time an interesting speaker will be in attendance.

Expert Advises Mothers To Avoid Fashion Race

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP)—A sensible school wardrobe for a girl under 10 would consist of a couple of skirts or jumpers with blouses and sweaters and two or three cotton dresses for warm weather.

You might get the impression from the mother of the young fashion plate down the block that this is woefully inadequate but it should serve most children in most schools.

"Mothers should have the courage not to fall in with a neighborhood example," says Joyce Greggains. "Most women don't want the fashion contests to happen, if they stop to think of it."

Mrs. Greggains is assistant editor of Our Children, published by the Children's Aid Society of Metropolitan Toronto. Before her marriage she worked on a magazine for mothers in England and now is the mother of four herself.

She says the size of a child's wardrobe should be governed also by how often mother does a washing. A woman who is going to work will need to supply more clothes. But everything possible should be machine washable.

SAVE ON SHIRTS

The place to economize on ordinary clothes for either boys or girls, she suggests, is in your choice of blouses and shirts. You can buy enough inexpensive ones so a bit of dirt isn't tragedy, and a girl can enjoy her style changes.

Mrs. Greggains recommends buying the best trousers you can afford and a number of iron-on patches. She says shorts for play are more economical than long pants because they'll fit a growing child longer and there are no knees to be torn.

Separates generally allow more leeway for growing in. If you buy as many in plain solid colors as possible you won't have to wince at the sight of a child's choice of color and pattern mixtures, which can be haphazard.

Little girls will have more room to grow in dresses that are waist-less—A-lines, for instance.

"But it's difficult to make some girls like this type of dress. Children like to think they have waists."

Mrs. Greggains says children should be given some chance to help choose their own clothes even if it is only a choice between two things you have picked out. She also is a firm believer in hand-me-downs but thinks each child should have some things, however inexpensive, that are new and just for him.

NEED GOOD COATS

In most parts of Canada, she says, the short spring and fall seasons make an expensive lightweight coat unnecessary. Cheat a little there with a blazer or an inexpensive coat and put the money into the best snow suit or winter coat you can afford.

"A two-piece snow suit may be most practical because the child can wear the jacket only for a while.

"One item people on clothes budgets seem to overlook is socks and they're not only expensive they're easy to lose. I don't know how many women would want to admit it but I know I lose socks. Even if you darn well, always buy several pairs of socks of the same color as you do your own stockings."

She has two lists of suggestions that may help when you are buying clothes with room for growth and for little children who are still not adept at dressing themselves.

Look for deep hems in dress and cuffs, wide seams and adjustable shoulder straps. There should be plenty of room from neck to crotch in one-piece overalls or rompers. Buy clothes with a slightly low, loose-fitting waist.

Front openings are easiest for small children to manage. All their clothes should have few and simple fasteners. They will find big pockets that are easy to reach useful.

SHIPS COLLIDE

SEPT - ILES, Que. (CP)—Two ore-carrying ships collided Tuesday night in the harbor of this iron - ore port 300 miles northeast of Quebec. No injuries were reported. Involved were the Black Bay, owned by Canada Steamship Lines, and and the Epic, owned by Triton Shipping. The Epic's prow entered the starboard side of the Black Bay.

APPROVE BAN

EDMONTON (CP) — City Council Monday night approved a motion which would ban any ousted council member from seeking re election to council for 10 years. The opposition included Vince Dantzer, an alderman who became mayor when William Hawrelak was disqualified last March from the position for violating the City Act in a business deal.

SNOW HITS

PORTO ALEGRE, Brazil (AP)—The Brazilian state of Rio Grade Do Sul was practically isolated from the rest of the country Tuesday by floods and snow. Thousands of persons were forced to flee their homes and authorities feared the death toll may be high. The snow covered a large part of this usually balmy agricultural state.

High Fashion Industry Tries to Protect Models

PARIS (AP)—The Paris high fashion industry is raising its guard against another wave of espionage as seamstresses toil behind locked doors preparing the first exclusive patterns.

The industry doesn't like to discuss the subject, and only a few cases—or suspected cases—reach the courts and thus public record.

High fashion's vulnerability results from the perishable quality of its product. The houses go to great lengths to preserve exclusiveness on the creations of their high-paid talent.

Some incidents start in the press and buyers' showings, industry sources say. But the worst come a month later after delivery of the first models to manufacturers. That time will come early in September.

Delivered tightly sealed and sometimes under guard, the sample dresses are the working patterns of garments in which graceful mannequins swirled through the show rooms in late July and early August. On the basis of these fleeting first impressions, the manufacturers pay from $500 to $3,500 for the rights to duplicate a dress for sale at $300 or so.

Because the Paris designers can receive $1,500,000 a season from U.S. firms alone for these rights, they—and the legitimate buyers—hit the ceiling when a non-buying store is first on the racks with $9.98 imitations.

The watchdog for the industry is the Chambre Syndicale de la Couture Parisienne. It first carefully screens the applicants for introductory shows. Fashion writers must prove their affiliations; buyers must leave deposits against future orders.

No photos are permitted at the shows for immediate release. Publications may employ sketch artists, but they are supposed to portray only "tendencies." Drawings which show too much detail are confiscated at the door.

But where there's a spy, there's a way. To some manufacturers, the potential profit sometimes overbalances the risk.

"They use every method imaginable from brain-picking the legitimate buyers to trying to sidetrack deliveries of the patterns," says an industry spokesman.

Nuns Ordered To Give Up Animal Shelter

VICTORIA (CP)—Six elderly Roman Catholic nuns have been told their operation of an animal shelter west of here is inconsistent with their religious vows.

Mother Cecilia Mary and her Sisters of the Love of Jesus are ordered by the church to turn the Shelter of the Good Shepherd over to someone else or face loss of their status as nuns.

But mother Cecilia, who founded both the order and the shelter, declared: "I'll die on the battlefield, but I'm not ready yet."

The 76-year-old nun's stand leaves the next move up to Rome, said Most. Rev. Remi De Roo, Bishop of Victoria.

The bishop said the deadline for compliance has already passed. Last April, the church gave Mother Cecilia and the five sisters until May 4 to leave the shelter and return to their Benedictine priory.

DELIVER ORDER

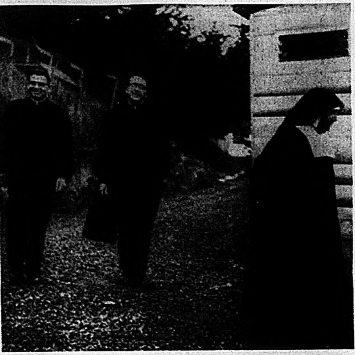
The order, delivered Monday night by Msgr. M. T. O'Connell, chancellor of Victoria diocese, and Rev. Andrew Keber of Mission City, B.C., was from the church's apostolic delegate in Ottawa, Most Rev. Sergio Pigenedoli.

It said the growth, health and spiritual welfare of the order is the prime concern of the Vatican.

"If any one of them refuses to obey in this matter then ecclesiastical authority will reconsider their official status in the church as sisters."

Bishop De Roo said this did not mean excommunication, but simply that the sisters could continue to run the shelter only if they drop their religious vows.

He said the shelter could continue, but not under the impression it was a work of the church.



SHELTER CLOSED—Rev. Andrew Keber of Mission City, B.C. (left) and Msgr. M. T. O'Connell, chancellor of Roman Catholic diocese of Victoria, arrive at Good Shepherd animal shelter late Monday to order closure and return of Rev. Mother Cecilia Mary to priory. Wooler

WOOLER — Mr. and Mrs. George Ruttan of St. Catharines left on Saturday to spend a week with their son Robert Ruttan and his wife at their cottage at Coboconk.

Mr. Elwood Fox is still a patient in Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. W. E. Simpson of Monroe, Michigan, is spending two weeks with her sister, Mrs. N. N. Haggarty.

Mrs. Elgin McMaster is still a patient in Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. L. E. Bryant entertained Mr. and Mrs. George Ruttan of St. Catharines, Mrs. W. E. Simpson of Monroe, Mrs. N. N. Haggarty, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. McColl and Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Putnam on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Peister and children of Ottawa left on Thursday for home after spending a month at her mother's home in the village.

Eric Lawson returned home on Saturday after spending some time in Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. McColl spent the weekend in Toronto with Mr. and Mrs. David McColl.

IGNORE OWN PLIGHT

MONTREAL (CP) — Artist Thaya Batdorf of Lunenburg, N.S., here earlier this year to give a demonstration and lecture series, says she is both depressed and stimulated by city life. Visiting urban centres is necessary for the absorption of ideas, she said, "but people who live in the city never see the mad circle they are in."

Mother's Helper

IF YOU KEEP both fresh and hard-boiled eggs in the refrigerator, a mix-up can be messy. A gentle twirl on the table tells which is which—an uncooked egg doesn't spin; a cooked one does. Better yet, mark the cooked eggs with an "X" large enough for Junior to see. (Thanks to Mrs. Ridley Pearson, Briny Breezes, Fla.)

Why your child's slippers should fit just as well as his shoes

Properly fitting shoes are important for growing feet. But every day your child spends many hours in slippers. So their fit is important, too.

Foamtread slippers come in proper sizes so they start by fitting right. And they keep their fit indefinitely.

An unbreakable heel counter holds the foot snugly inside the slipper. The heels don't wear down. And the smooth leather outsoles give safe, sure footing without marking floors.

Foamtreads are completely washable too.

So don't stop half-way: give your child every chance to develop strong, healthy feet by making sure his slippers fit just as well as his shoes.

P.S. When you buy their shoes for back to school, make them Packards.

MR. AND MRS. LAVERNE PETER McGRATH

McGrath – Walsh

A lovely wedding was solemnized on Saturday, August 21, 1965, when Mary Barbara Walsh, daughter of Mrs. Frank Walsh, Belleville, and the late Mr. F. Walsh, became the bride of Laverne Peter McGrath, son of Mr. and Mrs. John McGrath, Erinsville. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. J. O'Neill in Holy Name of Mary's Church, Marysville.

Mrs. Adrian Callaghan was organist and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. John Sexsmith.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. James Walsh, wore a full length bridal gown of French cut-work lace and nylon organza over taffeta. The form fitting lace bodice was enhanced with long lily-point sleeves. The full flowing skirt of nylon organza edged with lace was styled with a removable chapel train. The front hemline was caught up by a small rosette of lace. She wore a chapel headdress of matching lace from which flowed a shoulder length veil of tulle illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Mrs. Joan Hinch, sister of the bride as matron of honor wore a floor length gown of turquoise blue organza with matching lace trim styled with short sleeves and portrait neckline and a removable train. She carried a bouquet of pink tinted 'mums. Mrs. Joan Walsh, sister in law of the bride and Miss Linda Hawkins, a cousin, were similarly dressed to the maid of honor but in shell pink. They carried bouquets of turquoise tinted 'mums.

Mr. Leonard McGrath, brother of the bridegroom, was the groomsman, while Mr. Donald McGrath and Mr. Austin McGrath, both brothers of the bridegroom were the ushers.

For the reception in Melrose hall the bride's mother, wearing a navy and white pure silk dress, navy accessories and a corsage of pink carnations, received the guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a beige lace dress, dark brown accessories and a corsage of yellow 'mums.

For the wedding trip to Lake Placid and other points of interest in New York State, the bride chose a two-piece suit in orange ice shade, patent leather accessories, white feathered hat and a corsage of white carnations.

On return from the honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. McGrath will reside at 400 Grenfell St., Oshawa.

Wayward Girls Finding Solace in Primitive Camp

PORT BOLSTER, Ont. (CP)— A corner of a field on the Trent Canal with an old wood-burning stove standing in it is part of an Ontario training school.

Small groups of girls from Trelawney House, an institution for 20 girls of school age, are taken to the primitive camp for four or five days each summer.

The land itself is loaned the training school by a relative of a staff member. While it is serving as a camp it is furnished with tents, the stove, a refrigerator that stands in a grove of trees, a mirror nailed to a tree trunk and a dresser in a clearing.

A recent group included an 11-year-old leader of a young gang of shoplifters, a 15 - year - old petty thief, a 12-year-old whose need for affection had led her to hitchhike up and down the highway looking for rides and a substitute for love from truck drivers.

Mrs. M. E. Jansen, retiring superintendent of Trelawney House, says the girls sent there never wear uniforms, and the only enclosure around the house is a neat hedge. She says girls have run away, but have returned or been brought back.

She says only one girl has been sent back to court to face a charge after her release from the house. She estimates 75 per cent of the girls who have left have married and the others have gone to jobs as nursing assistants, secretaries or hairdressers.

Mrs. Jansen has kept a scrapbook of letters written to her, of pictures and newspaper clippings from girls who have kept in touch. She says she will leave the scrapbooks for the house, but will take with her a scrap of paper which she described as the goal and goad of her work.

It is a letter written in the uncertain hand of a seven-year-old. It says, "Dear Mother," (a name often given Mrs. Jansen) "I am trying to be good now. Love, Betty."

WEDDING

SANDFORD — McCAW

MARMORA — Gladioli in rainbow hues to match wedding ensembles decorated St. Paul's Anglican Church on Friday evening, August 20, when Grace Elizabeth McCaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford McCaw, Marmora, was united in marriage to Lance Sandford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sandford of Whitby. Rev. Reginald Lane performed the ceremony and Mrs. Roy Frost played the wedding music.

Mr. McCaw gave his daughter in marriage. Her white full length nylon organdy over taffeta gown had a short train and her Chantilly lace veil was Spanish style covering a tiara. She carried a corsage of Sweetheart roses crested on a white Bible.

Maid of honor was Miss Linda Gawley, Marmora, and bridesmaids were her sisters, the Misses Sandra and Joyce McCaw. Their full length gowns of nylon organdy were similar to the bride's in rainbow hues of yellow, green and mauve. Their headdresses were small ribboned crowns from which fell short nylon veils. Each carried a single rose.

Flower girl was Miss Shelley Quinlan wearing a long pink nylon gown and her corsage was a single rosebud. Master Jamie Mantle was ring-bearer.

James Bedore was best man and ushers were Glen McCaw, brother of the bride, and Ricky Sandford, brother of the bridegroom.

For the reception at the Anglican Church hall, Mrs. McCaw received the guests in a pale blue lace over taffeta jacket dress with white accessories. She was assisted by Mrs. Sandford who wore a pink sheath with matching lace coat and pink accessories.

The bride's travelling outfit for their motor trip to Cape Cod was a green linen two-piece suit, white accessories with a corsage of pink carnations. On their return they will reside at Whitby.

Previous to the wedding, showers were held for Miss McCaw by Mrs. William McDonald, Miss Linda Gawley, Mrs. Cecil Neal and by Mrs. Boyd Warren. A family Bible was presented to them by the choir of St. Paul's Anglican Church.

Hold Showers For Various Couples

RAWDON — Over 100 neighbors and friends gathered at Wellmans Orange Hall and tendered Mr. and Mrs. Harland C. Smith (nee Margaret Dracup) with a presentation party on the occasion of their recent marriage.

Craig Watson was master of ceremonies and Mrs. Watson was pianist. Vocal duets were rendered by Mrs. Frederick Beckett and Mrs. Gordon Foster and by the Misses Anne and June Watson. Mrs. Gerald Russett sang a solo. Selections were read by Mrs. John Carlisle, Mrs. Burton Morton and Mrs. Douglas Clancy. Piano selections were contributed by Gayle Hoover, Sharon Mathews and Janic Clancy.

Mrs. Kenneth Tompkins read an appreciative address and Miss Carol Seeley made the presentation of a purse of money.

Margaret and Harland expressed thanks for the party and gifts and invited the group to visit them in Philadelphia.

PRESENTATION

The Carmel community tendered Mr. and Mrs. George Grills (nee Gayle Whitton) a presentation party in the Jubilee Hall on the occasion of their recent marriage. Lyle Couch was master of ceremonies for a program of readings and music.

Frank Keating read the address and the young couple were the recipients of a floor lamp and matching end table lamps.

George and Gayle voiced thanks for the party and gifts and to the ladies who served refreshments.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

Miss Nellie Visser, an August bride-to-be was tendered a miscellaneous shower at Carmel United Church hall. The hostesses were Mrs. Harry Brown, Mrs. Reg. Parks, Mrs. Ray Hagerman, and Miss Sandra Hagerman.

A program of readings, piano music, contests and games were enjoyed. The gifts included a bride's book which each guest signed as a remembrance of this happy occasion. Nellie thanked her friends for the party and gifts.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses at the close of the evening.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Kitchener Ward, Belleville, announce the engagement of their daughter Sharon Elaine to Mr. Lawrence Melvin Phillips of Ottawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Phillips of Belleville. The marriage will take place at 11 a.m. Saturday, September 25th at St. Joseph's Church, Belleville.

Mrs. Harry Israel (nee Sophie Marcus) and son have returned to Detroit after visiting at the home of Mrs. Harry O'Brien and with her grandmother, Mrs. Samuels, James Street.

Cathcart Clan Entertains Scots Guests

Clan Cathcart gathered on Saturday night at Club Canara, when relatives from near and far were entertained by Mrs. Robert Cathcart, Mrs. Tom Cathcart and Mrs. Ina Robinson. The occasion was a farewell dinner and dance in honor of Mrs. Nancy M'Elroy of Paisley, Scotland and Mrs. Jean Cunningham of Clydebank, Scotland.

Both women have been visiting Canada for the past nine weeks and will leave by plane for Scotland on Thursday. They have enjoyed trips to Ottawa, Fort Henry, the U.S.A. and local points of interest.

Highlight of their visit was the Highland Games at Cobourg, where Shelley and Jamie Ross, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ross (formerly Jennie Cathcart) of Calgary, Alberta, participated. Shelley took part in the dancing competition, while Jamie was the youngest piper. Both girls are members of the Calgary Girls Pipe Band.

Following the dinner, singing and dancing was enjoyed by the guests.

OUT OF TOWN VISITORS

Among those who have been visiting in Belleville are: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ross, Shelley, Jamie and Kevin of Calgary, Alberta and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Aiken of Paisley, Scotland, who were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Devolin, Vine Crescent; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cathcart of Bloomfield, New Jersey, who visited Mr. Jim Cathcart Sr., Bay Drive; Mr. Alex Cathcart of Regina, Saskatchewan, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hempseed and daughter of Toronto and Mrs. Jean Cunningham of Clydebank, Scotland who were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cathcart, Bay Drive; Mrs. Kay Pulker of Toronto and Mrs. Nancy M'Elroy who were guests of Mrs. Ina Robinson, Burnham Street.

Others attending the family party on Saturday were: Mr. and Mrs. Bertie Sorley and daughter Ann of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. James Cathcart, Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Cathcart, Heather and Robert, Mr. Thomas Cathcart Jr.; Miss Gail Robinson; Mr. and Mrs. Alex Gemmel; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Plumpton; Mr. and Mrs. Steve Bakay and Craig and Mr. and Mrs. John Robinson.

Shown cutting the wedding cake following their recent marriage in Mountain Grove United Church are Rev. Wilbert C. Cox and Mrs. Cox. The bride is the former Dawn Evelyn Good, daughter of Mrs. Adrian Good of Mountain Grove and the late Mr. A. Good. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Cox, Arden, Ontario. They are now residing in the manse of the Rawdon pastoral charge where Mr. Cox commenced his new duties.

FEW CHALLENGERS — Karate expert Margitte Kilberg of Calgary finds new challengers in her specialty. The 26-year old brunette will be presented in three months with the black belt for karate and will become the only woman in Canada to have reached that standard. She says women find it harder than men to learn karate because "we do not learn as children how to fight with our hands. We learn to bite." (CP Photo)

Karate Likened To Dance

CALGARY (CP) — Margitte Hilbig finds few to challenge her in her specialty. The petite 26-year-old brunette is a karate expert.

In two months she will be presented with a black belt and as far as she knows she will be the only woman in Canada to have achieved this level of proficiency in the sport.

She was introduced to the sport 2½ years ago when she took a job as secretary of Olaf Simon, a karate instructor. After watching pupils train she decided to try it herself.

Today she instructs four city women in karate, a sport in which the toughened edge of the hand is used as a weapon.

"Women take karate to develop their figure and improve their general health," Miss Hilbig says, referring to the graceful ballet-like movements. "You just don't gain weight if you take karate."

Last May Miss Hilbig was a Canadian representative at the Western U.S. karate championships in Salt Lake City.

"I had to compete against men because there just weren't any women around. The men didn't want to compete against me but when they realized I was serious about karate they agreed to the matches."

A slight injury forced her to withdraw before the finals.

Simon says karate is "a concentration of calisthenics and not a sensational exhibition of brute strength."

"There is no evil aim in karate. Students are forbidden to use the art except in extreme cases of self-defence."

Miss Hilbig says "it's a form of dancing" but women find it harder to learn than men "because we do not learn as children to fight with our hands." Contrary to popular belief, she adds, you don't need to develop ugly, calloused hands.

WINES ARE STRONGER

Table wines contain three times as much alcohol as beer, being 20 degrees proof compared with beer's seven degrees.

A REMINDER

Wedding forms for write-ups are available at The Intelligencer and should be completed and returned BEFORE the ceremony so a report can be published immediately after the wedding.

Pictures may be submitted by your photographer up to three days after the wedding. We cannot publish wedding write-ups submitted later than six days after the date of the ceremony.

Accounts of showers and entertainments in honor of the bride do not belong with the wedding write-up, but should be sent in immediately after they are held, for publication separately.

Realtors Inaugurate Method For Giving Better Service

The Belleville Real Estate Board and the Multiple Listings Service inaugurated a new method for giving better service to the public this morning. The first of what will be weekly Wednesday morning breakfast meetings was attended by 70 sales personnel from the real estate firms who comprise the Board and MLS. New listings were discussed and all previous listings were reviewed.

Last year one and a half million dollars worth of sales were made in Belleville through the Multiple Listings Service and it is expected that the figure this year will approximate two million. MLS originated in Peterborough and Oshawa and it has been found to be most effective in centres of this city's population.

Following their meeting the realtors set out upon an inspection tour of the new listings which usually number between five and eight a week. The representatives of the city real estate firms spent about two hours looking over the properties that had just been listed with the Board. The essence of the Multiple Listings Service is that now any one of these salesmen and salesladies may sell houses so listed thus providing a valuable service for both those interested in selling a house and those interested in buying.

Four of Belleville's original real estate sales ladies compare notes on this morning's tour of new properties listed with the Multiple Listings Service. Mrs. Anita O'Hara of J. E. McKinney Real Estate, Mrs. E. Marguerite Cooke of Gerald Joyce Realty Ltd., Mrs. Mary Colling of W. J. McCormick Realty Ltd., and Mrs. Joy Bowerman of Whalen Real Estate Ltd. (left to right) represent a total of 16 years in the real estate business here.

LEMON PIE VARIATIONS

When I was a teen-ager (restrain your comments!) my mother taught me how to make three-fruit marmalade. After tasting it and watching my father dutifully smacking his lips after spreading it on his breakfast toast, I thought I must be the best marmalade-maker in the whole world.

But the years have taught me to simmer down and give credit where it belongs — to the three fruits.

This morning I combined them again — orange, grapefruit and lemon — in a meringue pie. Basically this is a lemon meringue pie with a luscious lip-licking variation.

Timid pastry makers do not have to be apprehensive for it calls for a crumb crust — not a pastry shell.

WEDNESDAY
Dinner Menu
by Mary Moore

Melon Ball Fruit Cup; Cheese Omelette; Baked Potatoes; Mixed Green and Yellow Beans; Big Blueberry Tarts with Whipped Cream; Tea.

O. G. L. MERINGUE PIE (in hot weather refrigerate for 1 hour before serving):

Graham Cracker Crust: 1 2/3 cups fine graham cracker crumbs, ¼ cup soft butter, ¼ cup granulated sugar.

Filling: one 15-oz. can grapefruit sections — drained (see below), (40% sugar syrup — Jamaican pack was 25c), ½ cup sugar (first amount), 6 tablespoons cornstarch, ⅛ teaspoon salt, boiling water (see below), 4 eggs, yolks and whites separated, ¼ cup butter (or margarine), 1 large orange — grated rind and membraneless sections, ¼ cup lemon juice, ½ cup sugar (second amount), ½ teaspoon vanilla.

To Make Crust: Mix together the graham cracker crumbs, soft butter and ¼ cup granulated sugar until perfectly blended. Press uniformly into buttered 9" deep pie plate, making sure top edge is firm and neat. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 8 minutes. Remove from oven.

To Make Filling: Drain the grapefruit. Measure and reserve juice. In a heavy saucepan stir together well the first ½-cup amount sugar, cornstarch and salt. To the reserved grapefruit juice add enough boiling water to measure 1¾ cups. Stir this into the dry mixture and cook, stirring, until thick. Remove from heat and slowly add egg yolks, stirring. Return to heat and cook, stirring over low heat, for one minute. Remove from heat and stir in grated orange rind and butter until melted. Stir in lemon juice. Fold in grapefruit and orange sections gently. Pour into baked crumb pie crust. Beat the leftover egg whites until foamy then add the remaining ½ cup sugar and vanilla and beat until very stiff. Pile meringue attractively on top of filling to completely cover and seal to edges and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 10 minutes or until top is a delicate gold. Cool to room temperature before cutting. This pie is at its best when made in the morning of the day it is to be served.

An absolutely wonderful pie.

LUTON, England (CP) — A party of 25 local schoolchildren ate their way out of trouble twice on a recent trip to Moscow. When told they could not take Polish cherries into Russia, they sat down at the frontier and ate two pounds each. On the return journey they were not allowed to take Polish money into East Germany, so they spent it all on candy and ate that before crossing the border.

Successful Living

Resentment May Spark Man's Meanness to Boy

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — Every time my son (14) makes a little mistake my husband (his stepfather) calls him "A bull in a china shop." One day in a grocery store my son picked up the parcel of groceries to carry it and it slipped a bit to one side. My husband said to the clerk, jerking his head toward my son, "Stupid."

Every time my son picked up a nut or a candy from a bowl, my husband would tell me to "stop him or he was going to get mad." Tell me honestly, Doris, was this any way to start a marriage?

Today, I cannot see how I can ever be happy with this man who ridicules my son so much. — UNHAPPY MOTHER.

DEAR UNHAPPY — If, in contrast, your Second Mate had remarked to the grocer, "Fine boy, that! I never have to worry about carrying parcels when he's around!", he would have endeared himself to both of you. And given your boy a boost in his task of growing up!

Such adults show their own uncertainties. Has he reason to resent Sonny? I'd say you both need a serious talk. Then as much as possible you need to act as a unit, a friendly one which Sonny will come to for praise and priming, when he is meeting life head-on.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — My hair seems to be getting thinner and thinner. Is there anything which can be bought to thicken hair? I am 16 and in good health.

Another problem is my fingernails. They grow to a certain length and then break off. I have a few white spots on them. Is this what is causing it? Is there anything in the diet that may be eaten to help? — WONDERING.

DEAR WONDERING — Hair health reflects general health. So do fingernails. The white spots only mean you have banged them; but breaking off may mean a shortage of calcium — and other things.

To build better bones, nails and hair, you need a better diet than soft drinks, sweets and potato chips. Are you getting it? It takes energy to grow, and the right food supplies the fuel. Better see your doctor.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — A friend of mine whom I admire very much has been acting strange lately. A boy whom she met last year came here this summer and since then she will barely talk to me. She even will lie to me to keep away from me.

She hangs around this boy quite a lot with her other friends but it seems she doesn't want me around. It gets lonely by oneself after having no fun. What can I do? I don't like this boy and I don't act in such a way that she is ashamed to have me around. — LONELY AND PUZZLED.

DEAR PUZZLED — It's the rare girl who keeps on an even keel with her pals when there's a male on her mind. But perhaps you have made your dislike of him too obvious.

This is your cue to make some new friends — without spurning the old. Keep your poise, even if she doesn't.

* * *

Confidential to WORRIED — Your woman-chasing husband masks his own guilt in accusing you. Apparently he also cares not at all about shielding the children when he teases you. It's very childish. For all your sakes, seek the skilled help of a trained case worker.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: My question is about pimples. Our son, who is 14 years, has this disease all over, especially his face and back. For the past week he is washing at night with hot boiled water, and right after with cold water. It helps a bit, but we have heard about your leaflet about pimples. Will you send this to us, or do you suggest to see a doctor?

What are pimples, and their cause? We are immigrants and I am his father. — POLISH POP.

DEAR POP: The leaflet on acne (medical name for pimply condition) is on its way. Hot water washing is good; no need to boil. Frequent use of brush and soap are recommended. A good diet is essential. A stubborn case should be seen by a doctor.

Pimples are caused by the clogging of the pores of the skin, which then become infected. Oily skins have this trouble most.

Three cheers to a New Canadian Dad who takes action to improve his son's complexion!

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I am nearly 15. The girls I know are boy crazy. I like boys and have one who takes me out sometimes, but I do not like to attract the attention of boys on the streets.

My friends laugh so loud and do other things to attract attention that I am ashamed to walk with them. — AM I WRONG?

DEAR AM I — Not wrong — just different. In a few short years these noisy teen-hearts will have toned down their laughter and begun to act superior to similar boy-catchers.

Just be sure your friends don't think you are acting superior. They'll outgrow their flirtatious ways — and you'll outgrow worrying about them. If the girls you go with are helpful, loyal, and fun to be with, then enjoy them for these qualities.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue. Some mothers apply this charming wedding custom to baby's layette. Nice sentiment for a new baby.

Post-natal pointers. Watching your diet is just as important after the baby comes as it is before. You need all the nutrients your doctor recommended to regain your strength and keep you fit. Word to the wise: crash diets are no more sensible than over eating.

Watching baby's diet is one of your doctor's (and your) primary concerns. When he gives you the go-ahead on cereal, you'll want to try Gerber Cereals. Each one has a bland but distinctive flavour . . . all 5 have a smooth-to-the-tongue, easy-to-swallow texture. Most important, they have added iron, calcium and these important B-vitamins: thiamine, riboflavin and niacin. To stimulate appetite interest, rotate all 5: Rice Cereal, Barley, Oatmeal, Mixed Cereal and Protein Cereal Food.

Night-feedings simplified. Take the grope and fumble out of night feedings by laying out robe, slippers, diaper, etc., in advance. Luminous paint on light switches will save many a stumble in the dark.

Vitamin viewpoint. Baby's vitamin drops are best given by dropper. If you put them in his formula and he doesn't finish it, precious drops will be wasted.

Another vitamin viewpoint. Vitamin C, so important for sound gums and other body tissues, is usually recommended early in the new baby's diet. Gerber Strained Orange Juice is an excellent source of vitamin C. Made of tree-ripened fruit, specially selected for mildness, it's ever so delicate—the way it should be for a new baby. Susanna's Family Fare

WE'VE ONLY BEGUN TO FIGHT!

Dear Susanna: Some time ago I read in your column that you might be able to help us with our musty trunk. This one is in good condition, but just open the lid and it smells musty. We have washed the interior with a variety of things, varnished it and finally painted it with a cream-colored latex paint. It looks lovely — but oh, it still has that smell! — Mrs. R. G. Richardson

If the rare old book section of the huge central reference library can remove the musty odors from their books (and believe me some of them really are old and rare) then surely the relatively simple matter of a musty trunk isn't going to throw us.

First, we'll let a little sunshine in. Open the lid and expose the inside to the brightest sunlight outside that you can find. For at least a day. Tip it at just the right angle to keep the sunlight pouring in — of course you will have to move it every so often. This is to kill any of that fuzzy fungus called mildew that might still be lingering about.

Now to stamp out the odor. Make a solution of cedar oil (purchased at a drug store) and water — about two tablespoons to half a pint of water. Use an atomizer or fine sprayer, and apply to the inside . . . and watch where you store the bottle, as cedar oil is poisonous if taken internally. If applying it at any time to lined luggage, be sure the spray is extremely fine so that rings won't occur on the fabric. Do a small patch at first to test the strength of your solution and the distance away you should hold the atomizer for best results so that the lining won't be ruined.

If this doesn't completely eliminate the odor, we have one more big gun in reserve . . . the method used to de-must rare books. Make a solution of two tablespoons of oil of wintergreen to half a pint of water and follow the same directions as for the cedar oil. Experiment with this solution until you get it the right strength for the job at hand. There is much more detailed assistance in the pamphlet I have sent you today — you may need it! — SUSANNA

NOTE: Must or mildew a problem? Then send for Susanna's complete outline entitled "Must Bites the Dust" in which she tells you how to prevent, fight and eliminate mildew and must — all she asks in return is a wee hint or suggestion for the column — just remember, she needs you, too!

Three Students Act as Guides At Vimy Ridge

PICTON (Staff) — Three university students, all natives of Picton, arrived in Montreal aboard the Empress of England on their way home to Picton after acting as guides at the Canadian battlefield memorial at Vimy Ridge for six weeks this summer.

They are Janet Slack, 21, who graduated this year from the University of New Brunswick; Elizabeth Caughey, 19, a third - year student at Queen's University and Jane Walmsley, 20, a third - year student of Western Ontario.

In the month of June alone the girls escorted 5,200 people through the tunnels which Canadian soldiers built during the First World War. The tunnels, which are damp and badly lit, are 20 miles long and 30 feet underground.

"About 80 per cent of the visitors were French and we escorted as many as 900 people in groups of 40 on a Sunday," Janet said.

"It was a wonderful experience and we came home feeling patriotic and proud to be Canadians," Elizabeth said.

The park around the memorial covers 250 acres and was given to Canada by the French government. The girls said their accomodation in the little town of Vimy was primitive but they had a good time. The girls have been away for three months during which they visited Spain and England. They saw six bulls killed in a Madrid bull fight.

"Our parents warned us about the Frenchmen but they forgot about the Spainiards," Elizabeth said. "They whistle from 6 to 90 in Spain." Janet said.

Janet is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. S. Slack: Elizabeth is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. G. C. Caughey, while Jane is the daughter o (Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Walmsley, all of Picton.

News Editor Of Trade Paper Visits County

PICTON (Staff) — Visitor to Prince Edward last week was Mr. Eric Williams, news editor of the largest trade paper in the world, "The Grocer," published in London, England. Mr. Williams is in Ontario with the U.K. Trade Mission until August 25th.

During his Canadian visit he has been looking at the dairy industry, with particular emphasis on Ontario cheese, also at Ontario's fruit and vegetable industry, honey industry and processed fruit and vegetable industry.

He was in Prince Edward County particularly as the guest of Baxter Canning Company Limited, which is expanding its exports of tomato juice, already distributed in the major markets of England, Scotland and Ireland. The company is also to add cherry pie filling and pork and beans to its export list. While in the county Mr. Williams also visited as many other processors as time permitted.

MAKING SURVEY

A survey of water surrounding Prince Edward County to determine the degree and effects of polution, is currently being made by the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Quinte's Isle Tourist Association, which felt pollution has affected fishing, made the original request and received support from commercial fishermen and county council.

"We are pleased to learn that something is finally being done —it is a most important matter," said William Smith, president of QITA.

SEEK SEWER SNAKE

MADERA, Calif. (AP)—Citizens of Madera, Calif., are keeping an eye open for Andy, a 6½-foot anaconda snake, that has been missed by his master, Floyd Feaver. After being last seen soaking in a bathtub, Andy was probably flushed down the drain, say public works officials, and may return to civilization through someone's toilet.

E. Fayers of New Toronto, is shown above, right, with his fishing companion, N. McDermott of Long Branch, as they proudly display a 9 pound 12 ounce pickerel Mr. Fayers caught in Hay Bay this week. He was using an Abu.

The Rural Scene

PICTON (Staff) — Drought Assistance application forms have now been mailed to all farmers in Prince Edward County and those who qualify and would like to apply for assistance are reminded to complete the forms and return them to the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Box 470, Picton, by September 1st. Anyone who may not have received a copy of the application form is advised to apply at the Department of Agriculture office in Picton.

Farmers wishing to participate in the Farmstead Improvement Centennial Competition are urged to send their applications to the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Box 470, Picton, without delay. Consideration is now being given to establishing the prize list either on the basis of the divisions on the score sheet or on a township basis. This matter was discussed at a recent meeting of Project Committee and it was the general feeling among those in attendance that the divisions in the score sheet might be preferable for this purpose. This would make it possible for competitors to place special emphasis on the house, barn, yard or entrance to the farm as they see fit. Pictures of the area to be improved should be taken before any work on the project is started.

MADE FINE SHOWING

Forty-eight Prince Edward 4-H agricultural club members made an excellent showing at the Livestock and Crops Judging Day held August 18th at the Belleville Fair. The Northern Electric Special awarded to the high boy and the high girl in the general Agricultural Competition, went to Helen Whitehead, R. R. No. 1, Bloomfield, and to John Thomson, R. R. No. 2, Picton.

The Warden's Trophy was won by Anne Spriggings, R. R. No. 2, Bloomfield, and the C.N.E. Shield won by Debbie Motley, R. R. No. 7, Belleville.

The next regular meeting of the 4-H Tractor Maintenance Club will be held on Thursday, August 26th, in the Department of Agriculture Board Room, Picton at 8:00 p.m.

The Milford and District 4-H Calf Club will hold its next meeting on Friday Aug. 27, at 8:00 p.m., at the farm of Gilbert Whiteford, R. R. No. 3, Picton.

Herry Leaves

ST. PIERRE (CP)—Jacques Herry, governor of the French island of St. Pierre-Miquelon off Newfoundland's south coast, left for Paris Tuesday and a new chief administrator is expected to arrive soon. Herry was the centre of a controversy that flared among the islands' 5,200 inhabitants last April when islanders claimed he had requested a contingent of the gardes mobiles from Paris.

Top Military Man Posted to Europe

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Reliable sources say that one of the seven top military men in the defence department has been transferred to Europe because he opposed purchase of the American Northrop CF-5 jet fighter-bomber for the RCAF.

Air Vice-Marshal Wilfred W. Bean, 51, of Kitchener, assistant chief of defence staff, has been posted to Europe in the lesser position of chief of staff at 4th Allied Tactical Air Force Headquarters, Ramstein, Germany.

Air Vice-Marshal Bean as assistant chief of defence staff was responsible for operational requirements of the armed forces, planning of equipment programs and intelligence on plans of potential enemies.

Sources said he accepted the transfer gladly because he was fed up with his and his staff's recommendations being ignored or rejected at higher levels.

It is understood that Air Vice-Marshal Bean wanted the defence department to purchase the American McDonnell Phantom jet fighter-bomber, the U.S. Air Force's chief plane of this type.

TURNED DOWN

Instead, the department decided to buy up to 125 Canadian-produced CF-5s at a cost of $215,000,000. The CF-5 is rated by many RCAF officers as a "souped-up trainer" and former defence minister Douglas Harkness has said that when he held that portfolio the plane was turned down even as an RCAF trainer.

Air Vice-Marshal Bean, who has always stoutly defended his own views within the RCAF, was assistant chief of staff less than a year. The job was created last summer when the armed forces' command structure was integrated.

He has been succeeded by Air Commodore Frank W. Ball, 48, of Brandon, Man., former commandant of the RCAF college at Toronto who has been promoted to air vice-marshal.

A defence department spokesman said the Phantom was rejected partly because it was too expensive and would have gobbled up most of the department's equipment funds.

Socred Member Renews Appeal for Federal Probe

QUEBEC (CP) — Dr. Guy Marcoux, Social Credit member of Parliament for Quebec-Montmorency, Tuesday renewed his appeal for a federal investigation of the role Moise Darabaner played in the decision of six Social Credit MPs to support the Liberals after the 1963 federal election.

In a letter to Justice Minister Cardin, Dr. Marcoux said people are "entitled to an explanation."

"And I maintain that only the government is in a position to clarify, in a peremptory fashion, the circumstances surrounding this action which is without precedent in the political history of the country."

Darabaner is a Montreal and Quebec City salesman who now faces charges of fraud and conspiracy to defraud involving a total of $115,000. At preliminary hearing Tuesday, he was ordered to reappear in court Aug. 30 for voluntary statement, a stage in Quebec legal proceedings at which the defence may present evidence in an attempt to have charges dismissed without a trial.

Dr. Marcoux, in his original telegram to Ottawa last week, said Darabaner's signature appeared on a document sent to Prime Minister Pearson and Governor-General Vanier April 12, 1963, assuring the Liberals of the support of the six Social Credit MPs.

REJECTS BID

Mr. Cardin rejected the request Monday, saying there was nothing to indicate that the incident in question falls within the responsibility of the federal government, and consequently it would seem that the government would not have any reason to launch an inquiry."

The justice minister also suggested that Dr. Marcoux approach "the competent judicial authority" if he was thinking of pressing a charge himself.

"I must advise you," Dr. Marcoux replied Tuesday, "that there is no question of (my) making any accusation whatsoever, but rather of shedding light on an unusual action that was taken in favor of the party which since has become the official government."

In an interview later, Dr. Marcoux said he would use every possible means to bring into the open "the real role" Darabaner played in "the affair of the six." He did not say what steps this would involve.

The Social Credit MP said he was making his letter to Mr. Cardin available to the press because he himself had been informed of Mr. Cardin's Monday decision by newspapermen.

PLAN FOR YEARS

Sweden has developed a seven-year defence plan, budgeting $962,172,000 for 1967 and 3½ per cent more for each succeeding year.

No lures at Food City

Just honest-to-goodness low, low discount prices on over 6000 quality items.

How come?

We figure there are enough practical people around who would rather save up to 15% every week on their food bill than play games or collect stamps. There's nothing terribly wrong with supermarket games and stamp plans. Except that they have a habit of distracting people from the real purpose of a shopping trip . . . which is how to buy the best quality foods for the least money. Another thing, games and stamp plans cost a supermarket a tidy sum to operate. Frankly we decided to spend that money directly on our customers by lowering prices on over 6000 items every day of the week . . . Monday thru Saturday. Don't let anyone tell you that Food City sacrifices quality for price. Take a look at our grocery shelves. All the leading quality brands are there. Even our meat department people are fuss-pots about quality. They handle only Red Brand Beef, Canada's finest grade. Like we said in the beginning, the only lures we use are honest-to-goodness discount prices every day of the week. Kind of makes sense doesn't it?

Ontario Municipal Association Favors Compulsory Arbitration In Disputes With Employees

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Municipal Association says the provincial government should use compulsory arbitration in labor disputes involving municipal employees when other conciliation methods have failed.

A report containing the recommendation was tabled Tuesday at the OMA annual meeting here by Scarborough Reeve A. M. Campbell.

The association earlier endorsed a recommendation that the province give widowers and unmarried men over 60 the same welfare rights that widows and unmarried women of that age now have.

Reeve Campbell said that "compulsory arbitration is not attractive to the employees but when it comes to essential services, such as matters of public health, welfare and safety, then someone has to be able to do something when all else failed.

"When it reaches the point of emergency it is compulsory arbitration, so far, that has provided the only answer."

The association adopted the committee's recommendations proposing methods of dealing with municipal disputes.

POWER TO ACT

The report recommends that the premier be given power, through provincial legislation, to take steps to end disputes after normal conciliation methods have failed to produce an agreement.

J. G. Atwood, Hamilton welfare commissioner, appealed for the welfare payments to single men over 60.

"Male individuals from 60 to 65 years of age have a more difficult time in finding employment to maintain themselves than women in the same age group," he said, "as many women at the age of 60 are capable of doing light housework, sewing or tending children to provide for their maintenance without asking for assistance."

Mayor Leo Del Villano of Timmins said that all able-bodied welfare recipients should be forced to train for jobs but he got no support from the rest of the convention.

The fiery mayor, who once made welfare recipients in Timmins shovel snow, said "our welfare bill is $482,000 a year and I don't like it."

Children Get Lost On Purpose

TORONTO (CP)—Some of the children at the Canadian National Exhibition seem to get lost on purpose.

At the lost children's station they are treated to soft drinks and all-day suckers, allowed to play in a special enclosed area, and are given special attention by the supervisors.

They enter the grounds in the morning, undaunted by the entrance gates where admission is charged, wander around until they get hungry and want attention and head for the station.

Mrs. Dorothy Mitchell, who has worked in the station for 14 years, said Tuesday she recognizes many of the children. Families who have a tradition of having children lost at the CNE now are getting younger brothers and sisters lost, she said.

She said there are families in the CNE area who send their children out of the house early in the day, telling them to stay at the Ex until bedtime.

The children remain at the CNE until almost midnight and then are sent home in police cruisers or buses.

Senator Robt. Kennedy Denies He Tried to Persuade Johnson Not to Run for Vice-President

Varying versions have appeared recently on how Lyndon B. Johnson was selected as John F Kennedy's running mate in 1960 and the role Robert F. Kennedy played at that time. In this this exclusive interview, the New York senator answers questions about Johnson's selection and gives his views on U.S. policies in Viet Nam and the future of the civil rights movement.

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Robert F. Kennedy says there was never any disagreement between him and President John F. Kennedy over the desirability of having Lyndon B. Johnson on the 1960 Democratic ticket.

Kennedy said in an Associated Press interview that at the direction of his brother he informed Johnson at the Los Angeles Democratic national convention that opposition to the latter's nomination had arisen in liberal and labor ranks.

However, the New York Democrat disputed the contention of a memorandum of Philip Graham, late publisher of the Washington Post and chairman of Newsweek magazine. The Graham memorandum said Robert Kennedy told Johnson he should withdraw but John Kennedy said that was a mistake because "Bobby's been out of touch."

Robert Kennedy said: "Anyone who knows the relationship between President Kennedy and myself would know that doesn't make a great deal of sense. The idea that I would go behind my brother's back doesn't make sense."

On other subjects, Kennedy said:

—President Kennedy had great confidence in State Secretary Dean Rusk. But the senator declined comment on published reports that the president intended to replace Rusk after the 1964 elections.

—The war in Viet Nam is not going to be won by military action but by political action which will gain the support of the people there.

—The civil rights problem in the U.S. north is more complex than in the south. And there may be more violence before it is solved.

Here are some questions and answers:

Q. You have said President Kennedy wanted Johnson as his running mate in 1960 because he was "the best man to carry cn." Did you agree at the time with that assessment?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Are we following the right course in Viet Nam?

A. I support the effort that's being made in Viet Nam by President Johnson. If the effort in Viet Nam becomes merely a military effort, we shall win some of the battles, but we will lose the over-all struggle. The people of Viet Nam need to feel that their future should rest with Saigon and not Hanoi.

We need to give them security—that is going to require police and military action—but at the same time social, political, economic, educational, agriculture progress has to be made for the peasants of that tragic land. And we need to do much in this field.

Q. Is the civil rights movement entering a phase in which more violence can be expected?

A. I don't think it's necessarily entering a new phase. It should have been anticipated that we were going to have many difficulties. I pointed this out when I was attorney-general back in 1961 and 1962 when everybody's attention was focused on the south.

In many ways the north has more difficult and complex problems than the south. Solutions are more difficult. Furthermore, the makeup of the movement is far different than it is in the south.

It lacks the religious overtones and it lacks the leadership that the southern civil rights movement has. The fact that the problems are more difficult and complex in the north suggests more violence may occur in the north.

Far East Alarmed Over Decision of Indonesia to Detonate Nuclear Bomb

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Indonesia's insistence that it plans to test and detonate a nuclear bomb has alarmed the Far East. With the Malaysian federation in trouble and with turmoil in Viet Nam and to some extent in Kashmir, the sudden appearance of a new nuclear power could lead to further unrest in that turbulent region.

But, among Western diplomats who have kept intensive watch over Jakarta, there is continuing skepticism about Indonesia's ability to build a complete atom bomb, even though President Sukarno has assured the world that plans for his country's first atomic test are well in hand.

Some experts suggest there are two possible ways in which a bomb may be exploded in Indonesia. One is the use of a Chinese device employed by Indonesian technicians. But even though China and Indonesia are close allies, there is doubt, at least in British circles, that Peking would disclose its atomic secrets to another country.

Another possibility is that Indonesia would explode a conventional device and masquerade it as a nuclear bomb by including radioactive wastes in the explosive materials. Some Western officials are convinced this is what Indonesia actually will do. It will not result in the mushroom - shaped explosion that could destroy an industrial area in one blast, though it could spread ground contamination over a wide area.

But even such a weapon, with its limited power, could cause panic among the defenceless and primitive peasants of the Far East. Pressures undoubtedly would be increased on some governments who have renounced nuclear defence that they must find some way of manufacturing the bomb simply as a protection against some heated, impulsive move in Indonesia that could lead to suffering and death among the Asiatic masses.

CANADA TAKES STAND

This adds emphasis to the Canadian position at the slow-moving Geneva disarmament talks. Canada agrees with its Western allies that a treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons is urgently needed. But there also must be agreement whereby the nuclear powers guarantee the small, conventional countries against nuclear attack. It is only when the non-nuclear powers are fully convinced of powerful deterrence to atomic attack against their territory that the panicky drive for nuclear defence will be reduced.

The tragedy at Geneva is that the negotiators are playing politics. The outlook for new East-West nuclear agreements is dim. And the non-nuclear powers are well aware that the prospect of an East-West guarantee against nuclear attack is highly unlikely at this stage.

PERMIT VALUE RISES

OTTAWA (CP) — Value of building permits issued by Canadian municipalities increased 14.8 per cent in the first four months of this year from the corresponding 1964 period, the bureau of statistics reported Tuesday. They advanced to $893,833,000 from $778,674,000 in the period, and by 8.5 per cent to $312,471,000 in April from $288,059,000 in April, 1964.

ANNOUNCE BANK PLANS

Plans for a British-American bank linkup which will span the world, open up the Latin American banking market and penetrate behind the Iron Curtain were announced Tuesday in London. Subject to U.S. treasury and British government approval, Mellon National Bank and Trust Co. of Pittsburgh, Pa. — through its subsidiary, Mellon Bank International of New York — agreed to take up a 15 per cent stake in the capital of the Bank of London and South America.

Some Postal Rates Will Be Increased

OTTAWA (CP)—Surface postal rates to overseas countries will be increased Jan. 1 in line with a new rate structure being adopted by the Universal Postal Convention, it was announced Tuesday.

It will not affect letters and postcards addressed to the United States, Central and South America, Britain, the Commonwealth, the West Indies, Ireland, France or Spain.

Letters to other countries, however, will jump to 10 cents from six on the first ounce and to six cents from four on each additional ounce. Postcards will be six cents instead of four.

Higher rates for printed matter and samples will apply to all countries except the U.S., Central and South America and Spain. Printed matter and samples will be charged four cents instead of three on the first two ounces. Each additional two ounces will cost two cents instead of one.

A new 10 - cent airmail rate for postcards will apply uniformly to all countries except the U.S. which remains at eight. This will have the effect of sharply reducing the postage on postcards mailed overseas because these now are charged at regular airmail letter rates.

Parcel posts rates are being reorganized to reduce 230 different rate classifications to four. The only one unchanged will be that to the U.S., but the department announcement did not specify the new rates.

One parcel post restriction being eased is that limiting to 20 pounds the weight of parcels that may be sent to some overseas countries. The new limit will be 22.

Viewing the latest nozzle for spraying modern herbicides for brush control are from left, John Middleton, Pennsylvania Electric Company, H. G. Cox, Area Manager, Ontario Hydro, Tweed, and F. G. Simpson, Forestry Superintendent, Ontario Hydro, Eastern Region. Hydro workman, Albert Fobert, looks on.

Hydro Techniques in Brush Control Demonstrated to Members of U.S. Utilities

Over 100 men from all over the United States and Canada converged on Belleville and the surrounding district yesterday.

The men, representing over 50 utilities in the U.S. and Canada, came to see demonstrations of equipment and techniques of brush control on hydro right-of-ways.

After dinner at the Sun Valley Motor Hotel, the entourage headed for Actinolite to view the demonstrations. The actual demonstrations were held on the Sulphide Road, about two miles east of Actinolite in heavy bush.

The men arrived in Toronto yesterday and are leaving from Toronto tonight to go to Michigan. Co-hosts for the event are the Dow Chemical Company and the Ontario Hydro.

A Hydro official said, "Because of the largeness of the operation here in Ontario, we have had to develop many new methods unique to this area. We have the biggest brush control operation in North America."

The men witnessed a helicopter demonstration near Markham before coming to Belleville. The 'copter was spraying with thickened water.

"Only about 10 percent of the actual spraying is done by helicopter," the official said. "But because of the great diversity of conditions in Ontario, we've had to perhaps look at any sort of device that will do the job.

"These helicopters can spray 10 miles a day under ideal conditions, and because of the jelled herbicides now in use, they do not have to wait for a perfect calm, but can operate in winds up to seven miles an hour."

The Ontario Hydro has 60,000 miles of distribution line to look after. That's enough to go around the world twice and still have some left over. The Hydro began its spray program in 1949. Before that, brush control had been done by hand cutting, an operation five times as expensive as spraying.

INTENSIVE COURSE

Brush on the Hydro right-of-ways and roadsides is controlled by the 550 foresters of the company. Each forester goes through an intensive brush control course at the Hydro's Conference and Development Centre in Niagara Falls.

The foresters rely heavily on the research division for new sprays and equipment. One recent example of the research divisions contribution to the brush control problem is in connection with the helicopter sprayers. There was no nozzle on the market suitable to shoot out the jeleld spray so the Hydro research department developed one.

"One of our major problems," an official said, "is drift. If our spray drifts onto farmers crops it causes some annoyance and inconvenience to him. However, with the new sprays we are now using, we have very little drift and even if we do have a little, the sprays are harmless to plants and animals.

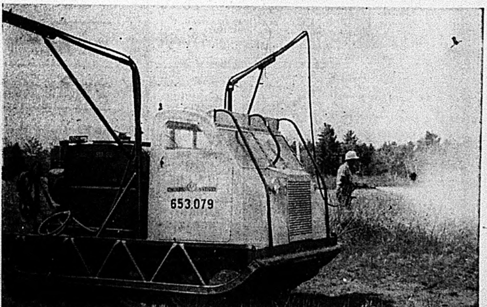
"D.D.T. of course, presents special problems, but we do not use it except in remote areas."

The ideal right-of-way for Hydro lines is a neat, pleasant-looking wooded area that, aside from the security of service angle, can be used as a fire break in case of forest fires.

"The main thing we are after is woody growth," the official said. "Some areas of the province that looked impossible to control a few years ago are now under control because of the better brush control methods.

"Once we get an area under control then our main concern is spot treatment. We witnssed the demonstration yesterday of an economical spot control sprayer that fits on a man's back and lets him get at a certain area without a great deal of waste spraying."

Using a hydraulic boom, workers from the Ontario Hydro display roadside right-of-way brush control by spraying thickened chemicals on the brush.



The Bombadier Muskeg Tractor goes through its paces in the brush just east of Actinolite yesterday. These modern tractor type machines are playing an important role in the Ontario Hydro's continual battle against wood growth in remote right-of-ways.

President of Axe Company Says Liquor Bad Medicine

By GERRY McNEIL

HULL, Que. (CP) — Morley Punchon Walters remembers when E. B. Eddy made the matches and Mrs. Eddy made the match boxes.

He was born June 10, 1868, and his age spins into perspective as he reminisces in his Dickensian office at the Walters Axe Co. plant here. It is the biggest manufacturer of axes in the Commonwealth.

There is alsco a subsidiary, Walters Axe Inc., at Ogdensburg, N.Y.

"When I was a boy, I used a 14-pound sledge hammer to pound out axe heads and 15 a day was considered good," he recalled in an interview.

But the modern equipment of the plant, which employs about 35 men, includes the machine he designed to punch out 300 axe heads an hour.

And the company now finishes hickory handles roughed out in Arkansas or Mississippi, the only areas where good axe-handle hickory can be found.

Mr. Walters, 97, was just a toddler when the Eddys hand-made the matches that burned the Eddy name into the North American mind.

The huge E. B. Eddy Co. mill here now is controlled by Garfield Weston, the Toronto-born biscuit king, while the Eddy Match Co. upriver has been in other hands since 1928.

FORMER FOOTBALL STAR

But Mr. Walters is sole owner of the firm his father started in the 1850s. In his youth, Iroquois still camped along the Ottawa River and the sweet smell of fresh-cut white pine was fragrant in the air.

Mr. Walters is still muscular and solid-looking. Besides hammering out axes, he was a raftsman on the swift Gatineau River in his youth and he and his brother were football stars on the University of Ottawa team.

The nonagenarian is the oldest living graduate of McGill University's faculty of engineering. He took his electrical and mechanical engineering degree in 1897.

Then he shipped out to South Africa with the Canadian Expeditionary Force in the Boer War. In the 65 years since, he has developed the company but seldom let business interfere with fishing.

That is the difference between the executive of yesterday and that of today, 49-year-old general manager John Hammell says somewhat ruefully.

LUMBERJACK MEALS

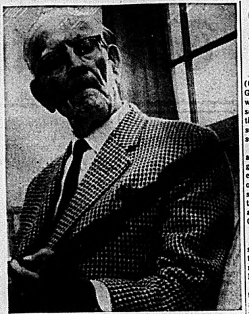
Mr. Walters' wife died some years ago and they had no children. He lives with a secretary in a large old home here and eats big lumberjack meals.

Each morning, he spends a few hours in the garden, then pops in to the plant for an hour or so. His prize English springer spaniels are often with him and the fishing tackle is never far away.

He has been tinkering for years with an experimental spruce trimmer he feels will make him a fortune.

Never ill, he says good humor is the best medicine and liquor the worst. His experience has been that most of man's troubles can be traced to drinking.

Few of them can apparently be traced to fishing and Mr. Walters turns up religiously at a favorite spot every Sunday.



AXES TO GRIND — When Morley Punchon Walters was a boy, he used a 14-pound sledge hammer to pound out axe heads for his father. Today, at 97, Mr. Walters heads Walters Axe Co., in Hull, Que., the largest axe manufacturing company in the Commonwealth. Apart from the firm, his main interests are fishing and tinkering with an experimental spruce trimmer he feels will make him a fortune. (CP Photo)

Feisal Wants Plebiscite For Yemen

JEDDAH (Reuters) — King Feisal of Saudi Arabia has come out in favor of a plebiscite to allow Yemenis to decide what kind of government should run the country, informed sources said Tuesday.

But Egypt's President Gamal Abdel Nasser was understood to oppose the idea of a plebiscite and proposed instead that the decision should be made by Yemeni sheikhs and tribal leaders.

The two Arab leaders are meeting here in an effort to find a solution to the three-year civil war in Yemen in which they support opposite sides.

King Feisal earlier told reporters "the success of our mission is more than certain," while the authoritative Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said the first meeting between the king and Nasser yielded the possibility of a draft agreement on Yemen.

Grade 12 Math Teachers May Have to Take Course

ALGONQUIN PARK, Ont. (CP)—More than 1,000 Ontario Grade 12 mathematics teachers will have to take catch-up seminars or special indoctrination to bring them into the space age, a maths consultant said Monday.

Speaking in an interview after addressing the board of governors of the Ontario Teachers' Federation, Norman Sharp of Etobicoke, a Toronto suburb, said only about a third of the teachers are prepared to teach a new mathematics course in Grade 12 this fall.

He said he was disturbed.

Most of the teachers had had several years to familiarize themselves with the space-age mathematics course, he said. But few have done so.

Ontario has been introducing the new mathematics a grade at a time since the fall of 1962 when it was first used in Grade 9.

FEW ATTENDED

A three - week course this summer at Lawrence Park Collegiate in Toronto saw some 240 teachers enrolled, he said, while 190 studied the new course at the University of Waterloo.

"Since we have close to 700 secondary schools in the province, we must have about 1,500 Grade 12 maths teachers," Mr. Sharp said.

"We have obviously reached only a small percentage of them."

He believed that by 1967 all students entering secondary school already will have been exposed to the new math.

"Last year 75 per cent of all Grade 7 students were taking it. By next year we figure it will be closer to 95 per cent."

Sister Bibane, Sister Margaret and Mrs. Harry O'Neil were recent callers of Mrs. Kay Whalen and brothers at the Whalen home here.

Tree Immortalized by Pact Comes to Ignominious End

VANCOUVER (CP) — A fir tree immortalized by Indian poet Pauline Johnson has come to an ignominious end.

The ancient and twisted Douglas fir atop Siwash Rock is a victim of birds and unauthorized climbers on the rock on which Miss Johnson's ashes are scattered.

Miss Johnson retold in one of her poems the Indian legend of the rock and its tree.

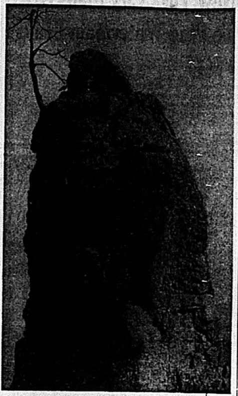
The rock was a famed Squamish band warrior named Siwash. He was turned to stone by the Three Tyees, three fearsome men in a war canoe who caught him bathing in their path centuries ago.

The tree grew out of the bough with which Siwash was rubbing his body and which the angry Tyees stuck in his head.

The tree became a landmark here and was featured proudly in tourist brochures and posters. The rock is a showpiece of downtown Stanley Park.

J. Alan De Bou, assistant park board superintendent, says the tree was in poor shape for years, damaged by humans and by birds which nested in its branches.

Mr. De Bou says there is hope that seedlings struggling for survival on the rock will replace the landmark.



LEGENDARY TREE — The twisted Douglas fir tree on top of Siwash rock in Vancouver, immortalized by Indian poet Pauline Johnson, has come to an ingnominious end. It is a victim of vandals, birds and unauthorized climbers on the rock on which Miss Johnson's ashes were scattered. Legend has it that the rock was a famed Indian warrior who was turned to stone. Junta to Study Dominican Peace Formula

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — The peacemakers in the Dominican Republic were hopeful again today as the civilian-military junta agreed to study changes in the inter-American peace formula.

Junta President Antonio Imbert Berrera said agreement on a final settlement may come "in three days, three months or nine months." The junta said it opposes any changes but its lawyers will study them, leaving the door open for agreement.

The rebels accepted part of the new peace proposal Monday after a 7½-hour session.

The plan, which has been worked out by negotiators of the Organization of American States, calls for disarmament of civilians and provisional government as the first steps toward general elections in nine months.

Details of the changes in the plan were not disclosed, but it was learned they centered around disarming the civilians in the rebel sector, dismantling rebel command posts and reintegrating into the regular army soldiers who defected to the rebel side.

Private sources said military leaders backing the junta were "favorably disposed" toward the changes.

APPOINT SECRETARY

WADING FOR THE SUBWAY TRAIN — Firemen hold hands as they wade hrough knee-deep water in a Brooklyn subway station yesterday after a 40-nch water main broke. The main rupture released millions of gallons of water rom New York City's shrinking supply, flooded the subway tunnel to a depth of 10 feet and knocked 50,000 telephones out of service. More than 100 stranded passengers were led to safety. Overhead, Brooklyn's Willoughby Street caved in. (AP Wirephoto)

New York City Plans Drive To Plug Watermain Leaks

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Robert Wagner has ordered an all-out effort to plug watermain leaks robbing millions of gallons daily from New York City's dwindling water supply.

Every available city engineer, clerk and laborer will be pressed into the search for leaks in the 6,000 miles of water mains, aqueducts and reservoirs.

"We want to repair every leak as fast as possible and prevent them from recurring," Wagner said.

Leaks in the water lines waste an estimated 3,000,000 gallons a day. Breaks in the lines waste added millions of gallons, and one such break Sunday flooded a subway in Brooklyn, knocking out four subway lines and 50,000 telephones.

The water leaks seeped into the city election campaign Saturday when Representative William F. Ryan (Dem. N.Y.), a candidate for the Democratic mayoralty nomination, announced the discovery of a "significant leak" in a Central Park sluice gate.

REPORTERS SUFFER

Water Commissioner Armand d'Angelo estimated the loss at less than 300,000 gallons a day, but Ryan said he figured it to be at least 750,000 gallons.

D'Angelo engaged a diver to check the leak and invited reporters to witness the inspection Monday. When Ryan showed up d'Angelo ordered him out of the gate house.

Ryan refused to leave and, instead, police tossed out the reporters.

Meantime, in Congress Monday, Senator Hugh Scott (Rep. Pa.), criticized New York's water mains.

"New York is leaking like a sieve," Scott said.

Earlier, after a survey of water-short New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware, Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall said New York City had "the leakiest water system in the country."

Dismissals Said to Be Economy Move

SANDRINGHAM (AP) — The Queen is dismissing six of the 11 cleaning women at Sandringham, her country estate in Norfolk.

Officials of the royal household said the dismissals were an economy move made possible by such labor-saving devices as installation of running water in bedrooms, vacuum cleaners and electric heaters instead of coal fires in the bedrooms.

Sandringham has 350 rooms, but most of them are never used. After Sept. 30, four housemaids and five cleaning women who come in by the day will keep the place in shape.

When the Royal Family is in residence—usually at Christmas and for the pheasant season—extra staff are brought from Buckingham Palace.

Department Store Sales Show Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Some key economic indicators are starting to perk up again after a mid-summer slump.

The bureau of statistics reported Monday that department store sales are moving ahead, and steel ingot production is approaching its high May and June levels again.

Wholesale prices, as measured among the 30 most-used industrial raw materials, are at a peak.

Department store sales, which usually follow the pattern of retail sales generally, were 6.3 per cent higher in July than a year ago. No dollar figures were given but the bureau said sales rose above last-year levels in July by 6.2 per cent in Ontario.

Steel ingot production last week ran to 194,404 tons, an increase of 3.4 per cent from the previous week. In the corresponding period last year, production was 163,756 tons. This brings last week's production index to 202, compared with 170 a year ago, based on 1957-59 output equalling 100.

The index of 30 industrial raw materials prices, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, returned to its year's high of 262.8 two weeks ago, after having slipped less than half a point. The 30 materials include iron, steel and other metals, wood and pulp, coal and oil, some livestock and grains, sugar, cotton and rubber. Prices for these commodities fluctuated for 18 months within a five-point bracket but have climbed steadily since February.

Police Using Aircraft To Apprehend Speeders

TORONTO (CP)—Drivers on Ontario highways will need convertibles to evade the law as the provincial police adopt the use of aircraft to catch traffic violators.

Tests of the technique were started in June and the first charges were laid Thursday in the Sudbury area. Police say dozens of motorists were caught between that Northern Ontario city and Toronto during the weekend.

No new legislation is required for the use of planes, police add, but they are awaiting the first test in court—probably in Sudbury by Sept. 15.

The new techniques were shown Monday to reporters, and several drivers were caught. However, they were let off with tickets because signs warning of aircraft patrols had not been erected along the highway.

One driver said he had just been listening to a report on his car radio of the provincial police using planes to apprehend traffic violators.

Assistant commissioner L. J. Needham said the use of aircraft "has the proper psychological effect on drivers. They keep a constant eye on the speedometer."

TIMED BY WATCH

He said police now can spot other offences such as tailgating and weaving from lane to lane.

The airborn officers judge a car's speed by timing a car with a stop watch as it passes a series of white markers on the pavement. To be able to testify in court the officer who times the car must have personally measured the distance between the marks. The car can be checked again and again as it passes the marks at quarter-mile intervals.

If a vehicle covers the quarter-mile in less than a specific time, it has been speeding.

The apprehension is made by a patrol car which receives messages by radio from the plane—just as messages are received from a radar-equipped car.

In addition to the Sudbury area, patrols by air start today, on highways 7 and 400 in the Toronto area.

NEED DENTISTS

LONDON Ont. (CP) — Ontario had only one practising dentist for every 2,462 citizens in 1964, and 500 more dentists will have to be trained by 1980 to retail even this ratio, the dean of the new faculty of dentistry at University of Western Ontario said Tuesday. Dr. Wesley J. Dunn was speaking to the London Rotary Club.

Had to Guess, Won $322,960

LONDON (AP) — Mrs. Ivy Barker was washing dishes when a pigeon flew into her kitchen and settled on the edge of the sink.

"That's lucky," she said. "Something is going to happen."

It did. Her husband, George, a 70-year-old auto mechanic, won $322,960 on a 70-cent soccer bet.

Barker said it all happened because he was careless.

"I don't know anything about soccer," he said. "But I keep a list of numbers and forecast ties for the same games on the pool card each week.

"Last week I lost my list. So I had to make an impromptu choice — and all my forecasts were right."

MILLIONS ARE BORN

At its present rate of growth, the world population is expected to double every 35 years.

Loss $25,000 As Fire Sweeps Children's Camp

HUNTSVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Fire destroyed a children's camp on Skeleton Island, 10 miles west of here, Monday night. No injuries were reported.

Damage was estimated at $25,000. The camp is operated by the Baptist Church.

Cause of the blaze, believed to have started in the main lodge, has not yet been determined.

SEND PREACHERS OUT

The Lutheran Church of America supports a total of 337 missionaries in 10 countries.

Sought Entry To 316 Universities

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A Toronto student set some kind of a record when he wrote 316 applications this year for admission to universities.

He wrote to the registrar of Christ the King College here this week to say he was withdrawing his application.

"I have made 316 applications to university," he wrote, "but unfortunately I cannot attend every one at once."

"I have enjoyed corresponding with you during the summer, he added.

BART BRADLEY

Bart Bradley is back in town for a brief 3-day visit.

Five, going on six, years have passed since Bart, his beautiful wife Margaret and daughter Marnie pulled up stakes here and headed for the Lakehead.

"The old town is really growing," he offered. It didn't take long to learn that the Bradley family has grown also. Marnie, born here, is now big sister to two budding young centres, Warren, three, and Scott, baby of the family at two years of age.

A veteran when playing in this centre, Bradley has never hung up the skates, nor his ball glove.

"I've been coaching at the Lakehead ever since leaving Belleville and still do a little playing. Mostly coaching, though," he added under questioning, "and there certainly has been no great feast of goals from this corner."

He claims that the Lakehead Senior Hockey League "is pretty good" but admitted that it was far from the class of Senior "A" hockey played here in the late 50's.

Selected as coach of the Lakehead All-Stars last winter, Bart had the pleasure of tying the visiting Russian World Hockey team 3 - 3. It was better than other teams on the tour could do and most of them were considered of higher classification than the Lakehead team.

"Changes in the Russian style? Well, no, I don't see much change except they (the Russian players) are sure a lot bigger today. They are improving all the time and have developed some fine individual hockey players," he said.

Asked what he thought of Canada's ideas along international hockey lines, Bradley said he thought the ideas were good, "as long as they continue with one plan, developing a team from year to year with the same nucleus."

Just in town for a short while when this reporter talked with him, Bradley hopes to see many of his old team mates while here. He inquired about the local sports situation and was pleased to learn some of the old faces are to be seen on the hockey rink and ball diamond.

Bradley plays in a Lakehead fastball league. "We won the championship last year and are in the playoffs now, but did not have as good a season as last."

A Belleville native in the same league is Wayne Bovay, now a school teacher at Fort William.

"My brother is playing hockey for Moe Benoit, in Toledo, and we have been visiting him and other relatives in Kitchener for the past week," he offered. Walt Bradley is the brother, a seasoned pro from Western, CPHL and other pro leagues.

Gone are the days here when the small but speedy and compact line of Bradley-Brown-Hildebrand wrote an all-too-brief page in the Belleville hockey history book.

"I may be just watching from the sidelines this coming winter," Bart offered, "and then again I am thinking of trying a little officiating, but at any rate I don't expect to be playing or coaching.

The loss will be the Lakehead's when Bradley hangs up the skates.

However, he is settled there and has no plans to move, so you can bet one way or another that Lakehead arenas have not seen the last of Bart Bradley.

The Bradleys, by the way, are visiting friends here, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Stickle and family, before Bart heads back to Fort William to return to work next week. He is a salesman in a furniture business.

The visit was all too brief a link with former "glory days" on this city's hockey front.

Ethier Leads Pitchers

Brian Gray Top Hitter

Brian Gray, third baseman for the tail-end Madoc team, was declared winner of the Belleville and District Softball League batting championship by league statistician Allan Sills this week.

Gray compiled a lofty .426 average, with 26 hits in 61 official trips to the plate. Second in the race was Jim Whyte, of Trenton, with a .362 average, while defending champ, Eldon Gray of Tweed, was third with .356.

The new batting champ shared the loop leadership in total hits with Tweed's Terry LeSage, each with 26, and was second in home runs with four, two behind team mate Larry Griffin.

Ellis Juniors' Bob Ethier was the top pitcher, winning 13 games and losing but two for a sparkling .867 percentage. Ethier also had the most strikeouts, 188, compared to Ken DeMille's 171. DeMille pitches for Bloomfield.

Moon led the league in runs scored, with 23, while Ron Weese, of Bloomfield, topped everyone in runs batted in, with 20. Weese was also among the leaders in hits, runs, home runs and average.

An oddity was the fact that the pennant-winning Ellis Juniors did not place a man in the top seven batting averages, nor did Trudeau Motors or Stirling.

(Based on at least 45 official times-at-bat and participation in a minimum of 60% of teams games).

City Drivers Novice Class Winners

TORONTO (CP) — Lloyd Howell of Toronto and navigator Brent Davies of nearby Erindale, Ont., won the first Canadian National Exhibition marathon sports car rally Tuesday night.

Only 42 of the 64 starters finished the 850-mile grind that began Monday morning from Toronto, Montreal and Rochester, N.Y., and had a rendezvous in Belleville that night.

A winding 340-mile overnight run between Belleville and Orillia took the heaviest toll.

It nearly proved disastrous for two United States entires who started out from Rochester.

Dave Kuehne of Rochester and Gene Sheffer of Spencerport, N.Y., escaped serious injury when their private novice entry, a Saab 850 GT, rolled off the road near Parham, Ont.

A Saab 96, a private entry of Jon M. Davis of Lansing, Mich., and navigator Wayne Zitkus of Toledo, Ohio, also went off the road during the Belleville - Orillia leg and plunged into a lake. The occupants escaped before the car went under.

Most of the other dropouts between Belleville and Orillia developed mechanical trouble.

Howell and Davies, members of a Comstock team driving a Ford Cortina GT, picked up 13 penalty points. They received the Princes' Gates Trophy.

First in the private entry division were J. Robert Henderson and John W. Bailey, both of Rochester, in a Volvo 1225. They had 20 penalty points. A Kingston team of John D. Smith and Dr. R. Phippen was second with 45 penalty points in a Ford Cortina GT.

Five all-women's teams competed and first place went to Linda Lloyd and Carole McLaughlin of Toronto in a Volvo Canadian.

Jack McDonald and Gordon Smith of Belleville placed first in the novice class, driving a Corvair Corsa.

White Sox Win

Stotlemyre Halts Twins' Drive

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

There have been thousands of words written and spoken explaining why New York Yankees are in sixth place in the American League this season.

But no one points to Mel Stotlemyre, who is responsible for the Yanks being sixth and not eighth or ninth.

The slim, young right-hander, perhaps the only bright spot in the Yankees' dismal season, hurled a five - hitter at the league-leading Minnesota Twins Tuesday night, beating them 2-1 and posting his 16th victory of the season.

The triumph tied him with the Twins' Jim (Mudcat) Grant for most victories in the league and stamped him a distinct possibility as a 20-game winner despite the Yanks' poor showing.

Chicago White Sox edged Baltimore Orioles 6-5, climbing to within 6½ games of the top, Detroit Tigers clubbed Kansas City Athletics 8-2 and Los Angeles Angels whipped Cleveland Indians 7-1. Boston Red Sox and Washington Senators split a two-night doubleheader, the Red Sox taking the first 9-4 and the Senators the nightcap 8-5.

TRESH GETS 20TH

Stottlemyre had some trouble against the Twins and trailed 1-0 until Tommy Tresh unloaded his 20th homer of the season in the eighth. Mickey Mantle, who had singled, scored ahead of him.

Pitcher Bruce Howard singled, touching off a four-run, third-inning rally for the streaking White Sox.

Moose Skowron's two-run single was the big hit in the rally.

Jerry Lumpe rapped out three hits and Norm Cash slammed a two-run homer, making it easy for Detroit's Denny McLain to post his 12th victory in the romp over Kansas City.

George Brunet pitched a five-hitter and got all the hitting support he needed from Jose Cardenal and Willie Smith in Los Angeles' victory over Cleveland. Cardenal drove in two runs with a triple and Smith two more with a homer.

Tony Conigliaro drove in five runs with a grand-slam homer and a single in Boston's first-game victory over Washington, while Frank Howard batted in four runs with two doubles and two infield singles in the Senator's second - game comeback. Boston's Rico Petrocelli hit three homers in the twin bill, two in the second game.

Yankees Win City Crown

Barrett's Yankees wrapped up the City Championship for the Peewee Softball division last night when they outlasted the Cozy Grill Phillies 12-11 in an exciting finish to season play.

The winning pitcher was John Sprackett.

Senior 'B' Thriller

Kingston Nips Trudeaus 2-1

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

KINGSTON — A ninth inning rally fell one base short for Belleville Trudeau Motors here last night as they dropped a 2-1 cliff - hanger to Prince George Indians in OASA Senior "B" playdowns.

The clubs go back at it on Thursday night, at the Belleville Fairgrounds. Game time is 8.30 and Trudeaus must win to prolong the two-of-three series.

Trudeaus' veteran lefty, Bob Green, hooked up in a tight battle with Kingston right-hander Ron Brown.

Each pitcher gave up six hits over the route. Brown struck out 13 batters and Green collected eight Indian scalps. Green issued the only walk of the contest.

Alert fielding plays by both teams kept the scoresheet clean until the fifth and sixth innings, when the winners struck for their runs. It was 2-0 going into the ninth.

Brennan dumped a double down the left field foul line to open the final frame. Ferguson booted Weston's ground ball, leaving men on first and third with none out. Meeker hit a ground ball, forcing Weston at second, but on the throw to first, B. Gilmour fired past the base and Brennan raced home for a 2-1 game.

Meeker ended up on second, representing the tying run, and Mavety blooped a ball just over the infield that had "tie game" written all over it. Kingston second baseman Bob Gilmour came up with the key play of the contest, racing back to grab the ball going full tilt away from the plate. Meeker got as far as third on a wild pitch but after Zakos fouled off a half dozen, Brown struck him out to preserve the victory.

B. Gilmour singled to set up the winners' initial run. He was forced on a good play by Brennan but a wild pitch got Brown to second and D. Senior poked a single to make it 1-0.

Pester scored the second marker, lashing a shot to left and stopping at third, on a double and throwing error. Haven Ferguson's bunt got away from Brennan and Pester scored on the error.

Green's hurling and a deep outfield held the heavy-hitting Indians to Charlie Pester's double plus singles by Don Senior, Jack "Gabby" White, Don Gilmour, Bob Gilmour and Ron Brown.

Hugh Brennan paced Belleville with a double and single. Bob Green, Bill Latchford, Pete Weston and Paul Zakos split the other base knocks.

Zakos and Latchford had back-to-back safeties in the fifth, with one out, but Brown bore down to fan the next two.

Trudeaus' were minus Ralph Plane who entered the hospital this week for treatment of a badly - infected hand.

Trudeau Motors: Wannamaker 2b, Locke cf, Brennan 1b, Weston ss, Meeker 3b, Mavety c, Zakos rf, Latchford lf, Green p.

Kingston: D. Senior lf, Monette rf, White ss, B. Senior c, Pester cf, Ferguson 3b, D. Gilmour 1b, B. Gilmour 2b, Brown p.

Umpires - Jim Tebworth (P) and Stan Carron. Time - 1.25

Kingston: 000 011 00x 2-6-2

M. Thompson Has Short No-Hitter

Moe Thompson pitched no-hit ball in an abbreviated peewee baseball playoff game last night as I.B.E.W. crushed Fountain Park 17-0, at Park Dale.

Thompson struck out 12 batters in the short game. He allowed only one base runner, that coming in the fifth-inning walk.

David Wood and Fred Stickle pitched for the losers, allowing seven hits and seven walks. They struck out seven but a half a dozen errors added to their woes.

Thompson capped his no-hitter by belting a pair of I.B.E.W. singles. Mario Venutti contributed a grand - slam homer and Paul Muldoon hit a double and single. Steve Burke and Art Wellesley also hit safely.

The winners scored 4 runs in the second, seven in the third and a final six in the fourth.

National's Top Clubs Taste Defeat

Positions Unchanged

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

If you don't think Jim Maloney's luck has changed, just ask Bobby Bragan.

Manager Bragan's Milwaukee Braves were one out away from a victory over Cincinnati Reds' fireballer and first place in the National League Tuesday night when Tommy Harper ripped a two - run homer to beat the Braves 3-2.

Last Thursday Leo Cardenas' 10th inning homer nailed Maloney's first no-hit victory—a 1-0 decision over Chicago Cubs—after four frustrating near-misses.

Tuesday night it appeared that Denis Menke's run-scoring grounder in the seventh inning, which snapped a 1-1 tie, would lift the Braves past Maloney and into the league lead. Los Angeles Dodgers had blown a 4-3 verdict to the last-place New York Mets and a Milwaukee victory would have put the Braves one-half game ahead of the Dodgers in the pennant scramble.

The Reds' victory carried them within 2½ games of first place. They trail Milwaukee by two games and are one behind the third-place San Francisco Giants.

Pittsburgh Pirates' Don Cardwell stopped the Giants 5-2 on five hits; Houston Astros edged Philadelphia Phillies 4-3 and St. Louis Cardinals nipped Chicago Cubs 7-6 in 10 innings in other action.

Gene Oliver walked in the seventh, took third on a single by Mike De La Hoz and scored the Braves' go-ahead run on Menke's ground-out. Wade Blasingame and O'Dell made the lead stand up until Harper's clutch homer.

Pinch hitter Johnny Stephenson delivered a three-run double in the ninth, pushing the Mets past Los Angeles. Stephenson connected off reliever Bob Miller after an error by Jim Lefebvre, Ed Kranepool's single and Joe Christopher's safe bunt loaded the bases.

Cardwell, clipped for two runs in the third, blanked the Giants the rest of the way and collected two of Pittsburgh's 11 hits.

Houston broke a 3-3 tie in the ninth when Rusty Staub singled, Dave Adlesh walked and Philadelphia reliever Gary Wagner threw wildly to third on pitcher Don Nottebart's sacrifice bunt, enabling Staub to score.

Tito Francona lashed a pinch single off third baseman Ron Santo's glove, scoring Curt Flood with the winning run in the 10th at St. Louis. The Cardinals had blown a 6-2 lead with Jim Stewart's ninth-inning sacrifice fly pulling the Cubs even.

Lou Brock paced St. Louis with two singles, a three-run homer and his 52nd stolen base.

RAISE MONEY

TORONTO (CP) — Mayor Philip Givens reported Tuesday that he raised about $100,000 for the St. Lawrence Centre for the Performing Arts during a recent one-day visit to the Montreal head offices of companies that do considerable business in Toronto The mayor said only one of the 11 companies he visited said it was unable to make a contribution immediately.

TEAMS WILL TOUR

MONTREAL (CP) — An 11-city tour of Canadian centres will be made during October by the national all-star and Olympic volleyball teams of the United States and Russia. During the tour the visitors will play exhibitions, conduct clinics and give demonstrations.

RCAF Nips Point Anne In 2-1 Tilt

RCAF Cosmos chalked up their second victory in as many nights, nudging Point Anne Cementmen 2-0, at the Point last night.

The win gave RCAF a comfortable position in the Commercial Softball League's three - team round - robin series for the fourth and final playoff spot. Black Diamond Cheese is the third team involved.

Tonight, Point Anne meets Westwood, in Stirling at 5.45, in the third and deciding game of their OASA Junior "D" playdown series.

The Cementmen took a 1-0 lead in the second frame, on a walk, sacrifice and an outfield error.

Cosmos won it with two in the sixth, with Morisseau's single, Clarke's double, Rainboth's base hit, a hit batter, an error and a final hit by Campbell doing the damage. Two men were cut down on the bases and two others were left.

Gib Campbell pitched the triumph, stopping the losers on just two hits. He fanned one and walked two.

Dennis Hull was the loser, charged with both runs and five of the RCAF's seven hits, before giving way to Ron Maracle in the sixth. Hull whiffed three and walked three. Maracle struck out two and passed one.

Point Anne's only hits were by Dennis Hull, in the fourth, and Gerry Maher, in the sixth.

Ray Mackie had a pair in victory, with one each for Len Morisseau, Ernie Clarke, Ned Rainboth, Doug Patterson, and John Stewart.

Gaels Favored Over Mimico; Start Monday

TORONTO (CP) — Oshawa Green Gaels and Mimico Mountles open the Ontario Lacrosse Association junior A best-of-seven final Monday night, Aug at Oshawa.

Oshawa qualified for the final by sweeping the quarter-finals against St. Catharines 4-0 and the semi-finals against Hastings 4-0. Mimico, making its first appearance in the final in 10 years, eliminated Toronto Township 3-0 in the semi-finals and Long Branch 4-1 in the quarter-finals.

Oshawa, finishing with 18 victories, one tie and one loss, is favored to defeat Mimico, which finished in second place in the nine-team league.

Other dates in the OLA final are Tuesday, Aug. 31, at Mimico; Thursday, Sept. 2, at Oshawa; Saturday, Sept. 4, at Mimico; and if necessary Monday, Sept. 6, at Oshawa, Tuesday, Sept. 7, at Mimico, and Thursday, Sept. 9, at Oshawa.

Snefjella Wins T.R. Meeus Chess Trophy

Robert Snefjella, 17-year-old Quinte High School student and a member of the summer sport staff of the Intelligencer, last night won the T. R. Meeus Trophy, emblematic of the championship of the Belleville Chess Club.

Snefjella won the trophy by tying in his third game of a four-game playoff with Terry Silsbury, holder of the Trophy for the past two years. Snefjella had won the first two games and the tie was enough to wrap up the victory. He had earlier won the club championship tournament after a playoff with Dick Payne, but had agreed to accept the challenge of Silsbury, who had been unable to compete in the tournament.

The handsome Meeus Trophy was donated to the club by T. R. Meeus, treasurer of the club ever since its organization in 1953. Snefjella becomes the fifth to hold it, winners in earlier years being Dick Payne, Bud Ellis, Martin Hamelink and Terry Silsbury.

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method

by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

A HELPFUL GRIP TIP

Unified hand action, during your swing, gives you a firm grip and more shot consistency.

Obviously, a unified grip finds your hands fitting snugly together, occupying a minimum amount of space on the clubshaft (No. 1).

Also, to work as a unit, the hands must more or less parallel each other. The palms should face each other at right angles to the target line.

A good way to assume such a grip is to stand with your hands at your sides with palms inward. Then merely move your hands in front of you and onto the clubshaft, still with the palms facing inward toward each other (No. 2).

Lawn Bowling

Possible 3-Way Playoff

EDMONTON (CP) — Three hours after Manitoba earned the pairs title, officials of the 1965 Canadian lawn bowling championship began to prepare for a possible three-way playoff in the fours.

Skip Ed Brown and Tom Griffith of St. Boniface, Man., captured their pairs honor with an extra-end 20-19 triumph over Quebec in the fifth round.

Victories by B.C. skip Dickie Williams of Vancouver and Ontario leader Don Beaupit of Niagara Falls in the sixth round created a three-way traffic jam in the fours. Williams posted an 18-11 victory over the Quebec champions led by Charles Weeks of town of Mount Royal and Beaupit cruised to a 26-5 conquest of Joe Church and his Alberta representatives from Edmonton.

In the other sixth-round fours match, Manitoba skip George Clark of Winnipeg led his crew to a 22-9 triumph over the Saskatchewan entry directed by Stan Hewlett of Saskatoon.

B.C. representative Alex (Sandy) Houston of Vancouver, favored to capture singles honors for the second time in three weeks, extended his winning streak to five games with a 21-10 triumph over Ontario ace John Sciamonte of St. Catharines.

Houston failed to clinch the title however, as Quebec champ Bill Groves of Verdun battled from behind to earn a 21-19 margin over Alberta standout Jim Huie of Edmonton.

CROATIA WINS

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Croatia scored two second-half goals to defeat Toronto Abruzzi 2-0 in a National Soccer League game Tuesday night. George Simchick broke a scoreless deadlock with a goal in the first minute of the second half and Richard Golle added the insurance marker with 20 minutes to play.

Canada's Student Track Team Ready

Written for THE CANADIAN PRESS
By BRUCE KIDD

BUDAPEST (CP)—The small Canadian track team is surprisingly confident in the face of strong American and European competition here on the eve of its four-day competition at the World Student Games.

The track events begin today.

Best example of this psychological buoyancy is Bill Crothers, weary from 24 hours of travel, slightly hampered by a sore hamstring that he pulled last week in Toronto, and facing at least a trio of runners who have run as fast or faster in the 800 metres than he has this season, Crothers is nonetheless confident of victory.

The Tokyo silver medallist is expected to get a real battle for the gold medal from West Germany's Franz Kemper, George

TELLS OF BAT INCIDENT—Herman Franks, right, manager of the San Francisco Giants, makes a point with newsmen Monday night in Pittsburgh while discussing the "bat" incident between Giants pitcher Juan Marichal (left) and Los Angeles catcher John Roseboro. Marichal was suspended for eight days and fined $1,750. as a result of the fracas. (CP Wirephoto)

Roseboro Considers Legal Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — John Roseboro, Los Angeles Dodgers catcher who was hit on the head Sunday with a baseball bat by Juan Marichal, said Tuesday night he has discussed a legal suit against the San Francisco pitching star.

"But there is nothing definite," Roseboro said before the Dodgers' game with New York Mets. "I got a message from my lawyer and called him. We discussed the possibilities of a suit, and decided to wait until I get back to Los Angeles to go over it more thoroughly."

The Dodgers return home from their current road trip Sept. 6.

Marichal struck Roseboro with a bat at least twice during a game at San Francisco, inflicting a two-inch wound on the catcher's head.

National League president Warren Giles suspended the pitcher for eight playing days—through Aug. 31—and fined him $1,750.

Roseboro went to a hospital Tuesday for precautionary x-rays, which proved negative. He has not played since being hurt, but is expected to be in the starting line-up tonight against the Mets.

Win Women's Best Ball Tournament

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Mrs. Christine Harris and Mrs. Velma Kelly of Hamilton Glendale won the Ontario women's best ball golf tournament Tuesday with a net score of 67.

Second were Mrs. Stu Williamson and Mrs. Harry Deyman of Peterborough with a net score of 68. Third were Mrs. Stan Cox and Mrs. John Walter of Toronto New Uplands with a 68 net. Mrs. Williamson and Mrs. Deyman were awarded second place on the basis of a better score on the second nine.

Tied at 69 were Shirley Woodley and Mrs. Faye King of Thornhill, Ont., Mrs. George Young and Mrs. Ed Farnell of Georgetown, Ont., and Esther Might and Anne Crowley of Peterborough.

Seventy-four teams competed in the 18-hole event.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — Lebon M. L. a French-bred gelding making a comeback after knee and ankle ailments slowed him down, scored an impressive victory in the fourth race at Fort Erie Race Track Tuesday.

Lebon M. L. was ridden by Jim Fitzsimmons of Calgary, also making a comeback after being sidelined for two months by a broken ankle.

The six-year-old son of Cote d'Ore 2nd, won by 2½ lengths in the 6½ furlong $6,500 claiming race. Second was Winkie and King of Maryland was third.

Sox, Pontiacs Chalk Up Playoff Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Brantford Red Sox tied their series with Stratford Chiefs and London Pontiacs narrowed Guelph CJOYs' lead to one game in senior Inter-County baseball semi-final playoffs Tuesday night.

Brantford came from behind to defeat Stratford 4-2 and tie their best-of-five series at one game each.

London managed only five hits, but took advantage of Guelph errors for a 2-1 win. The Pontiacs now trail the best-of-seven series 3-2.

Both series resume tonight (Wednesday) in Guelph and Stratford. If a seventh game is needed in the London-Guelph series, it will be played Friday in London.

Y.A. Tittle 'Gets Little Itchy'

By JACK HAND

ST. MARY'S, Calif. (AP)—Y. A. Tittle admits he gets a little itchy on the press box telephone watching somebody else throw a football.

Tittle now is a part-time advisory coach with San Francisco '49ers of the National Football League, working with the quarterbacks. Part of the job is climbing up into the press coop to man the telephone to the bench during a ball game.

"I get a little itchy," said Y. A. "at practice, it seems strange. Now at game time when you see the other guys throwing the ball, it's enough to make my toes curl."

Tittle, 38, looked as though he could strip off the neat tan suit, white shirt and tie and jump into a uniform with no trouble at all.

"It is a strange feeling coming to the realization that you're not chuckin' any more," he said. "But this is a game to be played by young people. I'm 38, and I'll be 39 in a couple of months."

Was there any chance Y. A. might reconsider and come out of retirement?

WON'T COME BACK

"Not a chance," he said.

"Last year convinced me. It was like somebody tapped me on the shoulder and sort of told me to call it a halt.

"My children are getting older. If I went back east (he still belongs to New York Giants) they'd have to stay behind because of school. I wouldn't want that. I am in business here, and things are all right.

"I did bad last year, and the team was so bad. I was fortunate to play as long as I played and even got a chance to play with a winner.

"It was fun. I enjoyed every second of it. I can't think of anything better than football, whether it was getting ready to practise or go to a ball game.

IS NEVER BORING

"It never became boring to me. I always looked forward to practice."

But don't you sneak a throw now and then?

Tittle grinned and scratched the top of his balding head.

"Oh, I throw a few," he said. "After everybody else goes in." It is ironic that Tittle is working with the quarterbacks for the club with which he played for so many years—the club that let him go to the Giants because he didn't fit into their system.

Red Hickey, the coach of the '49ers in those days, has gone, but John Brodie, Tittle's replacement, still is the No. 1 quarterback. One of Tittle's jobs has been to work with young George Mira, the second year man from Miami.

"Mira gets back and sets up fast," said Y. A. "He's about as fast doing that as anybody I ever saw. Of course, he has a few things to learn."

Leafs Split Pair With Red Wings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Art Lopez stole the show in the International League Wednesday night, and although his effort did little to enhance his team's chances for a playoff spot it did benefit the second-place Toronto Maple Leafs.

Lopez unloaded a grand-slam homer with two out in the eighth inning to give Toledo Mud Hens a 5-3 win over league - leading Columbus Jets.

But the Mud Hens, currently in seventh place, remained 16 games off the pace and poor bets to finish among the top four teams for a playoff berth.

Meanwhile, Toronto salvaged the second-half of a double-header by defeating Rochester Red Wings 3-0 after losing the first game 3-0 to remain one game out of first. Columbus won the opener 5-4 against the Mud Hens, and Buffalo Bisons edged Syracuse Chiefs 4-3. A game between Atlanta Crackers and Jacksonville Suns was rained out.

SIGN SAMPSON

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Rifles of the Continental Football League Tuesday announced the signing of end Lee Sampson, who was waived out of the Canadian Football League by Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

ENTERS HOSPITAL

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP)—Homero Blancas, whose bid for leadership in the world $200,000 golf tournament was hampered by illness, entered St. Vincent's hospital Tuesday. A hospital spokesman said Blancas, who finished the tournament in a tie for fifth place, was in fair condition and comfortable with a high fever and a virus illness.

Canada's

Germann of the United States, and John Boulter of Britain.

CAN'T GET WORRIED

But, said Crothers of Germann, winner of the 800 metres in the Russia-U.S. dual meet last month, "I just can't get too worried about him." Nor was he inclined to worry about Kemper or Boulter.

The usually nerve-taut Harry Jerome is quite relaxed and unconcerned about his 100 metres, in which one of the two men who beat him in Tokyo, Cuba's silver medallist Enrique Figuerola, is favored. Jerome is still one of the world's best and should be tough to beat here.

Canada's two other top medal hopes, George Puce and Dave Bailey, are equally on top mentally for their competition in the discus and 1,500 metres respectively. Puce has spent most of his time training with weight-event competitors Randy Matson and John Magrath of the United States, and has returned to his excellent spring-season form, which won him several major events.

'Big Red' Clogs Traffic

By WILL GRIMSLEY

BUDAPEST (AP)—They call her "Big Red." Rival players shiver at the sight of her.

She is the latest of the Soviet Union's succession of athletic amazons.

Her name is Ravilya Kalimova Prokopenko. She is six feet, seven inches tall. She wears a size 16 shoe. She has hands like hams and the shoulders of a bull.

She plays centre for the Soviet women's basketball team at the World Student Games here.

The Russian women are by far the best. They are big, tall and tough—and the red-haired Revilya is the mest awesome of them all.

When she walks down the street, her elbows usually swing over the heads of the crowd, people stop and gape.

She clogs Budapest traffic.

SEEK AUTOGRAPHS

Small boys and girls flock around her for autographs. She can't enter another arena—such as the swimming pool or the gymnastics hall—without taking attention away from the sport at hand.

"There's the big Russian girl," people whisper in many languages. "That's Big Red."

Ravilya appears unconcerned by all this attention.

She is a pleasant woman, who talks readily, submits to interviews with the foreign press, and smiles easily.

If anything, she is a bit confused to find herself such an attraction—and perhaps a little pleased.

Ravilya was working on a co-operative farm near Tashkent, the capital of Uzbek in Soviet Asia, when she came to the attention of sports authorities.

Noting her tremendous size, the sports officials persuaded her to enter university in Moscow on the Soviet version of a sports scholarship.

She learned the techniques of basketball and quickly made the national team.

Does she score many points? "Not many," she says, "my teammates score more."

Is she married?

Indeed, she replies proudly. Her husband is as tall as she is, and weighs almost twice as much. He is a wrestler and weightlifter.

He would have to be to carry Ravilya across the threshold.

U.S. Swimmers Add Up Gold

From AP-Reuters

BUDAPEST (CP)—The United States, competing in the World Student Games for the first time, apparently meant what it said when it declared it was sending "only the best" to represent it here in an avowed bid for athletic prestige.

U.S. male swimmers and divers swept all three events on the program Tuesday to end up with nine out of a possible 12 gold medals.

The U.S. basketball squad, featuring such celebrated college stars as Princeton graduate Bill Bradley, had a close call Tuesday but got past Romania 69-60 and appears for an exciting showdown with the Soviets.

The track and field program, centrepiece of the games, opens today and the U.S squad includes such big names as Randy Matson, the world's only 70-foot man in the shot put, and Bob Schul, the Olympic 5,000-metre champion.

But other countries have sent track stars here. too, and a fairly broad distribution of medals may be expected.

CROWTHER LEADS

Canada, also taking part for the first time, has an eight-member squaded by Bill Crothers of Markham Ont., Olympic silver medallist in the 800 metres, and Harry Jerome of Vancouver, Olympic bronze medallist in the 100 metres and one of only four men to cover the distance in 10 seconds flat.

Poland has sent the world's fastest woman, Irena Kirszenstein, fresh from scintillating conquests of the best U.S. sprinters at an international dual meet in Warsaw. The Soviet contingent includes hefty Tamara Press, who puts the shot and heaves the discus farther than any other woman and Valery Brumel, Olympic champion in the high jump.

From Britain has come Lynn Davies, Olympic broad jump champion, to challenge his Soviet arch-rival, Igor Ter-Ovanesyan.

The U.S. swimming victories Tuesday came in platform diving, won by Rick Gilbert, the 1,500-metre freestyle, taken by Mike Wall in 17:09.9, and the 400 - metre medley relay, in which the Americans were clocked in a brisk 4:03.9.

The nine gold medals in swimming accounted for the entire American total at the end of the fifth day of competition.

TEL AVIV (CP-AP) — The U.S. swimming team, led by a 15 - year - old schoolboy Mark Spitz of Santa Clara, Calif., won 11 of 13 medals Tuesday at the seventh world Maccabiah Games in the Israeli capital.

The 130-pound mite from the famed Santa Clara Swimming Club pointed for a third gold medal today after two victories in a day dominated by five swimming finals.

There was activity Tuesday in 16 of the 20 sports scheduled at the athletic festival which ends Aug. 31.

Spitz, hailed as a leading U.S. prospect for the 1968 Olympics, was favored to capture the 400-metre individual medley. He won the 400-metre freestyle in 4.24.0 and led the winning American 800-metre freestyle relay to a win by 30 metres over Israel in 8:32.6.

Both times were Maccabiah records.

Yvonna Tovis, a pretty 17-year-old Israeli girl, won the 400-metre individual medley in 5:49.6 to break the U.S. domination of gold medals

The Czech - born athlete won by three metres over Cathy Cole of the U.S. The race comprised butterfly backstroke, breaststroke and freestyle.

In other sports, Canada's basketball team scored a 104-53 victory over Venezuela while Israel downed Argentina 86-61.

Canada's golf team was forced to withdraw when Norman Goldman of Toronto was stricken with an attack of appendicitis. The three other team members will compete individually.

Announce Exhibition Schedule

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs announced Tuesday night a 14-game pre-season exhibition schedule, with 10 of the games against National Hockey League opposition.

The Leafs will play three of their exhibitions at Maple Leaf Gardens. They will be against New York Rangers Oct. 2, Chicago Black Hawks Oct. 7 and Detroit Red Wings Oct. 17.

The Oct. 17 game will mark the first Sunday night NHL contest in the Gardens' history.

The Leafs will play four games against New York and two each against Detroit, Chicago and Boston Bruins. They will also play Rochester Americans, their American Hockey League farm club, twice and will meet Quebec Aces and Buffalo Bisons, also of the AHL, once each.

Toronto will not make a western exhibition swing this year—the first time in four seasons they haven't.

The exhibition schedule:

SEPTEMBER

25—Toronto vs. Roch. at Peter.
30—Toronto vs. N.Y. at Peter.

OCTOBER

2—Toronto vs. N.Y. at Toronto.
3—Toronto vs. Buffalo at Buff.

The Handguns

Don Parks recorded the best score at the Quinte Marksmen Club last night with a 258.

Following him closely was Frank Allin, who shot 255.

Louis Kulscar, who has been high man for a month, was third with 253.

Cliff Smith brought up the rear with a score of 250.

Read Goes Two Up On Latta

Pat Steele drove in two runs with an eighth inning single to give Read a 5-3 win over Latta in a South Hastings Baseball playoff game last night. The blow enabled Read to climb in to a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series, with the next contest slated for Read, on Thursday night. Game time is 6.15.

Frank Farrell sprinkled eight hits in hurling the distance for the winners. He whiffed nine and handed out three free passes to first.

Lorne Cronkright pitched on the loser's mound, allowing nine hits while throwing third strikes past eight. He did not walk a man, but eight errors made by his team-mates were costly.

Percy Milligan had a field day at the plate for Read, as he slammed three singles. Gerry Brennan stroked a pair of singles, while with lone hits were Ted Abrams, C. Steele, Pat Steele and Al Enright.

Doug Rollins, Doug Chisholm, and Howard Meeks contributed two base-hits each toward the losing cause, and Lorne Cronkright and Don Harris added one.

An argument occurred late in the game when officials ordered the clubs to continue to play as darkness closed in. A Latta player said this morning that the club's final batter in the bottom of the eighth did not take his turn at bat.

Batteries: Farrell and Brennan; Cronkright and Rollins.

Campaneris Will Play All Positions

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Campy Campaneris, Kansas City Athletics' shortstop, will play all nine positions—one for each inning—against Los Angeles Angels Sept. 8 in a regular American League game.

Campaneris, the league's stolen base leader, was a catcher in Cuba before the Athletics signed him. He was shuttled between left field and shortstop early this season. As a youngster, he pitched both left-handed and right-handed.

Said Kansas City owner Charles Finley:

"So far as I can find out this has never been done before in the majors. I found an instance of a player playing each position during the season but not all nine positions in one game."

Finley said he cleared the idea with Joe Cronin, the American League president.

Coach Raps Feuding Sport Group

By WILBUR MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Army's famed former coach, Earl (Red) Blaik, denounced feuding, fussing amateur and collegiate sports groups Tuesday and suggested that a 12-man board referee disputes.

"A plague on both their houses," Blaik exclaimed at one point in testifying at a Senate commerce committee hearing investigating the row between the Amateur Athletic Union and National Collegiate Athletic Association.

"The one is more pure than able. The other is more able than pure," Blaik declared but let senators guess just which he was talking about.

"Each sincerely believes it is absolutely right," Blaik said, and added, that's what makes the fuss so hard to smother.

The president of the AAU, Clifford E. Buck of Denver, Colo., denied the AAU wanted anything but a live-and-let-live situation.

The Senate committee is in the act since the big fuss has blown up again after a temporary truce for the 1964 Olympics. There are those who claim if it isn't settled, the United States' chances in the 1968 Olympics will be badly hurt.

HAS NO AMBITIONS

"The AAU has no territorial ambitions," Buck said. "It wants nothing that belongs to someone else. It is not seeking powers or jurisdiction that belongs to carry on its program of sports, for American youth, by thousands of unpaid volunteer workers."

Blaik suggested Congress somehow create a 12-man arbitration board, saying the fuss is in the hands of men from both groups who have made a career of the jurisdictional fight.

The former West Point football coach suggested three members of the board represent the AAU, three the NCAA; one the armed services, one the National Intercollegiate Athletic Association; one high schools, two college presidents and one man from "the professions," the latter to be selected by the college presidents.

Much of the growing bitterness, Blaik contended, comes from the big television revenues colleges get from football broadcasts.

The hearing continues today. The AAU has threatened to bar from competition non-college athletes under its jurisdiction who compete in track meets sanctioned by the NCAA's U.S. Track and Field Federation.

Red Cross Awards Are Presented

MARMORA — Marmora recreation summer program featured the annual swim meet on Friday afternoon at the Legion Park with 30 young local swimmers participating in the events.

Presentation of Red Cross awards was made by Douglas Trumble, swimming supervisor, to children successfully passing tests. There were 17 events, besides special events, such as high diving. First prize went to Doug Walker; relay race each for boys and girls and other novelty events; watermelon race, girls' free-for-all (winner received the watermelon), Cathy Scanlon; boys, Fred Bebee.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — Sis Herbert, Canada's two-year-old Horse of the Year in 1963, regained some of her championship form Tuesday night at Greenwood Raceway with a 1¼ length victory in the sixth race.

The four-year-old daughter of Singing Herbert, owned by the W. H. Herbert Stable of London, Ont., was driven to victory by Bill Herbert before 5,860 fans.

Sis Herbert returned $6.60 to win and combined with runner-up Invasion for a $36.80 quinella.

CHICAGO (CP) — Armbro Flight, Canada's three-year-old Horse of the Year in 1964 who will attempt to win the Hambletonian at Duquoin, Ill., Sept. 1, kept her 1965 victory streak intact Tuesday night by winning the Illinois Filly Trot at Sportsmen's Park here.

Her time for the mile was 2:03 2-5 as she defeated Be Sweet by a length with Jean Sampson third.

Trained and driven by Joe O'Brien, the 84-year-old Alberton, P.E.I. native, Armbro Flight and Noble Victory, a Texas-owned and also unbeaten three-year-old, are the co-favorites in the next week's $125,000 trotting classic in Duquoin.

This was Armbro Flight's 12th win in a row this year and the $3,479 earned boosted her 1965 winnings to $77,180.

MONTREAL (CP)—Armbro Granite, driven by Leo Pelletier, won the Harness Horsemen's Futurity Trot in a time of 2:05 1-5 at Richelieu racetrack Tuesday.

The two-year-old trotter beat favorite Bright Mir, driven by Marcel Dostie, by 2½ lengths over a fast track.

Armbro Granite paid backers $7.20, $2.70 and $2.70, Bright Mir $2.40 and $2.20 while Kino Herbert paid $3.00 to show.

SIGN QUARTERBACK

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Philadelphia Bulldogs of the Continental League Tuesday signed quarterback Sonny Gibbs, former Texas Christian ace. Gibbs was recently dropped by Detroit Lions of the National Football League.

Hoop Team Set For Big Tour

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada's national basketball team winds up three weeks of punishing practice this weekend and leaves on a 12-game tour of South America.

Coach Stu Aberdeen predicted Tuesday night that his dozen players "will give Canada a fair shake."

The group is the first national team selected from all player sources—member teams of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association, colleges, high schools, and the ranks of Canadians who have been trained in American colleges.

Previous teams have been formed from the annual Senior A champions with supplements from other teams.

The tour takes the Canadians in the next three weeks to Lima, Peru; Santiago, Chile; Mendoza and Buenos Aires, Argentina; Porto Alegre, Curitiba and Sao Paulo, Brazil; and Mexico City.

Yesterday's Stars

Batting — Tommy Harper, Reds, hit a two-run homer with two out in the ninth, lifting Cincinnati to a 3-2 victory over Milwaukee Braves.

Pitching — Mel Stottlemyre, Yankees, limited Minnesota Twins to five hits in pitching New York to a 2-1 victory.

BRAVES REPLY

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee Braves said Tuesday "it is doubtful that a community like Milwaukee can or will support any baseball operation," and declared that compelling the owners to keep the club in Milwaukee next year would constitute "involuntary servitude." The National League club was replying to a federal anti-trust suit brought by Milwaukee County in connection with the club's proposed transfer to Atlanta.

Costs May Force Papers To Raise Price

CALGARY (CP)—Eric Whitfield of the Toronto Star has told the 32nd annual Canadian Circulation Managers' Association convention the circulation department—and so the customer—will have to bear an increasing portion of future news costs.

Referring to general price advances of everyday products during the last three decades, he said: "If history repeats itself, we will soon have a 15-cent newspaper.

"If this is a beacon to follow, records show that five Canadian newspapers sell their Saturday edition at 15 cents."

He said Monday a recent Gallup poll in the United States indicated that 77 per cent of the readership were willing to pay 15 cents a copy.

"We must raise a larger share of the newspaper revenue," said the first speaker of the three-day business sessions. "We must forever end that old premise that a newspaper is a penny product and that it should be subsidized by advertising revenue."

He suggested metropolitan newspapers consider withdrawal from fringe area service and concentrate the metropolitan product on the home and retail market.

Because of sparse circulation, high mileage, collection and labor costs, the fringe areas are an uneconomical market, he said.
